The trial lasted four days. The ravished body of Susan Hutchins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hutchins, was found on the outskirts of North Bay two days after she disappeared last May 20.

FAMILY FRIEND

The crown charged that Hutson, a family friend who had been asked by the parents to take care of Susan, half-dragged her to the outskirts of the city and attacked her sexually. The child died from shock and haemorrhage. She had between 20 and 30 lacerations on her body.

Hutson's defence was that the girl ran away from him in a city park. He said he could not catch up to her because of a limp he was suffering. He said he had suffered a bullet wound in the head in 1951 and suffered epileptic seizures ever since the .22-calibre slug was removed.

He claimed he had two epileptic seizures when he was alone with the girl, and after the second one he was "all muddled up" until his arrest.

Crown attorney T. F. Forrestal said in his address to the jury there was no evidence Hutson was an epileptic.

Six witnesses submitted evidence that they had seen Hutson or a man with a little blue-coated girl at various points between the city and the spot where Susan's body was found.

Kurt Meyer Suffers From Arthritis

WERL, Germany (CP)—Former S. S. general Kurt Meyer is suffering from arthritis and taking daily bath treatments in prison here, it was learned today. His condition is not serious.

Col. R. J. Meech, commander of the Allied national prison in this West German town described Meyer as "still arrogant" in manner.

Meyer, commander of the 12th S. S. Panzer division, was sentenced to death by a Canadian court in 1945 as a war criminal responsible for the deaths in Normandy of 18 Canadian prisoners-of-war. The sentence was later reduced to life imprisonment in Canada.

2 Prisoners Give Sheriff Bad Time

ENID, Okla. — (AP) — Two determined prisoners left the local county jail today for the state penitentiary to serve auto theft sentences, but not before they gave Sheriff Lelon Coyle a few sleepless nighs.

Sunday, Coyle discovered one bar to their cell sawed through and another started on. He confiscated the hacksaw blade.

Monday he searched the pair again and confiscated another hacksaw blade.

Tuesday he found them sawing on a long chain barring their cell door, and confiscated a third blade.

Wednesday a search produced still another blade.

LONDON (Reuters) — The government is advising British business men against participation in Moscow trade talks under the auspices of an organization founded after last year's negotiations there, Foreign Secretary Eden announced today.

He told the Commons Britain is eager to expand legitimate trade with Russia but only through organized channels already in existence.

Eden branded as a "Communist Front organization" the British Council for the Promotion of International Trade.

Officers Accept Shipping Raise

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's merchant marine officers agreed Thursday to accept the latest wage offer of the Shipping Federation of Canada.

The agreement was reached during a joint meeting of the National Association of Marine Engineers and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

The company proposal offers better working hours, higher wages, a vacation plan and a training program.

The next step in the negotiations will be a meeting between the heads of the two unions and the Canadian-flag committee of the Shipping Federation of Canada.

The shipowners offered to give both engine-room and deck officers a 40-hour week while in port and a 48-hour week at sea. A second engineer will receive $415 a month under the new proposals instead of the present $380. The men now work a 56-hour week.

In addition to the improved hours and wages, the owners have also tentatively agreed to an annual leave of 30 days and a school-training-plan for both deck and engineroom men.

Greek King Lauds Plants

DETROIT (AP) — King Paul of Greece told a civic banquet in his honor here Thursday night that Detroit's automotive and armament plants have helped bridge "the gap between the haves and have-nots," and this "may be one of the greatest equalizing forces of modern democracy."

Detroit's weather was cold, but its reception was warm for the Greek monarch and his dainty queen, Frederika.

Their special train arrived from Toledo, Ohio, in windy, freezing weather. But hundreds were at the station to cheer them, and still more hundreds jammed around their downtown hotel when they arrived.

Today they tour the Ford Motor Company's Rouge plant and Greenfield Village, Henry Ford's replica of early America, before leaving for Chicago.

Otonabee Names Officers, Clerks For Election

KEENE (ENS)—The Otonabee council held their November meeting in the council chambers Monday afternoon.

The lease of the club room to the Keene Women's Institute to November 1, 1954, was renewed.

The clerk was requested to write to the Otonabee School Area Board, asking that a representative attend the electors' meeting on nomination day. The township gave approval to the Norwood High School area board to allocate the provincial grant on the new High School building debentures as they see fit. Bylaw No. 1160 was given three readings and passed appointing Deputy Returning Officers, Poll Clerks and polling places for the township in 1953. The clerk was instructed to proceed with the collection of salvage yard license fees and also to draw to the attention of one operator the need for cleaning up his property in connection with salvage yard operations. One hundred and fifty voters lists were ordered printed as soon as possible.

No action was taken in regard to the application for nursing home assistance from a temporary resident of the township. Plans for the Rememberance Day Service to be held at the township hall at 10.30 a.m. and at the cenotaph a few minutes before 11 a.m. November 11, were discussed and the hope expressed that all the school children and as many adults as possible would attend.

Snow plowing for the 1954 season was considered. Discussion on a township road to Serpent Mounds took place and also the possibilities for a public park at Serpent Mounds near Hiawatha.

Road voucher No. 20, $1,108.06, was passed for payment.

Italian Court Convicts 2 Wartime Soldiers

NOVARA, Italy (AP)—The Novara court today convicted two Americans for the wartime, behind-the-lines slaying of Maj. William Holohan of New York City. They were tried in absentia. The court acquitted three Italian co-defendants.

Judge Francesco Sischer sentenced former Lieut. Aldo Icardi of Pittsburgh to life imprisonment. He sentenced former Sgt. Carl Dolce of Rochester, N. Y. to 17 years in prison.

Since U. S. courts declined to extradite them, they cannot be forced to return to Italy to serve the sentences.

Little Hope 8 Miners Still Alive

BONANZA, Utah (AP) — Two rescue workers, in a giant metal bucket, descended a smoke-filled gilsonite mine early today but found no trace of eight missing miners.

Little hope was held that the men, trapped 500 feet below the surface by an explosion and fire Thursday, were still alive.

Fellow miners thought they heard faint cries coming out of the debris Thursday night. However, George Collins, day shift boss; and Joe Postma, a miner, said only falling rocks and sagging timbers broke the silence when they were lowered to the 300-foot level.

Collins and Postma were in a metal bucket fitted with a steel cover and was lowered on a cable. They wore oxygen masks and carried emergency equipment.

FACES COATED

Rescuers, their faces coated with a white, protective paste, continued digging into the debris. The main fire is out but smaller blazes continue to send fumes out of the giant trench.

The explosion wrecked the hoist house and several hundred feet of the open-cut mine which follows a deep, vertical vein of gilsonite across northwestern Utah. Gilsonite, a coal-like substance, is a solid form of petroleum used in paints, varnishes and lineoleum compounds.

Russians Have More Food To Celebrate

LONDON (Reuters) — An increased flow of food and consumer goods gave Russians something personal to celebrate today, Moscow radio said, as festivies marking the 36th anniversary of the Russian Revolution got under way throughout the Soviet Union.

"More goods for the people" is one of the key themes of the celebrations.

Moscow stores have received nearly twice the quantity of goods they had at this time last year. Traitional bazaars have opened in almost all cities and workers settlements, and prices are down.

Moscow's newly-built skyscrapers and new university buildings are floodlit, and thousands of people have arrived to see the illuminations, decorations, slogans, red bunting and giant protraits of the leaders of the Communist party and government.

Moscow radio has pepped up its programs with songs and dance music.

Magistrate Atkinson told the chief: "The courts are not going to support police when they get a man helpless and treat him like that."

Herron was found guilty of an attack with intent to cause grievous bodily harm and will be sentenced Nov. 12. He told the court he was drunk and did not know what he was doing.

St. Andrew's Tea, Bazaar Increases Its Popularity

Getting bigger every year—the attendance at the Women's Association tea and bazaar at St. Andrew's Church Thursday afternoon outdid all previous records. Advance ticket sales reported to convener Mrs. Harry Tudhope were well over 600 and treasurer Mrs. Victor Hamilton was kept busy selling admissions during the tea.

For a number of years St. Andrews has been having very large crowds at their fall tea, and this event has now become a "must" on many social calendars. It is a place to meet your friends and enjoy fellowship, and in addition, there are always numerous items for Christmas giving and decorating that catch one's fancy.

The Flowers Guild's table offered reindeers and sleighs, in teams or singly, to fill with colorful baubles or pine cones, etc., at the Christmas season, and had the cutest little woolly dogs and leather bracelets to tuck into Christmas stockings, as well as serviceable articles such as aprons, children's blouses and knitted things.

The large gift table featured the square decorated candles for the Christmas table, tiny dolls and a unique item made by Mrs. J. S. Boyd, tiny shoes of stiffened crochet work similar to that of the place mat sets which were so popular with the customers. Needlework at this table included a quilted bath mat and seat cover, felt handbags for children, and a wide selection of dainty and utilitarian aprons.

The farm table offered baskets of vegetables, fowl, preserves and jams, home baking and, a popular item indeed, small packages of sage and savory grown in local gardens. A home baking table beside it was laden with extra good things and was continually ringed with buyers.

There was also a "white elephant" table and it offered numerous attractive things, such as tea pot and cream and sugar sets, odd plates, and jewelry.

In charge of all these tables as well as the two tea rooms and the nursery was Mrs. Jack Richardson, this year's general convener.

For the decorating she had selected a most capable team in Mrs. James Wharry and Mrs. James Heffernan and the completed effect was most heartily admired by everyone.

They made wide use of tamarack and balsam branches with sumac and deep shades in chrysanthemums, adding intriguing touches here and there. The tea room in the ladies' parlor was more conventionally done than that set up on the stage where sheaves of corn stood in the corners, and a border of ripened oat heads almost hid decoy ducks.

The stage table was laid with a green cloth and in the centre a pedestal crystal plate was dripping with grapes and laden with various fruits which spilled over onto the table. Candles here were in hurricane lamp holders.

The other table, with a white silk damask cloth, was centred with an epergne filled with deep bronze and gold 'mums and tea roses and handsome, tall silver candalabra held the white tapers.

Tea pourers were Mrs. G. H. Roper, Mrs. Charles Pilon, Mrs. J. R. Marshall, Mrs. E. Hawley, Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, Mrs. I. H. Keefer, Mrs. James Wharry and Mrs. C. B. Waite.

Mrs. Ken Robertson was in charge of serving and the assistants included Mrs. E. W. Armstrong, Miss E. Scott, Mrs. H. Northrop, Miss E. Hawley, Mrs. J. Dougherty, Mrs. E. Braund, Mrs. J. Campbell, Miss J. Gillespie, Mrs. K. Kingston, Mrs. L. Bearne, Mrs. W. Turner, Mrs. C. Cadd, Mrs. R. Maybee, Mrs. G. Breckenridge, Mrs. J. Gillespie, Mrs. H. Niven, Mrs. H. White, Mrs. C. Andrew, Mrs. E. Burnham, Mrs. J. Lillico, Miss M. Manning, Mrs. T. Taylor, Mrs. J. Heffernan, Mrs. W. L. McNeill, Mrs. R. Rothschild, Mrs. R. Lewis and Mrs. L. Routley.

Convener for the tea table supplies was Mrs. Louise Wood, assisted by Mrs. D. Walker, Mrs. I. R. Rattenbury, Mrs. F. Nicholls, Mrs. J. Young, Mrs. H. Marr, Miss Marion Manning, Mrs. C. Collins, Mrs. W. Lewis, Mrs. Roy Lewis, Mrs. Lloyd Routley and Mrs. D. Ridyard.

Hostesses for the tea rooms were Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, Mrs. D. V. Ketcheson and Mrs. Paige Rowell.

Among the services offered the guests was a clothes check room attended by Mrs. R. A. McWilliams, and the nursery was in charge of Mrs. David Brown and Mrs. R. Menzies.

WA president Mrs. J. A. Dewart welcomed everyone at the door and was assisted by Mrs. Henry Cotton.

Convener of the flower guild table was Mrs. Jack Archibald, assisted by Mrs. John Baird, Mrs. Herb Hawley and Mrs. Grant Gillespie. The general bazaar table was convened by Mrs. J. S. Boyd, assisted by Mrs. L. M. Brooks, Mrs. W. Swanger, Mrs. F. W. Moeser, Mrs. J. A. McKone, Mrs. Harold Davis, Mrs. C. B. Waite, Mrs. Mildred Kerr, Mrs. Don Kerr and Mrs. William Alberry.

The farm table was in charge of Helen Brown with Miss Mary Hall, Mrs. Ken Darling, Mrs. C. Laing and Mrs. Melville Stewart assisting. Mrs. Eric Baggs convened the home baking and her assistants were Mrs. F. Batten, Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, Mrs. C. Holman, Mrs. J. Young, Mrs. H. Hutchinson, Mrs. J. McColl, Mrs. F. Dawson and Mrs. A. A. Munro.

Donations for the white elephant Cragg and her assistants in selling table were received by Mrs. E. were Mrs. Haig Kelly and Mrs. George Lewis.

Cancer Deaths Of Children Discussed By Pathologist

"Cancer causes more deaths in the 1 to 14 age groups than any other disease found in children today," Dr. Leslie Donohue, director of pathology, Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, told representatives of the Canadian Cancer Society at Toronto Thursday.

Dr. Donohue in his talk on children and cancer, identified the types of cancer found in children as leukemia and mostly in brain, kindney, the adrenal, bone and eye tissues. And because some of these cancers are deep-seated and cannot be observed and children do not perhaps complain of aches and pains in the early stages, the best assurance against the disease making headway is to investigate when any swelling developes that cannot be explained by an injury, or any swelling or inflmation from an injury persists. Also, when it is noticed that the child is not performing acts of movements as he or she did previously. While in some cases of leukemia the disease has been repressed temporarily, no case of permanent cure has been recorded to date. In some instances, the hormones, ACTH and cortizone have produced spectacular results but they have been temporary so far, he concluded.

Some hope that doctors and researchers may be on the right track to find the cancer cure was held out at yesterday's meetings by three doctors. All based their statements on work of British researchers, one of whom had said that a cancer cure might be available within 10 years. The likely new field lies in chemical studies of metabolic antagonists.

Metabolic antagonists are chemicals which interfere with the cells' ability to use food. Obviously an antagonist must be found which stops the cancer cell from developing without interfering with normal cells. While this has not yet been done, research on folic acid antoganist has shown up a "track and we won't know where it might lead," Dr. W. G. Cosbie said.

Dr. T. C. Routley noted that Sir Cecil Wakeley, president of the Royal College of Surgeons said that within 10 years the cancer riddle might besolved. Dr. O. H. Warwick quoted another Briton, Dr. Alexander Harrow, who more cautiously said that researchers may be moving out of the first stage of an impartial investigation of all possible cancer treatments into definite and limited avenues of attack.

There were over 150 representatives of the Canadian Cancer Society in attendance at the Conference, most of them from all parts of Ontario, some from New Brunswick, Quebec and Manitoba. The representatives were given a reception by the Hon. Louis Breiptaupt, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario and Mrs. Breiptaupt at Queen's Park at the close of the sessions Thursday. The five Peterborough delegates attended.

Members' Responsibilities Outlined To Institute

ROSENEATH (ENS)—"Responsibilities of Women's Institute Members" was the subject of the address given by Mrs. Gordon McCubbin, of Warkworth, guest speaker at the November meeting of Roseneath Women's Institute.

Mrs. McCubbin is the newly-elected chairman of the Women's Institutes of Belleville area, comprising 61 senior women's institues and five junior women's institutes.

In part the speaker said, "We have talents burning within us and are not taking advantage of our opportunities to use them."

She urged younger women to be more ready to accept responsibilities and the older members of the WI to be more active. In conclusion, the speaker urged the members "to keep up your motto, 'For Home and Country,' and to develop into better, happier and more useful citizens."

Mrs. McCubbin was introduced by Mrs. Frank Brown and thanked by Mrs. Ernest Burrison. A unique feature of introducing the speaker, Mrs. Brown placed brass candlesticks with tall candles on the head table as a tribute to Mrs. McCubbin's ancestors. These candlesticks had been brought from County Down, Ireland, by Mrs. McCubbin's great-great-grandmother in 1831, and are now a family heirloom.

The meeting was held in the township hall on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Charlton Grigg as hostess. The president, Mrs. Harold Taylor, presided, with Mrs. Edgar Carew as pianist.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $161.38.

Mrs. Alfred Pringle, good cheer convener, reported 19 persons remembered since the last meeting. Plans were made to bring all surplus papers to the township hall on November 28 for the Cobourg Boy Scouts.

It was decided to pay a share of the branch president's expenses to attend the president's conference in April in Guelph.

Plans were made to make Christmas boxes for patients in the Hospital for Sick Children.

Plans were also made for the Christmas meeting. There will be an exchange of Christmas gifts with a value of not more than 50 cents. The Rev. J. R. Wheeler will be the guest speaker.

Reports of the Belleville Area Convention were presented by the delegates, Mrs. Harold Taylor, Mrs. J. N. Lovelace, Mrs. Louis Dowler and Mrs. Frank Brown.

Mrs. Ernest Burrison, as program convener, was in charge of community singing. A birthday prize was won by Karen Halstead; Mrs. Walter Down, Sr., conducted a quiz, "Triplet Twisters," with Mrs. Norman McCubbin's group carrying off the prize. A poem, "Armistice Day," written by Willis A. Dowler, a former Roseneath boy, was read by Mrs. E. Burrison. Mrs. Grigg served afternoon tea.

Home and School Association News

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL

Open house was held by the Confederation Home and School Association on Teusday evening. The class with most parents attending was Miss Carroll's morning kindergarten class. Principal Mr. J. Nichols invited them to inspect the children's work. Mrs. Howard Powell extended an invitation to both parents and children to attend the fun night being held on Friday evening, November 13, and outlined several of the events to take place.

Speaker of evening was Mrs. E. Chambers, representing the council for retarded children which has just opened a school in Peterborough. She outlined the aims and purposes of the council and the school and told of their difficulties in finding accomodation for the school. She advised that alphabet blocks, toys and games are needed for the children to play with.

Afterward, the assocation voted a donation of $25 to the council. Mrs. Chambers was introduced by Mrs. W. N. Thompson and thanked by Mrs. Clarence Porter.

Mrs. W. Darby reported on the region conference held last Saturday.

OMEMEE

OMEMEE (ENS)—Features of the Omemee Home and School Association's November meeting Wednesday night were, a talk on books by the new Victoria county librarian, Mr. John Wilson, and the presentation of a Royal Canadian Humane Association certificate to High School Student Gary Whitney for life saving.

After the opening exercises and preliminary business, president Mrs. A. Stephenson touched on a few suggestions made at the recent regional council which she with five other members had attended. A reply from the school board to a letter concerning the need of some kind of water supply in Miss Rea's room was read, and the matter of taking it as a Home and School project was left for discussion at a later meeting. Mr. Curtis' room won the parent attendance award.

A drive for the "Save the Children Fund," was announced for the December meeting, when donations will be welcomed in the form of money or clothing. Knitted socks or mittens are also very acceptable.

The presentation of the certificate to Gary Whitney was made by Public School Inspector J. M. Curtis, who commended him for his prompt action and presence of mind to do the right thing at the right time.

Gary in his reply expressed his gratitude to Mrs. Pansy Forbes for teaching him life saving, and to Mr. T. H. McQuade for securing the certificate. Mrs. Stephenson said Home and Schol considered it an honor to have the presentation made at their meeting.

Mr. Wilson was introduced by Mr. Horace Hill, Omemee librarian. Mr. Wilsons' book talk was chiefly on Children's books. "Children's literature", he said has just got into its stride. It is now big business for book makers. Up to 1750, he stated, there were no books written especially for children. Gradually the interest of writers became aroused and the odd child's classic appeared, but it is in the last 30 years that the character of children's books has changed most. Authors and illustrators work together to capture the imagination of the child in the story-by-picture type of book. Also informational picture books on all sorts of subjects fit in nicely with social studies in school. He had with him several of his favorites in children's books.

Miss Marion Rea thanked Mr. Wilson. The hostesses were Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. Goddard, Mrs. Wesley James, Mrs. I. Fee and Mrs. Wilfred Wilson.

Mrs. Richard Earle Hostess To WMS

FAIRMOUNT—The WMS met at the home of Mrs. Richard Earle with 14 members present. The president, Mrs. R. F. McIndoo opened the meting. The roll call was answered with a verse on stewardship. Mrs. E. Downes, literature secretary, gave a short talk on various books in the WMS library. Mrs. Carman Seymour had charge of the worship service and Mrs. Roy Horton took the study book.

PRICELESS MODEL

LONDON (CP)—A model of the cruiser Galatea, first vessel to fire a shot at the battle of Jutland in 1916, was stolen from a museum in Whitehall. Museum authorities regard the model as priceless.

PETER ROBINSON CHAPTER

A well-attended meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter, IODE, was held Wednesday evening in the YWCA green room. Regent Mrs. P. C. Sanders discussed the final plans for the Christmas tea to be held on Saturday afternoon, December 5th.

Miss Mary Greer and Mrs. W. Jeffries are to be in charge of the penny sale table, Mrs. R. Gamble to convene the home cooking table, Mrs. G. Hancock and Mrs. D. Hunter to be in charge of the tea room and Mrs. J. Heffernan and Mrs. Jeffries to decorate.

Miss Alberta Hunter was welcomed back to chapter membership. Mrs. Jean Cuthbert received her diploma for St. John Ambulance first aid work and Miss Rose Mulholland was congratulated for receiving the Queen's medal.

Mrs. I. H. Keefer told the most interesting aspects of her trip to England for the Coronation, and also of attending the Rotary International meeting and trip on the continent, showing colored pictures taken in England, Scotland, Wales, France, Switzerland and Italy.

Mrs. Donald Hunter's group served the refreshments.

TURKISH EXHIBIT

MONTREAL (CP)—A library exhibit commemorating the 500th anniversary of the capture of Constantinople by the Turks will open at McGill University in November. The exhibit will show the development of Turkey, especially during the 30 years since the formation of the Turkish republic.

Home Teacher Speaks To Retarded Children Council

Miss Margaret Green, home visiting teacher for the Peterborough Board of Education, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Peterborough Council for Retarded Children, held Wednesday evening at the YWCA, with president Mr. J. J. Menary presiding.

After mentioning the books on "Exceptional Children" which she reviewed for a summer school course, Miss Green spoke of her work in the homes with children who are physically handicapped and unable to attend school. "Without the co-operation of the parents, my work would be of little value", she said.

Such co-operation is required in even greater measure for the child who is mentally retarted and whose need of acceptance in the family circle, affection and praise, love and understanding, is much greater than in the normal child, she pointed out. "Pateince, and education of public intellect will do much toward helping these unfortunate children through the isolated life they must lead".

Parents must learn how best to handle these children in order to bring about relaxation and restful sleep because they require longer periods of rest, being more nervously tense than normal children. "Wise guidance in the home, rest and good eating habits will help considerably in educating this type of child to meet the outside world" concluded Miss Green.

A period of questions followed.

Business of the Council included reading of the regulations made by the minister of education, under the Department of Education Act, with information regarding assistance in cost of educating retarded children. There was also notice of a meeting to be held in London, November 28, by the Ontario Association, to which delegates from Peterborough unit are invited.

President Menary reported the need for a large cupboard in which classroom equipment can be stored; also a blackboard and easel.

More suitable accommodation for the class is of immediate concern. The council expressed appreciation to the Board of the YWCA for making temporary accommodation available. It is desired to rent one or two rooms on the ground floor of a building.

Donation of $25 from the Confederation Home and School Association was gratefully acknowledged; also a dressed baby doll and bassinette from Mrs. J. Davidson. Ticket and donation convener Mrs. H. G. Hewitt reported on tickets sold.

Transportation convener Mrs. A. W. Nelson reported 14 drivers on her list. More volunteers are required. Taxi companies have been contacted regarding rates for driving the children when weather conditions make driving hazardous.

It was decided to have a speaker from the Willcocks Street School in Toronto at the December meeting.

DOROTHY DIX

Daughter Complains Beau Dodges Meeting Parents

DEAR MISS DIX: Glenn is a boy in my class (junior), whom I like very much. He has asked me several times to go out with him, but each time I tell him he must call for me at my house and meet my parents. This he seems loath to do. He has promised to call, then failed to appear, and the next day he makes a date for some other night. Mom and Dad won't let me go out with a boy unless they meet him, and they like to know something about his family. Do you think they are too particular?

Lora

A SHY YOUTH

ANSWER: I heartily endorse your parents' policy, and wish all families would show the same interest in their children's dating. Your young man probably is too shy to relish the idea of meeting strangers, and he may conclude, as so many teensters do, that all parents are ogres. You must impress upon him the fact that no meeting parents, no dating.

When you get Glenn around to appreciating your family's point of view, he'll have more regard for you and your parents. Futhermore, and this is an angle for consideration, his people will be pleased, also, to learn that their son keeps such good company.

Give Mom and Dad your full support, and don't rebel against what seems to you unusually stern discipline. You'll say many a grateful prayer in the future for the care they take of you now.

DEAR MISS DIX: I know and like a boy at school, and I'm sure he likes me, but we've never been properly introduced. He's a senior and I'm a sophomore. I only have until June to get to know him. Can you help me?

Flora

ANSWER: Now how can you possibly know a boy likes you when you've never even spoken to him? Are you sure you are not making too much of a friendly smile from an upperclassman? Since you are both in the same school there's no need for a formal introduction. It's up to you, as the lady in the case, to make the first move. It's perfectly in order for you to smile and bid him a pleasant good morning, or to congratulate him on some successful effort.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am the mother of two children and have been separated from my husband for four years. He was a drunkard, used abusive language, and struck me many times in the presence of the children. He has finally consented to a divorce. However, I have been seeing a young man who has taken for granted that I was a divorcee. How can I tell him the truth without losing his friendship?

Judy K.

ANSWER: Tell him you realize that he has assumed that you are divorced, but that it hasn't been granted yet. Say you hope the misunderstanding won't affect your friendship. I take it you were not the one who misled him. If he likes you, the fact won't alter his feeling. If he makes an issue of the matter, he hasn't been too serious about you.

THE SWEDE CLOTH JACKET is warm and practical and a yoke and pocket detail in viscose check are added. The full zipper makes it easy as pie for junior to dress himself.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION: I have learned to depend on you. I wondered if you would have a chart on weight control. . . While on my holidays I gainded some pounds. . . I have been eating 2 slices of bread at lunch, one at dinner and 7 or 8 soda biscuits. . . on my salad I use ½ teaspoon corn oil. . . I eat very few sweets. . . . I eat a lot of raw fruit. Is that good?. . . . In a restaurant we were served apple pie which was light and flaky. . . . would it be egg or milk that was on the top and did they use baking powder to get it light and flaky. . . please let me know if what I am eating is fattening. . . . a neighbor has asked me if I knew how to make Metropolitan cake. . . would you have the recipe. MRS. E. G.

ANSWER: The reason for my delay in answering you is because I have been trying to locate the Metropolitan cake recipe. I have not been successful. I will have to ask our readers to come to our rescue please if one of them has a recipe for Metropolitan. When it arrives (and someone always does) I will print it so watch for it.

I am mailing you calorie chart and a list of reducing meals. Count your calorie intake every meal by watching the chart and keep them down to 1,000 per day. If you lose even one pound per weak on that regime you should be content. Eat fresh fruit 3 times per day.

FLAKY PASTRY

Two cups stirred but not sifted pastry flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup best quality shortening or lard. Mix and sift flour and salt. Cut in 2 tablespoons of the shortening with a knife. Add barely enough cold water to make a stiff dough. Roll out on board in oblong, then dot it with ⅓ of the remaining shortening. Fold over ends to centre and fold again to make 4 layers. Press ends together and roll out. Dot again with shortening, fold and roll. Repeat this process a third time. Chill dough 4 hours. Then roll out as for 2-crust pie. Glaze on top could be mixture of 1 tablespoon sugar and milk, or sugar mixed with a little beaten egg. If desired ½ teaspoon baking powder may be added to the flour and salt mixture.

QUESTION: Could you kindly send me recipe for oatmeal cakes. We used to make these at home years ago. I know they contained fine oatmeal, flour, salt, shortening, soda, sour milk. I cannot remember the quantities — but no sugar, please.—Mrs. Wm. W.

ANSWER: Neither of the recipes I am giving you EXACTLY meets your requirements. But I think you could safely omit the sugar from

OATMEAL BISCUITS

One and one-half cups flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder (OR 3 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon soda), 1½ teaspoons salt, 1½ cups raw rolled oats (ground), 4 tablespoons shortening, ¾ cup milk (if soda is used use sour milk). Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Add rolled oats and mix. Rub shortening in with fingertips. Add milk slowly and mix to soft dough. Roll out on floured board to ¾-inch thickness. Cut with biscuit cutter. Brush tops with milk and bake in quick oven of 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 or 20 minutes.

SCOTCH WAFERS

One cup fine oatmeal, 1 cup rolled oats, 2 cups flour, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon soda, ¼ cup butter or lard, ½ cup hot water. Mix 1st 6 ingredients. Melt shortening in water and add to 1st mixture. Toss on floured board, pat and roll as thinly as possible. Shape with cutter, or knife. Bake on buttered cookie sheet at 325 deg. Fahr.

If neither of these is right, write again and give me more details.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Predict Crab To Become More Popular Than Shrimp

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

According to some authorities, the crab has perhaps the highest I.Q. among crustaceans, but he's a flop commercially in Canada.

Oscar Berceller, well-known Toronto restaurateur, says he likes the crab, particularly in salad, but finds there is little demand for it.

The shrimp can be used for innumerable dishes and is good for every course but dessert, according to Berceller.

It was about five years ago that shrimps started to pull ahead of crabs as one of the most popular dishes in many southern states. The crab still makes a good showing down south.

AT LUNCH COUNTERS

"He's practically a necessity," Oscar says.

Smart publicity helped the shrimp climb to popularity and Oscar feels that a little promotion work could probably increase the demand for crab meat.

Canada has seven species of crab lurking about her coasts, five on the Pacific and two on the Atlantic coast. They are not commercially important as yet, although one type off the West Coast supports a fisheries establishment.

The federal department of fisheries in its latest cookery book has this recipe:

NEW RECIPE

Crab fritters: One cup all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 2 eggs, two thirds cup milk, one teaspoon melted butter, 2 cups crab meat, or 2 six and one half-oz. cans.

Sift flour, baking powder and seasonings together. Beat eggs, add milk and melted butter and stir into sifted dry ingredients. Beat until smooth. Flake and fold in crab meat. Drop mixture by spoonfuls into deep, hot fat (375 degrees F.) and fry until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Yields 20-30 fritters.

Cattle Market Prices Down During Week

TORONTO (CP)—Cattle prices were steady on a few choice steers and about 50 cents lower on most others at the Ontario stockyards this week. Cows were down $1. Prices took a sharp drop of $3 on hogs, while calves, sheep and lambs were steady. Trade was dull and there was no great demand even for the small percentage of choice cattle offered.

A heavy cattle run of 8,979 head was added to 900 carried from last week. The run included 2,400 western killers and stockers mixed. Small lots of choice light and weighty steers $19-19.50; a few $20; good $17.50-18.50; mediums downward to $15; common to medium steers and heifers $17-17.50; a few $18; cows mostly $10.50 a few $11; canners and cutters $5-8; good heavy bulls $12-13; plain lights down to $8; choice fed yearlings $21-22.50; mediums downward to $16; good light stockers $17.50-18.50; a few stock calves $19; plain stockers $12-17.

Calves totalled 4,228 head, including 1,900 heavy westerns. Vealers were steady at $23-25 for choice; mediums downward to $15; grassers mostly $9-11; good heavy calves sold around $16.

Sheep and lambs totalled 2,249 head. Lambs were steady at $20-21 for good light ewes and wethers; bucks $1 discount; heavies mostly $2 discount; good light sheep $8-10; culls downward to $4.

Dismiss Extradition Proceedings In Case

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Canadian extradition proceedings against Mrs. Samuel Gampel, wife of a Niagara Falls, Ont., lawyer, and her mother Mrs. Lena Elperin, were dismissed Thursday by U.S. Commissioner Robert Miller.

The women were accused by Mrs. Gampel's husband, from whom she is separated, of abducting the couple's two children. The courts have ruled Gampel is legal custodian of the children.

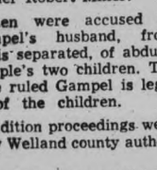
The extradition proceedings were launched by Welland county authorities.

Miller ruled Mrs. Gampel "guilty only of contempt through violation of the court's custodian order." He ruled contempt is not a crime under the Canadian-United States extradition treaty.

Miller exonerated Mrs. Elperin on grounds she had no knowledge of the separation decree.

See Cobalt Bomb Work On Television

CHICAGO (AP) — Television viewers across the United States Thursday night saw how a radioactive cobalt bomb throws out atomic bullets in the treatment of cancer.



The bomb, located in the Argonne Cancer Research Hospital of the University of Chicago, was demonstrated on a coast-to-coast NBC television program reporting on research on cancer.

Television viewers saw a film of the device beaming gamma rays equal to 1,800 grams of radium at a dummy in simulated treatment of internal cancer tumors.

Urges Courts Clear Suits On Seaway

Summer Start Seen If U.S. Courts Hear 3 Challenges

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Attorney-General Herbert Brownwell urged United States courts to clear quickly suits aimed at blocking construction by New York state and Ontario of a $600,000,000 power project on the St. Lawrence river.

Brownell filed a motion Friday asking the Federal Court of Appeals to advance for hearing not later than mid-December challenges against the project brought by the Lake Ontario Land Development and Beach Protection Association, the Public Power and Water Corporation of Trenton, N. J., and the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association.

The motion was in behalf of the Federal Power Commission, which has licensed the New York state power authority as the American partner in the undertaking.

Brownell presented a letter from State Secretary John Foster Dulles conveying the urgent desire of Canada to get on with the work.

SUMMER START POSSIBLE

The attorney-general expressed the hope that the suits could be cleared up by next June. This, he said, would make it possible for construction to be started by summer, if the decision should favor New York. He noted that any delay by New York would affect the Canadian side of the operation.

Describing the power involved as badly needed by both countries, Brownell stated:

"This project will produce the last substantial bulk of low-cost power, outside of the re-development of Niagara Falls, available in the United States."

The last formal step required for the state's participation in the development was taken when President Eisenhower signed an executive order designating the New York authority as the U. S. partner.

50-YEAR LICENCE

Opponents of the project have petitioned the court to rescind or order a review of the FPC's action in granting New York the 50-year licence.

One of the petitioners, Public Power, is a private firm and was an unsuccessful applicant for the licence granted New York.

The Lake Ontario group is comprised of property owners who express fears that the project will result in the lifting of lake levels with subsequent damage to shoreline real estate.

READY FOR ACTION as four inches of snow covered the football field for today's second game of the ORFU intermediate "A" final series between the Oakville Black Knights and the Peterborough Orfuns. Roy Armstrong, star plunger for the Orfuns, decided the weather called for snowshoes and city police constable Bob Menzies helped him strap them on. Start of the game was delayed by the late arrival of officials and Orfuns players from Orillia. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Winter Deals Surprise Blow To Land

Low Pressure Area From Florida Sweeps Into Canada

TORONTO —(CP)—Winter dealt a surprise blow at Ontario today with a driving snowstorm that swept across the southern part of the province, snarling traffic and causing numerous minor accidents.

The snow, expected to continue all day, fell from Windsor, where it was mixed with rain, to the eastern limits of Ontario. Some areas had more than four inches of snow by noon and predictions were for another six to eight inches by nightfall.

The storm was caused by a low-pressure area from Florida which had hugged the United States border and then suddenly swept into Canada.

All available snowplow equipment was called out in many areas to keep highways clear. The public weather office here predicted more snow for Sunday—a few flurries in Toronto and southwestern Ontario and cloudy with occasional falls in the Niagara peninsula and eastern Ontario.

ROADS HAZARDOUS

Roads were treacherous throughout southern Ontario because of sleet, snow and ice. At Fort Erie eight motorists were treated at hospital following a collision between a dairy truck and automobile on the Niagara parkway. None was injured seriously.

Buses kept to their schedules but flights at Malton airport were delayed. Planes were prevented from flying to Montreal because of freezing rain at Montreal and Ottawa.

No More Duck Bumps

LONDON —(Reuters)— Three painters, tenants of an apartment block in arty Chelsea, petitioned recently for better central heating. They couldn't get nude models to pose in chilly studios. "Our nudes were getting goose pimples," said one. Now the temperature has been raised to 75 degrees and the nudes are back.

NEW YORK (AP)—Early November snowstorms covered wide areas along the eastern seaboard and the midlands of the United States today.

The first northeaster of the season, erupting suddenly Friday, swept up the middle Atlantic coast, spreading a band of snow from the mountains of South Carolina to southern New England.

There were up to 10 inches of snow at Colby, Kans., and more than six inches on the ground in other sections of Kansas, and in Nebraska, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

The snow turned to rain or sleet in some sections of the two widely-separated storm belts, increasing hazardous driving conditions.

Transportation, both by air and highway, was sharply curtailed, especially in the eastern storm belt. Scores of persons were stranded on eastern highways in some rural areas. There were traffic jams in the cities.

Rain, freezing drizzle and snow hit the Central Plains areas today from Oklahoma northward through the Dakotas.

The wintry weather dealt a knockout blow to week-end sports, especially horse racing, both in the eastern and midwest states.

Many big cities in the east-New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore—were hit hard by the storms.

New York City had a record 3.7 inches in 11 hours before rain started late Friday night. Friday's low of 29.5 degrees also was a record for New York City for Nov. 6. More rain was forecast today, with gale-force winds.

The five-inch snowfall in Washington was the earliest of the season in 13 years. For the first time, emergency snow regulations were invoked as cars piled up in traffic snarls on the city streets. The regulations provide for the arrest of motorists who impede the flow of traffic and whose cars are not equipped with snow tires or chains.

S. Korea Assured Of Complete Reports On Parley

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The United States and Communist staff advisers today began closed-door negotiations aimed at breaking a deadlock which imperils the start of a Korean peace conference. Two Allied and two Communist advisers conferred for an hour and 40 minutes and agreed to meet again Monday. Kenneth Young, named by U.S. envoy Arthur Dean for the lower-level talks, said after the meeting, "Both sides agreed that until we report to our representatives we will remain non-committal in public."

But the South Korean government, which Friday night attacked the secret meetings at Panmunjom, was assured of full information on the sessions from Col. Lee Soo Young, who will attend as an observer.

OFTEN YIELDED

Dean and the top Red diplomats Friday agreed to turn over the dispute on an agenda to the staff advisers for "attempted solution."

Dean said he felt advisers might be able to succeed in an informal atmosphere where the higher-level delegates had failed because there was no "give and take."

In the two-year armistice talks, the Communists often yielded on thorny issues when the negotiations were dropped to a staff level and shielded from public view.

The threat came less than 24 hours after the Indian chairman of the commission, Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, indirectly warned the Reds to change their tactics or face suspension of the interviews Monday.

U.K. Freighter Intercepted, Strafed By Plane

HONG KONG (AP)—The British freighter Hydralock slipped safely into the port of Tsingkiang, northeast of Amoy, today after having been attacked by a plane.

Efforts to intercept her were also made by one of three warships sighted from the Hydralock, the ship reported. There were no casualties.

A message heard in San Francisco by Globe Wireless identified the attacking plane as a Flying Fortress, which is an obsolete U. S.-built bomber.

A U. S. Far East Air Force spokesman in Tokyo said the only American-manned Flying Fortresses in the Orient are unarmed planes used by generals. A few Fortresses were sold to private individuals after World War Two, however.

The warships were not identified by the Hydralock, but Nationalist Chinese gunboats prowl waters off Red China and have often stopped freighters the Nationals claim are carrying illegal cargo. Owners of the Hydralock have been criticized in the United States for sending ships to Red China ports.

The ship radioed the Royal Navy here at 5 a. m. that she was being intercepted by a warship 25 miles southeast of Amoy, tiny Red-held island just off the Communist China mainland.

Twenty minutes later the ship radioed the presence of two more warships near the approaches to Amoy.

One requested the Hydralock to follow, the freighter reported.

The Hydralock said she asked the warship: "Where to?" and received no reply.

At 9:14 a. m. a message from the Hydralock said she was again being attacked, this time by an aircraft off Chinchu. She said her bridge had been sprayed by armor-piercing bullets but that there were no casualties.

At 10:23 a.m. the Hydralock said she had safely entered the pilotage area of Tsinkiang, northeast of Amoy, where she was bound after clearing Hong Kong Nov. 5.

The ship is owned by Wheelock, Marden and Co., Ltd., of Hong Kong and is captained by R. B. C. Lee.

Rioters Stone U.K. Buildings

Water, Gas, Clubs Drive Back Screaming Romans

ROME (Reuters)—Italian police today fought off swarms of rioting demonstrators attempting to storm the British embassy here and British buildings in other Italian cities.

Fifty police and about 30 demonstrators were injured in the two main clashes, at the Rome embassy and the British consulate in in Bari, southern Italy.

Twenty-seven police were injured in Rome, three seriously, and 161 demonstrators were arrested in a series of clashes around the embassy.

French Assembly Vote Ratifies Saar Accord

PARIS (AP)—The National Assembly early today ratified a French-Saar accord, giving Saarlanders full political autonomy and France economic privileges in the rich coal and steel basin. The vote was 511 to 97.

The accord was signed May 20. Although it leaves the door open for "Europeanization" of the territory, the ratification vote anticipated negotiations with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany over the Saar.

Adenauer favors a "European" solution of the Saar problem by which some European body would supervise the territory and all European powers would have access to its raw materials.

Outbreaks Kill 6 In Troubled, Disputed Centre

TRIESTE (AP).—United States troops with fixed bayonets patrolled downtown Trieste today as the embattled city prepared to bury its dead killed in savage nationalistic rioting. At least six have been killed in the wild, spasmodic outbreaks of the last three days. Several of the 40 seriously wounded now in hospitals are in critical condition. Among them is a boy of 15. Many others were treated for minor wounds and released. The time for the funerals —a mass city affair that could

Italy Protests Trieste Action

LONDON (CP)—The Italian ambassador to Britain protested today to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden against "excessive" action of the British-controlled police in quelling riots in Trieste this week.

The police, Italians and Slavs trained by British officers, opened fire on Italian rioters there in the last two days, killing six and wounding many others.

The ambassador, Manlio Brosio, was summoned to the foreign office this morning. He spent nearly an hour with Eden.

Eden told him the Italian government should do all it could to "curb the elements responsible" for provoking the riots.

French Launch Huge Offensive

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—One of the biggest offensives ever launched by French Union forces in the seven-year Indo-Chinese war was credited today with having wrecked a "master plan" of the Communist-led Vietminh for assaulting the Red river delta.

French military sources said that the plan called for the Vietminh to infiltrate their hard-fighting 320th and 304th divisions into the delta from outside the southern rim and link up with the 60,000 Vietminh followers who have long been inside the key French defence bulwark.

The sources said that once these divisions got inside the delta, that was to be the signal for a frontal assault for the north or west by two or three Vietminh divisions.

Success of such a manoeuvre might have carried the Vietminh deep into the heart of the delta. Today Gen. Rene Cogny, commander in northern Indo-China, was confident that the Vietminh plan had been smashed.

Man Hit By Taxi Killed At Grafton

COBOURG (ENS)—A Belleville construction worker was killed instantly about 12:25 a.m. today when he crossed Highway 2 in front of a taxi in Grafton.

Victim of the accident, Thomas Levesque, 211 Coleman St., Belleville, was boarding in Grafton while he worked on a construction job there.

Levesque was crossing Highway 2 in front of the Grafton hotel when struck by a taxi driven west by Jules Pommerleau, St. Jean, Quebec.

No charge will be laid, according to police.

The body was brought to Cobourg until Levesque's next of kin can be contacted. The accident was investigated by OPP Constable Frank Clough.

Inflation Peril Crushed: Butler

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain has crushed the dange. of inflation even while spending additional millions for its huge social welfare program, the chancellor of the exchequer, R. A. Butler, said Friday.

He told the House of Commons there has been a "remarkable improvement" this year in the internal economic position. The outlook for solving the dollar shortage he said, is "not exactly set fair but it is settled from the point of view of balance of payments. We have reason to go forward with hope."

Butler spoke in the throne speech debate.

BULLETIN

Start of the second game in the two-game series for the Intermediate "A" ORFU title at Morrow Park between Peterborough Orfuns and Oakville Black Knights was held up for at least an hour today by the heavy snow which delayed arrival of some of the players and caused out-of-town officials to leave the highway on their way to Peterborough. Their journey was resumed and start of play will await their arrival.

Discovers Kremlin City Within City

(Editor's Note: Gerald Clark, staff writer with Weekend Picture Magazine and the Examiner's Saturday magazine section, is the first Canadian newspaperman to receive a working visa to the Soviet Union since 1946. This is the last of a series of six daily despatches from Moscow from Clark on the Soviet Union.)

MOSCOW, Nov. 7—I've just been inside the Kremlin. The Kremlin, you may know, is not merely one building. It's really a city within a city, and it dates back to the time, a few hundred years ago, when the czars and noblemen built a high wall around themselves as protection against invaders.

Other cities in Russia have their own kremlins, but the one in Moscow is the biggest and most famous. It contains about 50 buildings— old chrches, now converted into museums, an immense palace, and various other aged structures, some of which have been modernized and turned into apartments and offices where present-day Soviet leaders render their decisions.

To enter the Kremlin is something of a privilege, and you have to make formal application. I was accompanied by a woman guide and an interpreter from Intourist.

The red-brick and stone wall of the Kremlin forms a kind of triangular perimeter more than a mile long, and at one point it stretches alongside the embankment of the Moskva River, which meanders through Moscow. The most familiar portion of the wall, however, faces Red Square. Here the ramparts rise about 50 feet, and here the Soviet Union's top officials greet the people on special occasions, as today, the anniversary of the 1917 revolution.

I prepared myself for the trip inside by first wandering about, unescorted, through Red Square, an area double the size of Montreal's Dominion Square. Part of the square is paved and busy with the motion of cars and taxis and trucks. The rest of the square has a brick surface, and people just roam around idly, or they head toward Lenin's tomb, which is in the center, near the Kremlin wall. The tomb is a small and compact rectangle of concrete and red and black marble.

At the moment it is not open to the public. But groups of awed onlookers hover about and talk in low voice. Stalin's body is being prepared for enshrinement side by side with Lenin. Two Red Army guards, with fixed bayonets, stand at rigid attention next to the tomb's entrance. The only other markers are two large black wreaths against the marble base.

From the outside, the wall shields all but the upper couple of storeys of the Kremlin's buildings. But jutting above are a mass of domes and watch towers, five of which display thhe Red Star at their pinnacles. Inside the walls, you're admitted to a world that sprang from the 16th or 17th century.

NO DIFFICULTIES

My entry was simple. It had been arranged well in advance, and my Intourist chaperon merely flashed a document, and a guard unlatched a small gate for us. Once inside, we were joined by woman guide—a blond of about 30 who was obviously a scholarly type.

We walked along narrow cobbled streets that verged into wide, paved driveways. Buildings with exteriors of white or yellow plaster stood alongside churches with golden cupolas. In this setting of the past we were alone.

We halted beside a cumberous cannon, cast 600 years ago. "It is the biggest cannon of its kind in the world," said the woman guide. Not far away were a row of smaller cannon captured from Napolen during his 1812 attempt to conquer Russia.

Our next stop was Cathedral Square, where eight churches flanked a small quadrangle. The most impressive of all was Assumption Cathedral, which we entered with a kind of hush. It was in this tiny but intriguing cathedral that all the czars were crowned, even after Peter the Great moved the capital to St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), where it remained until 1917. The cathedral was bulit in the 15th century, and some of the original frescoes were restored only in 1950. It should be noted that modern Russians have recently shown revived interest in their ancient history. Much of this interest stems from World War II, when pride of heritage was in order.

GO TO PALACE

From here, we moved on to the Kremlin Palace, started by the czars as long ago as the early 1500's and added to right up the line to Nicholas I in the mid-19th century. In one wing, St. George's Hall, six chandeliers cast their light on a vast expanse of pillars, each engraved with a legend of former Russian military valor. The hall is still used by the Soviet government on rare and important occasions. In 1945 the victorious end of the war was marked in this expansive room with a reception for the foreign diplomatic corps.

It was in this palace, too, that a couple of halls were united in the mid-thirties to create the chamber for the deputies of the Supreme Soviet—a white-walled, simply designed chamber. In faraway tones, my guide explained: "Deputies from the 16 republics of the U.S.S.R. gather here." I stood in front of the dais where Malenkov, and before him, Stalin, made pronouncements of world importance.

We went on to another section of the palace, now turned into a museum—certainly one of the most elaborate and richest in the world. Here are assembled bits and pieces of Russian lore—from the ruby-encrusted, gold throne of Czar Michael, first of the Romanoffs, to the carriage presented by Elizabeth I to Boris Gudanov. Two floors are filled with exhibits, ranging from rich ermine coronation gowns and precious ikons of the former patriarchs, to 60-pound silver trays and jeweled chests handed by foreign emissaries to the past rulers of Russia.

All this my guide reported, with authority and marked pride. At the end of the tour, as we walked from a completely fantastic setting, I said:

"In which building does Premier Malenkov live?"

"He does not live in the Kremlin," she said. "He only works here."

Police Forced Speed, Sentence Suspended

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Gowing, 20, of Preston said in court Friday he exceeded the speed limit "because I was forced to by police officers."

He was given a suspended sentence on a charge of speeding.

Gowing said he was travelling at 30 miles an hour along Lake Shore road when policemen kept motioning him to speed up.

"Finally one shouted: 'Get that car moving.' I had to speed up."

Constable G. Rosebush said he clocked Gowing's car doing 42 miles an hour.

NEW YORK (AP)—Flood tides added havoc today to a furious pre-winter snowstorm that took at least five lives and stirred fears for the safety of more than 20 other persons in the northeastern United States.

Waves crashing inland forced evacuation of some 20,000 homes on the south shore of Long Island and on Staten Island.

Hundreds of automobiles were stranded throughout the night by snow and icy conditions on Route 17 north of Tuxedo Park, N. Y.

Winds up to 68 miles an hour knocked down power lines and cut off electricity to about 50,000 homes on Long Island.

The storm dumped up to two feet of snow in upstate New York and 3.7 inches in New York City. Winds in the city ranged up to 60 miles an hour.

CAUSEWAY FLOODED

Ferryboat service between Manhatten and Staten Island and New Jersey was suspended when the high dunning tide made docking unsafe. Two passenger laden ferries, unable to dock, bucked the wind in the harbor for hours.

Water cut across a causeway and isolated Long Beach, N. Y., from the Long Island mainland.

Airlines cancelled flights in wholesale lots. Some flights, scheduled to take off from New York's Idlewild airport, where some offices were flooded, were transferred to Newark, N. J. airport.

The shore area houses evacuated on Long Island were located mostly along a 30-mile stretch between East Rockaway and Babylon, including the towns of Freeport, Merrick, Wantaugh, Massapequa and Amityville.

Two men who went out in an outboard motor boat Friday night to check boats moored off City island in the Bronx turned up safe today after being feared lost. They said they spent the night on one of the boats rather than make the rough return trip in the dark.

Glamorous Egyptian Actress Arrested As Subversive

CAIRO (Reuters)—Tahia Carioca, glamorous Egyptian movie actress and dancer, has been arrested on charges of subversive activities against the state, military police headquarters said today.

An announcement said police found a large quantity of "destructive literature" in her bedroom.

Egypt's revolutionary tribunal today passed a 15-year prison sentence on Col. Abdul Ghaffar Osman for plotting to supply the Egyptian army with defective arms during the Arab-Israeli war.

The tribunal also ordered the confiscation of all property and funds illegally acquired by Osman, his British wife, Violet, and his Egyptian wife, Galat Shafik, since January, 1946.

Osman was found to have signed a contract with an Italian firm for 250,000 hand grenades, most of them faulty, two weeks after the start of the Palestine war in May, 1948.

The tribunal said Osman had amassed nearly $100,000 from the Palestine war as chief explosives inspector of the Egyptian army. He was among 14 senior officers and officials acquitted last June of treason charges arising from the Palestine war arms scandal.

Two Smash Door, Rescue Woman

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Smashing open a door with their shoulders, two tenants rescued a woman from a smoke-filled, second-storey bedroom Friday and gave the alarm which sent mask-equipped firemen into the room to save the woman's 52-year-old paralytic husband.

Mrs. William Gough was lying unconscious on the floor when Russell Harper and Clifford McMillan broke in after they were awakened by Mr. Gough shouting that his room was on fire. The two men carried Mrs. Gough downstairs and outside. They tried to get back upstairs to rescue Mr. Gough, but could not grope through the dense smoke.

Firemen arrived minutes later and rescued Mr. Gough, who was unconscious. His condition later was reported good.

Strikes At Mines Cut Production

TORONTO (CP) — Strikes at eight gold mines and an early close-down at three silver mines curtailed gold and silver production by 7.58 per cent in Ontario during the first nine months of 1953.

A report released today by the provincial department of mines showed a milling of 6,948,158 tons of ore containing 1,739,267 ounces of gold and 277,634 ounces of silver, with a total value of $60,505,522.

The 7.58 per cent drop under the same period in 1952 was 4.9 per cent in gold and 8.16 per cent in silver ounces.

Buffalo Ankerite, Toburn and Matachewan Consolidated silver mines closed down operations early this year. Broulan Reef, Hallnor, Preston East Dome, Bonwhit and Hugh-Pam gold mines were closed by a United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) strike in August and McIntyre shut down for the same reason in September. Coniaurum suspended operations later in the month.

The average grade of ore mined in September was $8.80. Daily averages were 22,584 tons of ore milled for 5,712 ounces of gold and 831 ounces of silver with a total value of $198,787.

There was an average of 10,316 men employed in gold and silver mines during September compared with 12,090 during the same month last year.

spark new rioting—was not set. In Rome, the powerful Communist-led General Confederation of Labor called for a 10-minute mourning work stoppage throughout Italy during the funeral.

In Trieste, itself, the situation was still grim and tense although the city began a return to work after a general strike Friday. The 7,000 British and American occupation troops were on the alert with a possibility of martial law if rioting breaks out again.

ASK FOR PEACE

City authorities, however, appealed for peace. Mayor Gianni Bartoli and Trieste's Roman Catholic Bishop Antonio Santin urged their fellow citizens to end the violence.

Bartoli also appealed to President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Churchill, asking their direct intervention to restore order in the strategic port city.

This was only one of several diplomatic moves as a result of the riots—a grave threat to British-American efforts to settle the long-standing Italian-Yugoslav quarrel over the Trieste Free Territory.

UNJUST AIMS

The Yugoslav foreign ministry, in conferences with the British and American envoys to Belgrade, is reported to have demanded an early five-power conference on settlement of the Trieste issue and an end of "attempts by the Italian government to fulfil its unjust aims by terrorist methods."

The Yugoslav Press and radio blamed the disturbances on an attempt by Italy to force Britain and the U.S. to hand over Zone A of the territory to Italy.

Sympathy demonstrations that broke out in Rome and other Italian cities Friday continued today. A surprisingly disciplined mass of some 10,000 students marched through Rome's streets flaunting such signs as "English pigs go home."

The Trieste rioting was touched off Wednesday when young Italians, defying a police ban, marched to celebrate Italy's First World War Victory Day and clashed with police.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—There was little feature to the trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange Friday as prices held to a narrow range.

The only export interest was in flax. Oats and barley trade was mostly domestic. Flax prices dropper, but oats and barley were firm. Rye showed firmness in sympathy with a steady tone on United States markets. Prices for Class 2 wheat durums were unchanged. All other top grades of Class 2, IWA and domestic wheat were down one-eight cent.

155,000 RIOT EARLIER

The attack on the embassy followed an earlier riot outside British buildings in downtown Rome. Police used clubs, tear gas and fire hoses to drive back 15,000 screaming demonstrators in the earlier clash.

The one-hour demonstration marked the second successive day that students have resorted to violence here in protest to British policy in Trieste. Similar demonstrations were reported in many other Italian cities today. Trieste itself, where six rioters were slain by British-officered police in the last two days, was quiet.

The demonstrators' passions were aroused today by angry newspaper demands in Rome for the dismissal of Gen. Sir John Winterton, British commander in Trieste.

University students and schoolchildren poured into the streets of central Rome. They shattered windows of the British council building, a British information centre and the Rome office of British European Airways.

Steel-helmeted police reinforcements roared to the scene of the outbreaks in scarlet jeeps and howling sirens.

Heavy police guards cordoned off the British and American embassies.

About 20 demonstrators were detained trying to break through to the British embassy. A hail of stones met riot squads in scarlet jeeps as they charged into the crowds, running down and severely injuring a schoolboy.

USE TEAR GAS

The crowd outside the police cordon quickly swelled to several thousand. Police held it under control with tear gas. Ten policemen were injured by stones.

Heavily - reinforced riot police surrounded the United States and British embassies before the crowds poured into the streets screaming "English assassins," "out with the foreigners," "death to Winterton" and "Trieste for Italy."

Similar demonstrations were reported from Milan, Turin, Genoa, Venice and other provincial cities. In Palermo, Sicily, police beat back repeated attempts by crowds of students to storm the British consulate.

Dufferin thus joined two of three major race tracks running on the United States east coast which also suspended racing because of snow, Laurel and Garden State Park.

Request $10,000 Fees Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Boradcast Music Incorporated of Canada Ltd. will seek a $10,000 increase in fees for 1954 performances of works in its repertoire by privately-owned Canadian radio stations.

An issue of the Canada Gazette today disclosed the BMI will seek to collect about $55,534 for performance of its works. The copyright appeal board last year authorized collection by BMI of $46,278 from private stations.

The schedules of fees indicated that the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada Ltd., authorized to collect about $350,000 for 1953 radio performances of works in its repertoire, proposes no increases in its fees for radio performances by private stations in 1954.

The Canada Gazette notice says objections to the fees proposed by the two performing rights societies must be filed with the copyright office by Dec. 7. Objections will be heard by the Copyright Appeal Board at its annual meeting for which a date will be set later.

The BMI proposals also included a schedule of fees for performance of its works in cabarets, cocktail lounges, night clubs and ball rooms, the first such schedules filed by the society.

Lack Of Progress Dissappointing

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP)—Canada has expressed disappointment with the lack of progress in attempts to solve the Palestine refugee problem but will continue to support efforts of the UN agency working on it.

G. B. Summers of Canada's external affairs department told the UN ad hoc political committee Friday the Canadian delegation will support the resolution continuing the agency and calling for new funds.

He said Canada has contributed about $3,000,000 since 1948 toward refugees of the Palestine War. The Canadian government would give sympathetic consideration to requests for more money. However, he could not say at this time how much Canada would give.

BITTER WINDS TODAY

Bitter northeast winds, ranging up to 20 to 25 miles an hour were expected to prevail most of the day. Temperatures were expected to range around the 32-degree freezing point, ranging up to 35 to 38 in some sections for periods of an hour or so.

The storm had its origin earlier in the week off the coast of Florida. It moved up the eastern coast of the U. S. fairly well out to sea, then cut inland Friday. It will probably swing east over Quebec on Sunday.

Skies were clear today in northern Ontario but temperatures were low, ranging from seven above zero at Armstrong in northwestern Ontario to 25 at Earlton, south of Kirkland Lake.

There was snow in Alberta and Saskatchewan but it came from a different storm which cut down from northern British Columbia.

The western Canada storm was expected to hit the Lake Superior area of Ontario Sunday.

Roads in the Niagara district were made treacherous by the season's first major snowfall. Almost two inches fell early this morning and there was no sign of a let-up. Many cars had difficulty on hills.

Snow and sleet swirled down on the Kingston district. City streets soon became slippery.

Traffic on Hamilton streets was badly snarled this morning, and numerous accidents occurred. The snowstorm, which hit the city shortly before 4 a. m. had not been predicted.

There was a tie-up on the Beckett drive in Hamilton and the city hall's switchboard was the target of complaints that "about 50" cars were jammed up on the icy slope. One woman complained that a truck was "practically inside the door."

Provincial police at Dundas reported all highways in the district were in very bad condition for driving.

Bethany Playbill Of 1890 Shows Advertising Gusto

BETHANY (ENS)—Modern advertising, with its slick, streamlined verbiage and colored lithographs, may have become sophisticated in the last decade or two but it can have no more gusto than it did just before the turn of the century.

The dramatic club was at one time a flourishing institution and produced a play each winter. One of their printed programs has been unearthed. It is a four-page leaflet dated December 18, 1890, and contains advertisements by local merchants.

PANIC OF 1837

"The Streets of New York" was the name of the play, sponsored for charitable purposes by LOL 1022. The playbill contains a brief synopsis of the plot which concerned the panic of 1837. Admission was 25c and instruments for the orchestra were loaned by John Benson.

The cast included H. H. Ryley as Capt. Fairweather, George Robinson as Gideon Bloodgood, James Preston as Badger, H. C. Leslie as Mark Livingstone, C. M. McCarthy as Paul, John Lee as Puffy, Joseph Kelly at Dan, Harry Ryley as Daniels, Robert McGrath as Edwards, Miss Nettie Kelley as Mrs. Fairweather, Miss Mary Fallis as Mrs. Puffy, Miss Alice Morton as Alida and Miss Mabel Ryley as Lucy.

Of all the names weatured in the advertising section, only those of Ryley and Reynolds are in business in the village today.

Here are a few of the advertisements:

"Christmas Presents! Young people who wish to be made very happy may obtain their object by purchasing a marriage license for the extremely small sum of $2.00 from Alfred Ryley, issuer of marriage licenses."

BUSINESS BOOMING

"Now For Bargains! Business booming at McCarthy's. Stock is complete in boots and shoes, dry goods, groceries and tinware. My ready-made clothing is all first class. Call at the cheap cash store and examine prices. C. M. McCarthy."

"Say, Johnny, mind you go to T. Brownley's for your flour and groceries. He keeps the best in town. Also candies, cigars and tobaccos. Shaving parlor in connection. T Brownley, King St."

"Charles Reynolds, cabinetmaker and undertaker. Keeps on hand a large stock of undertaker's supplies. Bedroom, parlor and all other kinds of furniture at lowest prices. Also agent for good loan companies."

"Sell your grain to Touchburn and Preston. Fair treatment and full market value all the year round. Buying points and buyers: S. B. Preston, Bethany; James Lytle, Franklin; Samuel Grandy, Omemee."

"H. C. Leslie, VS and VD. Treats all diseases of the domesticated animals in the latest and most approved methods. Patronage solicited."

PLEASURE AFTER PAIN

"Buy your pain relieving remedies at the Bethany Dispensary. Rich the treasure, sweet the pleasure after pain. You purchase pain with all that joy can give; and die of nothing but a rage to live."

"Ryley and Preston are in it and are going to stay in it. Look for their Christmas display."

"You'll be sorry if you go to town with your cash when you can do better with Staples and Noble for Hardware, stoves, tinware, hot air furnaces, eavestroughing, etc."

"McCarthey Bros., carriage makers. Life is short. Time is precious. Don't stop long. The proprietor is not in, don't know when he will be. Have no money to lend, but borrow all we can. Spit on the floor, spittoons are for ornaments. No shoes blackened, we wear patent leather. Coffins provided for agents or canvassers. Bull dog in cellar, feed him on pedlars. But if you want one of the best buggies or waggons, cutters or sleighs, for the least possible money, go to McCartney Bros."

"Boots and shoes! I have boots and shoes for everybody: Lumbermen, farmers and sportsmen, for ministers and their congregations, for priests and their flocks, doctors and their patients, lawyers and their clients, merchants and their clerks. Shoes for the fat and shoes for the lean. Shoes for the long and shoes for the short. High shoes, low shoes, solid shoes, broad shoes, narrow shoes and giddy shoes. Shoe! Shoe! Shoe! Give me a call and if you are in arrears I will take no offence at a prompt settlement. Gregory Nilands."

Weatherman Fooled By Storm, Order Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chief of the U.S. weather bureau ordered a special investigation today to find out why government forecasters were fooled by Friday's big snowstorm.

Dr. Francis W. Reichelderfer, bureau head, described the heavy snowfall that blanketed the northeast as a "storm that didn't behave as it was expected to."

Marlies Protest Barrie Incident

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Marlboro Hockey Club today lodged a protest with the Ontario Hockey Association over the treatment of the town's goal judge during Wednesday's OHA Junior A game at Barrie.

Bob Duncan, an injured Marlboro player who was made goal judge, got into a fight with Barrie Flyers fans and was escorted from the arena by Ontario Provincial Police officers.

He said the referee is the only man empowered to eject a goal judge. He said he thought Hap Emms, the Barrie coach, should be suspended because the officers were asked to eject Duncan by the arena manager.

Don Grosso Quits As Soo Coach

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., (CP) — Don Grosso today resigned as coach of the Sault Ste. Marie Indians of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group because of business and other reasons.

The move was a surprise one. Grosso was fired late last season as coach of the Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds.

Hub Macey, who coached Glace Bay Miners in the Maritime Major League last year, will take over from Grosso. The 31-year-old Macey will face his first test here Sunday when Pembroke Lumber Kings meet the Indians.

Grosso said several factors prompted his resignation, but the biggest was his insurance agent's job in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. He said he felt he should devote more time to it.

Hockey crowds here have fallen off this year with the poor showing of the Indians. They are last in the five-team league.

Faces 3 Charges Following Fight With Officer

Appearing before Justice of the Peace James J. Fleming this morning, Harry Jones, 34, of 64 James St., was remanded on three charges until Monday without bail. He was charged with assaulting an officer, assaulting his wife, and having liquor in a place other than his residence.

The charges were laid after Jones and PC Ted Stephen were engaged in a wild swinging fight near the accused's home.

BROKEN FINGER

PC Stephen had gone to the Jones residence on James St. to investigate a domestic matter with Police Matron Mrs. K. I. Shadgett when he saw Jones coming out of the house.

The officer followed him and, after conversation, Jones swung at him, according to the constable. The two men wrestled about and in the course of the battle, Jones wrested the officer's flashlight from him and struck him on the face with it.

PC Stephen finally wrestled Jones to the ground and handcuffed him. Jones was taken to the police station, together with a part bottle of wine he had with him, by PC Eldon MacDonald.

Launch Biggest On Inland Lakes

MIDLAND (CP) — Believed the largest ship ever to be built inland for service on inland waters, the 25,000-ton T. R. McLagan was scheduled to be launched here today.

The 715-foot McLagan is 50 feet longer than any ship now using the Welland canal. Launching will be by Mrs. T. R. McLagan, wife of the president of the ship's owners, Canada Steamship Lines, after whom the vessel is named.

Officials said that Midland Shipyard Ltd., workers set a record in building the big bulk carrier, 500 of them taking 41 weeks from keellaying to the launching.

A veteran Toronto mariner, Capt. T. Selby Patterson, commodore of CSL's 60-vessel fleet and now in command of the SS Thunder Bay, has been named to command the T. R. McLagan.

The ship, costing more than $5,000,000 and incorporating the most modern features in present - day design, will carry 800,000 bushels of wheat or 25,000 tons of iron ore when she goes into Great Lakes service next spring.

Old Vic Played Entire Week Full Capacity

By GLENNE CURRIE

LONDON (Reuters) — Surprise hit of the London theatrical season is a modest repertory of Shakespeare at the Old Vic.

In its first eight weeks, the Old Vic has not played to less than 98-per-cent capacity. And for the first time in memory, it has played an entire week at full capacity, 1,160, including all available standing room.

So far, it has been the theatre's best season since the immediate post-war years of Laurence Olivier and Ralph Richardson. The present company isn't up to their standard, but the public response is even greater.

The problem is whether the Old Vic can keep it up for five years, during which it plans to present all Shakespeare's plays in the first folio.

The present repertory consists of Hamlet, All's Well That Ends Well and King John. The cast is "relaxing" now, with no rehearsals due for a month, when Twelfth Night will begin to take shape. The final two plays this year will be Coriolanus and The Tempest.

UNEXPECTED SUCCESS

No one seems to know why the season is so popular, though it did get off to a good start with Hamlet at the Edinburgh festival. It may be the current popularity of the stars: Richard Burton, Claire Bloom, Fay Compton and less-known Michael Hordern, who is having his first wide success in 16 years' acting.

It may be the nightly change of play, adding novelty for regular play-goers and giving visitors a chance of seeing the entire repertory in a few days.

It may be the prices, one shilling sixpence to 11 shillings sixpence. The Old Vic is owned by the people of London and run on a non-profit basis, largely as a theatrical training ground. It is backed by an annual £30,000 government grant.

BURTON SHINES

Burton's best role is that of Philip in King John, in which Horden again scores as the opportunist king.

Claire Bloom, who also plays Ophelia, gives the best performance of her career as Helena in All's Well, which director Michael Bentall has turned into more of a fairy tale than anything else. Miss Bloom will play Viola in Twelfth Night.

The program for the second year of the "five-year plan" won't be known till the company is chosen.

Salaries are secret, but run from about £10 a week to about £50 for Burton and Miss Bloom.

Small Fry's Life in The City

Pre-school children, from three to five years, are taught manners and discipline along with their play at the Recreation Commission-sponsored school at Dixon House. Supervisor Mrs. Keith Borland also has arranged the morning and afternoon periods in such a way to give the little people fun, rest and energy.

The children begin their school period with a play period during which they choose whatever amusement they like, such as dolls, blocks, books and painting (upper left photo).

As soon as the young tots hear Mrs. Borland singing (a little song to put their play-things away), they jump up and prepare for "lunch." Systematically the children go to wash their hands and return for their glass of orange juice. Before this is downed, the children (lower left) sing Grace.

After that they sit on small rugs and play games, supervised by Mrs. Borland. Tired, the children (upper right) then rest on the little rugs. They know it's Dreamtrain time when the window shutters are closed. During this siesta Mrs. Borland either plays soft music, sings or tells stories.

After their rest, the children are ready to go home. They're taught to dress for the chilly weather, and before you konw it, they are able to do this chore alone without help (lower right) from Mrs. Borland.

Mayor Welcomes News Of Housing Cobourg Depot

COBOURG (ENS)—Announcement Friday of a federal loan of one million dollars to a private company for a housing project for ordnance depot personnel here, was greeted warmly by Mayor John D. Burnet.

It would accelerate the benefits to be received by the town as a result of the multi-million dollar ordnance depot, he said.

Earlier this week, council looked over the plans for the housing development, sent by the Department of Planning and Development for formal approval by the council. Quite naturally, the plans received unanimous approval. The housing will consist of 132 units ranging from six to eight rooms for married military and civilian personnel of the depot and they are to be located east of the depot.

It will bring closer to realization some of the benefits which the new ordnance depot will contribute to the community. Newcomers to this town have to have a place to live and this is essential for those who are to be connected with the depot. Their buying power means more business for Cobourg merchants and the taxes for these new homes will be another asset, Mayor Burnet said.

Husband, Son Drown, Wife Wanders Naked In Cold

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP)—A mother's ordeal in wandering naked along cold and rocky beaches in fruitless search for her drowned husband and child was described here.

David Tate, 21, a fisherman, was lost with his seven-month-old son, David Jr., when they were swept from their 16-foot boat on a hunting trip Tuesday. The father's body was recovered late Thursday at the entrance to seal cove, west of Ketchikan.

A coast guard plane found 18-year-old Mrs. Tate waving a piece of canvas on the beach of Gravina island. She had swum ashore from the foundering boat, after removing her clothing on her husband's advice.

She was suffering from exposure and was taken to a clinic.

She had wandered the beaches for two days with no protection from the cold except the piece of canvas she found in an old shack. She spent two nights in the shack while the temperature dropped to around the freezing mark.

Halt 'Wildcat' Montreal Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Officials of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers (CCL) Friday night dissuaded a section of Montreal's tram and bus drivers from calling a "wildcat" srtike.

Strike threats were voiced by employees of the Montreal transportation commission after an arbitration board's ruling rejected demands for wage increases and a shorter work week.

Harry A. Chappell, national president of the brotherhood, representing 5,000 conductors, motormen, bus drivers and maintenance men advised the workers not to strike.

Some 800 workers then agreed the executive should be given until Nov. 20 to interview commission directors and report back to brotherhood members.

Principal demands of the union are a 10-per-cent wage increase and a reduction in the work-week from 48-50 hours to 40 hours.

Give Top Award To Jet Pilot

MT. CLEMENS, Mich. (AP)—Lieut. David E. Axthelm, 23, will be recommended for the "highest possible" posthumous award for nursing his crippled, rocket-laden jet fighter carefully out of Detroit into Lake St. Clair, where he died.

Maj. Raymond Janeczek, commander of Axthelm's fighter-interceptor squadron, today said he has begun the necessary award procedure.

Axthelm radioed Selfridge air force base Thursday that his engine had "flamed out" at 15,000 feet and he would attempt an emergency landing. But when he broke through the overcast at 3,000 feet he was over populous eastern Detroit, so he radioed for nearby city airport to clear its runways.

Quickly, however, he cancelled this with: "Disregard previous message. I'm going into the river to avoid ditching in city."

Seconds later he zoomed over Belle isle and fired his ejection seat. He was too low. His parachute only partially opened. His body was found a short while later.

More Scotch

LONDON (Reuters)—The government and the Scotch Whisky Association has lifted restrictions on distribution of scotch to domestic retailers. Rationing was imposed in 1947 to divert supplies to the export market, notably the United States and Canada. Demand still exceeds supply, however, and the export market will still receive the major proportion of scotch.

Can Of Tar Explodes Starts Fire

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) The fire department was called to the building housing Sharp's Department Store on Front St. late Friday afternoon when fire broke out in an upstairs apartment.

The apartment is occupied by Mrs. Wes. Drinkwalter and her son Albert. Mrs. Drinkwalter was absent from her home at the time and Albert was repairing the roof.

He set a can of tar on a two-plate burner, which was thought to be turned off, but the burner was apparently on. He went outside, the tar became hot, blew the lid off the can and scattered hot tar over the walls of the kitchen.

The heater ignited the tar and the room was soon a mass of flames. Albert came back into the kitchen just as the lid blew off the can, saw the flames and notified the fire department.

HEAVY DAMAGE

Firemen used small extinguishers on the flames. Damage to the kitchen was quite heavy, with the floor covering and the wall paper being ruined. Some water seeped down into Sharp's Department Store below, but damage there was negligible.

The store room of the store was filled with smoke, but it is not believed the damage there is serious.

Needn't Fear TV Publishers Told

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Newspapers needn't fear television as a competitor, but they must revise their own news presentation methods to serve new reader interests and habits created by TV, a publishers' group was told at its convention here.

A panel of five newspaper executives agreed in a southern Newspaper Publishers Association program that the papers can even capitalize on TV by tailoring their news to meet the new development.

They proposed paying more attention to local affairs in the news columns, giving special explanatory treatment to news events before and after they are telecast, taking editorial stands on controversial issues restricted from telecasting, and putting newspaper staff personalities on TV to get the readers more intimately acquainted with them.

Party Politics In Municipal Elections

Speaking in Halifax on Wednesday last the Progressive Conservative leader, Mr. George Drew, suggested that candidates in civic elections might campaign under a national political banner. He did not develop this proposal, but said that he thought it had "a number of advantages". We wish that Mr. Drew had said more, for we have thought about the matter and we cannot see any advantage in such a plan.

* * *

Indeed, we think that the municipalities would be far worse off in their bargaining with provincial governments if they were governed by mayors and councils with a party label attached to them. The municipalities of this country are fighting a hard and lonely fight to preserve any of their important powers of self-government against the encroachments of the provinces, and to get enough money to pay for the services which the provinces insist upon. If municipal government were given party labels, their case would be hopeless; those which were of the same stripe as the party in power in the province would be under political pressure to take no action which might embarrass the party; those municipal governments which were in opposition to the party in provincial power would have little right to expect consideration in that quarter.

* * * *

In the municipalities themselves the plan would cause all kinds of trouble. At present mayors and aldermen are elected because the voters honestly feel that they will do a good job for the municipality as a whole; in most places the old ward system has been discarded because it tended to exalt special interests above the widest possible general interest. If voters have to choose along party lines, as well as on grounds of intelligent local interest, municipal elections will be intolerably confused, and municipal governments will be much less efficient than they are at present. What municipal ratepayer wants to think that he has a Conservative Council, or a Liberal Council? What he wants is an efficient local Council, which will do the best it can for him and his town, and fight the provincial government if local rights are in danger.

* * *

We all have many loyalties. Ontario is full of people who are Conservatives in provincial affairs, and Liberals in national affairs. In municipal affairs they are Peterburians, or Torontonians, or Brantfordians, or whatever their municipality may be. It could do nothing but harm to attempt to extend party allegiance into municipal affairs. If Mr. Drew has reasons to show otherwise, we wish that he would make them public, for at present we cannot guess what they may be.

What Have The Amateurs Done?

"Painting is fun. You don't have to be able to draw. Anybody can paint. Look at Churchill. Look at Eisenhower. Look at Alexander. Look at Bill Blow down the street, who was showing a painting at the local exhibition." People who take to painting as a recreation, or want others to "take it up", will say you can paint a complete picture after your first lesson. You can, and it is good fun.

Hundreds of Sunday painters are busy in this city; there are half a dozen organized groups of amateurs, and all over the country in the last decade, painting has become a celebrated and indulged hobby. More than a hobby. Exhibitions are held. The amateurs price their work and sell some of it. And beneath their modesty is a conviction that really, they might be more than dabblers in art, or at least, in the class of Churchill and Alexander. Amateur painting has become both socially acceptable and artistically pretentious. The increase in wealth and leisure of this country since the war has made it a phenomenon, and the professionals have to take note of it.

What do the professional painters think of Sunday painters? Some curious comments are given by George Elliott of Toronto in a short article in the current issue of Canadian Art, a quarterly. He says that "a work of art is the last possible result of the current brisk amateur painting movement. Of course, Sunday painters are harmless." And he says that his article is aimed not at putting them in their place but to put embryo and mature artists back in theirs. Judging from some of his remarks, the amateurs have pre-empted some good niches of the professionals' old place; they, the professionals, will have to move over or out.

To say the least, the host of amateur painters has provided professionals with fees and pupils. It has resulted in civic boards buying the canvases of professionals for schools, hospitals, libraries, and it has supported governments which spend public money on galleries and "contemporary masters". Ah! but there's a rub which seems to be salt to Mr. Elliott:

"Art, using the word carelessly, is fashionable, acceptable and exploitable. The amateur is a valued source of income for painters with more experience who wish to teach. Thus the amateur painter has been placed in the orbit of serious young painters who will pass on their knowledge of the craft. Then the teacher-painters sometimes involve the amateurs with the established 'contemporary masters' by encouraging them to meet. The three commingle, and quite rightly so, because the amateurs give to the others the enthusiasm and respect that they like. The teacher-painters give the amateurs some direction. The established painters, the living artists, provide the goal for each. Each is nourished by the other, and at the edge of the three groups it is sometimes difficult to distinguish between them. The teacher-painters don't become 'contemporary masters', the amateurs don't step up to the level of teacher-painters. Further, the picture-viewing public often cannot tell the difference between them." (The black face type is ours.)

Well, if people who visit galleries cannot tell the difference between the Sunday painters and the professionals, what is to blame: the lack of discretion of the viewers, the skill of the amateurs or the lack of ability of the professionals? Mr. Elliott says that you cannot distinguish between dabblers and the serious young painters merely on what you see in a single exhibition. You must compare the bodies of work, look for drawing techniques, variety and purpose. Fair enough, but we dispute the implication that amateur artists have nothing to say and that all professionals always have. Painting is a wide-open field for charlatanism, and some of the biggest fakirs are in studios, not in Sunday back-kitchens.

The amateur painter may not be as "harmless" as a patronizing professional says. Hear this remarkable statement:

"One result of the amateur movement is the non-representational area into which many good painters have been driven. The non-representational painters are turning their backs not on realism, nor on the current social mood, but on the amateurs. They do not want to run the risk of being seen or associated with the energetic amateurs. Non-representational canvases are obscure on purpose. Obscurity or private meaning is a strong redoubt in which to work free from the enthusiasm of the amateurs. The amateur movement can be held largely responsible for the great advances in abstract painting in recent years."

This is the most dubious theory we have heard propounded in Canada of the basis of an art movement, and a remarkable critique of its validity. It is, we suggest with tongue in cheek, substantiation that amateur painting is really pretty good and non-representational painting a thing to view with suspicion. If we follow Mr. Elliott, has the amateur movement not driven professional painters who are not good enough to stand up to or rise above amateur painters, away from their own medium and into the safe obscurity of a non-representational area? If so, then we must ask: how good is the non-representational stuff? Mr. Elliott's article is aptly entitled "What Have Amateurs Done To Canadian Art?"

A Voice From The Past

Looking through a second-hand booksellers' catalogue the other day we came upon the following entry:

CRANE, Nathalia. Janitor's Boy & Other Poems. ½ cloth. N.Y. 1924. $1.00.

And all at once we remembered the great fuss that was made about Nathalia Crane, the child poetess, nearly thirty years ago.

We have forgotten how old Nathalia was when she was 'discovered' by a New York publisher, but she cannot have been more than thirteen. She was precocious in her emotions, and unquestionably she was a child of active and original mind. She wrote verses which were unsophisticated in form, and full of surprising thoughts. She declared in one of her poems that she loved the son of the janitor of the apartment house in which she lived with her parents; the janitor's boy was promtly interviewed by several reporters, and said that he was not in love with Nathalia, who impressed him as nice, but queer.

A great future was predicted for this little girl who wrote poetry. But we have never heard of her from that day until now. Her book can be bought for a dollar by anyone who wants to see what all those bright dreams and confident predictions of 1924 were founded on. But it will not be our dollar. We read The Janitor's Boy & Other Poems when they were new, and we liked them. One of the things that life teaches you is the danger of attempting to recapture the frail enthusiasms of an earlier day.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Several papers have been publishing stories about bears invading their cities. Of course, now that Ontario cities have begun to annex large tracts of virgin forest in order to expand their boundaries, the bears can't help it. Would it be a good idea to collect taxes from the bears, and call them citizens?

LONDON LETTER

Harmless Rebels

By ROBERT MILLER

IT WILL BE interesting to see what happens inside the Conservative (Government) Party if Britain comes to terms with Egypt over the future of the Suez Canal Zone. Although no official announcement has yet been made, the drift of the talks between the two countries is fairly well-known by now .The British troops stationed there will leave the Zone within a specified time—some say within eighteen months of the agreement being initialled—and will leave behind only technicians to see that the valuable equipment is properly looked after.

✧ ✧ ✧

IF BRITAIN agrees to evacuate the troops, many Conservatives will look on the settlement as a gross act of appeasement. They have already remonstrated with the Government, and largely because of their criticism, the Premier, Sir Winston Churchill, recently defended the Egyptian negotiations at a private meeting of Conservatice Members of Parliament.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHILE I do not doubt the sincerity of the rebels, I still find it difficult to believe that the Government is likely to be seriously ambarrassed. Rebellion has never been looked on kindly in Conservative circles, and even Sir Winston himself made little headway between the wars when he came out against both the Government's policy on India and the inadequacy of the rearmament programme.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE is no Churchill to lead the critics today. Besides, the mere fact that Sir Winston has blessed the negotiations with Egypt will reassure the average Conservative. The agreement, cannot, he will think, be a betrayal of British interest if Churchill is behind it.

✧ ✧ ✧

APART from these murmurings within their own ranks, and the dangerous situations in Trieste, Ministers seem quietly pleased with the way things are going. The Labour (Opposition) Party is undoubtedly far more united than it was; but it is still not putting much bite into its criticisms of the Government.

Take, for instance, the debate on British Guiana. Inspired comment from Socialist circles had promised us a massive attack on the Government—no holds would be barred, we were told. But the debate turned out to be rather a tame affair, and at no time was there any suggestion of the wild fracas we had been promised.

OF COURSE, things would change if there were to be another economic crisis; but there is still no definite sign that one is on the way. On the contrary, the latest figures are rather encouraging. Productivity is up on last year and on 1951, and reassuring denials have come from the United States of suggestions that that country is on the eve of a recession. Naturally the signs are not all hopeful: there is still evidence of mild inflation, and exporters complain that they are meeting with increasing competition. However, the pessimists have proved to be so wrong during the last eighteen months that Ministers can hardly be blamed if they take the pessimists' opinion with several grains of salt.

✧ ✧ ✧

LONDON'S TATE GALLERY recently put us still further in its debt by arranging an exhibition of the great British painter Matthew Smith. A friend of mine who went with me remarked at the end that Matthew Smith was really more French than English, and this is true, I suppose, if we concentrate on his obvious sensuousness. But he is also very English-English in his freedom from metaphysical or psychological obsessions. He is not in any way an intellectual painter: what makes him so remarkable is his spontaneous exultation in the physical, whether it be flowers or fruit or the human body.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT HAS always seemed to me curious that Matthew Smith has never had the recognition abroad that he deserves. In England it might be said that he is the finest painter this country has produced for many, many years. It is not only that he possesses the wonderful exuberance to which I have already referred: he is also one of the great technical masters.

✧ ✧ ✧

I SEE THAT Francis Bacon, himself a painter of extraordinary power, pointed this out in a tribute in the catalogue to the exhibition. "He seems to me," said Mr. Bacon, "to be one of the very few English painters since Constable and Turner to be concerned with painting."

Matthew Smith is now seventy-four years old, but he is still very much in harness. I agree with a distinguished critic that one of his recent paintings—"Quinces and Pomegranates"—is among his finest pictures.

✧ ✧ ✧

WALKING away from the Tate that day I reflected, not for the first time, on the extraordinary revival that has taken place in British painting during the last decade or so. The general standard seems to me a good deal higher than in any other European country—certainly far higher than it has been in France since the war. Matthew Smith, Stanley Spencer, Bacon, Ben Nicholson, Graham Sutherland, William Coldstream, Victor Pasmore—where else in the world today will you find so much talent?

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE are some people who believe a similar revival is taking place in music. If that happens, the British Broadcasting Corporation should surely be given some of the praise. The B.B.C. is often criticised; and certainly some of its activities might be considerably improved. But I have yet to meet anyone who does not agree that its musical programmes are of the highest class. Never, at least in recent times, has the public been given so much good music as the B.B.C. has given it during the last twenty years. There must be by now a far larger and far more appreciative audience than ever before.

On the basis of recent figures from Ontario it was estimated that the dollar you spend on whisky today is split up this way.

An American Opinion: "WHO'S CRAZY?"

Ottawa HAS Power

(SUDBURY STAR)

A NEWS report in a Toronto newspaper suggests that "the federal government may find it difficult to turn down" an application by the Consumers' Gas Company to import natural gas into Canada.

The theory is based on the premise that the Toronto company's application is being made under The Navigable Waters Protection Act, which is federal law protecting the public interest in all waters capable of use by shipping.

It is suggested that Ottawa would find it difficult to see how a tunnel deep in the rock below the Niagara River would interfere with navigation, and would therefore be obliged to approve the application.

However, The British North America Act takes precedence over this law, and the federal government reserves the right to control:

"Lines of steam or other ships, railways, canals, telegraphs, and other works and undertakings connecting the Province with any other or others of the Provinces, or extending beyond the limits of the Province;

"Lines of steam ships between the Province and any British or foreign country;

"Such works as, although wholly situate within the Province, are before or after their execution declared by the Parliament of Canada to be for the general advantage of Canada or for the advantage of two or more of the Provinces."

This would seem to take care of any question as to who has authority to do what. Our opinion is that Ottawa has the right to rule against the application, and we would think the federal government's position is even stronger in the knowledge that the Toronto company is concerned with importation from a foreign country.

We may not possess the lobbying power of Southern Ontario interests but Northern Ontario intends to make its voice heard on the question of an all-Canadian natural gas pipe-line from Alberta.

A Matter Of Taxes

(MONTREAL STAR)

MR. ABBOTT'S public utterances enhance his stature as a public man. He is often right; he may on occasion be wrong; but the public always respects courage, and that is a quality the Minister of Finance has in good measure. Nobody, believe it or not, likes to levy taxes. Everybody, including Ministers of Finance, would like to make a good fellow of himself by giving tax reductions. Mr. Abott does not see his way clear to lower taxes, and he says so bluntly.

Lower taxes, he thinks, may come in 1955 but not before, and 1955 seems a long way off, but Mr. Abbott is dead right in being cautious about it. He was Minister of Finance in 1949 when he was able to reduce taxes substantially, and foresaw for some years ahead a defence budget which would run no higher than about $350 millions a year. Within 12 months, war had exploded in Korea, international tensions increased sharply, and up went the taxes again. Mr. Abbott, since then, has gone out of business as an optimist. He plays his cards close to his chest. As long as defence costs $2 billions a year, he has to.

Now, if the international scene really does lighten it may be that this large burden will be reduced sooner than we think. If it is, Mr. Abbott has his plan ready: he will cut taxes and he will go on reducing debt. But the "if" is a big one, and Mr. Abbott speaks with the voice of sober experience. He deserves to be listened to.

Was He Picked For The Job?

(VICTORIA TIMES)

FOR the first time in 30 years a British soldier has been convicted of cowardice; his sentence, a year in prison and discharged with ignominy. According to the evidence at a court martial he cringed in a Korean trench while his comrades fought a desperate battle with the enemy.

Professional army men will produce emphatic arguments in defence of the sentence. They undoubtedly will point out how many extra lives and battles would be lost if every man could not be counted on to move forward as a unit in a crucial attack.

One points stands out clearly, however. This 26-year-old soldier must have been frozen with fear he could not overcome, a fear that made it impossible for him to do anything else but cringe, powerless to move into action.

In some other branch of the service, however, it is more than likely he could have been a brave and efficient soldier.

Had he been in the U.S. army a screening process would have elicited this fact and he would have been placed where he could best serve his country. It is recognized that a man who has all the qualifications of an ace aviator may have a phobia which would make him absolutely unfit to be an infantryman in the trenches . . . and it is not a matter of courage or cowardice.

Most relentless feature, however, is the zeal of military authorities in making public to the world the name of this young man and branding him throughout the world as a coward because the lack of proper screening placed him in such a pitiable situation.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord God called unto Adam and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself. And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded that thou shouldest not eat? And he man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat. . . .

And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life . . . In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return . . . And the Lord God said, Behold the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever: therefore the Lord sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken. (Gen. 3:9-12, 17, 19, 22, 23.)

Shall mortal man be more just than God? shall a man be more pure than his maker? Behold, he put no trust in his servants; and his angels he charged with folly: how much less in them that dwell in houses of clay, whose foundation is in the dust, which are crushed before the moth? (Job 4:17-19.)

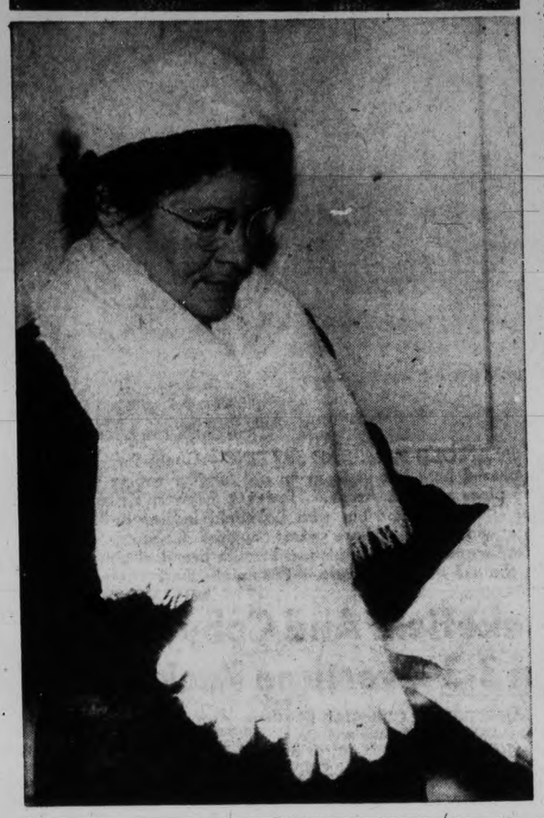
We're Backing Stephen

(Montreal Star)

By no means the least notable feature of that great newspaper The Times of London is its letters to the editor. Getting a letter published in The Times is an accolade, a nod from Olympus seldom attained by many aspirants. Matters discussed are usually lofty, names attached often noble, usually distinguished, almost always authoritive. Disputations are restrained but none the less occasionally acidulous. Governments have been known to float trial balloons disguised as letters to test the wind currents of public opinion.

Yet withal you never know what is going to pop up in this sacred space that has nothing to do with lofty or abstruse affairs. The editor who handles these letters can be tough on the commonplace but gentle however as a sucking dove to worthy causes however humble-seeming. For instance, the other day there was a learned letter on the proper name for the world's second-highest mountain peak hitherto a simple K2 according to the Surveyor General. Linguistic and historical authorities are cited. Also, should it be Karakoram or Karakorum? Times readers ought, we are sure, to be more interested than we venture to believe a lot of them are in these matters.

But we defy anyone not to back up young Master Stephen Chamier in his indignant protest which follows, which we quote in full:



"SIR: I have just done my prep and I have been told about the letters you have had about small boys letting off fireworks. I am 10 years old and this news makes me mad. Were the people who wrote to you born grown up and did they honestly never let off fireworks before Guy Fawkes night? Anyway we small boys are not small forever. Goodbye.

From,
STEPHEN CHAMIER."

How right The Times is to give young Stephen space. How much more important are the grievances of 10 years than all the Karakorams or Karakorums in the Himalayas.

From Rabbit To Wrap: She Does All

EXAMINER PHOTO-STORY
By DON GRANT

When most city folk knit mitts, gloves, bonnets and scarfs, they use store-bought wool. But Miss Mabel Peters, RR 4, Peterborough, gets her wool straight from the animal—and the very finest, angora rabbits.

Shortly after she learned to spin rabbit fur seven years ago, Miss Peters started her unusual hobby, the whole process from fur on the hoof to mitts on the human hand. She now has 21 angora rabbits which each provide a pound of wool a year for Miss Peters' assortment of clothing. She raises the rabbits herself.

The soft, pearl-white hair is kept in paper bags away from dust and dirt until Miss Peters is ready to spin the fur into wool. Miss Peters works the fur into threads of angora wool by feeding the hair slowly (Upper Right) into an old-fashioned, foot-peddled spinning wheel.

Miss Peters works on the hand loom (Lower Right Photo) in the Peters' living room. There during the daylight hours, for the farm home has no electricity yet, she weaves drapery, blankets and dress materials. A yard of material means at least two hours of steady work.

Her interest in weaving and knitting has urged her to introduce the hobby to other people. She teaches these arts to city people at handcraft classes held weekly at the Dixon House.

Miss Peters is not one to let wool pass under her eyes unnoticed. There is a collie pup at the farm, with nice fluffy hair. So he was clipped before the summer heat set in, and his hair spun into yarn and then knitted into a soft, warm little cap.

Who Could Vote, Who Could Not In 1820 At Remarkable Durham Polling Station

By MRS. GERALD MARRYAT

Samuel Street Wilmot of Clarke township was elected to the Legislative Assembly as the first member for Durham County in the 1820 election. And great was the rejoicing. Northumberland had been represented by a local man, Zaccheus Burnham, since 1817. Before that the Newcastle District was administered from York.

Mr. Burnham had promptly moved for the reading of a petition, signed by David McGregor Rogers and 74 others, stating that for want of a road from the settled townships of Hope and Hamilton to the new townships of Cavan and Monaghan, the inhabitants of those and adjacent settlements were forced to suffer a great many hardships and privations. They asked that the road should follow the line laid out by the first surveyor, who had, apparently, been the newly elected member, Mr. Wilmot.

Times were not good for the Cavan settlers and one of them, Robert McCamus, recalled in later years that in 1820 when he had taken wheat to Port Hope, he was told it was a drug on the market and that merchants could not exchange it for tea and groceries.

So, altogether, the election of a man who had surveyed their township, assisted by one of their number, at least, John Deyell, was a hopeful sign.

On January 31st, 1821, Mr. Wilmot took his seat and was sworn in. But immediately a petition was presented, signed by John David Smith of Port Hope and 81 others, including Charles Fothergill, John William Bannister, John Williams, John Taylor, and Jeremiah Button, declaring the election of Mr. Wilmot illegal, and urging that the defeated candidate, George Strange Boulton, be considered the victor in what had been a lively and bitter fight.

The question was whether a settler could or could not vote on his Location Ticket, and it brought up some knotty legal problems that were finally forwarded by Governor Maitland to the Home Office for their ruling. But in the meantime James Crooks of Flamborough, who was to give his name to Crooks' Rapids (Hastings), moved that the petition be read, and the Assembly constituted itself a court of trial, wherein the Solicitor-General J. J. Boulton defended the defeated George Strange Boulton and George Ridout, Mr. Wilmot.

Thomas Ward of Port Hope (1770-1861), Registrar of Deeds and a highly respected man was Returning Officer. The polling place was at Port Hope. The poll opened on Monday, July 3, 1820 at ten o'clock, and closed on Saturday, July 8, at two o'clock. In that time only 246 voters showed up. It was said that the Boultons were so sure of victory that they did not get out all the vote.

However it was stated at the trial by James Boulton that he was present on Monday when 160 men from Cavan and the back townships came to the hustings, playing "God Save the King" and hurrahing for the King (George III). They went to Mr. Boulton's house, except for a few who remained in the Poll Room with Mr. Fothergill.

Thomas Ward, the RO, was next called as a witness and he was asked about the near-riot that broke out, and how he had ruled for or against voters with only their Location Tickets.

He feared violence and had entered the names of every voter-but not on the voters' List proper, and had declared Wilmot elected with 73 votes and Boulton with 49 votes. Had the Location Ticket voters been listed the vote would have been 172 for Boulton and 74 for Wilmot.

Under the system of open voting a man's choice was known to all. Mr. Ward, a lawyer, claimed that the Cavan men cold not vote unless they had possession of their land by virtue of a deed from the Crown or from some individual, registered. He also allowed that a man might vote upon an estate in fee of his wife, and those holding lands in fief or in roture, or by a certificate derived under the authority of the Governor and Council of the Province of Quebec, and being of the yearly value of forty shillings sterling or upwards, over and above all rents and charges payable out of or in respect of the same.

Therefore he did not allow settlers to vote on location tickets as not being in possession of a freehold. And had entered their names to prevent a riot.

The Poll Clerk, Marquis Fayette Whitehead, testified that it was not so much the conduct of the people themselves as of Charles Fothergill who had entered the hustings with the Cavan men and attacked Mr. Wilmot with violent language, saying that he had read the statute. He told the men that as British subjects they had a right to vote, and advised them to insist upon it. To the Poll Clerk "the people appeared very much in liquor". The Cavan people then crowded about the house in tumultuous manner and to quiet them their votes were allowed but not recorded as legal votes. Mr. Whitehead added that there was actually a riot at the close of the poll between the Cavan people and the old inhabitants.

This brought up another angle so common in those days; that of U. E. Loyalists versus the settlers from Great Britain. The Court wanted to know if those who had wished to vote for Boulton were U. E. Loyalists or imigrants. The answer was that they were principally imigrants and that not one Loyalist had voted on location tickets. One voter — James Jolly—came to vote and it was supposed he had a deed; later his name was struck off when it was found he had not.

The late Prof. John Squair, Univ. of Toronto a Durham man, in his "Townships of Darlington and Clarke", Univ. of Toronto Press, 1927, thought (page 151) that it was not easy to appreciate properly what took ylace at the Durham election of 1820. To him Mr. Boulton seemed the official Government candidate; but if so, what was Mr. Wilmot? His family were staunch Reformers in later years, but did that party exist in 1820? No likely. He quotes another authority, W. Stewart Wallace in "The Family Compact," at p. 11 who spoke of such men as David McGregor Rogers, Phillip Dorland, the Quaker, as early Reformers but found Wilmot harder to place unless with moderate men like Dr. Baldwin and James Crooks. Mr. Wilmot dropped out of public life and did not contest the seat in the next election, when George S. Boulton was elected.

But, if Boulton was the government man, his appeal was not allowed and, after long deliberation the Assembly came to a decision on March 5, 1821, by adopting a motion of Dr. Baldwin, seconded by James Crooks, "that it be resolved that the return of Samuel Wilmot, Esquire, as representative for the County of Durham, is regular and legal, and that the said Samuel Wilmot do retain his seat." The vote was Yeas—18 and Nays—15. So it was close enough.

LOCATION TICKETS WERE IN DISPUTE in the 1820 Durham electon. Were they sufficient to indicate a man was a property-owner entitled to vote? No, the court decided, so instead of winning by nearly a hundred votes, George Strange Boulton lost by 24 votes to Samuel Street Wilmot, at the open poll in Port Hope.

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

You can listen to all the second-hand tales of hunting prowess and even enthusiastic hunting pals to gauge how the deer hunters are faring. The only accurate observations for my money come from the counts on the deer racks or in freezer plant locker rooms.

The season on Monday got away to a poor start. This was to be expected with battalions of gunners all over the bush and the weather so warm. Shooting conditions got much better in the district on Tuesday and Wednesday though the weather didn't change much. The carcasses were rushed to town for storage.

There are at least 50 deer hanging about on hooks waiting to be cut up and parcelled for customers' lockers. There are also three hulking elk somewhere; two of them were shot by the Millard brothers and one by Herb Payne.

These animals dress at least 800 pounds. The heaviest deer shot by Jim Hall, dressed 240 pounds. No matter how you look at it when they start bringing home the game in these weighty proportions, hunters are going to have a lot of good eating throughout the winter.

* * * *

The short pheasant shooting season in Clarke and Darlington townships, Durham County, October 28-31, has conservation officers wondering if the privilege is worth the expense and care attendant to the introduction of these game birds in that area. Hunters have given them nothing but trouble.

Several shooters were caught hunting before the season opened and had their guns confiscated, one a man from Oshawa to the extent of losing his car as well. Two other worthies prowled the side roads shooting from their car; they lost guns, cars and birds.

As fed up with the whole situation are the members of sportsmen's associations, township officials and deputy game wardens who have all worked hard to provide sport in Durham. Conservation is a catchword in Ontario, it seems.

* * * *

Alert conservation officers who picked up three men in the act of poaching spawning Lake Trout at Catchacoma Lake on Monday night were really on the job. Saddled with watching the ethics of thousands of district and visiting deer hunters this incident shows something of the magnitude of their duties.

The incident also warms the cockles of our heart because officials of Club Whitesands on that particular lake have been screaming about the department's apparent lack of co-operation in planting the lake with game fish. One of the offenders was the club caretaker. We wonder what the officials have to say for themselves, now.

* * * *

"Leave us compose a po'm to the deer stalkers," said my confrere Calder who wields a pencil on meetings of City Council and who, since the Mayor and many Aldermen have fled to the bush, finds time heavy on his pudgy hands.

We tossed down two bubbling bromos and began with no apologies to poets living or dead:

The boys had been playing two-card stud
For seven days in a row,
When into the room from the outside gloom
Stepped a swivel-hipped sad-eyed doe.

"Deal me in," said the fair young thing,
In a voice as gentle as Lux.
"You boys haven't shot a thing, so far,
"And I can lose a couple of bucks."

The cards went round when they heard the sound
Of her mate in accents low
"You guys can gamble away your eyes
"But you will not win my doe."

The hunters leaped from their two-card stud
To the wall where their guns were racked.
With might and main they tugged at the guns
But the game had left them shacked.

"All heave together" the dealer said
And they swore like infid-els
The wall collapsed with a mighy crash
As the lamp fell into the shells.

When the smoke had cleared they counted the score.
There lay somebody's shattered toe,
An owl, a skunk, a lot of junk
And two mice—a buck and a doe.

(This po'm won't win us any Nobel prize but we tried).

Petes Turn Back Kingston By A Count Of 5 to 4 In Senior "B" Puck Fray

KINGSTON (Special)—A goal fired by Bill Prentice at 6:01 of the third period gave the Petes their second win of the Ontario Hockey Association senior "B" grouping and stuck the Kingston Goodyears with their second loss of the season. A goal by Donny Murray at the half-way mark of the last period served only to bring the score to 5-4. A crowd of 3,130 fans watched the two clubs play wide open hockey from the opening whistle with no let-up by either club. It was an unusual sight for the first of the year with Peterborough and Kingston players seemingly in top condition. The Petes came from behind twice in the first period to gain a 3-2 lead which was forced into a 3-3 tie at the end of the second.

Wilson Reid, up this year from the junior Vics, tied with veteran Don Murray for goal-scoring honors for the Goodyears, each with two. Peterborough's goals came from the sticks of five different players, Fryia, Crowley, Montgomery, Greenlaw and Prentice. Penalties were split even, each team serving five.

OPENS SCORING

Reid opened the scoring on a pass from Don Bellringer. Montgomery has been penalized for elbowing but Kingston wasn't able to dent the visitors' defence. Londry went off for tripping at 7:20 with redmond going away for high sticking later. Kingston poured in the power with playing coach Redmond off but were caught napping five seconds before his penalty was up when Fryia, with Greenlaw and Montgomery, tied the score. Goodfellow followed Redmond to the penalty box at 8:55 and Kingston pulled the trick of scoring while a man short, Reid again the marksman, Bellringer and Partis assisting. Two goals in less than two minutes gave Peterborough the lead, Crowley scoring at 16:44 from Montgomery, and the latter at 18:14 from Crowley.

It wasn't until 16:29 that either team scored in the middle period, Murray potting a pass from Macgregor and Ohlke. Up to that, the puck raced up and down the ice with neither team holding a definite advantage. Nicholson split the defence neatly around the eight minute mark but shot dead into Donlevy's pads. Redmond was penalized for the second time, this one for interference. Kingston lost the man advantage when Myke tripped Crowley, who was going in on a break. Bellringer personally stopped four Peterborough attacks with his team short until Greenlaw went off for holding at 14:44. A concentrated ganging attack paid off for Kingston when Murray flipped the puck in with his stick.

PETES STRONGER

Kingston was completely outclassed at the start of the final session with Greenlaw scoring 32 seconds after the start of the period on a pass from Leonard. Watts and Petersen mixed it up with both men going off for roughing. Bellringer set up Partis after a rink-long dash but the veteran didn't finish off and at 6:01, Prentice scored the eventual winner on a pass up the ice from Crowley and Munroe, giving the visiting player his first goal in three games.

Myke served his second penalty for tripping at 7:35 with Peterborough not able to organize a pay-off drive. Murray, on a slap shot, scored the final goal of the game, taking a pass from Macgregor, who had in turn received the puck from Nicholson. White was checked neatly by Redmond on a break and both clubs again went all out for extra goals. White hit the post when he was all alone but no further damage was done.

Two-Club Tiff Over Player Goes To Court

MONTREAL (CP)—The dispute over which of two Quebec City junior hockey clubs rightfully own an 18-year-old goalie reached Superior Court Friday and one club—Citadelles—was granted permission to intervene in injunction proceedings.

At the same time, Mr. Justice A. I. Smith set Nov. 12 for hearing on the injunction.

The injunction is sought by Quebec Frontenacs. The club asks that the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association be restrained from carrying out threatened suspension of Frontenacs for allowing the goalie to play with that team.

The young player concerned is Jacques Marcotte. He played last season with Citadelles, then in the Quebec Junior Hockey League and now operating in the Junior A division of the Ontario Hockey Association.

This season Marcotte was granted permission by the QAHA to play with Frontenacs, new entry in the Quebec junior circuit.

Carter Refuses Early Weigh-In

MONTREAL (CP)—Jimmy Carter, world lightweight champion who will defend his title here Nov. 11 against Montreal's Armand Savoie, refused Friday to go through with a preliminary weighing. Savoie weighed himself at 136.

Both fighters underwent a preliminary medical examination and were pronounced physically fit.

Both fighters have been tapering off their training. Since he returned from his training camp in the Laurentian mountains last weekend, Savoie has done little or no boxing. His manager, Cliff Sowery, said Savoie had already boxed more than 135 rounds during training and the job now is to keep him from going stale.

Carter has been boxing in good form since he reached Montreal early this week and has looked sharp.

The Peterborough Orfuns either will be Ontario intermediate "A" football champions for 1953 or also-rans shortly after press time today. They're playing this aft at two in Morrow Park in the return tilt of their home-and-home ORFU finals. Tony Kotowski's crew tote a 13-point lead into this fray from their 19-6 victory a week ago in Oakville and they're pretty confident of downing the Black Knights, the champs of Western Ontario, to wrap up the series. Winner is slated to trek to Montreal next weeken for a Sunday afternoon Eastern aCnada sudden death playoof with the victor of the Quebec Union. Survivor of that entertains the Western Canada winner in the east-west final one week later.

It'll be Montreal Lakeshore Flyers vs. Verdun Bulldogs today in finals of the Quebec setup. In a sudden-death semi-final the other night, Flyers blanked St. Aloysius Orfuns 19-0 to move into QRFU finals. According to a Montreal Star report, Flyers showed a powerful front wall, good kicking and great plunging—led by Kevin O'Neill—to rack up a 324-yard total on 23 first downs. Their quarter-backing left little to be desired as Ron Lamb dished up a dandy assortment of plays. These Flyers are the same squad which came won out by two points. But they have to erase Verdun yet up here last autumn in eastern finals, and our Orfuns barely this semester.

Past Officers of OHA

Sports celebrities from many parts of Canada will honor at a Toronto dinner next month OHA secretary W. A. Hewitt. Though not very active now—Bill Hanley does most of the secretarial work as OHA manager—Bill Hewitt still retains the secretary's office, which he has held continuously since taking over in 1904 from W. A. Buchanan of Peterborough. The latter was OHA secretary in 1902-03. Peterborough has also had two Ontario Hockey Association presidents, Rollie Glover in 1918-20 (later a life member of the OHA) and Percy Bond in 1932-34. Along with these two, there have been three vice-prexies from here, George Horkins in 1896, and Lionel King in 1899-1900, as well as Frank Buckland as first vice-president today.

Red Creighton has signed 10 OHA junior "B' puckists here so far, these being: Kevin Heffernan, Bill Twist and Gord Coyle of Lakefield, Bob Gardner, Bud McDougall, Paul Doris, Larry Ball, Jerry Frizzelle, John Pue and an Orillia chap. He has his eye on several more good prospects and will be having 'em ink the line shortly. The club is drilling away though still awaiting official word on a grouping, one which may embrace Collingwood, Midland, Port Perry (the Oshawa boys), Lindsay and Peterborough. Unless a lakeshore town comes in with the latter three centres. They plan to sell season ducats to help raise funds for necessary equipment.

Lakefield Gets Draw

A not too robust crowd turned out to see an intermediate "A" puck tilt here last night as Lakefield Indians opened against the Cobourg Comets. It wound up in a 3-3 overtime draw and gave promise of some keen hockey to come in this Lakeshore loop Orono plays the Indians here next Wednesday e'en. Doug Hunter, Dick McCracken and Tom Birch scored for Lakefield with an assist each going to John Richlark, Dean Wasson, Hunter and McCracken. Ray Harding was solid in the nets as usual. Jack Reeves got two tallies for Cobourg and Alec McGibbon one, Dave Casey earning an assist. Their goalie was really good, too, or the Indians might well have taken it. A lot of penalties and more stops than in some basketball jousts.

BY yanking out a nifty 5-4 senior "B" victory in Kingston last p.m., the Petes kept a firm grip on second spot in the group standing, just half a game back of Oshawa. Locals go to Belleville on Tuesday and entertain the K's here next Friday. Eddie Redmond's men are starting to roll now in a tight loop race and will give any of 'em a battle at home or away. Jack Donlevy was in rare goalie form in a speedy hard-fought fray betwixt the well-matched clubs. Petes finished stronger with Doc Prentice getting the winning goal in he third. Bill Crowley was flying on the big surface to score one and aid on two more, and Keith Montgomery did the same. Toodie Greenlaw had a goal and an assist, Chum Fryia a counter, while Jim Munroe and Gus Leonard each earned an assist. Wils Reid and Don Murray counted two each for the K's in a rather clean contest before more than 3,000 fans.

Tranter Takes Jr. Shield In Swimming

Wilton Tranter was the winner of the Junior Swimming Club Shield for the first month of the 1953-54 season when he amassed a total of 43 points during workouts in the month of October. He was closely followed by Wayne Ash and Terry Northrop who were tied for second with 39 points. The shield, which dates back to 1906, has been in regular use since 1940 when Ralph Rogow was one of the first winners. Since that time 63 names of swimmers past and present have appeared on the trophy. It is awarded each month to the swimmer securing the highest number of points based on attendance, competition, improvement and conduct and has proved a real stimulant to the club. Jim McClenaghan, "Y" general secretary, was on hand at last night's workout to make the presentation to Wilton Tranter.

IN TORONTO MEET

The YMCA Swimming Club will be well represented at the Toronto Aquatic Club meet to be held at the new John Innes Memorial Pool in Toronto this coming Saturday.

The "Y" swimmers and their events are as follows: under 10 years 25 yards free style — Wayne Ash and Rhys Morgan; under 12 years 50 yards free style — Stanley Hood; under 14 years 50 yards free style — Peter Wood; under 17 years 200 yards free style — David Pryde, Wilton Tranter, Stuart Lamers and Brian Bell; under 17 years 100 yards back stroke — David Pryde and David Ross; under 17 years 100 yards breast stroke — Terry Northrop and Ross Dobbin; senior one metre diving — Lorne Hale.

Terry Rumored Newest Prospect

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Reports circulated in this baseball town Friday that Bill Terry, former New York Giants manager and now a Florida business man, is the latest prospect as manager of Brooklyn Dodgers.

The report was given credence by the arrival of Walter O'Malley, Dodgers' president, for an inspection tour of the club's spring training camp.

"Is Bill Terry coming to see you while you're here?" O'Malley was asked.

"If he does I'll be glad to see him."

"Are you going to offer him the manager's post?"

"I have nothing to say about that," replied O'Malley.

Terry managed the Giants to pennant victories in 1933, 1936 and 1937.

His name came to the fore as prospective manager of the Dodgers after PeeWee Reese, star shortstop and captain who was considered top choice, voluntarily bowed out of the picture.

Charley Dressen quit as manager in October when he was refused a long-term contract.

Others mentioned for the job are Bucky Harris of Washington Senators Jimmy Dykes, recently with Philadelphia Athletics Lefty O'Doul, manager at San Diego and Clay Hopper and Walt Alston, Dodger farm system managers.

M. Whatman Leads

M. Whatman rolled high single of 272 and I. Penrose best three of 611 in the Luck Strike Girls Bowling League this week at Duffus'. Butcher blanked Dunfield, as 3-1 wins went to Graham, Knights, Gibbons and Callaghan to Miles, Parsons, Reed and McBride.

Good singles were: B. McBride 249, J. Steen 238 and 239, R. McMillan 231, V. Triggs 229, M. Knights 229, L. Murdock 226, H. Parsons 222, I. Miles 217, I. Penrose 208 and 212, A. Reed 212, M. Tompkins 211 and D. Hanley 200. Good triples: V. Triggs 609, M. Knights 602, J. Steen 590, M. Whatman 571, M. Hollowell 539, G. Hall 536, M. Callaghan 530, A. Reed 524, B. Gardiner 508, H. Stacey 506, I. Miles 502 and B. McBride 500.

OYAMA KATO (above) and Timothy Geohagen will oppose the Mills Brothers in a tag team match at the Brock next Wednesday. Geohagen's choice of the wily Jap as his partner may prove the answer to whipping the Mills boys. And what a wallop the fans are going to get when Kato is in the ring with either Tiny or Al. This will be really one for the books. Pat Flanagan takes on one of the cleverest grapples in the game, Firpo Zysbzko in the semi-final. The opener will feature Johnny Harmon, who made such a hit here this week, against rugged Al Costello. The entire card sparkles with talent and the main event is a standout. A capacity crowd is a certainty.

IN AN OLD FAMILIAR SETTING—Goalie Ray Harding appeared here last night in an old familiar setting between the pipes at Civic Arena. However, he wasn't playing for the Petes this time but with Lakefield Indians in an OHA intermediate Lakeshore game against Cobourg Comets. Harding came up with his usual stellar brand of goaltending in the 3-3 overtime tussle.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Lakefield And Cobourg Tie In 3-3 Overtime Puck Tilt

LAKEFIED and COBOURG Tie

The Lakefield Indians and Cobourg Comets fought it out to a 3-3 overtime draw in their OHA intermediate "A" opener here last night before 400 fans. Lakefield took a 1-0 lead in the first frame but it was tied at 2-all to end the second, each side counting once in the third, and neither tallying in the extra inning. Orono plays Lakefield here next Wednesday night in the next lakeshore fray.

Play was generally fast, though often scrambly. Some of the puckists obviously were not yet in the pink of condition but gave promise of smart hockey in this loop in the future. The goaltending was quite good, Ray Harding in the home net and Goalie Sommerville of Cobourg showing a lot of class, with the latter kept quite busy in the late stages. While the defences checked hard and in rugged style, they didn't get too much help from tiring forwards coming back after the first period. The forwards weren't clicking up to mid-season form on passing plays by any means.

SCORED FIRST

Doug Hunter scored in the first period from McCracken on a push-up pass to break through defence smartly and sally in alone on goal to tally, giving Sommerville no chance at all. Dick McCracken got one next heat from Hunter on a backhander from the side. Cobourg got two this chukker, Alec McGibbon notching a neat one alone early, and Jack Reeves counting later in close off a Lakefield man's skate in a scramble. In the third, Reeves scored first on an angle drive with Dave Casey, but Tom Birch knotted it a bit later as he tipped in a forward pass on a play with Dean Wasson and John Richlark. That wound up the scoring, though Lakefield pressed hard in overtime and had a good margin on play.

Comets drew 14 penalties and Cam Wasson's squad 11 in a rather chippy game, marked by a few minor fights, McCracken and Reeves once, and Sabatino and Wilcox another. No damage was done. Referee Jim Crombie kept the tussle under control, calling everything that looked like a misdemeanour.

Cobourg: Goal, Sommerville; defence, Flesch and McKeen; centre, Casey; wings, Jack Irvine and Reeves; alternates, Campbell, Greer, Wilcox, D. Fisher, McGibbon Stevenson Jim Irvine and J. Fisher.

Lakefield goal Harding defence, Wilson and Richlark; centre, Reid; wings, Birch and Caravaggie; alternates, Hunter, McCracken, Floyd, Quigley, D. Wasson, W. Wasson, C. Wasson and Sabatino.

Maroons Move Into First, Tie Sarnia 2-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A tie for Chatham Maroons moved them into first place of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings.

The Maroons battled Sarnia Sailors to a 2-2 overtime draw Friday night at Chatham, putting them one point ahead of Hamilton Tigers and Owen Sound Mercurys. The Tigers let Stratford Indians run up a 6-3 victory over them in Hamilton.

Sudbury Wolves scored an 8-2 victory over Pembroke Lumber Kings in Sudbury to climb into a first-place tie with Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league.

CONNELLY SCORES TWICE

Jim Connelly, who fired both markers for Chatham, and netminder Hank Bassen can be credited with driving the Maroons to the top of the league. Bassen turned away 35 shots.

At Hamilton, Bob Mader notched two goals for the Indians. Moose Walsh, Mickey Roth, Fred Pletsch and Keith Tolton contributed singles.

Mauno Kauppi and Hub Beaudry sparked the Wolves to their victory with two goals each. Tatter McClellan and Nick Tomiuk each added a single for the Wolves. Nobby Clarke and Lionel Barber accounted for the Pembroke scoring.

FULL WEEKEND SCHEDULE

Windsor is at home to Hamilton in the only game Sunday.

In the NOHA group Pembroke is at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sudbury meets the Trappers in North Bay in Saturday action. The Lumber Kings meet the Indians in Sault Mich., Sunday.

Bruins Could Halt Canadiens If Record Holds

By ED SIMON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

You can almost call it an upset if league-leading Montreal Canadiens do better than break even against third-place Boston Bruins in their National Hockey League double bill this weekend. It sounds odd, in view of the Canadiens' four-point edge over their nearest opposition, to class them as underdogs against the team they knocked off in five games in the Stanley Cup final last spring. But the Bruins wield a mysterious power over the Montrealers. In 14 meetings during last season's schedule, they won nine games, tied two and lost only three to Dick Irvin's Habitants, whom no other team was able to beat more than five times.

And there are indications that the Stanley Cup reversal was only temporary.

BREAK EVEN

If the Canadiens lose at home tonight and in Boston Sunday, their margin over the Bruins will be cut to a single point. The Red Wings could tie them by winning tonight's game at Toronto and beating tail-end New York Rangers at Detroit the following night, transforming an incipient Montreal runaway into a tight three-team race.

Both the Bruins and Canadiens have line-up problems. Milt Schmidt's dinky knee gave out during Boston's 4-2 victory over Chicago Black Hawks Thursday night and the veteran centre and captain is likely to be lost to the Bruins for two weeks.

The Canadiens are short centres Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore and defencemen Butch Bouchard and Doug Harvey are doubtful starters, the former with a sore back and the latter with a knee injury.

EXTRA FORWARDS

The Leafs, who earned a 1-1 tie on Detroit's last visit, are in good physical shape with the return to action of Gordie Hannigan. The aggressive little winger will work with Bob Hassard and Eric Nesterenko while Ted Kennedy centres Ron Stewart and Sid Smith and Tod Sloan plays between George Armstrong and Harry Watson.

They also have three extra forwards available for reserve duty for the first time this season. The Leafs move into Chicago Sunday night, following the Rangers, who will try to break their fifth-place deadlock with the Black Hawks.

Johnny Gaudes of St. Boniface, Man., won the Canadian bantamweight boxing title 15 years ago tonight by defeating champion Baby Yack at Toronto in 10 rounds. The Manitoba fighter used a powerful right hook to score his third victory over the Toronto boxer, the first two having been non-title matches.

NHL Rookie Nets 2 In 34 Seconds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver fans had better enjoy the stylish play of rookie Dale Sweany while they can—because he is a likely candidate to move from the Western Hockey League into the big time.

Other Vancouver marksmen were Fred Brown, with a pair, Carl Kaiser, Larry Popein and Bill Wylie. Gord Fashoway and Pierre Brilliant scored for the Royals.

Goalie Red Almas turned in his first shutout of the season as Victoria Cougars moved into fourth place by blanking Seattle Bombers 3-0. Bob Manson scored two with Sam Bettio notching the other.

Saskatoon Quakers lost their 11th straight game, dropping a 5-2 decision to Edmonton Flyers. Enio Sclisizzi notched two with Bud Poile, Len Haley and Jimmy Anderson getting one each for the Flyers. Ray Mason and Aggie Kukulouicz scored for the Quakers.

Heavy Snow Bars Two Major N.Y. Handicaps

NEW YORK (AP)—Two of the three major race tracks now running on the United States east coast cancelled their programs today because of heavy snows, and the third held off a decision until closer to post time.

Laurel, near Washington, postponed the running of the $65,000 Washington International Race which has drawn entries from six countries, and called off its entire card.

Garden State Park at Camden, N.J., didn't try to run Friday and won't try again until Tuesday. Monday normally is a dark day at the track. The $50,000 Trenton Handicap, originally scheduled for today, will be run Tuesday.

Jamaica in New York City ran Friday, but one source said it would cancel today's card if the weather remained nasty.

Three minor U.S. college football games were postponed, and high school and junior college football games were postponed as far south as Richmond, Va.

However, today's major games were scheduled to go, weather or no.

Willis' Marker Gives Bears Tie With Hornets

HERSHEY, Pa. (CP)—A goal by Ralph Willis early in the third period gave Hershey Bears a 2-2 tie with Pittsburgh Hornets in an American Hockey League game Friday night.

Hershey's Skip Teal and Hornet defenceman Frank Mathers matched first-period goals and Willie Marshall shot Pittsburgh into a temporary lead in the second frame. The 10-minute overtime session was scoreless.

Here And There In Sports

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

WHAT'S SO ODD

NEW YORK (CP)—Under the heading, "Odd-Looking Kind of Football," and topping a picture of a Calgary Stampeder end restraining himself from making an illegal downfield block, Life magazine this week publishes a four-page spread on the Canadian game.

The story illustrates differences in United States and Canadian Rules, describes the growing interest of American stars in moving to Canada and quotes quarterback Claude Arnold, the former Oklahoma University ace with Edmonton Eskimos, as describing the Canadian version "a better game to watch than U.S. football."

There are two pictures of Billy Vessels, Edmonton's powerful running back, described as "Canada's prize catch." One shows him in the pulpit of an Edmonton church by invitation of the pastor. In the second, he is being brought down by two Saskatchewan Roughriders in a Western Interprovincial Football Union game.

The article describes Vessels' record as particularly impressive because his open-field runs lack the protection of the downfield blocking he received in his college days at Oklahoma.

Other pictures show some of the attractions that brought big-time players to Edmonton. Lineman Tom Stolhandske is shown with a rifle, "out after pheasant before nightly football practice." Arnold and his family sit on the steps of their home in Edmonton, where he plans to deal in oil leases.

DECOY NOT GAME

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Two hunters who took shots at a stuffed deer hide and then were arrested for "pursuing wild game" were upheld Friday by an appellate court judge.

Judge William L. Vandeventer of the Springfield Court of Appeals reversed a county circuit court decision which fined the men $250 each.

The case stemmed from the efforts of state conservation commission agents to catch game violators. They took the hide of a doe killed by a car, stuffed it with shredded wood, supplied eyes made of reflecting tape and placed it on a lonely road.

That same night, Edwin Gussey and William Hoss shot at the decoy and were promptly arrested. They were convicted under a statute which says in part: "No wild life shall be pursued. . ."

But Judge VanDeventer held the men were not pursuing deer.

"In the first place," he said, "there was no deer. The hide of a doe long since deceased, filled with boards, excelsior and rods and eyes made of reflecting tape, was not a deer within the meaning of the statute."

BLOCK THAT FLY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Frankie Albert, former all-America quarterback for Stanford, said Friday he had been approached on the possibility of becoming managing director of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, a new promotional position.

Albert, a professional football star who recently finished a season with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, said he talked over the matter last week in Los Angeles with George Norgan, president of the Portland club.

"I never played baseball," Albert said. "I'm just an average fan, so when my name was mentioned at first I thought little of it. But the prospect offers a lot of interest to me personally."

The new job was created by the coast league at its meeting in Los Angeles a week ago. It was understood it would pay about $17,500 a year. The director's duties would be to promote baseball in the eight league cities and assist owners in improving present parks and build new ones.

Canadians One-Two At N.Y. Horse Show

Lt.-Col. Charles Baker of Toronto won the international jumping event by taking Star Clift faultlessly around the 11-barrier course in 33 seconds. His team captain, W. R. Ballard of Toronto was second and Pat Smythe of Britain finished third.

Earlier in the day, a United States pair edged out Baker and Ballard by a slim 1½-fault margin in the second phase of the international low-score competition.

Arthur McCashin and Mrs. Carol Durand won the event with four faults to 5½ against the Canadians.

Spoilers In Force As Tigers, Marlies Beaten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The spoilers were out in force in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Friday night.

In Toronto, St. Michael's College foiled a bid by their inter-city rivals, Marlboros, for a share in first place, and moved into eighth spot. The Irish slammed home two goals in an overtime period to defeat Marlboros 6-4.

In Guelph, the Bitlmores put down Hamilton Tigers 7-3 to vault over the idle Galt Black Hawks and Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts into a second-place tie with Marlboros.

QUEBEC IN CELLAR

Barrie Flyers ended a three-game losing streak with an 8-6 victory over Quebec Citadelles in Barrie. The loss sent the Cits into the cellar.

With Marlboros leading 4-3 near the end of the third period, coach Charlie Cerre took a gamble and yanked netminder Gerry McNamara. Les Duff knotted the count with 23 seconds left. Ken Gribbons and Jack Caffery clicked in the extra period to salt it away. Paul Knox fired a pair for the Irish with the other marker going to Dick Duff.

PERFORMS "HAT TRICK"

Guelph tore loose in the last stanza, outscoring Hamilton 3-1, to take the game. Bob Forhan netted two for the Biltmores with the others going to Bob Attersley, Chick Chalmers, Billy Pirie, John Gillis and Ed Shack. Brian Kilrea, Barry Hayton and Bob Mitchell counted for the Tigers.

Barrie goes to Galt and St. Catharines is at Hamilton tonight. Sunday, the Citadelles make their first appearance in Toronto this season when they take on the Marlboros. Galt plays St. Michael's in the second half of the doubleheader.

Name Coulter, Hugo For Trophy

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes announced Friday night that Tex Coulter and Tom Hugo have been nominated by Montreal Big Four players for the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy.

The trophy is awarded the league player considered the most valuable and sportsmanlike. Players of each team nominate their choices.

The award was won last season by tackle Vince Mazza of Hamilton Tiger Cats who has been nominated again this year. The other Hamilton nominee is Lou Kusserow a halfback. Hamilton also nominated Art Darch and Bob Dawson for the rookie-of-the-year.

Weatherman Holding Odds As Bombers Meet Eskimos

By LORNE BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Only "friendly" wagering was reported on the eve of the first game of the Western Interprovincial Football Union finals. The weatherman held the odds.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers were quoted as 6-5 favorites to take the best-of-three series from league-leading Edmonton Eskimos. But that was before the snow arrived.

Wet snow blanketed Clarke Stadium Friday and a total of five inches was expected before game time tonight—8:30 p.m. MST (10:30 p.m. EST).

NO TARPAULIN

"It's going to be as bad for them as for us," he said.

Clarke Stadium has no tarpaulin to cover the playing field and crews were mobilized to clear away the snow.

The weatherman forecast a high of 25 for today. The temperature is expected to be about 20 at game time and about 15 when the contest is over.

Bombers were pre-season favorites for the western title. Loaded with talent, they seemed unable to get untracked and finished third in the regular schedule. The split-T Eskimos surprised quite a few in scoring a long string of wins to clinch first place.

Then the Bombers finished with a burst and Esks lost two straight and two all-star backfielders. Winnipeg won the playoff semi-finals by 37 points over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

TEAM READY

Eskimo coach Darrell Royal sent his team through another workout behind barred gates at Clarke Stadium Friday night.

Don Simon, homebrew back, will start in place of Billy Vessels, the Oklahoma kid who suffered an injured spinal muscle attachment in the final regular game.

Fullback Normie Kwong, who has been having trouble with an ankle, probably will be replaced by Rod Pantages, the Vancouver product who does the Esks' kicking.

The second game is in Winnipeg Wednesday and the third, if necessary, in Edmonton next Saturday.

Woman Heroine Of Sea Collision

BREMERHAVEN, Germany (AP)—A Finnish woman radio operator was the heroine of a North Sea collision which sank a Swedish ore ship Friday night with the loss of seven lives.

Capt. Goesta Boestedt, Swedish master of the 2,258-ton freighter Bjoerkoe which came in to collision with the United States transport Seawind in choppy seas, had high praise for Mirhm Eskola, 28-year-old radio operator, who stuck to her post long after water had rushed into the hold of the ore-laden ship.

Boestedt and Miss Eskola were among 18 rescued by a German pilot boat after the collision about 30 miles north of Bremen.

The captain said in an interview that Miss Eskola sent out an SOS within seconds of the mishap, and much later, when ship was being abandoned, he had to go to the radio room and drag her away from the transmitter.

There were no casualties aboard the American ship, which limped into Bremerhaven for repairs.

Board Bars 'Streetcar' No Plays In Auditorium

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—The Newark board of education Friday night refused to allow Tennessee Williams' play "A Streetcar Named Desire" to be staged in a high school auditorium.

The Pulitzer-Prize-winning play, later made into a movie, was to be put on by a private group.

Board members opposed to the production sai they were not censoring the play, but were against it because it would result in "tying up schools for a purpose for which they are not primarily intended."

Blast Bewilders Birds

MELBOURNE (Reuters)— Pigeon owners here blame an atomic explosion at the Woomera rocket range Oct. 27 for the disappearance of 350 birds racing from Bookaloo, northwest of Adelaide, to Melbourne. The racing pigeons left five days after the explosion. H. Parkinson, secretary of the Victorian Racing Pigeon Union, thinks the "magnetic wave" instinct which he says guides pigeons home was neutralized by radioactive waves.

Als' TV Makes Difference Of 4,000 For Each Game

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes, who play their last home game tomorrow of the Big Four football schedule, have drawn 94,564 customers to the six home appearances to date, but the exact effect of television is difficult to gauge.

One game was not televised. It drew the largest crowd, 19,603.

Manager Lew Hayman told The Canadian Press: "There is a direct relationship between attendance and TV; how great, is hard to put into figures."

Hayman hazarded a rough guess of 3,000 to 4,000 a game.

The non-televised game was that of Oct. 18 when Toronto Argonauts were the visiting team. The game was a postponement and previous commitments wiped out TV. It was an important game for Alouettes and was played on a balmy, summer-like afternoon. Many of the fans doffed their coats and watched the game in shirt sleeves.

OFFICES FLOODED

But the tip-off on relationship of TV came following the announcement that the game would not be televised.

Hayman said Alouette offices were immediately flooded with inquiries about tickets from persons living on the outer edges of the city or a few miles beyond—all within the TV-reception area.

That also posed the question whether new customers for the park were being found. Nobody knows for sure.

Ottawa Rough Riders have usually proved the best drawing attraction. But here another consideration enters because many Ottawans motor to Montreal for the Sunday games.

Windsor Schools Score Victories

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Kennedy Collegiate Clippers and Patterson Collegiate Panthers Friday night scored victories in a pair of Windsor Secondary Schools Association football league sudden-death, semi-final playoff games.

The two teams will meet next Friday in a sudden-death game for the league championship.

The title holders then will clash with the winners of the London High School Footbal League championship in a game at London Nov. 21 for the Western Ontario Secondary Schools Association championship.

25 Aboard Bus Uninjured After Side-Swipe

CALLANDER, Ont. (CP)—A bus with some 25 passengers aboard plunged into a gully and rolled over on its side early today after being involved in a side-swipe with an automobile. There were no serious injuries.

The driver of the car, William N. Peck, 31, of Thornhill, Ont., was brought to hospital here with cuts and bruises. His passenger, R. Sparks of Toronto, escaped injury after being thrown from the car by the impact.

Passengers aboard the bus were trapped after the vehicle flopped over on its right side. They kicked out the windshield to get clear.

They escaped with bruises. Local passengers were picked up by passing cars and taken to their destination while those through bound were picked up by another bus sent from North Bay.

BUS THREE-QUARTERS FULL

Bus driver Leonard Lamb of Toronto said his vehicle left North Bay at midnight on its regularly-scheduled run to Toronto. It was about three-quarters full.

The bus careened down the embankment on the other side of the road. Several women passengers were reported in near-hysterics after the abrupt awakening from naps.

COBOURG GIRL PRAISED

Other passengers praised the coolness of 19-year-old Miss Lorna Kerr of Cobourg. She soothed the other women while men kicked an escape hatch through the windshield of the bus.

While awaiting the second bus, the long-distance passengers lit a fire beside the road to keep themselves warm in the 20-above temperature.

Editors Vs. Readers Question Pops Up At Conference

CHICAGO (AP)—A story about a dog that tangles with an alligator and lives to bark about it can be a bigger eye-stopper for newspaper readers than Syngman Rhee's threats to prolong the Korean war.

The story was the news hit of the day in the Cleveland Plain Dealer June 24, and it was a heavy news day, too.

But the dog story from Miamia, Fla., didn't even get printed in 26 of the largest morning newspapers in the United States.

Walter Lister of the Philadelphia Bulletin presented the results of a survey of news usage and reader interest in discussing "editors vs readers."

Carl E. Lindstrom of the Hartford (Conn.) Times discussed, "editors vs writers" at the same session. He said copy desks have a vital function in giving newspapers expressiveness, sensitiveness and individuality.

Lister's survey was an effort to determine what types of wire-service stories have the highest reader appeal.

A sampling of readers was surveyed in Cleveland to determine which wire stories appearing in that issue of the Plain Dealer attracted the most attention. Then 32 of the other largest U. S. newspapers were studied to determine how they used the stories ranging highest in reader interest in Cleveland.

The survey indicated that 57 per cent of Cleveland persons questioned read the dog story which ran five paragraphs at the bottom of page one, under a small heading.

Only 51.5 per cent of them read the Rhee story which was displayed as the eight-column banner story.

GODFREY ITEM POPULAR

Nine wire stories on the Plain Dealer's first page ranked higher than 25 per cent in reader appeal. Another top story from the point of reader appeal was a one-paragraph item that television actor Arthur Godfrey was setting a date for his return to the air after his hip operation.

Six other newspapers used the Godfrey story on page one, and eight inside. Nineteen others didn't publish it.

Progress Made In Windsor Strike

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A spokesman said "considerable progress" was made during a meeting Friday night called by Mayor Arthur J. Reaume in an attempt to settle the 11-day strike of 750 carpenters.

Work on 100 construction jobs was halted when some 5,000 other building trades workers refused to cross picket lines set up by tht carpenters.

The spokesman for one of two major construction firms associations said both parties made "minor concessions" during the meeting. The representatives of local 494, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (AFL) now will report back to their members before further negotiation meetings are held.

The spokesman declined to give details of concessions made. No date was set for another meeting.

The carpenters, who now get $2 an hour, are seeking an 18-cent hourly wage increase. The construction firms have offered 15 cents.

Missing Link

DAR-ES-SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP) — An unconfirmed report reaching here Friday said an Italian scientific expedition in the Comoro islands, off east Africa, has photographed a live coelacanth, the "missing link" fish dating back millions of years. The fish, believed to be the link getween the ocean-dweller and the land animal, was seen off the east barrier reef at Mayotte, one of the smaller islands in the Comoro group, the report said.

Strict Neutrality Maintained By India's Soldiers In Korea

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Indian officer was enjoying the nighttime calm of his garden when he spotted the glistening eyes of a prowling panther.

The officer turned and walked calmly back into his house, took down a rifle and matter-of-factly shot the intruding beast.

That panther hide now adorns the quonset hut where husky Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya discusses decisions that could spell peace or war in Korea.

United Nations command officers, almost all Americans, quickly learned that Thimayya had his own ideas about his job. The Communists have also learned that "neutrality," in Thimayya's case, does not necessarily mean weakness.

He is a courageous soldier, imaginative thinker and affable diplomat.

LIKES POLO

"Timmy" stands over six feet tall and weighs close to 200 pounds. He likes polo, shooting, ballroom dancing, military history and India's "neutralist" Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, not necessarily in that order.

Nehru picked Thimayya for the truce job. Nenhru and Thimayya are close and Indian officers predict Thimayya will be the next army commander-in-chief.

Thimayya in his communiques and statements maintains strict neutrality. What UN officers at first criticized as "indecisiveness" in Thimayya they now recognize as patience.

He has no personal mannerisms. He enters a meeting, places his sandalwood swagger stick on the desk and sits down. He sits casually and comfortably. He does not finger his clipped military moustache. He does not "fidget."

SOFT SPOKEN

He is correct, soft spoken and inclined to understatement.

The 47-year-old general was the first Indian officer to command a brigade in the Second World War. Twice he has been promoted over many senior officers.

In the post-war Kashmir fighting, Thimayya pushed his tanks up a 13,000-foot pass — higher than tanks had ever been used before—and won a popular victory.

At about the same time, a small outpost under his command became isolated in high mountains. The air force said planes could not operate over the uncharted area. Over a few drinks Thimayya said "I'll go with you" and talked air force officers into the long and dangerous flight.

Much of Thimayya's manner can be traced to his British background. He was graduated from Sandhurst and has spent all his adult life in the army. He is proud of his French-educated wife and talented 17-year-old daughter now in school in India.

Thimayya had hoped his job at Panmunjom would be quiet enough for him to do some work on his memoirs.

"I was thinking this would be the ideal place to do it," he said, then shrugged resignedly. "It is not so."

Wild Grasses Transplanted Harvested For Modern Use

WASHINGTON—Two wild grasses from opposite sides of the world each offer a story of man's ingenuity in finding bounty in improbable places.

One plant, ragged and dry, supports a thriving business on the fringe of the North African desert. The other, whose wiry green sprigs were first found in the wilds of north-eastern Asia, today carpets the White House lawn in Washington.

The first is named "esparto," or Stipa tenacissima in botanical terms. The second is called "Meyer zoysia."

PAPER, ROPE AND POWER

Esparto—also known as Spanish grass, alfa, and halfa—flourishes bravely in rocky, sun-parched soil where almost nothing else will grow. Ragged clusters of reed-like stalks, three to four feet high, cling to stony foothills and arid plateaus from southern Spain across Morroco, Algeria, and Tunisia.

Its leaves, tender when young, grow too tough for cattle to chew. Yet this harsh gray grass ranks as one of the world's most valuable uncultivated crops.

Fine printing papers are made from esparto in England and France—glossy coated sheets for illustrated magazines, crackling parchments for college diplomas. The Spanish navy makes rope of esparto, hawsers so light they will float. Backets, hats, carpets and tough desert sandals have been woven from esparto fiber for 2,000 years.

Today its collection is a tightly controlled, highly organized industry, involving nomadic tribes of grass merchants and fleets of plodding camels. Picked by hand and brought to remote weighing stations on camelback, esparto bales travel from hinterland to coast in huge 20-ton trailer trucks that follow dusty, barely marked tracks. Eventually thousands of tons of the dried grass pile high on wharves for shipment to paper mills as far away as Scotland.

KOREAN DISCOVERY

Meyer zoysia is an even more recent Cinderella of the grass family. It was discovered in Korea 40 years ago by a United States Department of Agriculture plant explorer Frank N. Meyer, who died in the Orient after sending home many valuable plants. No one then realized its potentiality.

Much more recently one particular strain of the grasses Meyer collected was found to be amazingly tough and adaptable grass for American lawns and golf courses. Tested and developed further by plant scientists at the government's experimental farms at Beltsville, Maryland, the grass which bears Meyer's name now is being planted by homeowners in all parts of the country.

Meyer zoysia's assets include an ability to outgrow crabgrass. It thrives in poor soil, resisting diseases and insects that ruin ordinary lawns. Golf greenskeepers call it virtually divot-proof, for it quickly spreads and fills in any chunks taken from its thick, springy turf.

Not that White House gardeners expect many divots in their acres of manicured lawn—but Meyer zoysia now forms a carpet of green beauty around the home of the nation's golf-playing President.

LOW COST HOUSING—Prime Minister St. Laurent has announced the Housing Act will be amended at the first session of Canada's 22nd Parliament in an effort to provide more low-priced houses. The legislation is aimed at making more mortgage money available for new housing, reducing down payments, lengthening maximum terms of mortgages and enabling chartered banks to lend money on insured mortgages.

Revision of Canada Bank Act Will Cause Much Debate

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Political observers say the first session of Canada's 22nd Parliament, opening next Thursday and expected to sit until June, will be one of the busiest in years.

Most controversial issues likely will be discussed when government legislation is before the Commons, but other topics will be raised by the three opposition parties. Subjects range from taxes to pensions, exploitation of natural resources to trade, security leaks to health insurance, and relations with municipalities to foreign affairs.

The Liberal government headed by Prime Minister St. Laurent has disclosed the nature of some legislation, including revision of the Bank Act which is made every 10 years, amendments to the National Housing Act and extension of gold-mining assistance. Other proposed measures will be outlined in the speech from the throne read at the opening of Parliament by Governor-General Massey.

IMPORTANT REVISION

Most of the overhauling of the Bank Act will be handled by a committee but Finance Minister Abbott may find difficulty when he is piloting the revision through the Commons.

During the last session Mr. Abbott expressed desire to quit the finance portfolio. However, he was persuaded to remain in the post at least until the bank amendments were approved.

Mr. St. Laurent has announced the housing act and the Bank Act will be amended in an effort to provide more low-priced houses He said the legislation will make more mortgage money available for new housing, reduce down payments, lengthen the maximum terms of mortgages and enable chartered banks to lend money on insured mortgages.

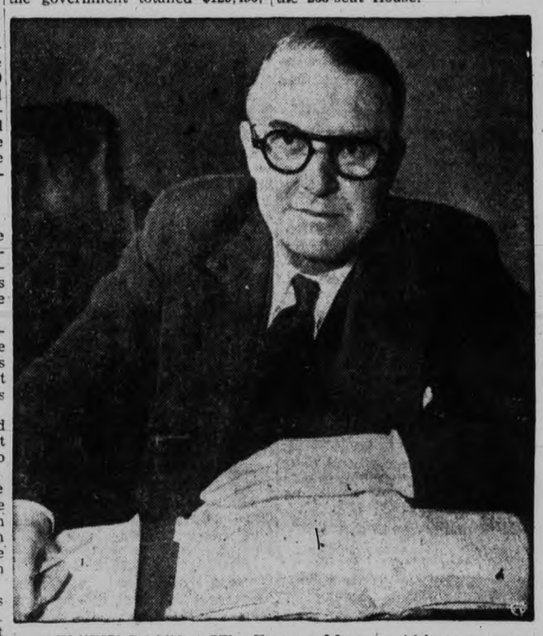
Federal subsidies to gold mines will be extended a year to Dec. 31, 1954, but current rates will not be increased. Producing mines have the choice of selling on the free gold markets of the world and foregoing a subsidy or taking the subsidy and selling at the official market price of $35 (U.S.) an ounce.

The revised Criminal Code, unfinished business when Parliament rose last May, also is expected to be passed. Proposed changes have been considered by Commons and Senate committees. However, a special committee or a royal commission may be established to review the death penalty, whipping, lotteries and criminal insanity.

VARIETY OF TOPICS

Other possible legislation includes:

1. Revision of the Civil Service Insurance Act, including some measure of group insurance for civil servants.



2. Salary increases for the prime minister, cabinet ministers, members and senators and parliamentary assistants.

3. Revision of the old age pension fund. Loans to the fund by the government totalled $129,490,000 at the end of October.

4. Approval of a Japanese-Canadian trade agreement now being negotiated.

5. Changes in the Indian Act, possibly granting the franchise to all Indians in federal elections.

Mr. St. Laurent will have the backing of 169 other Liberals, elected at a general election last August. In Opposition benches will be 50 Progressive Conservatives under Hon. George Drew, 23 CCF supporters led by M. D. Coldwell, and Solon Low's 15-man Social Credit group. There are six independents. One seat is vacant in the 265-seat House.

REVIEW BANK ACT—Finance Minister Abbott reviews the Bank Act which is up for its regular 10-year revision in the first session of the 22nd Parliament which opens Thursday, Nov. 12. Mr. Abbott recently wanted to quit the finance portfolio but was persuaded to remain until the bank amendments are approved.

Outdoor Life Makes Fence Increasingly Popular Item

Here is moral support, if you need it, on two items:

1 Working less on your yard, enjoying it more; and

2. Putting up a fence.

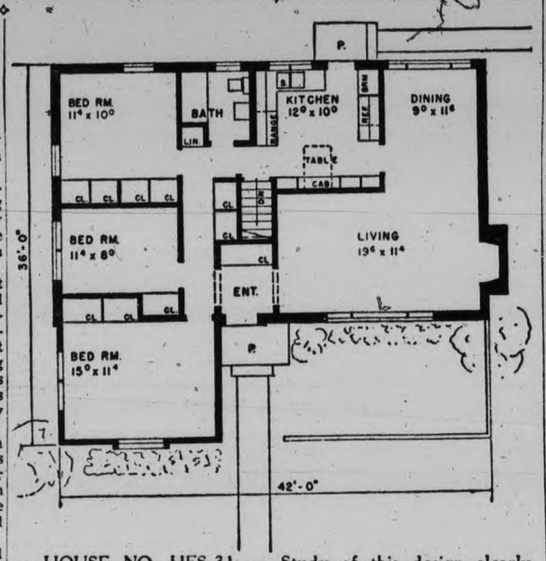
There was a time when Canadian families were yard-proud and fence-shy. A yard was a show-piece to be kept in perennial competition with the neighbor's, and a fence might be considered unneighborly.

Now, even the landscape and garden specialists are pushing the idea that some of the plant life should move over and make room for the family. And architects have long insisted that space is becoming too valuable to pass up the chance for an outdoor living room that can be enjoyed many months of the year. Champions of the modern family's right to peace and privacy in a worrisome world, they have boldly walled off yards with wooden fences, high and handsome.

Good sense makes good manners today, say the better-living experts. Your neighbours may agree, split the cost, and the fence can be placed exactly on the lot lines.

Autumn is a good time to get the fence up. Winter is a good time to build your outdoor furniture, if you are a home craftsman. Come spring, you can start arranging your outdoor living plan, using plants and shrubs as background decorative effects or as "partition" for your family yard activities.

Your local lumber dealer can give you information on fences and outdoor furniture. And your nurseryman can advise you on garden arrangements that have the advantage of simplicity and minimum upkeep.



If you feel that the high, solid fences that wall off the patios of so many of today's custom-built homes are a little too "modern" for your house and neighborhood, there are many other pleasing choices in wood fences, from rustic or informal to elaborate and formal. The picket fence never goes out of style. Materials for many types of fences are carried as stock items by the dealer, and cost depends more upon the amount of "special material" used rather than upon the size or style of the fence.

You can get more out of your yard, and cut down on future yard work, if you pave part of it —laying stones, brick, or wood "rounds" for a pleasing informal effect. Add a wooden shelter over part, or all, of the terrace, and you again multiply the use value of your outdood space.

Outdoor living is pelasant and takes a good deal of strain off today's smaller houses. The more living outdoors, the less housekeeping and the less wear and tear on furniture, walls and floors indoors.

When Ordering Your Building Materials

By MR. FIX

Let's say you are going to build a garage, finish an attic room, build a porch, or some such major construction. And let's say that you've never done this type of work before—you're strictly a novice handyman.

Since you will have to order your own material, you'll need to know how to go about it. After all, you don't want to give your materials dealer the correct impression that you don't know what you're talking about.

If you are building a garage or porch you will begin with the concrete footings for the foundation, or you may be planning to erect the structure over a slab. At any rate, you will order the concrete by the cubic yard.

To determine the number of yards of concrete needed, multiply the length of the area it will occupy by its width and depth in feet, then divide by 27, the number of cubic feet in a cubic yard.

To order foundation blocks you must first translate the square feet of wall surface you plan to build into square inches. In other words, multiply the square feet of wall surface by 144, the number of square inches in a single block. An 8x8x16-inch block is 128 square inches. The answer is the number of blocks needed for the wall.

Next comes the lumber. If you are finishing an attic, one of the first tasks before you is the subflooring. This can be ordered by square feet of the floor area to be covered. Add 20 per cent. for waste. Siding, sheathing and finish flooring are ordered in the same way.

Baseboards and 2x4s for studding and other use in partitions are simply ordered by the lineal foot.

Estimate insulation in square feet, but allow 10 per cent. for waste.

If you plan to use dry wall (plasterboard, plywood fibreboard or hardboard) in an attic, order it by panels. To estimate this, divide the square feet to be covered by the square feet in one dry-wall panel.

Order roofing materials by the "square," which is equal to 100 square feet. To determine the squares in a roof, first find the square feet of roofing and divide by 100.

You'll be using many pounds of nails, varying from 2-penny to probably not larger than 30-penny. It will come in handy to know the length of these nails when it comes to asking your dealer for them.

Two-penny nails are one inch long. Sizes progress by quarter inches up to 10-penny nails, which measure 3 inches. Sizes then jump to 12-penny, 3¼ inches; 16-penny, 3½ inches; 20-penny, 4 inches; and 30-penny, 4¼ inches.

Remember when ordering subflooring that there are four types: plain, tongue-and-grooved, T and G end matched (has tongue-and-groove on ends as well as edges), and plywood. One of the least expensive is the simple tongue-and-groove. Order it in random lengths.

There are also three general types of insulation: reflective, batts and blankets. Before ordering, check on the distance between centres of studs and rafters in your home. Insulation comes in widths from 16 to 24 inches.

New Speed Marks Keep Ink Still Wet In Record Books

So many supersonic airplanes have been flying recently that the ink hasn't had a chance to get dry on the National Aeronautic Association's official ledger. NAA is the organization officially charged with keeping and approving new aviation marks.

Competition is now so keen for the speed record, it is predicted that within 12 months it will be pushed very close to 800 miles per hour.

One of the complicating factors in this aerial track meet is the fact that you've got to do more than just fly a little faster than the next fellow. You've also got to fly right—according to NAA rules.

That's the big rub. It acounts for the fact that the Navy's Douglas D-558-II Skyrocket has flown 1238 mph in level flight but does not hold the official record. The plane doesn't have enough fuel to run the full NAA courses.

As of this writing — before lunch—the official NAA mark is 753.4 mph. (Who knows what it will be after lunch?) It is held by the Navy's F4D Skyray which was flown by Lt. Comdr. James B. Verdin.

Poised on the course here, a few miles east of Los Angeles, ready to smash this mark, is the Air Force's new North American F-100. All it needs is a temperature near 100 degrees. The hotter the weather the faster the plane flies.

The moment the Air Force breaks the mark the Navy is ready to try to recapture it with the Skyray. So are the British. There's a report that the French, too, will make a try soon with a new secret plane. And so it goes.

Under NAA rules you've got to beat the present record by at least one per cent to make a record, which means the F-100 has to fly better than 760.9 mph to establish an official mark.

But there's a gimmick to this. The Skyray mark was set over the official three kilometer course (1.863 miles) which requires two passes each way.

NAA also has a record for a 15-kilometer course requiring one pass each way. The record for this is 707.8 mph, set by an F-86D. Technically, all the F-100 has to do then, is fly 753.5 mph over this course to be heralded as the official world's fastest airplane.

The actual technique of measuring an official speed run was developed by North American Aviation, Inc. A course is surveyed to an accuracy of one foot in 25,000 feet. For the test, to aid the pilot, it is usually marked with colored smoke bombs and large pieces of cloth.

A camera catches the plane as it crosses a pole or marker at the start of the course. At the instant of crossing a timing device called a counter chronograph begins recording. It is accurate to the millionth of a second. When the plane crosses the end marker the timer is stopped.

Both still pictures and super-speed motion pictures record the flights.

At least 14 official NAA observers, usually headed by Charles S. Logsdon, NAA's Contest Division head, are there to see that everything is in order. Planes are in the air to make sure that the aircraft attempting the record never gets above 1640 feet during the test over the shorter course.

On the longer course altitude doesn't make any difference except that the planes have to be in the camera's range and in level flight at least three miles before crossing the starting line.

After the official test the 14 observers have to notarize statements which are bundled up with all pictures, records and data and sent to Washington.

Logsdon and Drs. W. G. Brombacher and Daniel Johnson of the U. S. Bureau of Standards then really go to work, checking and rechecking each photo and time figure. This takes months, incidentally. The Skyray mark isn't even officially past this last hurdle.

Logsdon is preparing for the busiest year of his record-keeping career. He hopes to speed up the checking process. But he's a stickler for accuracy.

CLOCKING SPEED RUN of plane in background, cameraman records end of run on film. Intricate timing device also checks.

India Strives To Settle On 1 Language

WASHINGTON—India's "battle of the languages" is entering its fifth year and may continue for several decades more despite the original hope of the new nation's leaders to make Hindi used universally within 15 years.

In 1947, when India obtained her independence from Great Britain, the sub-continent's 350,000,000 people were speaking 179 different languages and 544 dialects. Since 44 per cent of the populace customarily used Hindi, this was made the official language, but the constitution had perforce to recognize 13 other tongues.

ANDHRA IS 29TH STATE

One of these is Telugu, the language of 21,500,000 citizens of Andhra on the southeast coast. Andhra recently became India's 29th state.

Modern Indian languages belong to four linguistic families—Indo-Aryan, Dravidian, Austric and Sino-Tibetan. About 75 per cent of the people speak an Indo-Aryan tongue, of which Hindi, the most widely used, is spoken by more of the world's inhabitants than any other language except North Chinese and English.

More than 63,000,000 Indians, including many of the nation's outstanding poets and novelists, use Bengali, another Aryan tongue. Gujerati, mother tongue of Mohandas Gandhi; Marathi, Oriya, and Assamese are other leading Aryan languages.

Indo-Aryan languages descend from a race which migrated to India from the Eurasian plains south of the Ural Mountains in the period 600 B.C. to A.D. 1000. Sanskrit, major vehicle of ancient Indian culture, is the basis of all Indo-Aryan tongues.

TELEGU WIDELY SPOKEN

Approximately 20 per cent of India's populace, mainly southern peoples, speak Dravidian languages. Telugu is the native tongue of nearly 30,000,000. Tamil, Kannada and Malayalam are other important Dravidian forms. All stem from the highly advanced race which entred India probably from the Mediterranean and Asia Minor prior to 3500 B.C.

Austric languages are spoken by less than 1.3 per cent of the population—mostly residents of the hill sections of central and northeastern India. Sino-Tibetan is used by less than one per cent, primarily small tribes along the southern slopes of the Himalayas and in North Bengal and Assam.

Almost all North Indian languages reflect the influence of Persian and Arabic. Urdu, a Persianized version of Hindi, is the leading language of neighboring Pakistan.

Although India was a British possession for 150 years, only a small percentage—some 300,000 Indians—can speak or write English. However, it continues to be the language of higher education throughout the nation.

See More Interest In Apprenticing

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian employers are taking greater interest in the training of apprentices for skilled trades and in the employment of disabled and aged workers, the labor department said Friday in a statement.

The statement summarized reports made at the sixth private meeting here of the National Advisory Council on manpower. A statement issued Thursday said Canada's manpower reserves are adequate to meet the needs of the defence program, of resources development projects and expanding civilian production.

The council was told that there is a "widening interest throughout the country in apprenticeship plans and employers were realizing the vital stake which they have in training their own future skilled worker supply."

Employers and dealers, the statement said, are co-operating in a new plan for supplying equipment and teaching aids to provincial apprenticeship training centres.

However, the council was told that there still is a "pressing need" for extension of apprenticeship training for skilled tradesmen.

Pearson Guest Speaker

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson will be the speaker at the annual Grey Cup dinner in Toronto Nov. 27.

Summons 18 Youths After Main St. Brawl

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Court summonses were issued Friday to 18 youths as a sequel to gang fights Monday and Tuesday nights on the main street of nearby Port Dalhousie. They will appear in court Nov. 9.

Constable Jack Jamieson of the Port Dalhousie detachment of Ontario Provincial Police said some of the teen-agers were from St. Catharines and the others from Port Dalhousie.

He said more than 40 youths were involved in the brawls. Some carried clubs. However, police said they had no trouble dispersing them.

KEEP CASH CROP DAY

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A suggestion that the annual Cash Crop Day be abandoned was rejected at a meeting Friday. The suggestion came from W. P. MacDonald, an agricultural representative. The meeting suggested corn husking and corn picking competitions be added next year.

Greenland Becomes Warmer Sheep Grazing New Industry

WASHINGTON—Because their climate is growing steadily warmer, Greenlanders are turning from hunting to sheepherding and fishing for their livelihood.

Twenty thousand sheep now graze on Greenland's south coast. The mixed Eskimo - European Greenlanders today are expert catchers of the cod appearing off the coast in substantial numbers.

New packing houses and freezing plants have been built. Some 10,000 lambs are processed each year, thus far entirely for local consumption.

SEALS GO NORTH

It is a drastic change for the 22,000 Greenlanders, most of whom live in the southwest of the Danish island. Once these people lived entirely by the harpoon and spear, killing walrus, narwhals, whales, polar bears and above all, seals.

The seal kill alone amounted to 50 per person annually. Now the seal herds have followed the cold water northward, and the kill is down to two for each inhabitant.

The raising of livestock is nothing new in Greenland, recently proclaimed an integral part of the Danish kingdom. More than 1,000 years ago, during another warm period, Viking settlers raised cattle and even tilled the ground.

Some farms of 1953 are built on long - abandoned Viking homesteads. Other pastures originally cropped by Viking herds await Greenlanders willing to abandon traditional seaside homes for sites farther inland.

SHEEP CAME IN 1915

Greenland sheep raising dates from 1915, when a flock of 175 was imported from Iceland, and young Greenlanders were trained to care for them. Present flocks are in part descended from these Icelandic ancestors. Excellent tweed is produced from the wool.

More than climate has caused changes on the earth's largest island. Airplanes have taught the world that the shortest route from the Western Hemisphere to Europe and Asia lies over the icy Arctic, and Greenland now is a strategic place. The United States has built a huge air force base at Thule.

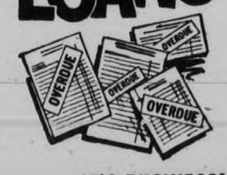
Another drastic change is the introduction of a money economy, strange to a people who once traded only by barter. Now for their fish and mutton and wool Greenlanders receive cash.

Reds Seize 100 In Spy Roundup

BERLIN (AP) — Russian zone secret police said Friday night at least 100 East Germans have been snatched in a new, sweeping "spy" roundup.

The figure was made public by Erich Mielke, deputy chief of the force, who is currently making a round of speeches to whip up public sentiment against "Western agents, spies and saboteurs."

The new culprits are evidently in addition to those the Communists swept into their jails after the June 17 uprisings in a manhunt that stretched into the fall months.



They are all in the employee of the West German Republic and the "American counter intelligence corps," Mielke declared.

The disclosure implied that a wave of trials is in the offing. The Soviet zone has imposed three death sentences in recent weeks on alleged "spies."

Almost A City

BARRIE (CP)—This town needs 26 more persons to become eligible to be a city. The jump of about 1,400 in the town's population during 1953 brought the total to 14,974. Fifteen thousand are needed before an application for city rating can be made.

IT'S NO USE, KITTY—The hungry-looking feline belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hamilton, of Pittsfield, Mass., shows no respect for age and very little humility. Little does it know that the goldfish has reason to be smug, for it has outlived six of the Hamilton's cats. Now a senile 21, the fish is 150 years old by human standards. It once survived being clawed out of the tank by a cat. That alone should make kitty feel humble.

Many Give No Evidence Of Devotion To Christianity

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Recent statistics regarding church membership, which appear in the 1953 Year Book of American Churches, show an encouraging, gain over the previous year. Its 2½ times above the nation's gain in population.

Much thoughtful consideration, and speculative comment, could be based upon these figures. In general, it is my judgment that figures don't lie, but in large measure do indicate trends and actual conditions.

But in a matter of this sort, where personality and quality, the degree of sincerity and devotion, and other factors, enter in, it should be obious that statistics can only be approximate standards of judgment, and may not at all represent actual strength and spiritual realities.

During the course of the years, I have been interested in the comment on this column that comes from Roman Catholic readers. I think it could be said that I am sympathetic toward all forms of sincere faith and religious experience, and that my column is confined to moral and spiritual realities, avoiding as far as possible controversial matters.

But as a Protestant minister and journalist my knowledge, observation and experience are inevitably related chiefly to the Protestant community.

It is this community of Protestant Church members that I had in mind in entitling this column, "Wanted: Better Church Members." Statistics, as I have suggested, cannot indicate good quality, or the lack of it, on the part of the millions of individual "members" who make up the total.

The Protestant Churches could not be the force that they are in the nation if there were not in their fellowship great masses of Christians who take their church membership seriously.

But, beyond these are many who give little evidence of real devotion either to Christ or the church. Many of them are actually nominal church members, whose names are on the church rolls, and who are included in church statistics.

To me it seems strange that anybody would join a church without a real measure of Christian faith or an intention to give the church real support, other than possible financial contribution.

Yet, some time ago a deeply devoted member of a church told me of the numbers received into membership who were seldom

SCHOOL CHAMPIONS

Confederation school won the public school junior soccer championship Thursday defeating Armour Heights school 2-1. Other championships, senior and intermediate, have yet to be decided.

BEFORE THE SNOW

It looked like spring again. Last Easter Mrs. Alex Davis took a lily and planted it in her garden. Friday it was blooming. Today the snow fell. It was winter.

TWO-CAR CRASH

A broadside collision between cars driven by Mrs. Kathleen Blewett, 59, of Strickland St., Lakefield, and Roger Northey, Smith township, resulted in damage of $130 to the two cars. Mrs. Blewett was passing a parking car when her vehicle collided with Northey's who was passing her on Charlotte St. near George.

TURN SOD FOR GRACE CHURCH

Elder Wilbert Harrison will turn the sod to break the ground for a new Grace United church Sunday, at 12.30 p.m. The ceremony has been set to allow members of other city churches time to drive to witness the event on the church grounds at Howden Ave. and Monaghan Rd. The Rev. I. G. Pollock will conduct a short service.

AIR FORCE ON FILM

Life in the RCAF was presented to members of the YMCA Friday Night Club at its meeting Friday in a film shown by FO Keith Roulston, adjutant of the flying instructors' school at Trenton RCAF base. FO Roulston, who addressed the club briefly, was introduced by Bill Prest and thanked by Don Lister. Also present was J. B. Cameron, of the Peterborough Squadron of the RCAF Association.

Almost Full Gear

Many hunters will be returning from excursions into northern woods with tales of valor and woe. There's likely one Peterborough hunter, who will be loathe to discuss the outstanding occurrence of his trip. Fred Pepe, along with Louis Rodrigue and Don Erskine, was staying at Harcourt, 70 miles north of here, and hunting a further 20 miles north. One morning they motored to their hunting site from Harcourt, dressed to the ears in their Nimrod clothes, anxiously looking forward to good gunning. They leaped from their car on their arrival when Fred discovered a very disconcerting fact. True, his upper storeys were well equipped for hunting but his feet were clad only in bedroom slippers . . . and his boots were 20 miles away!

Work On Prison To Start Next Spring

TORONTO—The Ontario legislature's committee on reform institutions Friday reversed its previous stand and approved construction of a $2,500,00 maximum security prison at Millbrook.

Tenders for the work will be called shortly. Construction is due to start next spring and will be completed by 1955, it was announced.

The proposal to erect the building was first made after the riots at the Ontario Reformatory in Guleph last May. It was a pet project of the Hon. John Foote, MLA for Durham and minister of reform institutoins.

CONCERNED ABOUT COST

The committee on reform institutions last May said they were concerned with the high cost of the prison and asked the minister to hold up construction until they had a chance to survey the situation. Committee members on Friday said a study of reform institutions convinced them that the new prison was needed.

Major Foote said the prison would take the tough 10 per cent of prisoners from Guelph, Burwash and other provincial institutions. He hopes that, by moving this rough, incorrigible element, the reform program will have better effect on the remaining inmates of these institutions.

The prison will have full diagnostic facilities and a treatment centre for psychopaths. It will house about 200 prisoners.

OPP Arrest One, Seek Two After Robbery

OTTAWA (CP)—One man was arrested Friday night and two others are being sought by Ontario Provincial Police in connection with the armed robbery of a taxi driver early Friday morning.

Paul Ladouceur, 39-year-old suburban Eastview taxi driver, was forced at gunpoint by three men to drive to Constance Bay, 30 miles west of Ottawa, where he was robbed of $17 and left stranded on a lonely road. The taxi was located later at Pakenham, Ont., 35 miles west of here.

Free-Riding Duck

ROSEMARY, Alta. (CP) — A duck that became lodged in the front fender of an automobile was given a 75-mile ride by a local garageman before its plight was discovered. Apparently unharmed it flew away when released by the motorist.

ONE OF THIRTY Canadian delegates chosen to attend the 25th National Conference of Christians and Jews in Washington, D.C., November 8-11, is public librarian William Graff. The delegates will be received at the White House by President Eisenhower. Peterborough was chosen to send a delegate because of the outstanding Brotherhood program held here last year.

Mother Flees With Baby As Flames Engulf Frame Home At Nassau

Mrs. Jack Collins Awakens To Find Smoke Filling Home; Everything Lost Husband Left Earlier To Go Hunting

Wakened at 7 a.m. today by thick smoke in her bedroom, Mrs. Jean Collins, 20, had only time to pick up her year-old daughter and an armful of clothes before escaping from her burning home. The four-room house, 300 yards north of Nassau in Douro township, burned to the ground. The loss will run into several thousands of dollars. Insurance will only cover about $700 of it.

Cause of the fire is not known. Early today, about 5 a.m. Jack Collins, 21, left with a couple of companions to go deer hunting. They had lit the stove for breakfast but when they left everything was in order.

SMOKE THICK

At 7 a.m. Mrs. Collins awoke: her bedroom was thick with smoke.

"I guess it was the smoke that roused me," she said. "Either that or I was dreaming the house was on fire. Barbara was in bed beside me so I got her and some clothes. That's all I could save.

"The smoke was so thick it was choking me."

In her kimono, Mrs. Collins ran to the home of a neighbor, Mrs. Helmuth Bullerdick; there she phoned her father Harvey Calberry of 678 Hawley St. There is no firefighting apparatus in Douro so the house burned to the ground.

"We couldn't do anything," said Mrs. Bullerdick. "The flames were coming out of the roof beyond the reach of anybody with a water bucket."

Provincial police are trying to reach Mr. Collins who is believed to be deer hunting in the Bancroft region. He is an employee of the Peterborough board of works.

Valuables lost by the Collins family include a new $400 electric stove, a new chesterfield suite, a used but serviceable washing machine, bedding, clothing, and the rest of their possessions accumulated during the two and a half years they've lived there.

The house was an insulated four-room square cottage, built on a cement foundation. Apart from the armful of clothing seized by Mrs. Collins before she ran out of her blazing home, nothing was saved.

Until other arrangements are made Mrs. Collins and the baby will stay at her father's home on Hawley St.

"I know what it's like," remarked Mr. Caldberry later as he watched the still-flaming ruins of his daughter's home. "Her mother and I were burned out the first year we were married."

LINDSAY (ENS) — Building permit figures for Lindsay in 1953 climbed nearer the million mark during October with $31,900 in residential and other permits being issued.

The total for the year now stands at $968,000, and officials are sure the total will climb over the $1,000,000 mark before the end of the year.

During October, three residential permits valued at $15,000 were taken out, with 11 permits worth $16,900 issued for other purposes such as commercial, alterations, etc.

The residential total for the year, including several large housing projects such as the Central Mortgage and Housing building and the Mary Knoll Building Co-operative, now stands at $483,000, while the total permits issued for other purposes is $484,000. The latter classification includes the permits for the new separate school, the new Loblaw store and the new Pentecostal Church tabernacle.

Snowstorm Ends Fire Hazard For Time Being

The emergency order in council that was passed to re-open the fire season dates from Nov. 6 to 30, because 65 fires were set by careless hunters in the Lindsay and Tweed forestry districts, was one day ahead of today's snow storm.

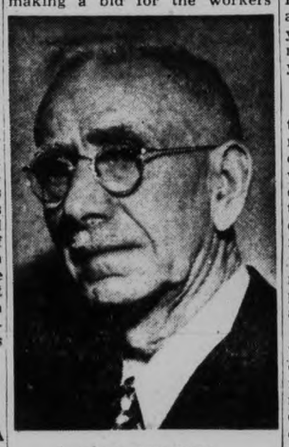
"This change in the weather," said district forester A. B. Wheatley of Lindsay today, "will relieve the fire danger for the time being".

Too wise in the ways of fire conditions in the woods, Mr. Wheatley would not forecast that fire troubles were all over. He said it would be impossible to tell what future conditions might be, and warned that the re-opened season would still be in effect until the end of this month.

Forty-three fires in the hunting section of the north end of Peterborough county were being patrolled on Friday. The snow has snuffed them out and fighters have been recalled, headquarters in Lindsay advise.

65 FIRES

A total of 65 fires were set in Lindsay and Tweed forestry districts since Monday by careless hunters. Two of the largest fires in Peterborough County burned 100 acres in the county east of Kosh Lake and 110 acres between Cordova Mines and the north shore of Crowe lake. The latter was not in an organized fire control area but was fought by the municipality of Belmont. The snow has extinguished it also.



Two Announce Candidacy For Seat On City Council

Two candidates for city council declared themselves today. One is Fred T. Tuggey, veteran alderman, and the other is Jack C. Smith, a newcomer to municipal politics. Altogether, this makes four definite candidates for the five vacancies on city council. There are still only two in the running for mayor.

The other two who are running for city council are William Triggs, president of the United Packinghouse Workers' local at the Quaker Oats Co., and Glenn Price, linotype operator and president of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC).

Messrs. Triggs and Price are receiving the joint support of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC), the central body for the AFL unions in the city, and the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL), the central body for the CIO unions.

Mr. Smith, a 40-year-old armature winder in the induction motors department, CGE, is also making a bid for the workers' votes in Peterborough. He is a union man (holding a membership card in Local 524, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America), but he is definite in his assertion that he isn't sponsored by any labor group, and he doesn't want to be sponsored by any group.

"If a candidate goes into office as the representative of a labor council he is under an obligation to them and cannot speak his mind freely," said Mr. Smith. "He's not a free agent, and that's what I intend to be at all times."

TOP BLOOD DONOR

Mr. Smith is best known as Peterborough's top blood donor. He has given 41 blood donations to the Red Cross Society since December, 1942. (Readers of the Examiner will recall a picture in last Saturday's paper of Mr. Smith and his wife at the blood bank. Together they have made 71 blood donations.)

"I get a bang out of helping people, and I'd like to do it by being a member of city council."

Mr. Smith has two main planks in his electoral platform. One is the reintroduction of the ward system; the other is creating the office of city manager.

"I feel that the working people of Peterborough need representation on the city council," he said, "and as I'm a working man I know our common problems . . . At present there seems to be a lack of understanding between the ordinary citizens of Peterborough and members of the city council. People don't feel able to discuss their problems with the mayor and aldermen, and anybody who does, comes away dissatisfied."

Mr. Smith lives at 292 Lake St. with his wife, the former Genevieve Playford, and two children, Wayne 14, and Susan 9. He was born here and educated at Prince of Wales school. Twenty-six years ago he got his first job in the induction motors department at CGE and he has been there since.

For a number of years he has been on the executive of the Oddfellows' Junior "B" hockey club. He is a Mason, a member of the Peterborough lodge, AF and AM, and is also a member of All Saints' Anglican Church.

Mr. Tuggey, now 72 years of age, has been actively interested in municipal politics for 33 years. He first ran for council in 1920, and was defeated that year. Ten years later he was elected and he remained in office for seven years.

OPPOSED PAY

Mr. Tuggey has the unusual distinction of turning down the remuneration offered to city councillors for two years in a row. It wasn't that he opposed the idea on principle, but he pointed out that the voters didn't have a say on it. Council passed it without referring it to the people.

He turned the money over for relief and this, along with a large provincial grant, amounted to about $1,100.

Mr. Tuggey is proud of the fact that as chairman of the property committee he built up a reserve fund of $16,500. He had it earmarked to buy an addition to the old incinerator, but after he was defeated at the polls the money was spent on other things.

He is also remembered by "old timers" as the councillor who went to Queen's Park to argue that industries paying a fixed assessment weren't paying for relief—then a big item. Later the provincial government amended the assessment act so that those paying fixed assessments also made their contribution to relief.

Besides serving as alderman for seven years, Mr. Tuggey was on the Nicholls Hospital Board for five years.

He has always been known as a careful man with the taxpayer's dollar. And he's still that way.

OUT OF PROPORTION

"Taxes are getting out of all proportion," he said today. "We're getting $3,000,000 in taxes now, and that's big business."

Two other planks in his electoral platform are: One, progress on the Memorial Centre ("I've got a few ideas on that myself"); and two, new industries for the city ("We're growing in population, but not in industry. We may need them to cushion the shock if hard times come again.")

Mr. Tuggey ran ninth last year in a field of 12 aldermanic candidates. He came next to Percy Killingbeck.

He is a building contractor by trade and was the bricklayers' representative on the old Trades and Labor Council. He resigned when "politics and religion were brought into the council."

In the years 1904-05 he built the first two cement block houses in Peterborough. And in 1913, along with other bricklayers, he gave his services to finish the brick and stone work of Dale Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the Church of England.

None of the other unsuccessful candidates last year—with the possible exception of Thomas Cupoli—are going to run.

POSSIBLE CANDIDATES

There are two other possible aldermanic candidates —Stanley McBride, service station operator, and Gordon Powell, store manager. Both have been approached by friends asking them to run.

"Yes, I've been approached by a few friends about standing for council," Mr. McBride confirmed today. "However as far as I'm concerned the whole matter is still under consideration. I'll make up my mind later whether to run or not."

Much the same non-committal answer was given by Mr. Powell.

"A lot of people have been asking me about it," said Mr. Powell. "Right now my decision is hanging in the balance; I don't know whether to run or not."

Last year Mr. Powell ran seventh in a field of 12. He polled 2,486 votes and was next to Rupert E. Knox who has since been appointed to city council to fill out Norman Graham's unexpired term as alderman.

The five aldermen who are up for re-election this year are Douglas Miller, P. J. Anglesey, John Dewart, Stanley Longhurst and Sidney Black. None of them has yet announced publicly whether or not he will run for office again this year.

House Burns Family Of Seven Left Homeless

BETHANY (ENS)—Fire from a defective chimney destroyed the two-storey farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Armstrong, four miles west of here, shortly after 11 p.m. Friday.

Both house and contents were destroyed. Nothing was saved.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong were undressing for bed when they smelled smoke. Mr. Armstrong went into the boys' bedroom and saw flames coming through the ceiling from the attic.

The five children were bundled into blankets and Mr. Armstrong whisked them out of the house, barely in time to escape the rapidly advancing flames. There are four boys in the family—Glenn 5, Allan 4, and Bruce and Barry, 16-month-twins. Also three-year-old May, the only girl.

GIVEN HELP

Until other shelter is found for them they are staying at Mr. and Mrs. Mansel Finney's home in Bethany. The Manvers branch of the Red Cross Society has promised the family some assistance.

The frame six-room house, near Ballyduff in Manvers township, burned to the ground in half an hour. Neighbors who arrived at the scene were unable to save any of the contents of the home but, forming bucket brigades, they kept the sparks from setting a nearby barn on fire.

Included in the loss was "a considerable sum of money" that Mr. Armstrong kept in the bedroom. He was forced to leave it to ensure that his five children got out safely.

It is his second stroke of bad luck recently. The fire came after a three-week illness during which time Mr. Armstrong was off work. He lives on his 100-acre farm in Manvers and works at the General Motors plant in Oshawa.

Cause of the fire is believed to have been defective brickwork in the chimney that permitted the flames to set the attic wall ablaze. Then the fire ate its way down into the boys' bedroom, destroying the house in half an hour's time after it was discovered.

Seed Inspector To Supervise Seed, Grain, Hay Show At '53 Royal Winter Fair

Stuart A. Bowman of Peterborough, district seed inspector for the federal department of agriculture, will be engaged for the next two weeks as superintendent of the seed, grain and hay division of the Royal Winter Fair.

This is the sixth year in a row he has carried out this assignment, incidentally meeting seed and forage men from many countries.

"We expect around 1,400 entries," Mr. Bowman told the Examiner today, "and Monday we should be well under way with the laying out of our department."

The Royal is the final agricultural event of the year, and it combines many other features of interest, although the emphasis is definitely on the farm industry of Canada.

"We have some 200 entries from Great Britain whose cereal and seeds people are taking an increasing interest in the Royal. Five of their leaders in that branch of agriculture came over last year, and were a great help to us. Their entries are in grass and clover seeds and some cereal crops. The forage entries are all from Canada and the United States.

"Several of the American farmers who had forage entries last year flew them in by plane, to make sure their hay got here in top condition. There will likely be other farmer fliers with us next week."

FLOWERS WORTH VISIT

Mr. Bowman's department is upstairs directly over the ground floor show. Apart from all the other components of the Royal, the display of roses and chrysanthemums alone is worth going a long way to see. The yellows a year ago were wonderful. There will be 15,000 roses and 'mums.

The challenge trophy for seed oats bears the name of the donating company, Quaker Oats of Canada.

"I think we will again have seed exhibits from our own part of the province," Mr. Bowman said. "Robert Armstrong, of Cavan, has sent in his entry, and there are bound to be others from specialists like John Cruikshanks and Colin Smith, of Hampton; Wesley Wilson, of Omemee; Garnet Rickard, of Bowmanville; W. J. Boyd, Orono; Mel McHolm, of Hope township. I don't know yet whether Clarence Mann or any of the rest of us local farmers are showing."

The trophies for the seed championships are open to producers of the world. Oats, wheat and barley winners were from Alberta and Saskatchewan; the rye trophy went to England; ear corn to Indiana; soy beans to D. A. Clunis of Ridgetown, Ont.; and the trophy for forage crop seeds, gift of the Canadian Seed Trade Association, was won by Omerille Crepeau, of St. Guillaume, Que. It was presented by Col. J. A. Dewart, of Peterborough, the 1952 president of that association.

Plaque Unveiled To Cartoonist Of Early Politics

TORONTO (CP)—A plaque was unveiled Friday to a journalist who proved politics could be humorous.

The plaque, in historic Mackenzie House here, commemorated John Wilson Bengough, the first Canadian cartoonist to gain international reputation.

For almost 20 years he published Grip, a humorous political weekly. Dr. Fred Landon of London, Ont., chairman of the national historic sites board, said there has probably been nothing like it since in Canada.

A dozen persons, many of whom remembered Bengough at the height of his writing, cartooning and lecturing career around the turn of the century, watched J. E. Bengough of McMaster University, a nephew of the cartoonist, unveil the plaque.

Dr. Lorne Pierce of the William Lyon Mackenzie homestead foundation, said:

"Bengough tried to prove, in a country not much given to humor, that humor was a good thing."

GAVE VIVID IMPRESSIONS

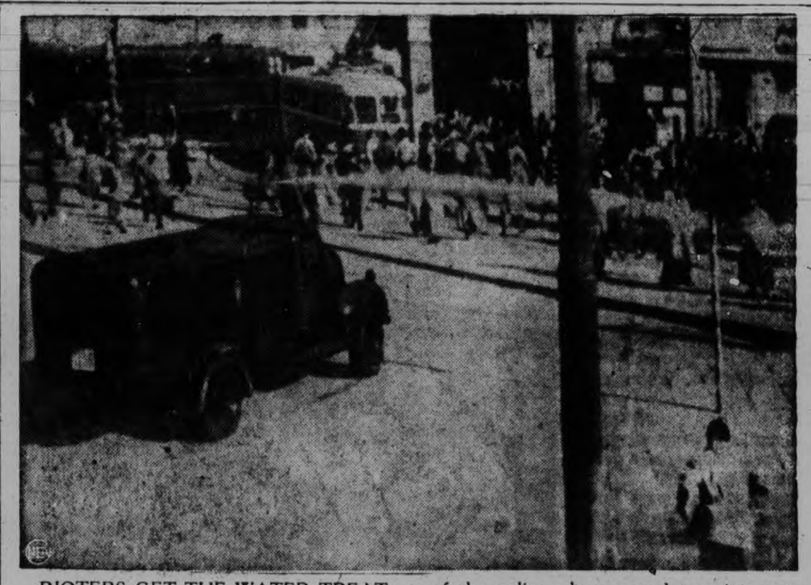
Dr. Landon said thousands who never saw Sir John A. Macdonald and other political figures of the day had "a very real impression" of them from Bengough's cartoons.

Bengough lived from 1851 to 1923, starting his newspaper career with the old Toronto Globe in 1871. Two years later he started Grip and drew at least three cartoons a week for it for 18 years. He carried his comments on politics and life in general in humorous lectures and chalk talks to many parts of Canada and the United States.

He wrote two books of verse and other works.

His plaque is the second in Canada to honor a journalist. The first was placed in the court house at Goderich, for Sir John Willison, editor of the old Toronto News.

Army Open House Bid To Spark Recruiting



OTTAWA (CP)—In a move designed to spur recruiting, the Canadian Army has issued an "open house" invitation to teen-aged youths across the country.

An army announcement said the purpose of the invitation is to give potential recruits a "preview" of life in the army.

Under the scheme, boys contemplating a military career will be taken on conducted tours of army camps and installations. They must be accompanied by a civilian teacher or "guidance counsellor" and will be transported to and from their schools or town in military vehicles.

Acquitted of Rape

BARRIE (CP)—Leslie Judt, 38, of Barrie was acquitted Friday of a charge of raping a 35-year-old local woman. He was arrested and charged Sept. 10. The trial lasted 3½ days.

RIOTERS GET THE WATER TREATMENT—Police use a high pressure water truck to disperse rioting students in Trieste. Stone-throwing Italian students roamed the streets for five hours, taxing all the resources of the police who resorted to using water hoses and tear gas. United States and British troops were called out to help quell the rioting, the first time they have been called on to restore order in Trieste during eight years of occupation.

Production, Price Decreases Reflect Lag In U.S. Sales

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP)—The boom lost a little more of its zoom this week. Confronted with mounting inventories and lagging sales, American manufacturers in some key lines resorted to production cuts and price reductions.

The Detroit motor boom finally started slowing down as the Big Three of the industry—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—applied the brakes.

Business failures were more numerous than at any time since early in 1950.

Scheduled steel output fell to 92.9 per cent of capacity. A week earlier the actual operating rate had been 94.6. Freight carloadings and paperboard output drifted lower.

One major exception was retail trade. Merchants felt, however, that the pickup was long overdue.

MORE RECEPTIVE

Results of Tuesday's elections were expected to encourage a more receptive attitude in Washington toward mildly inflationary credit management policies and high farm supports. Bullish tendencies ruled in the securities marts and grain exchanges.

Auto production in the U.S. for the week was estimated at 117,573 cars and trucks against 123,776 the week before—a dip of five per cent.

The decline marked the beginning of a scheduled 28-per-cent cut in auto output this month.

Big Three officials gave no reason for the change in November production schedules, but complaints that factories are shipping more cars than dealers can sell have recently become louder.

Manufacturers of television sets were also having overproduction troubles. Layoffs of TV assembly-line workers were reported by four companies. Some of the TV makers cited inventory build-ups, slow sales and "abnormally high" production.

Total unemployment in the U.S. was still just a shade above the peacetime low. Nevertheless, the government saw fit to announce new moves to attract defence industries to areas of "chronic unemployment."

But industry leaders insisted that the long-range outlook for business is bright. Some said 1954 would be the second best business year on record.

HIGHER COSTS

Lending support to this view is the latest official government report on the building business. Money spent on new construction in the first 10 months this year soared to a high of more than $29,000,000,000. Some of the increase was attributed to higher costs.

Personal incomes during September were at an annual rate of $286,000,000,000—down $1,000,000,000 from the previous month because of a drop in factory payrolls.

September inventories of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers climbed to a record high of more than $78,500,000,000—a gain of $600,000,000 from August—despite strenuous efforts to reduce them.

These and other indicators, said the Chase National Bank, "are giving some of the classic signals that precede a business let-down. But the signals are not conclusive. So far they seem to point to no more than a moderate readjustment."

Ask Forecaster Queer Questions

HALIFAX (CP)—Among a lot of queer questions given to the weather office here was one from the woman who asked "what's causing the cross on the moon?"

Weather forecaster Reid Dexter was puzzled for a moment, until he saw the light. "It seems kind of silly," he replied, "but are you looking through a screened window?"

She was.

Forecasters are still trying to figure out why another woman called three different days at 2 a.m. to ask what the weather would be like at low tide, and the time of low tide.

Still another woman called an hour before dawn every day for a year to ask what the weather would be like for fishing off the harbor mouth.

"Perhaps," mused Dexter, "she was a paragon of a woman and only woke her hubby if the fishing was good."

"The most distressing calls," he said, "are from women terrified by thunderstorms. We get the same calls every storm: 'When will it stop?' "

Harvard Crimson Strikes Out At Sen. McCarthy

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (CP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy has become the butt of yet another university student attack—this time from Harvard.

Last Saturday students at the University of Toronto burned the Wisconsin Republican in effigy, and an editorial in The Varsity, the Toronto undergraduate daily newspaper, supported the demonstrations against the Communist-hunting senator.

Today's edition of The Harvard Crimson challenges McCarthy to "put up or shut up" on his charge that Harvard students are being exposed to "Communist professors and party philosophy."

A Crimson editorial replied to a charge voiced Thursday by McCarthy, saying it knows of "no faculty member who acted as if he were under Communist domination" and called on McCarthy to "actually name the professor or professors of Harvard who are Communists."

In Washington Friday, McCarthy made public a telegram addressed to Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, Harvard president, asking "what if any action the university intends to take in Furry's case (Prof. Wendell H. Furry, who refused to say whether he had indoctrinated students in Communist philosophy) and what your attitude generally is toward retaining teachers at Harvard who refuse to state whether they are Communists on the ground that the truth would tend to incriminate them."

"Your answer becomes doubly important in view of Mr. Furry's testimony under oath that you had no interest in whether or not he was or had been a Communist," the telegram added.

Harvard has refused formal comment on McCarthy's charge, but Pusey was cheered by 200 students, faculty members and alumni Friday when he spoke at the Harvard Dental School.

The undergraduate publication's editorial said that unless McCarthy can give actual names "he will be admitting to the nation that he has consciously slandered a university which is contributing at least as much to the world's fight against Communism as McCarthy himself."

At Toronto Friday, Paul Bacon, news editor of The Varsity, resigned over what he called the anti-American and Socialist policies of his fellow editors because of their support for the anti-McCarthy demonstration.

Bogart Almost Did Film With Fields

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Humphrey Bogart was telling about how he almost did a picture with W. C. Fields and Mae West.

Sound like odd casting? Well, this was in the days when Bogart was playing two-gun menaces in an assortment of pictures.

"It was back in 1940," he said, "and Warners told me to report to Universal and see about a loan-out.

"I went over there and the producer told me I was needed for a role in a picture starring W. C. Fields and Mae West. He said it was a great part and told me to read the script.

"The script was fantastic. There would be a scene and then a lot of blank pages. It would say, 'routine to be written by Mr. Fields.' Then there would be some scenes and some more blank pages —'routine to be written by Miss West.'

"I was panicky. I didn't know what to do. So I left the script on the desk, raised a window and climbed out. I left the studio and never heard a word about picture afterwards. To this day nobody has mentioned it to me!"

David Sarnoff, board chairman of RCA and NBC, told an interesting story when he announced the firm's development of magnetic tape for TV recording. In September, 1951, his engineers gave a party to celebrate his 45 years in radio.

"I expressed a wish that they would give me three presents to mark the half-century milestone on my 50th anniversary in 1956," he said. "I asked for: 1. A television picture tape recorder; 2. An inexpensive electronic air conditioner without moving parts; and 3. A true amplifier of light."

So far his boys have produced No. 1, and you can bet they're working like beavers on the other two.

Que. Unit Gets Drums Back From France

By JACK MACBETH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Still caked with Normandy mud and hay, the regimental drums of Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal are finally coming home.

The drums, muted for nine years in the dark French cellar that protected them from German shellfire, will reach Quebec City Monday aboard an army transport. With them will be a company of their famed owners—FMRS homeward bound from Germany.

Why the drums were taken into battle, no one seems prepared to say. An army spokesman says he believes it was "by mistake," since no units were supposed to carry their band instruments with them in the invasion.

How they got there is another matter. Major Fernand Dostie said in Quebec they came in on his truck.

Later, he recalled, a safe place had to be found to leave them. This was in the village of Rots, near Caen.

"Trucks and vehicles were getting hit by German shells and we wanted to protect the drums," said Maj. Dostie, then a lieutenant in the unit and now assistant deputy-minister of the Quebec department of youth and social welfare.

"At the time, I was scout platoon commander and when things got rough, the second-in-command arranged to hide the drums in the cellar of the priest's presbytery."

The second-in-command was Lt.-Col. Joseph Paul Sauve, now minister of Maj. Dostie's department. Army headquarters said Capt. Charles Beaudry, Roman Catholic chaplain of the regiment, and the village cure hid the drums under hay in a farm cellar near the presbytery. Capt. Beaudry, now a colonel, has since become director of Roman Catholic chaplain services for the army and is currently visiting Canadian troops in Korea.

"Then," Maj. Dostie continued, "we all forgot about the drums, until three years ago when Mr. Sauve went to Europe and visited the battlefields in Normandy."

"FORGOT THEM"

The major said Col. Sauve located the parish priest at Rots and found the drums. A number of bugles hidden with the drums, however, had disappeared.

He said Col. Sauve tried to have the drums sent home but ran into difficulty. Army headquarters took it from there and now report:

"Last week, Lieut. Claude Turgeon of Montreal, an officer of the FMR company serving with the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion in Hannover, Germany, was sent to recover the drums."

An army statement said the drums were still buried on the farm, adding:

"Still marked with the mud of Normandy, they will be brought back this week by Lieut. Turgeon and his company, to the FMR regimental depot in Montreal."

The FMR company has just completed two years service in Germany with the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade.

Snack Bar Becomes 'Snake' Bar To French

BADEN - SOELLINGEN, West Germany (CP)—Officers with the RCAF's No. 4 fighter wing here think they know why their long bar has a wiggle in it.

The story is that the original plans of the French-designed base, paid for by France out of German reparations as a North Atlantic Treaty Organization contribution, called for a snack bar.

The French took this to mean snake bar and so it went into the blueprints. The German builders followed the instructions literally.

Pleasant Surprise

PORT COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP)—Edwin Wold, 39, long ago gave up hope of ever again seeing the personal property taken by the Germans when he became a prisoner-of-war in the Second World War. Now he has been notified through the RCMP that the articles are being returned, including wristwatch, ring, cigaret lighter and pen-and-pencil set.

SYMBOL OF STRENGTH — Lord Ismay, secretary general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, poses in Paris with the design chosen for the official NATO flag. He explained the symbol as "a four-pointed star representing the compass that keeps us on the right road—the path of peace—and a circle representing the unity that binds the 14 NATO nations." The emblem is white on a navy blue background.

Cholera-Stricken 74 Hogs Slain

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Dr. L. H. Ferris, an agriculture department veterinarian, said Friday night 74 hogs were shot on a farm near here after it was discovered they suffered hog cholera.

The first case of cholera reported in Ontario in more than two months was discovered during a routine monthly check on animals on the farm of Albert Dufor of River Canard, about 10 miles south of here.

Dr. Ferris said Dufor is licenced to feed his pigs garbage collected from municipal dumps in the area. One provision of the special licence, Dr. Ferris said, is that the pigs be inspected once a month for disease.

The disease was discovered during recent tests and all hogs on the farm were ordered destroyed. All other farms in the area have been inspected and found free of the disease, the official said.

Although the farm is under "temporary" quarantine, Dr. Ferris said he was sure the disease was "wiped out with the death of the hogs."

No hogs had been purchased recently by the farm and sales were for immediate slaughter only.

About 1,300 hogs were destroyed in Ontario during a hog cholera outbreak last summer that lasted several months before being brought under control.

Memorial Completed In London By Spring

LONDON (CP) — Work is expected to be completed next spring on a memorial to Sir John Alcock and Lieut. Arthur Brown, the first men to fly the Atlantic.

Sculptor William McMillan, who says he likes to work in cold weather, plans to start intensive work on the memorial about December. The statue will be placed near the restaurant terrance at London airport.

Hope To Keep Beggar-Boys Near Taejon

MONTREAL (CP)—The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada in co-operation with the United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency intends to make the lot of 60 wretched Korean "beggar boys" a happier one.

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, director of USCC, recently returned from Korea, described conditions in the Kognak home for beggar boys, near Taejon, operated by the UNKRA.

Every time it rains, she said, an ugly bog of thick mud surrounds the wooden buildings. There was no furniture in the home and no toilet facilities.

The USCC would like to start a pilot project in the home by supplying the boys, ranging in age from 10 to 18 years, with carpenter sets to build needed furniture.

The children are eager to learn, she said, but there is just no equipment.

PROVIDES SHELTER

Despite its shortcomings the home provided the boys with enough food to keep them alive and they had a roof over their head.

A former UN welfare officer, Nicholas Wyrouboff, founded the home—alarmed by the number of homeless, vermin-ridden children haunting Taejon streets.

Mr. Wyrouboff discovered most of the boys loitered around UN army installations, canteens and market places, selling cigarets and candy they were given. Each gang had a leader, usually in his early 20s.

Many of the youngsters were on the verge of collapse from sickness, hunger, exposure and plain childish misery.

Gang leaders at first were uncooperative when Mr. Wyrouboff told them of his rehabilitation plans, but were persuaded to bring their charges to the Kongnak home.

Wage Hike Ends Strike Chance In Pulp Industry

TORONTO (CP) — A three-per-cent wage increase has averted a strike of 15,000 workers in Ontario's pulp and paper industry.

Nine unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and 11 of the pulp and paper companies Friday night reached an agreement on a new contract after five days of negotiation under pressure of a strike threat.

The agreement provides for the increase, with a minimum raise of five cents an hour, retroactive to last May 1, bringing the basic hourly rate to $1.46 and the average to $1.76. The agreement runs until April 30, 1955.

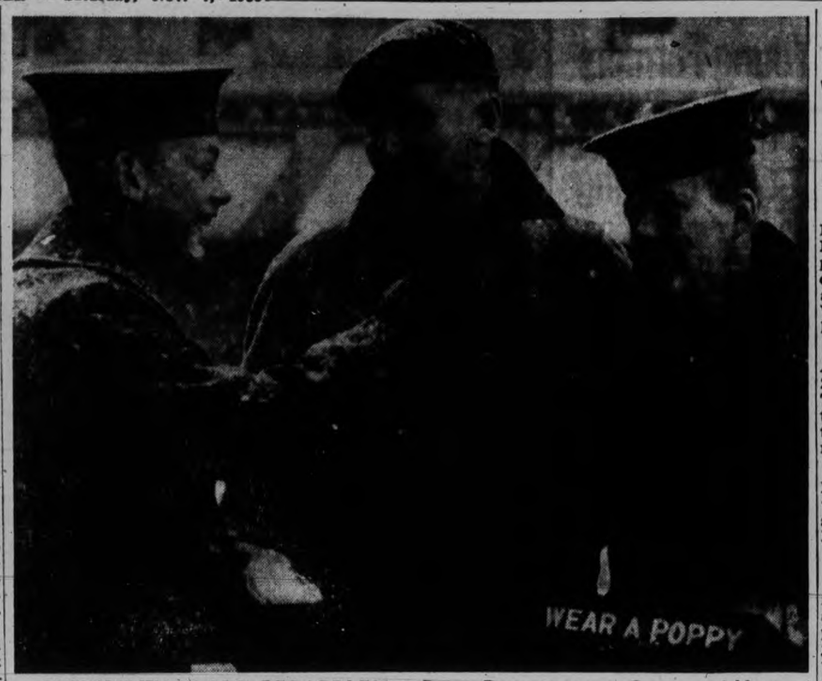
SET PATTERN

Company and union spokesmen described it as a stabilizing influence in the industry. It is expected to set a pattern for settlement of pulp and paper mill disputes in Quebec and western Canada.

A settlement was also reached on fringe items dealing with sick leave pay, overtime for shift workers, and vacation pay.

The unions won overtime pay after the first shift for certain categories of shift workers. Employers agreed to give employees who do not use their five days' sick leave in one year two weeks' sick lave the following year.

Dropped by the unions were demands for a uniform health and welfare plan and for four weeks' vacation after 25 years' service.



J. Arthur d'Aoust, chairman of the 100-member union negotiating committee and Canadian director of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, announced the settlement.

CONCILIATION REPORTS

A conciliation board majority report handed down last month recommended against contract changes. The minority report favored the wage increase and other demands but proposed a compromise on the sick leave question.

Companies involved are Abitibi Power and Paper at Iroquois Falls, Smooth Rock Falls, Fort William, Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sturgeon Falls; Provincial Paper at Port Arthur; Great Lakes Paper at Fort William; Spruce Falls Paper at Kapuskasing; Marathon Paper at Marathon; The KVP Fibre at Thorold; Ontario Minnesota Paper at Kenora and Fort Frances; St. Lawrence Corporation at Nipigon and Red Rock; and Longlac Paper at Terrace Bay.

The unions are the Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphide and Paper Mill Workers; Brotherhood of Paper Machinists Association of Operand Steamfitters Association of Machinists; Association of Operating Engineers; Brotherhood of Carpenters; Association of Longshoremen; Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers.

Only One Coffee House Left In London

By RON EVANS

LONDON (CP) — Canadian visitors to this city, which once boasted 2,000 coffee houses, find the bean-brewing sites are few and far between these days.

And shocking is the discovery that most of the British brew looks and tastes like tar.

Today there's a single shop dedicated to the serving of the beverage in Trafalgar Square. With futuristic furniture and garish abstract murals on the walls, the Coffee House across from Canada house bears little resemblance to the 17th-century establishments where a penny purchased admittance and the smoke-laden air was charged with passionate discussion of politics.

Gone is Garraways, centre of great mercantile transactions, and with it slaughters, meeting place of painters and sculptors, and the house in Tower street where Edward Lloyd first posted lists of ships for his merchant patrons. A simple plaque on the wall of a wine house in St. Michael's alley, near the Royal Exchange, marks the site of the first coffee house, founded in 1652.

GREEK PROMOTER

Daniel Edwards, a merchant, first brought the strange brown berries to London and taught his Greek servant, Pasqua Rosee, to prepare the new drink. Pasqua set up shop "at the signe of his own head" and issued handbills proclaiming the drink:

". . . A simple innocent thing. ". . . Good against sore eyes, the head - ache, dropsy, gout and scurvy . . . to prevent miscarrying in child-bearing women . . . and against the spleen, hypocondriack winds, or the like."

By the turn of the 17th century, more than 1,000 coffee houses were in operation in London and within a few years the figure was doubled. These houses, known as penny universities, became such forums of debate and criticism that in 1675 Charles II had them all closed. He charged they were the seats of "divers false, malicious and scandalous reports to the defamation of His Majesty's government." Such was the outcry over the king's proclamation that within 10 days it was withdrawn.

But the proud history of coffee here offers little consolation for coffee men today. The average Briton consumes only 1½ pounds of coffee a year while his Canadian counterpart knocks off 6½ pounds annually and the average citizen of the United States can be counted on to brew more than 16½ pounds.

The coffee men are inclined to feel that the major reason for the unpopularity of coffee in Britain is the fact that few people here know how to make it properly, an opinion shared by most Canadian visitors. Britons inject boiled milk for one thing.

The major coffee trading companies have set up the coffee information bureau to spread the word on coffee-making. Last year they dispatched a small army of some 2,000 demonstrators to all parts of the country to show housewives and restaurant operators the proper methods of brewing.

Perhaps the most crushing sign of defeat is evident in the bureau itself. Every afternoon at four the men and women busy bringing the light to British non-coffee drinkers pause for a cup of tea.

Benson Sticks To Mission Despite Bitter Opposition

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ezra Taft Benson, United States secretary of agriculture, sees himself as a man with a mission — and he shows every intention of sticking with it in the face of bitter opposition.

That mission is to turn economic and political tides which he believes are carrying U.S. farmers to a position of being completely dominated by and dependent upon the government.

In Benson's view, his cabinet job is not far different from the one he held as one of the 12 apostles of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints before he was appointed by President Eisenhower to the agricultural post.

The goal of the Mormon church as well as the goal of his present job, Benson said, is to help build men of freedom, industry and character.

MADE STAND CLEAR

Before consenting to take the cabinet post, Benson made sure that President Eisenhower understood where Benson stood.

"If I am left free to administer this office to restore the dignity of the individual in agriculture and the spiritual values left us by our founding fathers, I accept," Benson said.

Benson took over and struck out with zeal to accomplish his goal. It was a zeal that had marked his family for years. Benson's great grandfather and namesake was one of the 12 apostles of the church who entered the Salt Lake valley in 1847 with Brigham Young.

The new secretary was well-grounded in agriculture. He had been trained in agricultural colleges, had served the state of Idaho as a farm marketing specialist, had operated his own farm and had been executive secretary of the National Council of Farmer Co-operatives.

AGAINST SUBSIDIES

Benson is against subsidies to farmers. He opposes use of government price supports as a method of assuring farmers a desired income. He dislikes government production and marketing controls. All of these economic instruments are mainstays of present federal farm programs.

But today, nine months later, he finds himself and his ideas under attack. Some farmers and farm leaders as well as several political leaders are demanding his resignation.

But Benson is standing firm. He says he will not quit under fire unless the president asks him to.

Benson's misfortune has been that he has sought broad changes in farm policies at a time when prices and incomes are declining and surpluses piling up.

Wildlife Experts Have Eyes On New Brunswick

FREDERICTON (CP)—Wildlife experts from Alaska to Newfoundland have their eyes on New Brunswick, hoping the key to one of nature's strangest mysteries, the incompatibility of moose and deer, may soon be sighted.

Nowhere in North America have moose ever overcome a "deer dominance" once the latter is established. No one has been able to figure why this is so. Nevertheless, the numerical strength of moose is increasing in New Brunswick despite the presence of deer in far greater numbers.

Bruce Wright of Fredericton, director of the northeastern wildlife station, wildlife management institute, says there's a chance now that moose may reverse their role in natural history. At the same time, it may be possible to learn why moose and deer haven't been able to thrive in the same territories in the past.

ABUNDANCE OF DEER

This year New Brunswick has an abundance of deer. On the basis of previous experience the moose population should be dwindling but the opposite is true. Mr. Wright admits he's baffled by the usual inimical relations between the species and by what now is going on in N.B. forests.

For the first 25 years of this century moose gained ground steadily in the province. About 1925 a peak was reached and this high level continued until 1930, when a gradual decline began. In the same 30-year period deer were comparatively scarce but since have multiplied steadily while moose slipped just as steadily until 1940. During the last 13 years the latter have been on the increase, ignoring the deer dominance.

NO QUARREL

Mr. Wright mentioned another oddity of nature. Herds of moose and caribou can exist in balance side by side. If deer moved into the same region the moose will decrease, although food supplied for all three species may be ample.

Mr. Wright said it might be feasible sometime to re-introduce caribou into New Brunswick. These animals were last known here in 1927.

He doubts there can be a wide-open season on moose next year but hopes a "harvestable surplus" beyond which hunters will not be permitted to go, will become available annually. A government decision on this point is expected after a survey of the moose population is completed. The last open season on moose in New Brunswick was in 1936, when about 200 were killed.

Penicillin For Cold, Flu Called Nonsense, Dangerous

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Getting a quick shot of penicillin when you have a cold, 'flu or certain other infections is being called medical nonsense, and even dangerous.

The antibiotic usually does no good, the objecting medical experts say. It is costly and risks making you allergic or sensitized to the drug so it cannot be used later for something really serious.

The common cold, the season is nearing, and 'flu are caused by viruses. Antibiotics can knock out a wide variety of germs, but virus experts say they show little if any effect against true viruses.

Many doctors have been giving penicillin or other antibiotics as a routine part of treatment of respiratory infections. Their reason looked good—to prevent possibly serious secondary infections or complications.

THEORY CHALLENGED

But this theory is challenged by two recent medical reports.

One challenge comes from Dr. Perrin H. Long, state university of New York college of medicine, writing in the New York state medical journal.

"Probably the commonest and most serious abuse of antibiotics by physicians today" is using them as preventives or cures for mild respiratory infections, he says.

These drugs do help greatly against various types of bacterial infections. But they are effective against only a few kinds of viral or rickettsial infections—such as non-typical or virus pneumonia, parrot fever and Q fever.

They are nonetheless used against real or suspected virus conditions, often on the assumption of protecting against secondary illnesses, Dr. Long says, adding:

MAY BE DANGEROUS

"By and large, this is not only sheer nonsense from the medical point of view, but also may even be dangerous because of the known risk of sensitizing patients to an antibiotic by frequent administration."

Dr. Long is supported by a study by Capt. Philip N. Jones, Maj. Roy S. Bigham, Jr., and Lieut. Phil R. Manning of the U.S. Air Force.

Of 150 men with non-bacterial influenza - like illness, none developed secondary infections when treated with either aspirin, or the anti-biotics terramycin or erythromycin, they say in the journal of the American Medical Association. Aspirin was as good or better than the antibiotics in reducing fever.

Eisenhower's Committees May Leave Problems Great As They Found Them

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — In less than a year President Eisenhower has set up a dozen or so committees, commissions, advisory groups, boards and panels to help his administration fix policies and programs.

Outstanding men have been appointed to study such national and international problems as agriculture and foreign trade and then suggest what to do for the best interest of the country.

That's the theory, but Eisenhower may be in as much of a dilemma after one of these groups finishes its task as before. That's because of a couple questions that were there before he called in these advisers:

1. Can any man who considered a problem for years and probably formed pretty positive opinions now look at it with an open mind just because President Eisenhower asked him to?

2. And what is the "best interest of the United States?" Granting that all members of a commission are sincere, there can still be a wide difference among them on what's good for the country.

BOARD'S DILEMMA

Such a difference appears in one of the most important advisory groups, the 17-man commission on foreign economic policy, long before it has finished its job.

Its main job is studying the reciprocal trade action, which means whether tariffs should be higher or lower.

Chairman Clarence B. Randall, chairman of the board of the Inland Steel Co., has been quoted as telling his commission colleagues he was attempting to preserve an open mind and as urging them to do the same.

In a book, Freedom's Faith, published Oct. 27, Randall said the traditionally high tariff policy of the United States "must steadily yield to the imperative new necessity for broadened world trade."

The word "bias" was flung at him almost instantly by a committee representing a number of industries, trade associations and farm and labor groups which want higher tariffs.

This organization asked Eisenhower to fire Randall from the trade commission. About the same time, another member of Randall's group, representative Richard M. Simpson of Pennsylvania, gave his views.

VIEWS DIFFER

Simpson said: "Certainly we are not going to enact any proposal which will admit a flood of imports. On the other hand, in my opinion, we are going to give the protection to our own hard-pressed domestic industries."

Ten of the 17 men on Randall's commission are from Congress, five Senators and five House members. Some want higher tariffs, some lower.

Eisenhower will probably get two reports from the Randall commission, one urging tougher tariffs, the other wanting tariffs cut.

Britain Adds 300,000 Units In Effort To Solve Shortage

By RANALD MACLURKIN

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain, building new homes at a rate of 300,000 a year, is making a bold effort to solve the housing problem.

The sight of tidy suburban homes and blocks of red-brick apartment houses rising throughout the country has brought new hope to many young married couples, thousands of whom are still forced to live with in-laws or rent furnished apartments at rents higher than they can afford.

At the end of the war, Britain was faced with the need for nearly 2,000,000 new houses. Bombs had destroyed 220,000 houses and rendered another 250,000 permanently uninhabitable. Between 1939 and 1945, building practically ceased.

The Labor government which came into power in 1945 imposed rigid controls on building because of shortages of material. It allowed private builders to put up only a small number of houses. The rest of the program was handed over to local government authorities with instructions to build houses for renting.

END CONTROLS

The Conservatives wiped out many of the controls. They allowed private building firms to build as many houses for private sale as they could. The stipulation, however, was that the size of the houses should not exceed 1,000 square feet. A house of this size usually has five rooms.

The cost of having such a home built, including the price of the one-fifth or one-sixth of an acre of land on which it stands, is about £2,500 ($7,000).

Most Britons having a new house built or buying an older house get the necessary capital through a "building society." The down payment is 10 to 20 per cent of the value of the house. The society lends the rest on a 20-year mortgage. During this period, the house owner pays the society 12 shillings 10 pence a month for every £10 he has borrowed. This covers both interest and capital repayment.

Last year, 1,646,713 families were buying their houses through building societies, according to the Building Societies Association.

Though private builders now have a free hand, local authorities have not relaxed their efforts in building what are popularly known as "council houses." These state-built homes are erected by city, town and county councils helped by subsidies from the national government which grants cheap, 60-year loans.

The houses can be bought by their tenants, but most are rented from nine shillings three pence a week to 45 shillings.

U.S. Seeks Aid To Support Atrocity Charge

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) United States representatives were reported sounding out colleagues here today to find how many would support a resolution calling for United Nations action on American charges of Red atrocities in Korea.

The 60-nation General Assembly is slated to meet next week on the atrocity issue, but merely to place the item on the agenda in accordance with last week's recommendations by the steerjngcommittee. Any resolution would have to be entered when the item comes up for assembly debate, probably next month.

The Americans are reported mulling over two main resolution possibilities:

1. A call for the assembly to condemn the atrocities and denounce the perpetrators.

2. A request for an impartial investigation of the atrocity charges with a view to appropriate UN action after such a probe is held.

SOUNDING OUT ASIANS

The Americans are said to be particularly anxious to find out how far the Asian-Arab and other neutral states would go in supporting their stand.

Some neutrals have flatly told the Americans that they don't feel the U. S. army report on the atrocities is sufficient evidence to warrant UN action.

British delegates are reported working closely with the Americans in framing the resolution. Informants said they are urging the U. S. not to take too strong a stand for fear it would do their cause more harm than good.

Housing Costs Seen Dropping

KITCHENER (CP) — Proposed new housing legislation can mean lower building costs, the central committee of the National House Builders Association has been told.

Paul Hellyer, Liberal member of Parliament for Toronto-Davenport, said Friday night that the lower costs could come from the almost year-round operations possible through continuous and adequate financing.

Builders have a "tremendous responsibility to get costs down, Mr. Hellyer, president of a building firm, said in speaking to about 70 at a dinner meeting. Lower costs would bring an increased market.

He said that under the legislation announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent Oct. 1, the government is considering small down-payments for lower-priced homes and a longer period for mortgage repayment.

The committee adopted a resolution urging that the element of free enterprise be maintained in the administration of mortgage funds.

Cy Gerver Coach Of Lindsay Jrs.

Grant Baldwin was nominated as team manager for the season, and Don Mooney as club manager. The meeting also considered the possibility of the group being formed of Peterborough, Port Perry, Collingwood, Midland and Lindsay and decided that unless some special schedule arrangements are made, the entries from Midland and Collingwood would not be wanted. The group meeting, under OHA area governor Frank Buckland, of Peterborough is scheduled for Sunday afternoon in Lindsay.

Germany Calculated Risk New Canadian Attitude

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Eight years after the collapse of Hitler's empire, West Germany has made a political and economic recovery which observers call a "miracle."

What is Canada's attitude now toward Germany after the billions of dollars and thousands of lives spent in helping to conquer her and in view of Germany's economic revival and probable imminent rearmament?

This is how they review Canada's views on the situation:

In the cold war, Germany occupies a strategic position athwart the European continent. It is far better that she be on the West's side than on Russia's or a poverty-ridden vacuum, easy pickings for Communist infiltration.

One official put it this way:

"We have to run two risks. One is that Germany's economic recovery might be turned into another war machine if the government fell into the hands of undemocratic forces, right or left. The other is that if Germany were allowed to languish without Western support she might fall into the Russian camp, either by default or design. In the present world situation, we must obviously support Germany."

There are nationalistic forces in West Germany waiting for an opportunity to wreck Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's democratic government.

Such forces are present in most countries, but the danger can be considered greater in Germany because of past experience. This danger would be still greater if West Germany had no links with the West.

Another official said:

"Democracy is in the ascendancy now. If we can really strengthen the bonds between democratic forces in Germany and Western democracies, there is less likelihood of democracy in Germany being overturned or of Germany going off the rails again."

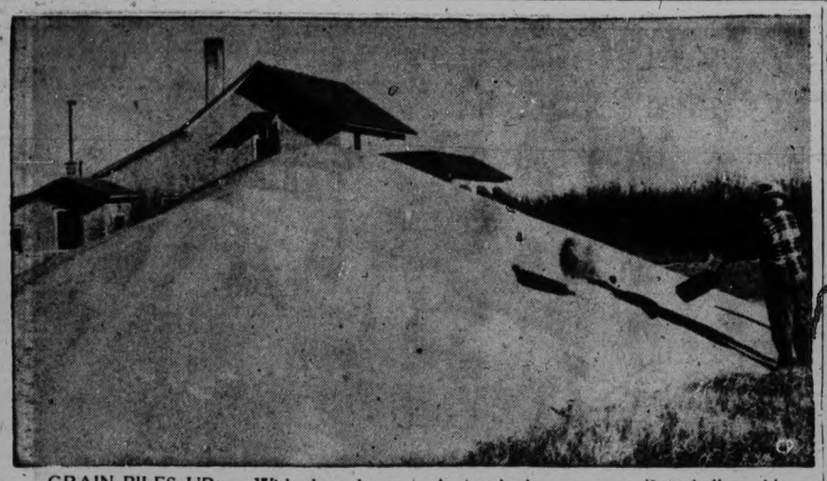
Canada is playing a small part to this end. It has taken 101,492 immigrants of German origin since 1946 and the government is studying proposals to increase the flow. The 27th Infantry Brigade and two RCAF wings in Germany are a physical assurance that Canada supports Western European, including German, defence against the Communist threat.

RATIFIED PLAN

The Bonn government has ratified the European Defence Community. It isn't in force because similar action has not yet been taken by France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. The Allies have said, and Canada supported the view, that EDC must be working before Germany is freed from her occupation status. The Soviet threat would appear to make German rearmament inevitable and the United States is reported pressing for EDC ratification by all countries concerned.

MILITARY RISK

EDC would allow Germany to create 12 active divisions to form part of a supra-national European Army. EDC is designed to prevent a resurgence of German militarism but there is the risk that with these 12 divisions Germany might become the core of a new military machine under control of the old officer corps. And the Ruhr, now going full blast again, could be quickly converted almost entirely to tank, gun, aircraft and ammunition production if the government fell into the wrong hands.



Thus Adenauer's election victory last month was hailed by the West. The Canadian government said the victory endorsed the chancellor's westward-looking policies and greatly strengthened parliamentary democracy.

But the risks in Germany remain large, officials say. However, they would be greater still if Germany were neither democratic nor on the West's side.

GRAIN PILES UP — With three large crops in a row, totalling 3,500,000,000 bushels of grain in 26 months, storage is an acute problem in Western Canada. Farmer Andy Anderson, near Drumheller, Alta., shovels some of the grain, piled on his farm, into a new granary he is building. An estimated 3,500 to 4,500 bushels of No. 2 grade wheat is in this pile.

Base Metals Up Strongly, Oils Unchanged

By BOB JOHNSTONE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto's stock market closed this week with prices mixed and trading more active in the first week of November than in any week in October.

Base metals were the strongest issues, and golds showed some strength. Industrials and uraniums were lower and western oils showed little change.

Base-metal issue prices began their upward climb at the first of the week and kept steadily higher until Thursday. Friday showed a slight drop, but not enough to alarm observers, who attributed most, or maybe even all, of it to profit-taking.

INCREASING COMPETITION

Industrials were down as one of the weakest categories was manufactures. A recent Dominion bureau of statistics report showed inventories eight per cent higher than at the same time last year, and many investors feel manufacturers are entering a period of more highly competitive business.

Bell gained a dollar early in the week as its rights offering was removed from trading. Liquors were also higher.

Uraniums took the biggest losses on this week's exchange trading. New Bidlamaque, New Mylamaque, New Norzone, New Delhi, Parbec and several others were down after riding a wave of enthusiasm the previous week.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

Golds were a little higher, although the end of the strike that is tying up northern Ontario production is not yet in sight.

Several companies, listed as gold mines or holding companies, have recently branched into other fields, usually uranium and base metals. Often it is activity in these other fields that is causing price changes in issues still on the golds board.

Western oils were quiet. A sudden flurry of activity toward the close of Friday's session raised the volume a little but the oil market generally is marking time, awaiting the decision of the Alberta government on natural-gas export. Peace River, a natural-gas company, made a gain of about 20 cents, but the excitement this caused soon subsided.

INDEX CHANGES

On the Toronto stock exchange, the Friday-to-Friday index changes show industrials down .48 at 70.52, base metals up .87 at 148.10 and western oils down .06 at 90.98.

In New York The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 20 cents at $108.40 as industrials were down, railroads up and utilities even.

In Montreal, banks were up .34 at 35.02, utilities were down .40 at 94.04, industrials down .60 at 182.20, combined down .60 at 152.90 papers up 5.73 at 740.08 and golds down .07 at 52.15.

Booming Trucking Industry Holds First National Meet

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's mushrooming truck industry, now doing a $180,000,000-a-year business, will hold its first national convention here Monday.

About 7,000 "for hire" trucking firms will be represented through provincial organization spokesmen at the meeting of the Canadian Automotive Transportation Association.

One of the main issues before the three-day convention will be the future position of their industry under government regulation. At present, only the provinces exercise regulation over highway traffic, but the federal government may be moving into part of that field shortly.

FEDERAL CONTROL

The possible federal action would be in the area of interprovincial and international trucking. A case being heard before the Privy Council in London this week will define finally who possesses jurisdiction in that field.

The truckers have fought federal control, but more recently have indicated they are becoming resigned to the idea of central jurisdiction.

However, the industry is expected to clarify its approach to the problem in the light of an expected pro-federal verdict from the Privy Council.

The convention of between 200 and 300 representatives also will be looking for the views of all federal political party leaders t wards the trucking industry during its discussions.

Defence, Trade 2 Main Topics For U.S. President's Visit

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The talk is likely to range over a wide field in discussisons between President St. Laurent and his cabinet during the presidential visit to Ottawa next Friday and Saturday. But the main items are expected to be defence and trade relations.

Mr. St. Laurent has said only that "affairs of the world" will be discussed when the United States president confers with the cabinet Saturday after addressing a joint session of the Senate and House of Commons.

The topic most common to both countries at this time is continental defence. But Canada considers trade relations just as important.

The president and prime minister will also have several opportunities to chat informally during the visit's round of dinners, luncheons and receptions at Rideau Hall, official residence of the governor-general, at Mr. St. Laurent's residence and the United States embassy.

RETURN VISIT

The president's trip is billed as a "courtesy visit" and officials here say it will be largely just that. It will return the prime minister's visit to Washington last May.

Outside of any other good it may accomplish, the president's visit will provide a stimulus for better relations between Canada and the U. S. The visit could be said to be aimed more at Americans, making them more conscious of Canada's growth in recent years and of the close ties between the two countries, than at Canadians. Some 70 American newspaper men will accompany the president.

Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower will arrive at Union Station at 11.40 a. m. EST Friday to be greeted by Governor-General Vincent Massey and Mr. St. Laurent and his cabinet.

The president will review a guard of honor in confederation square outside the station, place a wreath on the National War Memorial—it will already be banked high with wreaths and flowers after the Remembrance Day ceremony two days before—and then leave for Rideau Hall, where Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower will stay as Mr. Massey's guests.

TV IN PARLIAMENT

That afternoon the president and his wife will each plant a maple tree in the Rideau Hall grounds and in the evening the governor-general will give a dinner and reception.

At 10.45 a. m. Saturday, the president will review another guard of honor in front of the Peace Tower before entering the Parliament buildings to address senators and Commons members in the Commons chamber. Canada's 22nd Parliament starts its first session Thursday.

For the first time, television cameras will be used inside the Parliament buildings for the president's speech. The CBC will carry the live broadcast on its Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto television stations and it will be fed into U. S. networks. Radio will also carry the president's speech.

The president will confer with the cabinet at 11.45 a.m. and he and Mrs. Eisenhower will lunch with Mr. and Mrs. St. Laurent at the prime minister's residence.

Saturday evening, the psesident will give a dinner at the U. S. embassy in honor of the governor-general and prime minister, followed by a small reception. H will leave from Union Station at 11.50 p.m. to return directly to Washington.

TRADE BARRIERS

The RCMP is to have full responsibility for security during the visit. Though U. S. secret service men will accompany the president as usual, three uniformed Mounties headed by a superintendent will join the president's special train at the border and form his bodyguard until he leaves the country.

Getting back to the discussions, trade relations loom large. Canadian business in recent years has become concerned about the apparent growth of protectionism in the U. S.

The Canadian government has protested U. S. restrictions on imports of Canadian dairy products. American interests also have asked the U. S. tariff commission to consider increasing tariffs or reducing imports of oats, fish, lead and zinc, all products which Canada exports.

As recently as Thursday night, Finance Minister Abbott, in a speech at New York urged bolder and speedier steps to expand world trade and consequently improve "our whole defensive position." He said Canada is "genuinely concerned" with the "thin and rather brittle" economic base on which the North Atlantic Alliance countries have founded their political and military co-operation.

Challenging Indictment On Education In Professor's New Book

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A key Canadian industry with an annual budget of approximately $400,000,000 which absorbs the entire time of 20 per cent of the population has come in for a challenging indictment in Dr. Hilda Neatby's "So Little For the Mind" (Clarke Irwin).

Education, which supplies all other industries, including those concerned with the government and defence of the country, is examined from the point of view of the policies of educational administrators and their practices in teacher-training, high and elementary English-speaking schools in Canada.

Dr. Neatby, professor of history at the University of Saskatchewan and only woman member of the royal commission on national development in the arts, letters and sciences, writes as an "amateur and traditionalist," and quotes widely from Canadian sources.

BROADLY CRITICAL

Progressive education, largely the result of the influence of the American education philosopher, Dr. John Dewey, has failed to meet the needs of our "brutal, dangerous but stimulating age," Dr. Neatby maintains. She charges that progressive education is anti-intellectual, anti-cultural and amoral.

"The board 'graduates' of elementary and high schools. . . do not care to learn. . . they lack an object in life, they are unaware of the joy of achievement." Dr. Neatby traces the origin of their boredom to the pupil-centred school and to teaching inevitably directed at the mediocre members of the class.

The effect of such a situation on teachers is to render them "desperate by the fact that, although the latitude of courses of study may make an intellectual approach possible, the heavy, the almost unendurable demands on their time for extra-curricular operations make it absolutely impossible for them to attend to routine business, much less carry on their own intellectual development."

Western civilization faces the danger of "expressing democratic equality in terms of a dull level of mediocrity" and shows too great concern for material well being. The great blessings of our Western age may be accompanied by great dangers.

The answer to the problem, says Dr. Neatby, is a renewal of faith to give direction and discipline to life and a re-definition of democracy. Canadians must formulate "a clear and precise statement of Canadian philosophy of education . . . based on the essential values of Western civilization."

INDICTS EDUCATION—Dr. Hilda Neatby, professor of history at the University of Saskatchewan and the only woman member of the Massey Royal Commission on Arts and Letters is the author of the new book, "So Little For the Mind," called an "indictment of Canadian education." Born in Sutton, Surrey, Eng., Feb. 19, 1904, Dr. Neatby is prominent both as a writer and educationist.—(CP Photo).

German Industrialists Interested In Ontario

LONDON (CP)—West German industrialists are keely interested in establishing branches in Canada in general and Ontario in particular, William K. Warrender, Ontario planning and development minister, said Friday.

Warrender said there was nothing specific arranged. His visit, he said, was prompted by the large West German delegation to the Canadian International Trade Fair at Toronto and by Ontario's ability to absorb new industries by virtue of its available raw materials, labor supply and handy potential markets.

He said German industrialists told him they are keenly interested in Ontario as an expansion point after their own recovery has advanced sufficiently.

Frost Ends Season

HARROW (CP)—A heavy frost Oct. 8 ended the growing season in Essex county which this year was longer than average, officials of the Dominion experimental station here announced Friday.

Loose Suit Softens Lines

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK (NEA) Fashion does not adhere, fortunately, to a rigid set of rules. And because it does not, a suit may be nipped-in at the waist or have a jacket cut like a man's shirt. And still be a suit either way.

While the nipped-in waist is the cut most becoming to a majority of women, there are plenty of tall girls who appreciate the height-chopping that is accomplished by the suit with loose jacket. And since fashion is for everybody, we have the boxy suit and the loosely cut suit for those women who want to soften lean lines.

Interior Decorator Speaker

There are many charmingly decorated homes in Peterborough. But, if there should now seem to be an excessive amount of fluttering at windows carting away of furniture by the upholsterer's van, and carpets being rolled up and laid aside, it is most likely because interior decorator Freda James of Toronto was speaker at the Women's Art Association studio meeting Friday.

Every woman is interested in beautifying her home, and it is also a well known fact that she is never so completely satisfied with it that she is not open to a new idea. There were more than the usual number of members at the meeting and there were 12 guests.

Miss James offered no set rules for decorating, color combinations or types of furniture. She insists that she cannot advise on decorating a room without seeing it, and even when she was displaying drapery material to the studio audience, she would not answer specifically their questions as to what color it should go with.

"Create the room in the spirit of the house—just as you chose a hat to suit your face and a dress to suit your figure," she said. "But, underdress rather than overdress." Some examples of overdressing she cited would be too many large chairs in a room. "Of course, the number of chairs would depend on the number in the family, but they could be smaller. Large pieces do not necessarily create comfort."

"Scale is one of the most important words in decorating, and it applies to everything in the house," said Miss James. "Too many lamps, tables or pictures in a room is the same as too much mustard or salt." She also warned against using pieces not suitable to the room because of sentiment. "We are living in a wonderful era—let's take advantage of it and combine the old and the new."

"The test of a good house is how it works." The decorator said the first question to be settled is "How does the family want to live." Begin with the walls and paper or paint as to preference, letting the color be governed first by the size of the room, then by preference, but never choose a color or a type of furnishing because it is the fad, she warned.

One must choose from what is available so that fads are unavoidable to a certain extent, Miss James remarked. However, this was not evident in the wide variety of materials and combinations which she presented at close of her short talk.

Included in the display were Canadian hand-woven blinds for use with the very popular sheer curtains, fitted to roll up similarly to venetian shades, and Canadian hand-tufted rugs which are created for the room—never two the same. Miss James advised that there has been quite a return to the exposed floor and scatter rugs. She displayed also some new samples of rugs which are fairly inexpensive, featuring polka dots or very small designs widely placed. In the Oriental class but plainer in pattern was a Morrocan rug sample.

She had something in the collection from almost every country, English hand prints, American chintz, Swiss net, Danish wallpaper print, Scottish weaves, etc. She mentioned that she is using a great deal of plain Irish linen and showed also an all-over hibiscus pattern on Swiss linen.

Those she called "documentary designs" are taken from museum designs and put in modern colors. In a collection of odd patterns there was one strong and bold for a man's room called "The Buffalo", another the "horse blanket" pattern, and another unusual print was called "There are fish and fish."

Miss James completed her display with a lamp, displaying also several pottery bases she has had made, a functional table and a "knock down" chair which is copy of the English army chair made in Denmark and Sweden.

Appreciation of her presentation was voiced by Mrs. F. E. Hooper, and extended by president Mrs. Ford Turner.

Popular Dancing Event Stardust Ball Draws 600

Under silver stars set in midnight blue, there were more than 300 couples finding pleasure dancing at the Stardust Ball Friday evening in Brock Ballroom.

Each November comes this very popular Sadies Hawkins' event sponsored by the Col. Agnes Neill Chapter of the IODE. It is the one time when the girls may quite rightfully ask the man they wish to accompany them, but, according to tradition, they must also do the "paying" for the evening.

How many escorts insist on tradition being followed to the letter is not known. They may be content, or perhaps prefer, to assume the man's usual duties just as long as the girls stick to Daisy Mae and L'il Abner for their theme decorations and leave the "Dogpatch" race off the program.

Lipsticks and souvenir match books were given to each couple as favors and the lucky ones took home handsome draw and dance prizes.

The door prize was a dozen roses for the lady and a handsome table lamp for the gentleman, and winners were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Vermette. Other draw prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Woodbury, Mr. Lou Durkin, Miss Helen Howden, Miss Jane Lebarr, Miss Nancy Davis, Mr. Robert Bartley, and Mrs. S. E. Frey.

Spot dance winners were Miss Mary Blackburn, Mr. Mac MacMillan, Mr. Scotty Donaldson, Mrs. M. Goldsbrough, Mrs. Grace Samson, and Mr. Alex Sinclair, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Hicks.

This very successful dance was convened by Mrs. Charles Boulter, assisted by chapter members.

The patronage of the Hon. H. R. Scott and Mrs. Scott, Alderman T. D. Miller and Mrs. Miller, and of Miss Mary Medd, regent of the Municipal Chapter of IODE, was enjoyed for the evening. They received with the first vice-regent Mrs. Gary Ardern and Mr. Ardern, and second vice-regent Mrs. Arthur Gertley and Mr. Gertley.

DOROTHY DIX

Mother Insists Daughter 15 Double Date With Man 20

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 15 and recently became acquainted with a very fine boy. He is five years my senior, and my mother insists that we double date whenever we go out.

OLD STORY OF THE YOUNG

ANSWER: Your plight is certainly an improvement over that of girls who at the age of 15 are positively forbidden to go with boys—and their number is legion, as my mail will testify. Follow your mother's suggestion until she knows the boy well enough to trust him more.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: In 1948 I married a girl who had been married three times before. Three years later she left me because of jealousy over the women I met in business. These ladies meant nothing to me, but as I have my own business certainly I must be courteous to all customers. We were divorced, and a year later she married again. Now she writes that she's not happy, is being mistreated, and wants to come back to me. I still love her and would take her back in a minute if I thought she'd stay.

EARLE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A woman who hasn't found happiness or contentment in five marriages isn't likely to make a success of the sixth. Your ex-wife is a restless soul, who doesn't know what or whom she wants in marriage. I certainly advise you not to rush into remarriage. See if she shows any signs of settling down.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 17, and engaged to a wonderful boy of 19. Two years ago I got into trouble with another boy. My fiance knows all about it and has forgiven me, but now his mother has found it out and is trying to break us up.

E.C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The boy's mother could very well object to her son's engagement on age grounds. Neither one of you is old enough to marry. Under the circumstances a three-year wait is none too short. At that time, if you both still love each other, and the boy's mother is still adamant, have someone who knows you both, preferably a clergyman or doctor, approach her. No one could blame a mother for being cautious in a case like this; it takes more than a mere "I'm sorry!" to atone for a tarnished reputation. It's up to you to show that you can grow into a woman of fine character in spite of the youthful mistake. That takes time, but surely it's worth it. Do give yourself that chance, and things will work out well for you.

DEAR MISS DIX: My sister and I are just two years apart.

We have always had birthday parties, and have always been at each other's party. Now my 16th birthday is approaching, and I don't want my sister at my party. My mother is both shocked and hurt at my attitude, but I think I'm entitled to a grown-up affair.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your mother should be a bit more than shocked and hurt. She should be decisive enough to say, "No sister, no party!" Suppose your sister were two years older than you, would you not resent being kept from sharing her social life? Furthermore, as the older, you have certain responsibilities to your younger sister in the way of showing good example and proper behavior. Selfishness doesn't come under this heading. If you consider yourself old enough to have an adult party, you ought to know enough to be a gracious hostess. Exiling your sister wouldn't be very gracious, would it?

Readers' Saturday Column By Mary Moore

QUESTION: I was wondering if you have any recipes in which maple sugar could be used? I had a letter from a friend of mine in Ireland whose son brought her a block of maple sugar from Canada. She is quite anxious to know of the ways to use it to best advantage . . . Isabel R.

ANSWER: Very interesting indeed.

RICE DELIGHT

Wash 1 cup long grain rice and drain. Put in aluminum pan which has tight-fitting cover, with 1 2-3 cups boiling water, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 teaspoons butter. Cover and bring to boiling point. Turn off heat for 5 minutes. Then turn on heat as low as possible for 20 or 25 minutes or until rice has completely absorbed water and is tender. It will be fulffy and each grain separate. Cool rice. Into it fold 1 cup cream which has been whipped until stiff (see substitute below) and pile in sherbet glasses. Over top sprinkle 1 or 2 tablespoons each scraped or grated maple sugar. Chill thoroughly before serving. If cream is not available in Ireland as we buy it here a soft custard may be substituted for it.

Custards baked in pies or baking dishes are delicious, when undersweetened with sugar, and then sprinkled on top with scraped or grated maple sugar, while they are still warm. It melts a little and gives a delicious flavor and attractive appearance.

MAPLE SUGAR ROLLS

Put in mixing bowl 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 cup scalded milk. When lukewarm break in 1 yeast cake and stir until dissolved. Add 1½ cups flour. Beat well to thoroughly mix, then cover and let rise in warm place until light. Add about 1¼ cups flour (enough to permit kneading) and knead it in then let dough rise again until double in bulk. Roll out to ¼-inch thickness and spread with butter and sprinkle with chopped nuts and maple sugar, roll up like jelly roll, cut in 1-inch slices put in buttered muffin pans, let rise again and bake about 15 minutes at 425 deg. Fahr. Brush with melted butter as soon as removed from oven.

MAPLE SUGAR DIAMONDS

Beat 1 egg white until stiff and then add 1 egg yolk and beat for 2 minutes. Sift 1 cup flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon powdered ginger and ½ teaspoon salt and add to egg alternately with ½ cup milk. Stir in ½ cup crushed maple sugar and 1 tablespoon melted butter and pour into well-buttered shallow pan Bake 15 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. or until firm. Cut into strips with sharp knife and then on diagonal to make diamond-shaped cookies.

Maple sugar, when crushed or grated may be used in almost any way dark brown sugar is. I think it is especially delicious on hot rolled oats or cornmeal or whole wheat cereal for breakfast. I hope this helps your friend in Ireland.

QUESTION: Would you have a recipe for Sweet and Sour Spareribs . . . the sauce recipe and time and method for cooking . . . No signature.

ANSWER:

SWEET AND SOUR SPARERIBS

[illegible] ribs in halves crosswise. When you get them home cut between ribs so that meat is on both sides of 1 rib bone and pieces are about 2 or 2½ inches square. Dip these in fritter batter: Beat 1 egg; add ¼ cup sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons milk and beat until smooth. Fry the batter-covered ribs in peanut oil at 360 deg. Fahr. (do not fry it dark as it gets more cooking.)

In another frying pan heat 4 tablespoons peanut oil and in it saute 1 fresh green pepper which has been cut into 1-inch squares, for 1 minute. Now add the deep-fried ribs, pour over all the Sweet-Sour Sauce: 1 cup sweet pickle vinegar (or ¾ cup vinegar and ¼ cup brown sugar), ¼ cup brown sugar, 1 cup best quality tomato catsup, ½ cup cold water, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ cup chopped sweet pickles, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Heat the vinegar, tomato catsup and water to boiling. Stir together the sugar and cornstarch and salt and pepper. Stir them into the boiling mixture until thick. Add the pickles. When this is poured over the fried ribs, cover and bake about ¾ to 1 hour at 325 deg. Fahr.

CHINA Highlights by TOM O'CONNOR

Many people ask, Why the name China for tableware and porcelain?
Centuries before we Nordics came down out of the trees, the lads and gals in Old Cathay knew how to live in a sumptuous manner. Their mandarins took under their patronage, artists in Clay and other Cultural pursuits and to this day the most beautiful artware known to us was made by the Chinese, and is valued according to the dynasty in which it was created. Cathay used Her porcelains as an export commodity for centuries; over the years Europeans and the new East countries valued these treasures and any ceramic product that came from China was sufficient incentive to buy it, hence the name!
The China man today is civilized to such an extent that a cultural chap, if Nordic, is lucky to get out of old Cathay with or without his head.
P.S.—We were so busy during our Anniversary Sale last week, we completely forgot our little story. Hope you'll forgive us!

For Parents Only

Parents Are Urged To Get To Know Child's Teacher

BY NANCY CLEAVER

"Apple for you, teacher!" six year old Judy's eyes are shining, and she has an engaging grin as she holds out a big red MacIntosh in her hand. The teacher looks at her small pupil and she remembers, not so very many years ago when she was in First Grade and adored the older woman who taught her. As a little girl she was much too shy to present her teacher openly with a gift. But how much she owed to this older woman's kindness, "I'm going to be a teacher, when I grow up."

During the years since the last World War there has been a great increase in the number of boys and girls attending elementary schools in Canada. Outstanding educationalists are alarmed at the shortage of qualified teachers to look after this ever-growing school population.

Each provincial Department of Education, because education is a provincial responsibility, tries to attract the right kind of people into the teaching profession. Short courses, some of them during the [illegible] have been established in a few centres in an attempt to train extra recruits for this profession.

But the lack of trained teachers is a serious threat to the education of many of our boys and girls. As parents, we are concerned, not only with the schooling of our own youngsters. We should be interested in the education of all young Canadians. What can we do about our need for good "teacher material?"

We can make the lot of the teachers in our own community happier by being a little more appreciative of them. We can discover what are their salaries, and if they are inadequate in these days of rising prices, we can speak to the members of our School Board. One of the difficulties of paying teachers a good wage, for one of the most important tasks in any democracy, is the limited budget for education. Local school boards have no other source of money than provincial grants and the tax on property. They have no "hidden taxes" by which they can increase their treasury.

As mothers and fathers, we can make a greater effort to get to know our child's teacher through Home and School activities or by making an appointment after school hours and having a talk with their teacher. If our "Junior is in trouble with his teacher, we can rehold our judgment. As mature people, surely we can refuse to "blame teacher" until we hear he other side of Junior's complaint.

Perhaps most important of all, we can look at the individual teacher's good points, and concentrate on them instead of on his or her faults. We can firmly suggest to our son or daughter, when complaints are made that a teacher usually has a very good reason for what he or she does. Teacher isn't perfect—but neither is a scholar—and the failings of a whole class of pupils can be pretty hard to take.

When we are talknig with our friends we can say something good about our child's teacher, if at all possible. It is rather mean to critize and condemn a teacher behind his or her back! The light of public interest shines without much mercy on the lives of professional people—and the perfection expected of teachers is nothing short of ridiculous in some communities! This is one of the reasons many attractive young people are not attracted to the teaching vocation.

Look back on your own childhood. You likely had both good, medium and even poor teachers, but weren't the able ones in the majority? What teacher do you remember most vividly? Was it not someone who really liked children [illegible] his or her enthusiasm for some subject to you?

We can remember one teacher who really loved reading poetry aloud. She was able to make the poetry period one which everyone enjoyed. We had the chance to read aloud, too, and hear the music of the words as well as see the pictures painted in our imaginations by the poet's lines. If ever a teacher deserved an apple, it was this one!

A survey in the United States in which over a thousand scholars participated, brought to light the traits in teachers which the pupils really appreciated. The boys and girls wrote a letter on "The Teacher Who Has Helped Me Most." There were twelve characteristics which were mentioned over and over again. In order of frequency they were as follows: A co-operative Democratic attitude; Kindliness and Consideration for the individual; Patience; Wide Interests; Pleasing Personal Appearance and Manners; Fairness and Impartiality; Sense of Humor; Good Disposition and Consistent Behavior; Interest in Pupil's problems.

Quite an imposing list! Surely an inspiration to anyone in the teaching profession! These American boys and girls are not so different from our Canadian ones. It would be interesting to know what characteristics in teachers our scholars appreciate most! Why not ask your boy or girl? If he appreciates the teacher he has this term, let the teacher know! She likes "an apple" from parents as well as from scholars.

THE GIFT OF AN APPLE expresses a little child's admiration. How long is it since you have given your child's teacher an appreciative comment on her work?—(Photo by R. G. Brooks).

Ontario Hamlet Quebec City In Miniature

DUBREUILVILLE, Ont. (CP)—This community of some 200 persons today is a miniature Quebec City, built like the ancient capital on a steep hill, but three years from now it may have moved on.

The village, which has already moved once in its four-year history, thrives on timber. When the timber is cut the lumbermen, with their families, move farther into the bush.

Now set around a lake in the midst of burnt-over forest about 120 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie the predominantly French-Canadian community was brought to this area two years ago from a site 50 miles to the east.

It was made possible when the Canadian government in 1949 granted the four Dubreuil brothers, formerly of Taschereau, Que., a contract to cut timber in one section of a huge area burned over by forest fires the year before.

FAMILY PROJECT

The brothers began at Mountain Ash lake, 50 miles east of here. The [illegible]chers and workers' families and built homes for them. But late in 1950 their cutting area was petering out.

The government granted a second contract in the area surrounding the site of the present Dubreuilville. Augustine, second-youngest of the four, was sent to timber-cruise the area.

He found a townsite too. The lumbermen built six miles of winding road into it, put up log houses on the old Quebec plan and moved the whole village, women and children, to the present site.

The community has an appearance of permanency that belies its future. There's indoor plumbing, electric lights, a modern church and school, a general store and level streets.

But the brothers say that although it will take some 15 years to cut their 16-township tract, the area around Dubreuilville will be cut in two or three years and they'll have to push the bush road farther and move the community back into the wilderness.

The four manage the whole timber-cutting operation as a family affair. Napoleon, the eldest, is general manager; Joachin is woods superintendent, Augustine, saw mill manager and Marcel, manager of the planing mill.

Six hundred railroad ties are turned out daily and the lumber mill has a daily capacity of 15,000 board feet. Most of the trees felled are jackpine.

Many of the brothers' employees have been with the company since its inception in 1947.

Mrs. Percy Hamilton Heads Anglican Guild

MILLBROOK (ENS)—On Wednesday evening 26 sat down to chicken supper served buffet style at the home of Mrs. T. A. Campbell, which preceded the regular meeting of the guild of St. Thomas' Anglican church.

Mrs. Percy Hamilton, president, conducted the opening prayers. Mrs. Campbell, treasurer, reported $182.25 had been realized from the recent bazaar.

It was decided to buy lumber for new tables for the parish hall, to be made by Mr. T. A. Campbell.

Mrs. L. R. Pocock presided for nominations for the executive for the coming year. Mrs. Percy Hamilton, president, Mrs. H. A. Turner, secretary and Mrs. T. A. Campbell, treasurer, were returned by acclamation. The other offices are to be voted on at the next meeting.

Mrs. Ron Palmer, Mrs. J. O. Medd and Mrs. Ed Penney were the committee in charge of the supper. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. James Godfrey.

Guild Realizes $300 From Fowl Supper

MARMORA (ENS)—St. Paul's Ladies' Guild met in the parish hall with Mrs. W. D. Lavender, president, in the chair. Canon J. M. Brownlie opened the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. D. McInroy reported proceeds from the recent fowl supper were more than $300.

The date of the bazaar has been changed from November 27 to December 11. The event will be marked with afternoon tea and a bake sale with cards at night.

Refreshments were served by the committee.

Appeal Court Sets Time For Son's Visits

The Ontario Appeal Court has varied an order of Judge John D. N. Kennedy stipulating the times during the year that a Peterborough father may have temporary custody of his son.

The boy is seven-year-old John David McCreery, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. McCreery, both of whom live in the city but not as husband and wife.

For the past three years, James McCreery and his wife, Mary, have been battling in court over the child's custody. Twice their legal battles have taken them to the Ontario Appeal Court and both times the justices in Toronto have upset or revised decisions of the Peterborough county judges.

Early in 1950 the father took the boy to Toronto and the mother didn't see him for five months.

In November, 1950, the late Judge S. L. Smoke found fault with both parents but gave permanent custody of the boy to Mr. McCreery. This was appealed and the Appeal Court reversed the ruling. They awarded the boy to Mrs. McCreery, at the same time commenting on "unreasonable interference by the paternal grandmother."

The justices also said that Mr. McCreery was too much influenced by his mother in looking after the boy.

Last July, in Peterborough Surrogate Court, Judge Kennedy specified certain periods during the year when the father could have the boy visit him.

TIMES ALLOWED

The times, as ordered by Judge Kennedy, were two weeks during the boy's summer holidays; a week during his Christmas holidays; on his birthday, and on Saturday afternoons.

Revisions as handed down by the Appeal Court were: the first two weeks of July each year; each alternate Saturday afternoon for four hours; four hours during the afternoon of the boy's birthday; and four hours on the afternoons of Dec. 26, 27, and January 2.

When Mr. McCreery has his son visiting him, he must not allow the boy to come under the influence of the paternal grandparents. And the boy must not be taken out of Peterborough county.

Organized N.Y. Canadian Club

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian Club of New York, celebrating its 50th birthday this fall, began its meetings in a $2-a-night room. Today it pays more than $100,000 a year for its luxurious quarters in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

An original membership of 20 has grown to more than 1,400. These are largely Canadians or former Canadians living in New York who find the club a continuing link with their native land. Canadians holding out - of - town membership often make the club their headquarters on visits.

The Canadian Club of New York, organized in 1903 under the presidency of W. T. Robson, from Lindsay, Ont., was an offshoot of an earlier organization, founded in 1885, which had run into difficulties.

For more than 20 years the club has occupied the 18th and 19th floors of a wing of the Waldorf. Its facilities include dining and reception rooms, overnight guest rooms, a library, billiards and pool, a roof garden, and a bar.

In the First World War the club raised more than $100,000 for war relief and victims of the 1917 Halifax explosion.

Chinese Have Unusual Dead Letter Office

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chinese in this city have an unusual dead letter office.

It's a bulletin board in the window of the Chinese Times, situated in the heart of the second largest Chinese community outside the Orient.

When letter carriers fail to find an addressee in Chinatown, the mail goes to the Times, which pins it up in the window. In nine years, an estimated 2,000 letters have been delivered this way. Only one or two have hung there the one-year time limit after which time they are returned to the sender.

EEEEEEEEEEEEEE!!!! screeched many of PCVS' Grade 9 girls Friday night as they completed the Ghost Walk at their initiation by stepping into two large pans, one filled with wet spaghetti and the other cold water. Anne Hutchinson (blindfolded, centre, above) gingerly allows her feet to be placed in the pans. Another Grade Niner (at right) is ready for the final test. The Ghost Walk was the main event as the Grade 9 girls went through a full evening arranged by the Girls' Athletic Association.

British Youths Study Life In B.C. Forest

LONDON (CP) — A two-month expedition to British Columbia this summer gave a party of British schoolboys a taste of forest life complete with [illegible] mountain plants.

A 2,000-word report by an unidentified member of the group describes in detail its conquest of part of the rugged Cariboo country, 40 miles north of Fort St. James. The group was under the direction of the British Schools Exploring Society.

The party's only regret, says Maj. F. G. Hannell, leader of the expedition, was that they were not joined by some Canadian schoolboys.

MET BEAR AND CUB

Among the incidents most vividly recalled in the report is the brush with a black bear.

". . . I had just gone to collect some firewood when I suddenly saw a black bear looking at me out of a tree about 10 yards away. I backed away and returned with the other chaps and my camera. I had just taken a photograph when there was a great crash in the rocks above us. We all looked up and saw our gaze returned by an enormous black bear which must have been the mother of the first bear. It began to grunt and wave its arms about and started to amble down the rocks toward us looking very annoyed. We just turned and ran. . . ."

There were encounters with stinging wasps, eagles and rough plants seven feet high which, on contact with the skin, brought swelling and septic blisters.

One of the sights which most impressed the author of the report was a small river clogged with dead salmon following spawning.

LAKE STUART BASE

[illegible]ompanied by eight assistant leaders and three medical officers, the boys in small groups ranged from their base camp on Lake Stuart across razor-backed ridges and through swamps, mapping the terrain and collecting mineral and wild-life specimens. Each youth carried a pack ranging in weight from 35 to 64 pounds which contained iron rations—30 ounces a day of pemmican, cheese, hardtack and the like—tents, camp and cooking equipment and scientific apparatus.

The longest march was made by a party of 15 boys, three leaders and a medical officer who trudged 116 miles through the region between Lakes Trembleur and Babine in 14 days.

Aim of the enterprise, says the report, was to foster in the 80 British youths, all between the ages of 16 and 19, "a sense of adventure, self-reliance, self-discipline and comradeship, coupled with geographical and other scientific projects."

This was the second time that the 20-year-old society had sent a party into Canada. They visited northern Quebec in 1948. There had been six earlier expeditions to Newfoundland.

Wandering Seal

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP)—A seal was found Friday five miles from the ocean, floundering in rain puddles in La Ballona creek, usually bone-dry. The humane society lassoed him and dumped him back in the ocean. The seal apparently paddled up the creek bed during a recent rain.

Wildcat Slays Calf

DURHAM, Ont. (CP)—A wildcat killed a four-day-old calf here. It gorged itself on the calf while the cow looked on, until farmer James Peart scared the beast away with rifle shots.

Grade 9 Girls Initiated At PCVS Amid Screams

With screams and howls and giggles more than 100 grade 9 girls were initiated at PCVS Friday night.

This was the first event of its kind at the school, and judging by the sounds of merriment emitting from the gym, it must have been a success. The initiation was directed by the executive of the [illegible]ols in their own [illegible] the senior classes.

In the hall outside the gym crowds of excited girls waited anxiously while their partners passed through the first stages of iniation. Dress in gym clothes, they filed toward two pails which were filled with water and spaghetti and plunged their bare feet into this wiggling mixture. It was at this point that the laugher started, reverberating throughout the marble halls for the rest of the evening.

Next the girls were led into the brightly decorated gym where 10 stations had been set up. They formed into teams of nine or 10 and began playing various games. When one team had completed the basketball shot, for instance, they would move on to the next game which might be leap-frog and so on. The result was that every girl participated in everything, and eventually met everyone.

Some senior girls, assigned as wardens, for the initiation walked solemnly, policing the wayward victims, but they too, had a difficult time keeping a staid expression on their face.

When the girls had finally played and laughed themselves weak, the proceedings were halted and refreshments were served. The gym and hall were cleaned up, the girls changed to steet clothes, and the first initiation at PCVS was over.

Trip Along Labrador Coast Unique Tourist Attraction

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A voyage aboard the steamer Kyle, one of the workhorse vessels that link Newfoundland's coastal ports with the world outside, is a unique attraction for tourists.

Everything from a square dance to a church service is combined with the workaday business of carrying freight, mail and medical aid.

A round trip on the Kyle takes 12 or 15 days during which the vessel steams along the rugged, iceberg-dotted coast. Passengers do their best to catch on to the complicated steps of a Northwest river "set," catch squirming codfish by "jigging" over the rail and take innumerable snapshots of icebergs, compliments of the master who runs in close just for that purpose.

The Kyle, on the Labrador run, has made her last voyage of the season and Capt. E. J. O'Keffe, who as much as the trip itself has made the Kyle's voyages unique, has settled back from the questions of the round-trippers, as the passengers are known.

STOCK QUESTIONS

"Where are the igloos?" and "will we see any polar bears?" are the two stock queries.

Leaving St. John's on her voyage northward the Kyle calls at Carbonear, mercantile centre in the days of sail. Catalina comes next and then Twillingate, picturesque two-island settlement and the largest of the northern fishing towns.

Between ports the round-trippers learn the strains of "The Star of Logy Bay," a rousing Newfoundland folk song picked out on a piano in the music room.

Out on deck there is plenty of hard work. Lumber loaded at Carbonear may be changed to the Winnifred Lee at Hopedale and carried still farther north.

One of the stops is at a lighthouse where a sign in four-foot letters dubs the stormy landing "Old Ulcer." Boats are picked up and launched by a boom overhanging the breakers.

TAKE NEPTUNE ABOARD

Battle Harbor is the first stop in Labrador. This is the night King Neptune comes aboard with his beard of hemp and a rope's-end brush.

Assisted by a ghoulish-looking figure dressed in yellow oilskins and wielding a massive wooden razor he puts the newcomers through their initiation.

The waters become ice-flecked as the Kyle steams on but passengers still stick to their deck chairs absorbing a hot sun which belies the northern latitude.

There are unscheduled stops as the Kyle passes such places as Wild Bight, Wreck Bay, Ice Tickle, Run By Guess and Blackguard Bay.

A few, favored with a tourist's luck, find passage still farther northward. The Winnifred Lee makes the trip, another two weeks to Hebron and back.

Hundreds of tourists each year make the trip aboard the 1,000-ton Kyle. There has been some suggestion of a special tourist boat but old-time round-trippers say it would spoil the fun.

Tornado Relief Funds Share $100,000 Grant

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The five county tornado relief funds in western Ontario will share a $100,000 Canadian Disaster Relief Fund grant to aid in the rehabilitation of the area which suffered tornado damage last May.

R. W. Main of Toronto, assistant to James S. Duncan, Ontario director of the fund, said the money will be distributed early next week. Distribution will be made on a "common denominator" of assessment of damage in the five counties.

The money will come from the residue of the money subscribed for relief at the time of the Winnipeg flood, amounting to $1,485,511.

The sixth western Ontario tornado relief fund, set up by Sarnia, will not share in the $100,000 grant.

Mr. Main said there was no justification for giving the Sarnia fund money. He said Sarnia appeared to be well off compared to the five counties. "Sarnia had a much higher proportion of insurance coverage compared to the counties. The ratio was 95 per cent to 30.

"The committee is trying to place the money where it is most needed," he said.

DIFFICULTY IN DISTRIBUTION

Some difficulty was experienced by the committee in arriving at a basis of distribution because the assessment method used in each county was different, Mr. Main said. "Some assessed damage to buildings only and others assessed damage to buildings and livestock and other things," he said.

The figures used by the committee as a basis for dividing the grant are the total revised claims less the monies collected by public subscription and municipal grants plus anticipated provincial grants. They are: Middlesex $390,000; Perth $52,000; Oxford $96,000; Huron $115,000; Lambton $14,000.

Mr. Main said that these figures will be changed when the methods of assessment of the county is considered.

Sarnia fund officials expressed disappointment that their fund will not be included in the distribution. They said that if Sarnia had not been so severe in dealing with claims, they might have received some of the money.

Lancashire Preacher

A Lancashire man is preaching this evening at a special eight o'clock evangelistic service in St. [illegible]'s church, Ashburnham. He is the Rev. Harold Frankham of Middleton, Lancashire, England. Mr. Frankham is not a stranger to Canada. He was assistant missioner during Canon Bryan Green's tour of this country last year. Mr. Frankham's itinerary this season includes every rural deanery in the Diocese of Toronto, of which Peterborough county is one.

Seek Wanted Car

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto police have been asked to watch for a late-model green sedan with a North Carolina licence, wanted in London and Woodstock. Its four occupants, two of them said to be Canadian soldiers, are being sought by police for questioning about the passing of bogus Canadian $10 bills. The car was last seen in Hamilton.

Norwood Bible Class Elects Officers

NORWOOD (ENS) — The bible class organization of Christ church has resumed [illegible] mer months to begin their second year as the young people's group of the church.

Rules and regulations were drawn up and future ventures planned.

Entertainment and lunch concluded the meeting.

Many Give

I suppose that some of these belonged to some social organization, a "couple's club," a "ladie's aid," or some similar group. But that is hardly church membership.

I am not suggesting that such a situation is typical, and I hope it is not. But let anyone compare the many crowded churches at Easter and Christmas with the sparse congregations and empty pews in the same churches on other Sundays of the year!

The crying need is for better church members.

Study Detroit Methods

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Fifty members and guests of the western Ontario school inspectors' conference, Friday toured various schools in Detroit to study teaching methods there. The group included conference members, staff members of the teachers' college, London, and representatives of the education department, the Ontario Teachers' Federation and the School Trustees' Council.

Dutch Reformed Church Aids In Settling Settlers

WESTON, Ont. (CP)—This Toronto suburb is paradise as far as some 400 Dutch immigrants are concerned. And Christopher Steenhof helped most of them attain their "land of plenty."

Mr. Steenhof, field worker for the Christian Reformed Church in Canada, is credited with solving thousands of problems for a steady stream of immigrants from Holland. His job is to meet trains, arrange accommodation, find jobs, advise and comfort.

"The Dutch immigrant comes to Canada as a voluntary settler and with a background of patient work to his credit," Mr. Steenhof says.

"As soon as he sets foot on Canadian soil, he is prepared to buckle down and begins as soon as possible."

The progressive, expanding Dutch community in Weston can vouch for that. Having arrived in Canada only a few years ago, 46 of them have their own homes.

CHURCH'S ADVICE

Taking heed of their church's advice, the settlers are deliberately avoiding a hedged-in Dutch community. You can't find two Dutch families living side by side in Weston.

The church also advises the immigrants to save—save and build big houses so other young men and women from Holland who want to make Canada their home can be accommodated.

When there is no accommodation, Mr. Steenhof takes the new immigrants to the church in Toronto, knowing that someone in the congregation will find space for the newcomers.

Take the De Jager family.

Mr. and Mrs. De Jager and their two children came to Weston two years ago.

De Jager was a furniture maker in Holland and within a few months the garage had taken on the appearance of a bungalow. Today the De Jagers are in their new home and another Dutch family occupies the garage.

There are immigrants living in Weston who are cheerfully working in factories, as watchmen and caretakers. In their homeland they were chartered accountants, engineers or lawyers. Constantly they are thinking of their children.

GONE BEFORE YOU HEAR THEM—A Panther jet roars overhead, but these Marine pilots being briefed at Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, don't even give the jet a casual glance, because the plane is moving so fast that the sound of the engine hasn't reached the ground yet. However, seconds later, when sounds reach them, the Leathernecks will look, see only sky.

Toronto Harbor Needs Expansion

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Hall, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railways and Steamship Clerks (AFL) Friday toured Toronto's waterfront facilities and said they should be expanded.

He said in an interview that, for lack of proper storage facilities, freight is lying on open wharves with only tarpaulins to protect it from the weather.

Mayor Allan Lamport said later the Toronto harbor commission is willing and able to expand the facilities on application of interested shipping and freight handling companies and after a proper assessment of the situation.

Toy Boats Used As Models To Big Big Tow

VANCOUVER (CP)—A deep-sea gamble which began with toy boats and models has graduated into the real thing and now the $1,500,000 steel heart of Kitimat is being towed slowly up the rocky west coast of Canada.

The heart is the monster pots or crucibles, largest ever built, manufactured at Portland, Ore., for the Aluminum Company of Canada's giant smelter at Kitimat, 80 miles south of Prince Rupert.

Arthur Elworthy, vice-president of Island Tug and Barge, Ltd., planned the huge, 800-mile towing job with scale models, then gave the task to the seagoing tug Island Sovereign.

Capt. Arthur J. Warren is in charge of the tug which will toe the steel barge Island Logger, loaded with $500,000 worth of equipment. Capt. Warren will make the trip three times.

The aluminum firm has advised the towing company that loss of the vital pots would be a crippling blow to the smelter's production schedule.

"We're ready to withstand a hurricane if we have to," Mr. Elworthy said. "Our chief worries are the Columbia bar, Cape Flattery and bad weather in the open sea."

First two loads for the Island Logger consist of 115 pots, each weighing 12½ tons and measuring 33 feet by 12 feet and each journey is scheduled to take five days.

Three Nations Cited Work Of Napanee Man In War

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Holland-born Willem Boot of Napanee has added another to his long list of awards in the cause of freedom.

Mr. Boot, who has received citations from three countries for his work in the resistance movement in the Netherlands during the Second World War, recently was presented with one of his native country's highest honors: The Dutch Meritorious Service Cross.

Now living with his wife and small son in this town 20 miles west of Kingston, he has previously received messages of gratitude and awards from the United States, England and Holland.

He has in his possession messages from Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, now United States president, on behalf of the American people for his "gallant service in assisting the escape of Allied soldiers from the enemy." He has messages from Lord Tedder, Marshal of the RAF and former deputy supreme commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force under General Eisenhower, citing him for "help given sailors, soldiers and airmen of the British Commonwealth of nations which enabled them to escape from or evade capture."

A letter from Lt.-Col. M. L. DeRome of Holland's special force in which Mr. Boot served pays tribute to him as a "very brave and loyal man."

England invested him in 1946 with the King's Medal for courage in the cause of freedom in a ceremony at one of the royal palaces in The Hague, capital of The Netherlands.

The latest honor was presented by Maj. J. E. van Iterson, military attache of the Dutch embassy in Canada, in a simple ceremony in Mr. Boot's home here.

Neo-Fascists Organized Trieste Rioting: Eden

SNOWY QUILT-WORK—Nature's eight-inch snowfall throughout the Peterborough district Saturday made the city's downtown district look like white quilt-work from the air early Sunday morning. This view shows Water and George Sts. from above Brock St. looking south. The snow made the district a snowy winter wonderland but at the same time it snarled traffic, causing many minor accidents which made the weekend a busy one for city and provincial police. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Outbreaks Aimed At Disrupting Order, Security

LONDON (CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden said today that last week's rioting in Trieste was "deliberately provoked and at least partly organized from the outside." He said the youthful rioters were "organized by older men, among them members of the neo-Fascist party." Britain, he added, has demanded that Italy clamp down on the extremists responsible for the disorders. Eden told the House of Commons that the demonstrations, in which six persons were killed by police gunfire, "seemed to be aimed at causing a breakdown of law and order and the disruption of the local security forces."

"On Nov. 3 and 4 the Anglo-American allied military government turned back about 3,000 persons who attempted to enter Zone A from Italy in organized party," Eden said.

"In spite of this, large numbers succeeded in entering or infiltrating into the zone and took part in the riots.

"The British government take a grave view of these events.

"They sincerely deplore the loss of life, the injuries suffered and the destruction of property in Trieste.

SOLE RESPONSIBILITY

"But the sole responsibility for these tragic results must rest with those extremist elements who deliberately provoked and organized these disorders."

On Saturday, Eden told Italian ambassador Manlio Brosio that Italian neo-Fascists were responsible for starting the riots. Brosio retorted that "excessive action" by police was responsible.

He said that of the 162 persons injured in the rioting, 79 were police.

SEEKS CONFERENCE

Eden said Britain still feels that a five-power conference would be the best way to solve the bitter Trieste dispute which began with the Anglo-American decision to pull out of zone A and turn it over to Italy. This decision brought violent objection from Yugoslavia.

"We consider that a conference still offers the best chance of finding a solution of the vexed problem of Trieste. We shall persevere in our attempts to secure an acceptable and lasting settlement and shall not be deflected from this purpose by violence from any

Toronto Fire Kills Four In Family

Grandmother's Bid To Save Daughter Foiled By Flames

TORONTO —(CP)— Four members of a family died in a fire Saturday night despite a vain attempt at rescue by a grandmother. Mrs. Tekla Rivney, 52, lost her own life when she dashed into her flaming home on River street in east-central Toronto to try to save her daughter, Mrs. Mary Guzda, 33, and her grandchildren, Sonja Guzda, 4, and Nicky Guzda, 2.

Five other adults and 10 children, all related, escaped to the snowy street.

The East End Day Nursery and Settlement House was opened late Saturday night to provide a temporary home for eight of the children, all answering to the surnames of Rivney and Habinsky.

ON SHOPPING TRIP

His father, Nicholas Guzda, 40, had brought him home from the hospital and gone shopping when the fire broke out in one of the rooms on the main floor of the two-storey frame home whose 10 rooms housed 25 persons. Four others besides Nicholas Guzda were absent when the fire broke out, apparently, firemen say, from defective wiring or careless smoking.

Men, women and children fled for their lives through the front and rear doors and upstairs windows.

The grandmother, Mrs. Tekla Rivney, wife of owner John Rivney, realized some members of the family had not escaped. Plunging through a wall of flame, she fought her way upstairs through dense smoke and reached her daughter and grandchild.

Doctors said all four died of suffocation and that the women were burned about the head and back.

TORONTO (CP)—Civic building inspectors will begin a probe of crowded housing in Ward 1 where a Saturday night fire killed four and injured two as it swept a 10-room house where 25 lived.

Mayor Allan Lamport said today an all-out investigation will be made.

"Overcrowding like that shouldn't be allowed at all," said Alderman Edgar Roxborough of Ward 1. "The city should clamp right down on it."

Building commissioner K. S. Gillies said the check will be made under occupancy regulations.

In the River street home in east-central Toronto where the four died, the 25 lived in nine bed-sitting rooms, a kitchen and one bathroom.

Cambridge Clothes Auction For Charity Really Strip Tease: College Officials

CAMBRIDGE, Eng. (Reuters) —Authorities of famous Cambridge University here are probing a touchy problem with student leaders: When does a "clothes auction" become a "strip tease."

A shapely college girl known only as Lola-Lola climbed on to a chair in one of the 18th century court-yards last week and offered to auction her clothes.

Hundreds of college boys gathered around and threw 6,000 pennies, $70, toward the chair to encourage her.

Lola-Lola took it off almost down to the altogether four times, and each time seemed to get her clothes back.

But the students held out and consulations are still under way.

Indian Commander Meets Reds On Interviews After Agency Order Defied

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Indian chief of the Korean repatriation commission went to Kaesong today for a face-to-face meeting with the Red high command that may determine the future of the straggling Communist program to woo back thousands of its former soldiers. The trip by Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya came after the Communists defied a set of ground rules for the interviews which he laid down Friday night. The 90-day interview program reached its half-way point Monday with only about 10 per cent of the 22,400 Chinese and North Koreans interviewed—a direct result of Communist delaying tactics.

Thimayya told the Reds in his new rules to call 500 prisoners (one compound) a day and forget about those they are unable to get to each day. Otherwise, he indicated, the Indians might have to take over the program themselves.

LAST DAY

However, the Communists Monday morning again demanded the remaining two-thirds of a Chinese compound which was one-third interviewed Thursday on the last day of explanations.

Since then the remaining prisoners have refused to come out for interviews. Thimayya told the Reds to call for another compound because it would be nearly impossible to separate the partially interviewed group.

There has been considerable speculation that the Communists may be seeking to force an argument and bow out of the entire interview program with a propaganda blast that they were treated unfairly.

RED PLEAS

Their propaganda has been given a shellacking by the overwhelming number of prisoners who have refused to return home—only 64 of 2,205 interviewed have accepted the Red pleas.

Richest Ruler, Fabulous Ibn Saud Dies

Stricken with a heart ailment (angina pectoris) on Oct. 9, the fabulous, one-eyed giant—a figure straight from Arabian Nights—died at 10 a.m. today in his oil-rich desert land—Saudi Arabia.

He had been reported recovering, but word flashed to this island this morning that he had succumbed. Later, the Saudi Arabian embassy in Cairo made formal announcement of his death.

The king, a 6-foot, 4-inch giant of a man in his prime, had been crippled in recent years by arthritis. He would have been 73 this month or next. His exact birth date was not recorded.

Ibn Saud's skill and daring as a desert warrior carved out for him his kingdom of Saudi Arabia, with 6,000,000 subjects. U.S. capital, which tapped his country's vast oil resources, gave him an income of more than $200,000,000 a year.

HAD 40 SONS

He had 40 sons, among them Crown Prince Saud, who was named prime minister of Saudi Arabia's first cabinet on Oct. 10. The message received here today said Saud had become king with Prince Faisal as crown prince.

The king also had more than 100 daughters by at least 135 marriages. He never had more than four wives at a time, however, in accord with Moslem law, and never drank or smoked.

When he was only 20 years old Ibn Saud and some of his brothers, cousins and servants invaded Riyadh by night, surprised the garrison, killed the governor and announced that a new Saud had come to power. That was the start of his long career as a warrior and statesman.

In co-operation with the famed Lawrence of Arabia, Ibn Saud and his Wahabi army drove the Turks out of the Arabian peninsula. Britain recognized the independence of Ibn Saud in 1915.

Surrender Bid Dulles Says Of New Red Note

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles said today Russia's latest note constitutes a blunt demand that free nations "unconditionally surrender their protective principles and practices" before conferring with world Communist leaders.

Dulles told a press conference that these Russian conditions for a proposed Big Four foreign ministers' conference are not acceptable to the United States government.

At the same time, he said the United States, Britain and France would have to give some thought to the possibility of conferences dealing with Germany and Korea without Russia. Dulles did not elaborate on this except to say Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of Western Germany would have to be consulted first about steps to restore German sovereignty.

NOTE NOT PEACEFUL

Dulles spoke out about Russia's latest note, sent Nov. 3, in a prepared statement which he said he drafted during the three-day stay at his Duck island vacation retreat in Lake Ontario.

"The demands made on the United States," he said, "particularly tnose whiin are stated as preconditions to any meeting, are couched in language that bears little resemblance to that normally employed as between nations whirh are at peace.

"In essence, the Soviet leaders bluntly demand that the European and Asian nations not now subject to Soviet domination, shall first unconditionally surrender their protective principles and practices of security and present themselves, divided and thus weakened, in order to gain the privilege of conferring with ther ulers ofthe Soviet and Chinese Communist world."

Dulles said the Soviet demands are backed up by "an unpleasant reference, twice repeated, that failure on our part to accept he

Mossadegh Scores Britain, Threatens To Boycott Court

TEHRAN (AP)—Angry ex-dictator Mohammed Mossadegh, challenging the competence of a military tribunal to try him as a traitor, today threatene ' to commit suicide, fired his lawyer and warned the court he might boycott future sessions. Clad in his customary pyjamas, the 73-year-old former premier told the court he would not appeal any sentence it might mete out. "I will not accept any forgiveness. I will stay in this prison until I die. If you release me, I will commit suicide as soon as I get hold of the means," he shouted. "I am not going to attend the coming sessions even if you cut off my head," he declared at the climax of a heated argument with Gen. Nasrollah Moghbeli, chairman of the five-man tribunal.

It was the second day of the trial for Mossadegh's life. As he did on the first day Mossadegh wept, panted, pounded the table and gesticulated. He made fiery speeches against the British whom he had fought to a deadlock over this nation's vast oil riches.

At both sessions, Mossadegh declared the military court was not competent to try him on charges he tried to overth.ow the monarchy, defied the Shah and illegally dissolved the Majlis (lower house of parliament). And at each, he used the old argument—the British were the cause of Iran's woes—that once had brought him unprecedented power until his overthrow and subsequent arrest after a bloody Aug. 19 coup led by supporters of the Shah.

Moghbeli chided Mossadegh for dragging out his anti-British arguments at this time—as though he already were defending himself—rather than sticking to the subject of the court's competence which was the first item of business.

Elizabeth Leads Cenotaph Rites

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen, a spray of blood red remembrance poppies on the shoulder of her black coat, Sunday led the Commonwealth in commemoration observances to the dead of two world wars.

She stood with bowed head before the White marble cenotaph, national shrine to the fallen, as Britons observed the traditional two-minute silence from the first stroke of 11 o'clock.

The short, moving ceremony in Whitehall was taken into millions of British homes by television. It takes place every year on the Sunday nearest Nov. 11, official armistice day.

The Duke of Edinburgh and the Duke of Gloucester stood behind the sovereign. Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret watched from the balcony of a nearby government office.

In Westminster Abbey, where the tomb of the unknown soldier takes pride of place among those of kings, queens and the great of the land, 2,000 persons earlier attended a remembrance service.

Second U.K. Ship Victim Of Attack

HONG KONG (AP)—A gunboat presumed to be Chinese Nationalist, prowling off the coast of Red China, chased and fired on a British freighter Sunday.

The 335-ton freighter Rosita radioed the Royal Navy at Hong Kong that she was being attacked while off Heishung island, about 15 miles southeast of Shanghai.

A second message soon after said the Rosita had successfully eluded the lone attacker and had resumed her voyage to Shanghai.

No casualties were reported.

Saturday the British freighter Hydralock was strafed by aircraft and chased by two warships, also presumed to be Nationalist. The vessel escaped without casualties to Tsingkiang, northeast of Amoy.

Portugal Returns Salazar Party

LISBON, Portugal (Reuters) — Antonio Salazar's Uniaco Nacional party, which has ruled Portugal since the 1926 military rebellion, won a 100 per cent victory in Sunday's general election, it was announced early today.

In the first officially - contested election in 27 years, all 28 opposition candidates were defeated. In some areas they polled almost a fifth of the votes.

If every one of the opposition candidates had been elected, Uniaco Nacional would still have had an overwhelming majority in the 120-seat National Assembly.

All opposition candidates belong to an unnamed anti-Communist centre group, which hoped to get a foothold in the assembly.

Hanky Around Throat Police Probe Death

TORONTO (CP)—Police are investigating the death of Mrs. Katherine Kolanko, 35, found early Sunday lying on a bedroom floor in her west-central Toronto home with a handkerchief twisted about her throat. An autopsy disclosed death by strangulation.

The woman's husband told police he found his wife beside her bed and at first thought she was ill. When he could not rouse her, he called police.

Must Aid Canada Says U.S. Paper

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune says today that the United States must join Canada in building the St. Lawrence Seaway now that the power phase of the project is close to final settlement.

The Tribune says that to have such a large enterprise undertaken without the participation of the U. S. "would be both unwise and unworthy."

The newspaper urges passage of a bill before Congress calling for the U. S. to join with Canada in building the waterway, parallel to the St. Lawrence, which will enable sea-going vessels to pass between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic.

Ships Attacked

TOKYO (AP) — Five Japanese trawlers were fired on Sunday night by ships of unknown registry in the East China sea about 100 miles east of the Communist controlled Cushan islands, the Japanese coast guard reported today. The coast guard said four of the ships reported they fled successfully but that the fifth, a 75-tonner with 13 fishermen aboard, has not been heard from.

DETROIT (AP)—Twenty dollars of the missing $308,000 Greenlease ransom money has appeared in Petoskey, Mich., according to a copyrighted story by the Detroit Times today.

The Times story said FBI agents have swarmed into Petoskey since last Tuesday when the $20 bill was discovered by Mrs. Henry J. Krauser, who operates a rooming house.

Mrs. Krauser identified the money from a list circulated by the FBI to all operators of hotels, motels, rooming houses and merchants.

The Times said the number of bills discovered since the FBI came on the scene is a closely-guarded secret.

There have been no arrests in Michigan.

The Times said there was evidence that a rural mail truck driver in Manton, Mich., received the $20 note and paid it to Mrs. Krauser, unaware of the money's background.

Every operator of a business enterprise in Michigan's northern sector and every bank has been provided with a list of serial numbers from the unrecovered bills in the $600,000 paid by Robert C. Greenlease, Oct. 4, for the return of his son, Bobby, who was already dead.

Nine Flee Fire Kingston Home

KINGSTON (CP)—An old wooden ladder was used by nine persons to flee upstairs bedrooms when fire gutted the interior of a brick home here early today.

Safe are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hawks; three daughters, Joan, 21, Brenda, 16, and Sally, 13; three sons, Fred, 11, Paul 6, and Brian, 19; and a cousin, Bernard Power, 24.

Mr. Hawks broke a partition into the girls' bedroom when their escape was blocked by flames. All nine gathered in a front bedroom and crawled down the old ladder put up by a passerby.

Two of the girls were slightly singed by flames.

Tories To Ask For Ban On Summer Elections

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative party will ask the new session of Parliament to ban federal elections in July and August except in an emergency.

The request will be made in a resolution placed on the Commons order paper today by Rodney Adamson, Opposition member for York West.

During the last session, the Opposition protested strongly against the government's decision to hold the last election on Aug. 10. The Progressive Conservatives charged that many Canadians, particularly those on summer holidays, lost their franchise.

Iron Curtain 'Most Tragic' Reality Of Century: Leger

TORONTO (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Archbishop of Montreal, said today the Iron Curtain "is not a visible thing and yet it is the most tragic reality of the 20th century."

Historians will find it difficult to describe and superficial teachers possibly will identify it with the China Wall, he said in an address prepared for delivery before the Canadian Club.

But the Iron Curtain "is an expression which perfectly described the mentality of our times."

"It is constituted by the hardening of the hearts of men and it falls between souls to separate men from one another. It is not a division between the East and West; it does not really correspond to the political divisions of nations. It is like a theatre curtain which divides the spectators from the actors, not because it is opaque but simply because it is a visible sign of the difference of feeling which animates men. . . .

"On one side of the Iron Curtain God is denied completely, and on the other faith in God is no longer a living force. The idea of God is kept to avoid the horrors of concentration camps and to permit men to enjoy the goods of this earth in the framework of fictitious liberties which democracy promises individuals."

His Eminence said prayer is needed to "unit us to God" and to fortify men against their weaknesses.

"Instead of seeing us imbued with this spirit of prayer the Communists who see us discover in our hands earthly idols: Alcohol flows freely and in large quantities. . . . Our young people seek pleasure and prefer the company of movie stars and beauty queens to the rough road which leads to the lofty summits of purity, honor and courage.

"Raids in dormitories of women's colleges, juvenile delinquency, sexual perversion, the most abject of crimes, are the weapons we ourselves place in the hands of our enemies."

U.S. Firm Interested

Cheaper Steel May Be Result Of Method Developed By Canadian Engineering Firm

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Steel companies, always hunting ways and means to produce more steel at lower costs, may find the answer in an improved electrical method developed in Canada.

At least one big Pittsburgh utility hopes to sell them on the idea of using electricity. Electric induction heating has been common practice for many years but until recently such heating was confined to small jobs or surface hardening and finishing.

In the customary heating practice, heat is applied to the surface of the steel billet and must travel inward by conduction—a process requiring several hours for big pieces.

TEST COIL HEATER

The tests involve copper coils—using ordinary 60-cycle current of the kind that West Penn and almost all other electric utilities generate.

They claim tests indicate that a ton of steel can be raised to rolling temperatures (2,300 degrees) with less than 300 kilowatt hours of electricity.

Since Pittsburgh district industries buy much of their electricity for less than one cent a kilowatt hour this means that the power cost of reheating steel by this electrical method might be less than $3 a ton.

R. S. Segsworth, research director for the Canadian company, thinks induction coils—in a size large enough to heat steel ingots or other large shapes — probably could be installed at a price ranging from $10,000 to $15,000 a ton of hourly capacity.

MOST USE OPEN HEARTH

The steel industry now makes millions of tons of steel in electricity furnaces, using electricity as the only source of heat.

But most steel is still made in open hearth furnaces, fired by oil or gas. Steel producers also use these fuels to reheat furnaces after steel is made.

The secret of the new process is the shape and design of the water-cooled copper coils which create the electrical "heating" field.

Engineers claim a steel billet weighing three quarters of a ton can be raised from room temperatures to nearly white-hot 2,300 degrees in about 40-50 minutes.

Trieste Police Get Blame For Death Of 6

ROME (AP) — Italians from Trieste to the toe of the peninsula laid down their tools today in a 10 - minutes "memorial" work stoppage for the six persons killed by police during Trieste rioting last week.

The suspension was called by all three of Italy's big labor federations, representing nearly all Italian workers. They said only essential public services continued during the period many schools in Rome observed 10 minutes silence.

The nation-wide demonstration followed a bitter accusation Sunday against the British commanders of the Trieste civil police by the Italian government. Its report said the bloodshed in the disputed Adriatic city "was caused by riot-squad tactics of the police, which were characterized by extreme severity and the hasty use of firearms."

SAY ACTIONS UNJUSTIFIED

The report charged the police measures were unjustified and that the British had failed to heed advance warnings by Italian officials or Italian pleas to ease the situation.

Today's work stoppage came on the second consecutive day of calm following the bloody riots that swept Italy last week.

Riot police and carabinieri stood guard outside the British embassy in Rome, where 12,000 rioters battled with police Saturday, but there was no demonstration. Relatively large numbers of police near the U. S. embassy likewise had nothing to do.

Trieste itself, where an estimated 150,000 persons turned out Sunday, to bury the six riot victims, also remained quiet.

Italian newspapers continued to demand removal of Maj.-Gen. Sir John Winterton, Allied commander in Trieste's zone A.

Many papers reprinted British editorials about the Trieste shooting at length, and some said they were shocked at what they called the "hard British attitude."

Italian Prime Minister Giuseppe Pella called in a radio speech Sunday night for a thorough parliamentary investigation to place the blame for the Trieste outbreak. He also asked that the British and Americans look into what took place.

Reliable informants said the premier told U. S. ambassador Clare Booth Luce Gen. Winterton as the Allied official in charge of the Trieste occupation force, should be removed.

TWO MAJORS NAMED

The 2,500-word government report issued after Pella spoke Sunday probably will be the base for the Italian parliament's investigation.

The report named British majors M. H. R. Darragher and Williams as leading police units which fired into the crowds. Another British major, who was not identified, invaded Trieste city hall "pistol in hand" and took an Italian flag from the balcony, the report added.

In Trieste Sunday, more than 100,000 hushed, solemn persons lined the streets to watch the riot victims' funeral cortege pass through the city. The throng then dispersed without trouble.

Rifle-carrying British and American troops guarded government installations, but for the first time in weeks no British-trained civil police—Slavs and Italians—were to be seen. Apparently the Allied military government had ordered them out of sight to avoid stirring the new resentments.

Mishaps Claim 28 Lives In East Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twenty-eight persons died violently in Eastern Canada during the weekend, four in a fire that swept a dwelling housing 25 persons in east-central Toronto.

A Canadian Press compilation today listed 20 deaths in Ontario, six in Quebec and two in New Brunswick.

In addition, two young duck hunters were missing and feared drowned in the Montreal district.

SIX FIRE DEATHS

There were 16 traffic deaths, 12 of them in Ontario, six deaths in fires, two by drowning, two in a plane crash near Montreal and two from miscellaneous causes.

Killed in the Toronto fire were Mrs. Tekla Rivney, 52, who tried vainly to save the others trapped upstairs in the flaming house; her daughter, Mrs. Mary Guzda, 33 and grandchildren Sonja Guzda, 4, and Nicky Guzda, 2. Five other adults and 10 children escaped.

The crash on takeoff of a small privately-owned plane at Montreal killed Douglas Allan, 20, the pilot, and Miss Adrian Blackwood, about 17, both of Montreal.

Sudbury miner James Hands and his wife, both 24, were crushed to death when their car skidded on a slush-covered highway, was rammed broadside by an oncoming car and hurled into a ditch eight miles north of North Bay.

12 TRAFFIC DEATHS

Other out-of-control type automobile mishaps in Ontario took the lives of Armand Boivin, 25, near Timmins; Walter McDonald, 26, near Walkerton; and George Wiles in Windsor. Killed in collisions were Joseph Baudrie, 72, about 17 miles east of Tweed; Nelson Carbert, 21, near Owen Sound; and Rodney Sheffield, 17, five miles east of Brockville.

Ex-Carnival Girl Faces Charge Of Kidnapping

DURANT, Okla. (AP)—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents held in secret custody here today a 17-year-old former carnival strip teaser and the five-months-old baby boy they said she admitted kidnapping in Evansville, Ind., to replace her two children who died at birth.

Agents arrested Mrs. Norma Jean Doughty and recovered the baby, Richard Lee Stammer, alive. They were found at the home of Mrs. Doughty's father, Buford H. Mason, north of nearby Bokchito.

The arrest occurred only a few hours after Mrs. Doughty arrived in this area following her two-day flight with the baby through four states by hitch-hiking and bus rides.

Special FBI agent James C. Ellsworth reported the baby was placed immediately under a physician's care and appeared "to be none the worse for wear and tear."

Ellsworth also announced that the U.S. district attorney at Muskogee, Okla., has authorized that kidnapping charges be filed against the woman.

MOTHER BITTER

Mrs. Shirley Stammer, 18, was stunned when told at Evansville that the baby and his abductor had been found. "We can just be thankful he's OK," she said. "I was awfully bitter against her, but not too bitter now."

"How soon can we get him back" the mother and 20-year-old sailor father asked a reporter.

The Stammers said they hadn't slept since their baby disappeared Friday night with the babysitter who lived across the hall from the apartment of Mrs. Stammers' mother.

Ellsworth reported Mrs. Doughty told him she "fell in love with the baby" immediately last Friday when his mother brought the child to his grandmother's to be cared for during the evening. She was hired as a babysitter for the occasion.

Bolivia Crushes Overthrow Bid

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Unofficial reports said today authorities had crushed an attempt to overthrow the government of President Victor Paz Estenssoro. An uprising in the neighboring suburb of Obrajes was overcome by police after several persons were wounded, the reports said.

The attempt was said to have been made by the Bolivian Socialist Falange (FSB), a party with nationalist leanings. The Falangists took over the police headquarters before they were overcome and arrests made, the reports added.

President Paz Estenssoro took office April 16, 1952, after a military junta government was deposed. His party is the Nationalist Revolutionary Movement.

Thimayya said his meeting with North Korean Lt.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho and Chinese Gen. Ting Kuo Yu would probably last into the night. He said he did not plan a press conference on his return.

The repatriation commission also decided to delay action on a petition allegedly signed by prisoners in the north camp holding 22 Americans, one Briton and 332 South Koreans who have not returned to the Allies.

The commission said it wanted more time to study the protest, which denounced the Indians for not censoring incoming mail from the UN side. The petition said mail urging them to come home violated rules of the repatriation program.

Meanwhile, Allied and Red staff advisers met secretly in efforts to write an agenda for senior diplomats who will play a Korean peace conference.

STAFF OFFICERS MEET

U.S. delegate Kenneth Young said the Reds offered a statement which he studied during a recess.

Young would not discuss the Red statement, but said:

"We hope we can get an agreement."

Monday's one-hour- and -45-minute session was the second held by staff officers after top-level diplomats in 11 meetings couldn't agree on what to talk about first.

In past negotiations, the Reds often have made their concessions in lower level, closed-door sessions rather than in the publicized, high-level meetings.

Mossadegh Scores

Under Iranian army law, the first part of the trial turns on the point of the court's competence. If the court declares its own competence, the chief prosecutor can proceed to read the indictment.

PET HATRED

As Mossadegh ranged from his subject to his pet hatred for the British, the court chairman cut in, saying: "If you keep on talking like this, I will come to believe you have accepted the competence of the court."

"Leave these facts for the next sessions," he added.

It was at this point that Mossadegh shouted angrily that he would not attend further sessions. But he kept on talking at this one.

Mossadegh appeared as though he were ready at any time to stymie the court proceedings by pleading illness.

Early in the session today, Mossadegh showed irritation at his lawyer, Col. Jalil Bozorgmehr, Mossadegh impatiently shoved a mass of papers at the lawyer and said, "haven't you ever worked?" Can't you count pages"

Once seated on the bench facing the judges, Mossadegh spent at least three minutes being photographed from all angles by photographers in the well of the court.

HEART STIMULANT

When the photographers were ordered out of the well, Mossadegh perked up. He began shuffling about among his papers, mumbling "give me just a minute. I am sick."

As Mossadegh fumbled, an army doctor standing behind him solicitously pushed a lighted kerosene heater closer to the ex-premier's back, and passed him a flower-decorated teacup of heart stimulant.

From time to time he mumbled to the court "I am sick. If I am delaying, it is because "I'm sick."

A noisy row over whether Mossadegh could make a speech defending the ministers who served with him before Aug. 19 ended with the ex-dictator telling Bozorgmehr: "Go away from me. You are not my lawyer."

The exchange opened when the chairman broke into Mossadegh's defence of his former colleagues with "this is beyond the subject."

Mossadegh, alert, snapped back: "How do you know it is beyond the subject This means you have read the material I prepared last night."

SWEAR ON KORAN

Bozorgmeher sprang up, drew a Koran (the Moslem Bible) from his pocket and declared: "By God and the Korean I have not shown these documents to anyone."

Mossadegh retorted: "By the Koran, you have."

Moghbeli told the former premier "You are a religious man. You should not lie and swear on the Koran. You should not accuse us of seeing these records."

Mossadegh stood his ground.

"That is what I think. I am sure you have read it," he said.

FRIEND OF WEST

During the Second World War Ibn Saud was a friend of the West. He kept land, air and sea routes open for the Allies. This won him the Legion of Merit from former president Truman of the U.S. in 1947.

Ibn Saud received revenues from the pilgrims making the annual visit to Mecca, but his income really soared when the Arabian-American Oil Co. began to tap the underground reservoirs of oil in Saudi Arabia.

Aramco invested more than $100,000,000 in exploration and producing oil. In 1950 Ibn Saud signed an agreement with Aramco giving him 50 per cent of the profits.

Legends about Ibn Saud are many. One tells of the time he was wounded in the groin during battle. To put a halt to soldierly speculation about the king's well being, Ibn Saud chose a young woman from a nearby village for a bride, and consummated the marriage that night.

Poppy Receipts Cut In Half By Snowstorm

Usually as much as $1,400 is made from street but on Saturday the volunteer taggers took in only about $700.

"It was most disheartening," said Albert Mason, chairman of the Canadian Legion welfare committee that administers the Poppy Fund. "We had lots of taggers but there just weren't enough out on the streets."

TRY WEDNESDAY

In an attempt to boost their sunken receipts the welfare committee are going to ask the permission of city council to sell poppies on Wednesday morning before the memorial service.

Wednesday is Remembrance Day and many of the marchers in the parade—as well as spectators at the annual service before the city's war memorial—would like to buy a poppy for the occasion. They know too, that the money is spent by the committee on relief work among needy veterans of Canada's wars and their families.

In Toronto, where the weather Saturday was just as bad as here in Peterborough, Poppy Fund receipts were also down to half their usual figure. Those wanting a poppy for Remembrance Day in Toronto have been asked to write to headquarters, enclosing their donation. The poppy will be returned by mail in time for Wednesday's service.

By selling poppies before the parade begins the committee hope to recoup much of the financial loss they substained on Saturday.

On Sunday, despite the slush under foot, the veterans held their annual church parade. Headed by the Citizen's Band they marched to St. Peter's Cathedral where the rector, the Rev. J. F. McGuire conducted the service.

Wearing medals and berets, they fell in at the Legion Hall at 2.30 p.m. and marched off under the direction of Harry Gabbutt, parade marshal. All veterans groups were represented, including Branch 452, the women's branch.

At St. Peter's they were joined by the Silver Cross mothers and the Ladie's Auxiliary of Branch 52, and they marched into the church 120 strong for 3 p.m. service. The parade was dismissed on Rubidge St.

quarter. Our first duty is to insure that order is firmly restored in Trieste. This is being done.

"I have made the view of the government quite clear to the Italian government and urged that they should continue to do all in their power to curb those elements who have been responsible for provoking the disturbances in Trieste and the subsequent anti-Allied demonstrations in Italy," Eden declared.

Former Labor prime minister Clement Attlee interposed at this point to ask:

"May I take it that the Italian government has been left in no doubt that violent action of this kind is not calculated to make public opinion in this country sympathetic to the Italian case?"

BRITAIN WHIPPING BOY

Replied Eden:

"Yes, sir. I think public opinion in this country also feels strong resentment at being made the whipping boy for trying to discharge an international responsibility, at its own expense and without the slightest personal advantage to this country at all."

Eden was then asked:

"It is not true that the main animosity has been directed towards the British and not the United States?"

The foreign secretary said:

"I think that is very largely true and I draw the attention of the Italian government to it. It is time that the military commander and the commander of the police are both British but the American government have firmly underlined over the week-end that the responsibility is a joint one."

General Sir John Winterton is the military governor of the free territory. There have been reports that Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella has demanded that he be ousted on grounds police under his command fired into the Trieste rioters.

The foreign secretary made his statements only a few hours after Prime Minister Churchill unxpectedly called his cabinet into session to discuss the Trieste situation.

Answering questions on other developments, Dulles also:

1. Derlared the U.S. government has complete confidence in general Sir John Winterton, Allied commander in Trieste, whose removal the Italian government has requested as an aftermath to bloody riots in the Adriatic port area.

2. Asserted that the Republican administration has never said it will forever oppose recognition of a Communist government in China.

He said present refusal is based on Red China's aggression in Korea and Indo-China and its unwillingness to act in a way in keeping with United Nations charter principles.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

By CHARLES H. SPEARIN

The secretary's report which was submitted to the 20th annual meeting of the Peterborough Boy Scout association showed that 14 cub packs, 12 scout troops and one rover crew, with a total membership of 691 were engaged in scouting activities in Peterborough. W. G. Shiner, secretary of the local association reports that there are still some groups who have not filed their 1953-54 registration forms. These groups are requested to attend to this matter at once.

1st ST. JOHN'S PACK

The following cubs received a single stripe to be worn on his sleeve to mark his rank as a second—Fred Willison, Joe Cunningham, Gary Daliday and Bob Barber. A parent's night is planned for Friday, November 20th when the cubs will stage an entertainment for their friends and parents after which refreshments will be served by the mother's auxiliary. Bill Collinson passed his "growing things" and was awarded his first star.

2nd ST. LUKE'S PACK

Ron Perry's parents were present as he exchanged his zulu neckerchief for the regular colors of the St. Lukes Cub Pack when he was invested last Tuesday evening. The following tests were passed during the meeting: Randy Cummings, cleanliness and highway code; Garry McFaul, cleanliness; Richard Lee, salute, and Fred James, promise. Doug Price received his second year service star and Don Ebbs his third year service star.

Figuratively a wolf cub enters the jungle pack in a state of blindness. After receiving instruction from akela, balolo and others including his sixer, he is required to pass such tests as telling time, book balancing, ball throwing and others. Then he is said to have one eye open and receives his frist star which he will wear at the front of his uniform cap. At last week's pack meeting Victor Robinson and Joe Reid received their first stars. Paul Campbell's parents were present as he repeated his cub law and promised to be invested with the St. George's neckerchief.

After her marriage in 1882 she lived in the same vicinity until she and the late Mr. Poast retired in 1919 and moved to Omemee. Mr. Poast died seven years ago, four years after they had celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. They were former Methodists and afterwards members of Omemee United Church.

Mrs. Poast was a life member of the Women's Missionary Society, active in all good works. Her chief enjoyment in her declining years was to attend the services of her church, which she was able to do until her 96th birthday 11 months ago.

She is the last of a family of seven, being predeceased by three sisters: Mrs. Robert Bannon (Latitia), Mrs. William Connel (Emma) and Mrs. James Seymour (Rachel) and three brothers, Robert, William and David. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. P. H. Coad (Mary) of Saskatoon, and Mrs. Melville Lathangue (Carrie) of Omemee, and one son, Orman W. of London, Ont. Two daughters are deceased, Mrs. E. H. Laird (Jean) and Winnifred. A son Roy lost his life in the First World War. There are nine grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren.

She is resting at her home until the funeral on Tuesday. Services for the family at 2 p.m. at the house, and at 2:30 at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will be conducted by the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt. Pallbearers will be William and Carman Seymore of Springville, Austin Poast of Peterborough, Irvine Connell and Oral Grandy of Omemee, and Eugene Milling of Oshawa. Burial will be in Emily cemetery.

To Conciliate Loggers' Dispute

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—An Ontario conciliation officer will bring together representatives of 20,000 Ontario loggers and 21 timber and paper companies at Toronto Nov. 24 to seek settlement of a 1953-54 contract, it was reported here today. About 5,500 Thunder Bay bushworkers are involved in the negotiations.

The local woodsworkers are represented by Local 2693, Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (AFL). Other locals are located at Sudbury, Kapuskasing and Kenora.

A. M. Welsby, who will represent Local 2693 along with Lother Bode and William Tickon, said the LSW is seeking an eight-cent-an-hour increase for day workers, eight-per-cent boost for piece workers, and a bonus for cutters on poor and scattered timber.

The companies have proposed that no increase be given this year.

"Glad It's Over" Kidnapper Tells FBI Men

HUGO, Okla. (AP)—A 17-year-old former carnival strip teaser was arrested today and quickly arraigned on a federal charge of kidnapping a five-months old baby boy while baby sitting with him at Evansville, Ind.

They were found at the home of Mrs. Doughty's father, Buford M. Mason, north of Bokchita in Red river valley farm country.

Mrs. Doughty was arraigned before U. S. commissioner D. A. Stovall six hours after she was captured. Stovall placed her under $20,000 bond and she was turned over to a U. S. deputy marshal for removal to Muskogee federal jail.

GLAD IT'S OVER

"In a way I'm glad it's over, but I still wish I could have kept him for a few more days," Mrs. Doughty told The Associated Press in Oklahoma City by telephone.

She was permitted to talk on the phone after her arraignment and she haltingly answered questions about her trip by bus and hitchhiking since she took the baby Friday night.

"He is just the age of the one I lost," Mrs. Doughty said. "I fell in love with him when I first saw him. He reminded me of my child. He didn't give me any trouble at all during the trip.

"I had some money when we left Evansville and I bought what he needed along the way. He didn't cry at all . . . was just a perfect baby."

LOST CHILD IN JUNE

Asked how she felt, she quickly replied:

"How would you feel?"

The agents said that Mrs. Doughty told them she gave birth to a child at Dallas in 1951 but two weeks later her husband took it away and she never has seen it since. The FBI said the father was Lamar Mitchell.

Snow Slows Traffic No Serious Accidents

COBOURG (ENS) — What appeared to be only a light snow, started to fall on Saturday morning and by noon it was like a blizzard, several inches of snow falling before it cleared up in the late afternoon. Traffic in town proceeded with lights on, due to the very short range of visibility.

Streets became icy in the business section and the streets department sander had to be put into operation. Moderating temperature at night turned things into slush and on Sunday a drizzling rain got rid of most of the snow.

Sautrday afternoon and evening there were cars in the ditch at many places along No. 2 Highway between Toronto and Belleville. No serious accidents were reported.

First Week Hunters Show More Deer At Road Check

The first one-week hunting holiday for hundreds of hunters came to an end Sunday as they poured down Highway 28 bound for home. They had pretty fair luck.

Conservation officers threw up a road checking station at the Burleigh-Oregon Trail road intersection early on Saturday morning. The driving snowstorm made the stopping of traffic so dangerous that officers gave up after an hour. They re-opened their station on Sunday and in seven hours, or so, checked through more than 160 cars carrying hunters, most of them with some game.

THREE ELK

There were deer aplenty, three elk, no partridge, a few individual Christmass trees and two large truckloads of trees. In the afternoon line-up there were also the last die-hard Stony Lake cottagers, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Barker who had spent the weekend at their Boschink camp. "This is absolutely the last one," said Mrs. Barker.

Officers were not as concerned with watching law-breakers as they were in examining animals and gathering data as to where they were killed. Biologist Charles Weir of Lindsay looked over jaw bones to determine ages of the deer; Reg McCulloch and deputies Art Wilson and Mel Young, both of Apsley, plotted where the hunters had been. They found they had come from Renfrew, Pembroke, Killaloe, Denby, Combermere, Maynooth, Whitney, Paudash Lake, Eel's Lake, various lakes in North Hastings county. The greatest number hailed from the north end of Peterborough County in the Apsley-Haultain areas.

Saturday's snowstorm stranded many hunters in camp. Those who had been out on early watches before the storm started found great difficulty in finding their way back to base camps. None were reported lost.

Deer hounds in back seats and in trailers looked as beaten as the hunters after a week of tough running conditions. More than one of them had tangled with porcupines and their faces were puffed out of shape with embedded quills.

SOME AMERICANS

There were a few Americans. Most of the parties had shot a fair allotment of deer. They said they were glad to be on their way home but had enjoyed their fall vacations; many of them had been coming to the Kawarthas to hunt for the past six seasons.

Had the current snow stayed in the bush, officials said, deer would start to yard up and this week's hunt would be heavier as hunters surprised them in their yards. They do not look for such conditions to take place as the snow is now melting; it will also dampen down the fire situation.

All members of the summer fire ranger staffs were called back to duty with the re-opening of the fire season on Friday. Sixty-five fires had been set in the tinder-dry bush by careless hunters but the snow put an end to the hazard.

"It is too wet in the bush today to set a watch fire," one official said and thought this condition would last until the end of the second week of the hunt, Saturday.

From officers records figures on the success of 1953 deer hunt will be compiled about the end of the year. From what they could gather by Sunday evening they thought there were more deer killed during the current first week of the hunt than there were last year at the same time.

Health Unit Names Two New Officials

COBOURG (ENS)—Two new appointments have been made to the staff of the Northumberland and Durham Counties Health Unit.

W. D. Cameron has begun his duties as plumbing inspector and his work will be in both counties. He come from the Timiskaming Health Unit and has occupied the position of plumbing inspector since 1939. Mr. Cameron is a native of Scotland. He came to Toronto, as a boy, after completing his schooling and was in the plumbing business in the city for some years and his experience will be of value in initiating the program required under the recent provincial regulations respecting plumbing and sewers, the Health Unit points out.

Murray E. McMullen, has been appointed to the staff as a sanitary inspector and will be in charge of a district in the eastern part of Durham County. He obtained his education at Stouffville and is a graduate of the sanitary inspector's course at Ryerson Institute in Toronto. Mr. McMullen is somewhat familiar with this area, having spent two months here in the summer of 1953 for field work in connection with his course of study for a certificate in sanitary inspection.

Increased Sale Of Fluid Milk

Sales of fluid milk for August in the Peterborough area were 453,720 quarts as compared with 470,095 quarts a year ago, and sales value moved in the same direction from $97,199 to $94,131.

Total volume of fluid milk for the province showed a broad increase in sales at 39,921,700 qts as compared with 37,551,300 qts in August last year.

There was no increase in the price of Ontario milk, generally, the average for August being 20.9c a quart, the same as last year.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture reports decreases of creamery butter and factory cheese for the month of September. Further shrinkage in volume as compared with a year ago is shown in the output of condensed evaporated and powdered milk.

Ocean Storms Delay Home-Bound Soldiers

QUEBEC (CP)—The liner Samaria, originally scheduled to dock here early tonight from Germany with some 850 officers and men of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade will not arrive until Wednesday night, it was learned today.

The ship has been delayed by storms on the Atlantic. The troops, under Lt.- Col. G. M. C. Sprung of Ottawa, embarked at Rotterdam last Monday. They are members of the first battalion of the 27th Brigade.

Evacuation Of Guerrillas Breaks Down After One Day

By DAVID CHIPP

TACHILEK, Burma (Reuters)—Evacuation of Chinese Nationalist guerrillas from Burma to Formosa broke down Sunday after one day in operation and with only 204 Chinese taken across the Thai border.

The guerrillas have been fighting in the jungle-clad hills of Burma since 1949 when they were forced over the Chinese frontier by the Communist troops overrunning China.

Their presence in Burma was condemned by the United Nations General Assembly last April and after months of negotiation Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's government agreed to the return of 2,000 of them by way of Thailand.

38 RECRUITS CAUSE ROW

The evacuation started Saturday but broke down because of argument over the nationality of 38 Shan tribesmen whom Burmese army officers claimed were recruited in Burma but whom the Chinese said came from Yunnan, the province of China bordering Burma.

When the Burmese refused to allow the 38 Shans to cross into Thailand, a group of 58 Chinese waiting to cross also refused to go. Both groups returned to the jungle.

Some of the Shans appeared to be Burmese nationals. Questioned through an interpreter, they said they came from the Kentung area in Burma.

They said they had been recruited a week ago. None could speak Chinese nor could they respond to the most simple military orders.

Col. Raymond D. Palmer, American chairman of the three-nation commission (United States, Burma and Thailand) supervising the evacuation, said it would start again as soon as possible.

Many Pitfalls Face Amateur In Politics

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Politics is an American national pastime, yet in no other country, except perhals France, is the politician more distrusted.

If a man today wants to find out the real defects in his character, the quickest and easiest way is to run for public office. He'll learn more about what's wrong with him in a five-week campaign than a psychiatrist could discover in a year of carefully couched questions.

"Man is a political animal," said Aristotle. Any man who says "I'm not interested in politics" can be written off as a simpleton who isn't interested in living either. For all living is politics.

There is much politics in love, but the first lesson a politician learns is there is little love in politics.

"Politics is perhaps the only profession for which no preparation is thought necessary," wrote Robert Louis Stevenson. But that was before candidates had to learn the art of television make-up.

MODESTY PAYS

One of the safest rules in politcs is to get somebody else to blow your horn for you.

A man's physiognomy as well as his public record are on trial when he seeks office. The most devastating quip on Calvin Coolidge was "he looks as if he had been weaned on a pickle."

His past phrases also are brought up to haunt the man in public life, such as Herbert Hoover's 1929 inaugural address:

"In no nation are the fruits of accomplishment more secure. . . . I have no fears for the future of country. It is bright with hope."

Later that year came an event still known as "the depression."

Snowstorm Causes 800 Accidents In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Some 800 traffic accidents, mostly minor, occurred in the Greater Toronto area following Saturday's heavy snowfall, police said today.

Treacherous driving conditions helped cause one fatality. Three-year-old Patricia Abbey was killed by a driverless truck that slipped on ice near her home.

MANY GYPSIES

Total population of various roaming gypsy tribes in Europe has been estimated at more than 900,000.

He competes in the district finals to be held at Brighton on November 20. Bobby is an 8th Grade pupil at St. Michael's School.—(Murray Smith Photo).

U.S. Heads Fresh U.N. Drive To Disarmament Solution

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States headed a new drive today to try to get world agreement on a workable disarmament program.

The American delegation to the UN placed fresh emphasis on the long-disputed issue in the light of the Korean truce.

Chief delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. was scheduled to deliver a major policy speech on the subject this morning before the General Assembly's 60-national political committee.

ARMS CUT

The western members of the present disarmament commission —Canada, Chile, China, Colombia, Denmark, France, Greece, Pebanon, Pakistan, Britain and the United States—plus Brazil, Turkey and New Zealand have backed a resolution calling for renewed efforts to bring about a cut-down in the arms race.

The resolution proposes that savings effected in such a cut-down go into an international fund to help underdeveloped countries.

Over bitter Soviet opposition and against Red counter-proposals, the United States and 23 western allies have backed a step-by-step plan for supervising an arms cut, first in conventional weapons and eventually in atomic weapons. The plan demands the setting up of means for the inspection under UN supervision of raw - material sources, atomic stockpiles and atomic-bomb plant installations of any country without restrictions.

Scientists Melt Crude Oil, Store Under Sea

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Methods of melting thick crude oil from the earth by fire and storing it under the sea have been found by petroleum scientists.

The research team of Carl S. Kuhn and Robert L. Koch reports successful field experiments to recover butter-like crude by setting off underground fires to thin the oil so it can be pumped to the surface.

The storage plan, originated by G. H. (Smoky) Billue, involves pumping crude into undersea salt domes, eliminating expensive pipelines and storage tanks.

Kuhn and Koch headed a six-year study of recovering crude by fire for Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. and its affiliates. They call their extraction process "in situ" combustion, explaining it is a Latin term meaning "in place."

In situ combustion was developed to thin or melt heavy crude with heat and force it up and out a nearby producing well. Air is pumped down an injection well to keep a portion of the oil burning and create an oil flow.

Laboratory tests showed less than 15 per cent of the crude had to be burned to liquify the remainder.

The scientists said it will take more time to streamline and economize the process for general use, but they have made a successful beginning.

A Dark Age For Our Universities?

"I find myself wondering sometimes whether this is a dark age, in which the universities must close in upon themselves to protect knowledge and understanding from debasement by false and inferior values," said Mr. Roderick Haig-Brown, the fine British Columbia author and angler in an address last week to students of Victoria College, in Victoria. (Excerpts from his speech are printed on this page today.) The thought challenges, and quite apart from Mr. Haig-Brown's own optimistic line of reasoning, one wonders whether the age is darker than it seems and if universities, as meeting-places of minds, should not close in upon themselves.

* * *

The emphasis of the new university buildings, of the new grants and scholarships, of the fellowships for research, of courses, is on applied science—engineering, physics, chemistry, economics, sociology, business. The emphasis is on so-called practical courses which set out to equip a student to earn money by practising medicine, building bridges, concocting a new synthetic substance, analysing financial statistics, writing newspaper columns, cross-sectioning society to determine its behaviour. How is replacing why as the activating word in universities. The humanities have fallen into low estate, both in the number of students and of their professors, and in the small proportion of university money and life devoted to them. Even the light of pure science has been diverted by the glint of its application to practical affairs.

* * *

The love of learning and the academic pursuit of knowledge are taking second place to the training of technicians. The broadly humane spirit that universities stand for is being crushed by the weight of material studies. Must the universities "close in upon themselves to protect knowledge and understanding from debasement by false and inferior values"? Must they re-assert their high and proper rights as societies of scholars, reject students who cannot or will not meet the challenge of academic disciplines, and turn their faces from the gold which industry, governments and individuals offer in exchange for producing atom-smashing machines, useful chemicals, and technicians?

* * *

There is probably no force as potent in universities today as the democratic insistence on education for everybody, right through the halls of colleges whether the person is able to walk with scholars or not. And there is probably no force as insidious as the demand on all sides of this materially-expanding country, that the universities produce students who know how, never mind the why. There is real danger to universities and human society in the present devotion to creative action rather than inspired thought, to doing rather than learning, even though the excuse may be that a young, growing country needs technicians and builders of the fabric. It is perilous to the humane spirit when universities' ivory towers become tiled laboratories.

President Eisenhower's Visit

President Eisenhower will visit Ottawa next week and, as is often the case, what he says in private meetings will undoubtedly be far more important than his public statements. Reports from Washington say that his address to the joint session of Parliament will simply reaffirm plans to continue and expand economic, commercial and political co-operation. After this speech has been made, however, Mr. Eisenhower is to meet in closed session with Prime Minister St. Laurent and his Cabinet. At this meeting, according to the reports, the discussions which began earlier this year when Mr. St. Laurent visited Washington will be continued, and on that basis the inclusion of certain topics may be predicted.

Defence will be one topic. The further co-ordination of North American defence is favoured by both Administrations and will be pressed. There may be a Canadian suggestion that there be greater use of weapons developed in this country, such as aircraft and radar. It is known that the Canadian Government is deeply concerned over the unbalanced condition in reciprocal military trade, and the subject will almost certainly be brought up at the closed meeting. There is hope that the President may be empowered to offer to make up the $200-million difference by placing a like amount of arms orders in Canada for delivery to European defence.

Atomic energy will also be discussed. The issue of free exchange of information between the United States and this country on nuclear matters has been overshadowed recently by discussions between the U.S. and Britain. Nevertheless, this country's acute interest in atomic power assures discussion, and it is in a good trading position. It ca offer material from the world's second largest uranium deposits in exchange for technical knowledge—and despite imports from the Belgian Congo, the United States is still hungry for uranium.

Mr. Eisenhower has already cleared the way for the St. Lawrence power project, which is now blocked only by a property owners' lawsuit. It is expected that the companion project, the St. Lawrence seaway, will be discussed during the President's visit. He has given personal approval of the project, but Congress must still be convinced that it is essential, and discussion will in all probability be centred on methods of accomplishing this. The fact that Canada has set a new deadline on U.S. participation may have some influence; an announcement from Ottawa sets June 15 of next year as the limit. After that, Canada will undertake construction alone.

Perhaps the most important discussions will deal with trade. It seems probable that President Eisenhower will be asked for his personal assurances on future U.S. trade policies regarding tariffs and import quotas. It is public knowledge that he favours freer trade, and his answer may be quotations from the foreign economic policy studies now being made by the Randall Commission in the United States. There have been reports that a system of trade preferences has been discussed informally, and that a customs union was one of the subjects discussed by the President and the Prime Minister at Washington. A factor favouring economic consultation between the two countries is the heavy American investment here, which practically assures efforts in co-ordination.

The subjects mentioned above were all discussed at Washington, although details of the discussion were not made public. Reports of proceedings at the closed meeting in Ottawa may also be curtailed. The foregoing paragraphs, however, show clearly that the President's visit may prove to be one of very great importance to this country.

What Bundles For Britain?

For the last twelve years Christmas gifts for friends and family in Britain have posed few problems of selection. Send what is rationed. Rationed goods and foods were the ones least plentiful and therefore supposedly, the most welcome as gifts. Now Britain is again becoming a country of unrationed goods. Little remains on the list; even meat (including bacon) is to be set free from controls next summer.

Therefore, this Christmas, the selection of gifts to send to Britain will be less categorical. Givers will have to pick and choose instead of issuing a blanket order for food, or sending parcels of nylons. If this Christmas the shopping for friends in England, Scotland and Ulster is a little more difficult, it should be that much more enjoyable. There was something utilitarian about "bundles for Britain." They smacked of necessary charity rather than happy gifts. They were stuffed with good intentions rather than best wishes. And what can be personal about the gift of a pound of lard?

Now the old boring, hard days are ending and we can shop with pleasure, send as the heart rather than the head chooses, and have the fun of treating our own fancy in the quest to cater to the fancy of our friends and relatives. It should be a more tasty Christmas giving, this year, even if we send less food. And we suspect that our British friends will be more pleased with the parcels, too.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A U.S. church group has asked President Eisenhower to "prevent" profanity in the armed forces. Before taking action on this we suggest that the President re-read the story of King Canute.

Great excitement is being caused by the production of popcorn that tastes like bananas. But who would give a hoot if somebody offered them a banana that tasted like popcorn?

We read with relief that the picture of the Queen to appear on the new dollar bills will be different from the one on the stamps. That stamp job still ranks as subversive activity.

Cash prizes of $12,000 are being offered for the best design for a Canadian home. We could design a beauty, but it would take more than a trivial $12,000 to build it.

In North America there are about two million people who do not speak English. Surely there can't be that many train-callers! They must be counting Toronto streetcar men.

What is a brief? The Brantford Expositor rightly applies the name to a local annexation claim, which runs to 9,000 words, or a little more than one word an acre.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

THE official syllabus of the Eighth Annual Kiwanis Music Festival to be held in Peterborough is just out: that is to say I received it a few days ago and have been scanning its contents. Copies are obtained from Mrs. A. M. Rees, General Delivery, Peterborough. The Festival is taking place earlier than usual, from March 9 to 17, and the last date for entries is of course correspondingly early—January 15. This may seem quite a generous amount of time, but in actual fact it is barely enough. I have always been urging my friends of the Peterborough Kiwanis to get their syllabus out earlier, but unless one has some practical experience of the difficulties one cannot understand fully the paramount necessity of promptness in this regard. It is not merely a question of learning a piece within the requisite time, though this alone is a big problem in these days of organized leisure. On top of this are the delays that one too frequently encounters when ordering the music. Every effort is made to ensure that there are stocks available of the set pieces, but now and then there is a run on the market and a fresh batch has to be ordered from overseas or across the border, causing delay.

✧ ✧ ✧

I MAKE this criticism with the utmost of reluctance for fear of appearing ungracious in view of the expenditure of so much time and energy on behalf of the art of music by the public-spirited sponsors of this noble enterprise: nevertheless they must agree that if a thing is worth doing it is worth doing well. I have spoken on this matter with several teachers, and they are unanimous that the lateness of the syllabus has deterred many prospective competitors.

✧ ✧ ✧

APART from this syllabus difficulty the organization of the Peterborough Festival last year was beyond criticism. Everything went (or seemed to go) like clockwork. The experience of previous years has proved invaluable in ironing out difficulties beforehand. The choice of St. Peter's Auditorium was splendid, and I hope that it will once again be available. It is still not too late for competitors to make up their minds to enter, and though there is no time to dally it can be done.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE other day I went to a film that annoyed me intensely. It concerned the nightmare of a little boy who had been made to practise by his mother. This little boy would far rather have spent his time playing baseball or fishing, but his tyrannical and odious teacher, Dr. Terwillicker, aided and abetted by the little boy's mother, insisted on him practising an odious little piece entitled "Ten Little Happy Fingers," one of Dr. T.'s own compositions. The lad falls asleep at the keyboard and finds himself once again in the clutches of Dr. T.; but now this monster of sadism is armed with powers that he never possessed in the ordinary world of waking life. He is pictured as inordinately vain and egocentric, diabolically cruel, immensely wealthy (unlike 99.9 percent of music teachers) and mentally unhinged.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE climax of the nightmare is the grand opening ceremony of Dr. T.'s Happy Finger Academy, with the Professor himself conducting 500 wretched little boys seated in line at an immensely long keyboard in a performance of his chef d'oeuvre. The eclat of this lugubrious function is somewhat marred by our young hero, who strikes up an alliance with a visiting plumber and together with him invents a chemical compound that soeks up the sound from the atmosphere and reduces Dr. T. and 5,000 fingers to silence.

✧ ✧ ✧

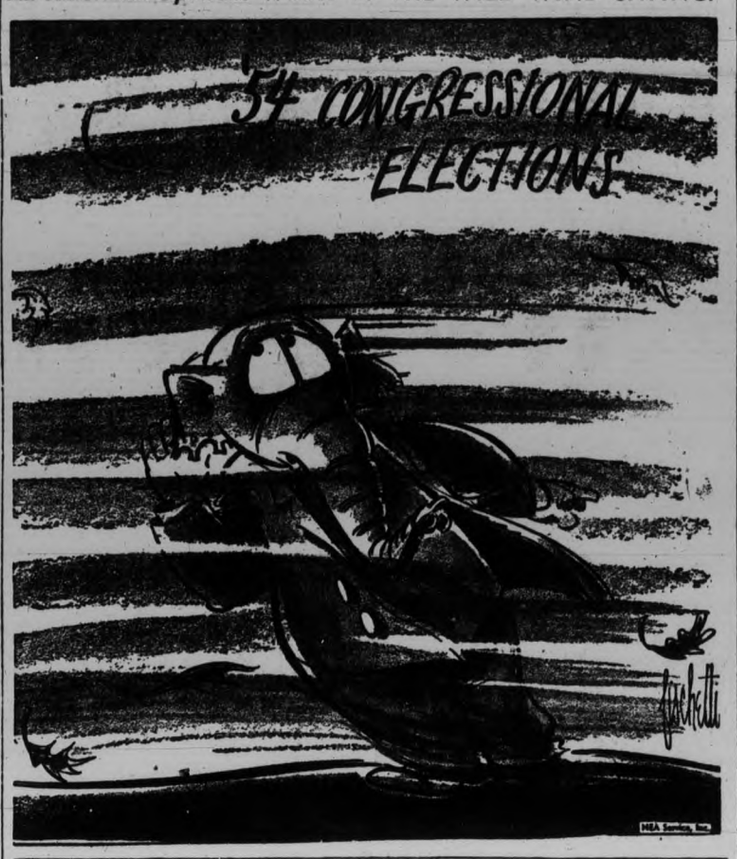
THIS is a film that displays a remarkable amount of imagination and is in some ways excellent entertainment. Yet I can imagine the outcry if the villain of the piece had been a docor, dentist or a clergyman. I only suppose that the makers of this film assumed that it would be safe to attack the poor depressed class of professional music teachers without fear of an adverse reaction. To my mind it is an underhand and mean assault on an underpaid, undervalued and over-worked profession. It is deliberately calculated to give the impression to the young mind that playing the piano is a dreary and pointless chore, and that the whole profession of music teaching is a racket imposed by designing and sadistic charlatans on gullible parents as a means to obtaining fabulous riches. Anybody who knows the real facts realizes that this is a hideous travestry of them, but how are the impressionable young to know any better?

✧ ✧ ✧

FAR be it from me to suggest that from now on music teachers should be presented in films as knights in shining armour, but this film, "The 5,000 Fingers of Dr. T.," has all the marks of a spiteful attack on a whole profession, and as such it is to be deplored.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS a well-known fact that Myra Hess, the distinguished English pianist usually plays in concerts with the music in front of her. Her reasons for doing so are less well-known. Apparently she got to hear that a student was penalized in an examination conducted by a certain conservatory in Canada for not having memorized his work, and Miss Hess thereupon decided to play from her music in future as a gesture of protest against the prevalent custom of playing from memory in recitals. Perhaps also she may have begun to place less reliance on her own memory with the onset of age. Whatever the underlying cause she has won very few converts to her standard.



✧ ✧ ✧

I AM afraid that present-day audiences tend more and more to look at performers and less and less to listen to them. Far more attention seems to be paid to the beautiful gown that such-and-such a singer wore or to the unruly forelock of the latest pianist than to the sounds that issue from their throats or fingers: at least, that is the impression that I get from conversations during intermissions.

✧ ✧ ✧

SURELY it doesn't matter a rap whether a performer plays from memory or not, so long as the performance is not impaired one way or the other. A concert is not a spectacle. Certain rules of good manners and common sense, known as "platform deportment," are necessary, if only to prevent the attention of the wayward audiences from being distracted by unessentials. I strongly depreciate the present tendency towards mounting a concert as though it were a theatrical performance, with spotlights on the performer and subdued lighting in the auditorium. It is often too dark even to read a programme, not to mention following the music with a score. If concerts are to be stage productions the performers might at least be thoroughgoing and wear fantastic costumes, green make-up and what-have you. But personally I prefer the old fashioned ways of presenting a concert: I glory in the name of fogey.

An American Opinion: WHAT IS THE WILD WIND SAYING?

For The Meeting-Place Of Minds

UNIVERSITIES are traditionally the meeting-place of minds. Any man or woman should be able to pass through one without attending a single lecture—though I hope no one here will try it—and come out a better and more useful person. University life has often been considered remote from the world, unpractical, unrealistic. Yet universities have been guardians of the world's knowledge in dark times, and a major factor in the enlightenment of bright times.

It might better be said that university life comes close to being as valuable and practical as any that man has yet worked out for himself.

In North America today about 10 per cent of the population receives some university training, and about 4 per cent complete four or more years of it. These are very high figures, far higher, I believe than those of any other nations in history: yet they still represent a select and highly privileged minority.

And it would be a bold man who would venture to say what proportion of this group leaves the universities as nothing more than trained technicians, and what proportion actually carries out into the world something of the broadly humane spirit that universities stand for.

I find myself wondering sometimes whether this is a dark age, in which universities must close in upon themselves to protect knowledge and understanding from debasement by false and inferior values, or whether it is a bright age, in which they can hope to reach out with knowledge and understanding to improve the second-rate and replace false things with true ones.

BRIGHT AGE

In my optimistic moments—and they are with me most of the time—I believe it is a bright age, but constantly and gravely and rather attractively threatened by darkness. It is the age of mass production; mass information, mass entertainment; the age of expedient things, material things, of smoothly packaged things—the age of second-rate things passing as first-rate things. In consumer's goods this is fine. The things can be worn out and cheaply discarded, because they can be almost as cheaply replaced.

But it is also the age of mass education, and a lot of people would very much like it to be the age of mass thinking and mass behavior as well. It would be so convenient and so efficient and so very comfortable that way.

My optimistic moments about all this are numerous because I have a profound faith in the infinite variety, the creative spirit and the innate wilfulness of human beings. I do not think they want to be reduced or limited or made sterile, even for physical comfort and what seems like mental ease. I am sure that man has a surging spirit that will not be put down or disciplined too heavily for very long.

But I am equally sure that it does no harm to foster and encourage this spirit; it may be indestructible but it can curl up and lie low in a period of stress, and those periods are pretty terrible ones for mankind.

A NATION TO BUILD

You people have a country to develop and a nation to build, not just for your lifetime but for the future; not just for Canada's sake, but for the sake of mankind. It is your business to examine and question everything—government, industry, art, the judiciary, public services, your own lives and your own jobs—closely and constantly, by first-rate standards. You should ask again and again not merely:

"What are these things doing for men and women?" but "What are they doing to men and women?" And you should never be satisfied, never convinced that anything is as good as it should be—because if you are it will surely go bad by tomorrow.

People do not perform well in challenging, worthwhile jobs simply because they are technically trained to perform well in them. To perform well in such jobs, in any job that deals primarily with people from teaching to selling, from law to medicine, from engineering to politics, men and women have to be whole and rounded people.

That means carrying on out into the world with you the sort of growth you have learned to make in college; it means reading and talking and developing opinions, it means keeping alive, being responsive, always reaching for something better than the best you know.

So I urge upon you discontent, discontent with things as they are, discontent with yourselves. But let it be a constructive and informative discontent, not a curdling and destructive one, the sort of discontent that pushes you on to do more and enjoy more and, above all, to be more, for yourselves as well as for everyone else.

I hope you will slight security and spurn it, not once, but again and again all through your lives. It should have little meaning for you. Others may need it, and if you believe they do, then try to make sure they have it. But for you there can be little gain in security. Your real security is in your own worth.

Sole Computations

(Windsor Star)

Know that you can work out your age by your shoes size?

Here's how it works:

Write down you shoe size to the nearest full number—for example, a 9½ shoe would be a nine. Double it and you have 18.

Add 39 and you get 57. Multiply by 5 and that gives you 285.

Add three to the last answer and it gives you 2853.

Subtract the year in which you were born from that figure (say it was in 1927) and you get 926.

Ergo—size nine shoe and age 26!

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Wherefore doth a living man complain, a man for the punishment of his sins? Let us search and try our ways, and turn again to the Lord. (Lam. 3:39, 40.)

✧ ✧ ✧

If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not?....Furthermore we have had our fathers of the flesh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits, and live? For they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness. Now no chastennig for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruits of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby. (Heb. 12:7, 9-11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit reap life everlasting. (Gal. 6: 7, 8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

I have set the Lord always before me: because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth: my flesh also shall rest in hope. For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore. (Ps. 16:8-11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? (Ps. 27:1.)

Letter To The Editor

SIR:

Congratulations to you four
Who took the time and went to war,
Against that terrible Council pack,
That placed the Dump upon your back.

And Mr. Fair, to you also
A million thanks and praises go,
You took the case to court, to see
Who'd come out most triumphantly.

Now time and money have been shot,
But these four men their wishes got,
Because they had the gall to fight
For what they commonly thought was right.

The township Dump has been condemned,
The By-laws they'll have to amend,
So now well take our junk and cans
And dump them on the Councillors' lands!

"Atticus," writing in the Sunday Times, London, mentions an organization which Canadians will wish to join. Some years ago, it seems, Lord Stanley of Alderley founded a club whose aims and requirements are most attractive.

No dues or other monies are demanded. Most of the members do not know one another. There is only one requirement for membership. Each member, when writing to a government department must end the letter with:

"You are, my dear sir, my humble and obedient servant."

This reminder seems an excellent one.

ORFUNS WIN ONTARIO FOOTBALL TITLE

Down The Oakville Knights To Take Series By 26-6 On Snow-Covered Gridiron

By CEC. PERDUE

With snow slanting across the flootlit beams on a white chewed-up gridiron at Morrow Park on Saturday evening, Peterborough Orfuns blanked Oakville Black Knights 7-0 to take the ORFU intermediate "A" championship by 26-6 on the round. They had won the first Ontario playoff game 19-6 at Oakville a week previous, and now go to Montreal this weekend to defend their Eastern Canada title won a year ago. Saturday's struggle was staged in almost impossible weather as four to five inches of sticky snow blanketed the field and the stuff fell throughout the tussle with an east wind blowing. Many of the players wore gloves but the wet ball made for frequent fumbles.

A LATE START

Due to start at two o'clock, the playoff didn't commence until 10 minutes before five. Field officials phoned at game time from Welcome that they were held up in an accident-caused highway traffic snarl and would be at least an hour late arriving. They finally reached the city but half of the Oakville team and equipment didn't arrive till later because of the slip highway and accidents along the way. One carload of players didn't get here at all. A fair-sized crowd of fans gradually dwindled although several hundred remained grimly to the finish.

Coach Tony Kotowski told his charges to play careful, defensive ball under such trying conditons in order to protect that 13-point lead for the first fray. They did that but still outplayed a determined Oakville outfit and might have added a couple of touchdowns but for costly fumbles when in scoring position. Willie Rogers took chances for the Knights and threw quite a few passes, clicking on some but having two intercepted. Orfuns threw few.

GOOD HOOFING

Don Bark kicked a good game for the champions in the snow till he limped off late in the tilt with a bad knee. Joe Berthelot was helped off earlier after being banged in the middle. Oakville's kicking by Rogers and Sullivan was below form this game. The local line proved too solid for the visitors who made few gains through the wall. Peterborough's ground attack once more rolled up the yardage, though fumbles and a few penalties set them back at crucial times. Orfuns had eight first downs to the losers' five.

Chief ground-gainers for Peterborough were Bus Jensen, who turned in a starry chore, Bill Huntley — who won the Black Trophy this year as most valuable ORFU player—and Lou Nickle, while others prominent in spots on the attack were Roy Armstrong, Carl Brioux, Bev Groves, Dave Langhorne, Reg Fowler and Don McGillis. Best offensively for Oakville were Willie Rogers, Ed Sullivan, Ken Pollock and Jake Fennell. They missed their running ace Lloyd Crowley.

LOST ON DOWNS

A short kickoff by the Knights was taken by Groves at centre but Orfuns couldn't get going and lost on downs. Bill Trimm tackled Sullivan for a loss and they booted to Jensen. Later Bark kicked and Sullivan took a Rogers' pass for 12. Pollock took another pass but it was caled back for a penalty and Oakville lost possession. Jensen snared a short Milligan pass and they hoofed it away. Rogers threw a 15-yard forward to Sullivan and then Bark intercepted another pass try. Huntley and Armstrong bucked to move the sticks at quarter's end.

Opening the second stanza, Huntley knifed for 12 snowy yards. A pass misfired and they kicked, a no-yards penalty going against the Kotowski crew. McKay snatched a Petes' fumble later but Jensen jumped to intercept a pass, crawling five yards more in the muck. Huntley bucked eight and Jensen broke through to dash 35 to Oakville's five. But a fumble followed in the backfield and Oakville recovered. Orfuns' line held and Rogers kicked short to Jerry McGillis, who ran 10 more. Jensen and Armstrong bucked for yards and then the machine bogged down in the snow and Bark booted to deadline for a single.

ORFUNS PRESS

After halftime, Army and Jensen fashioned a first down, with Huntley and Armstrong again moving the sticks. Groves got five on a reverse and his fumble was grabbed by Gord Beatty. Bark's kick was butter-fingered by Rogers and snared by an alert Floyd Ouellette on Knights' 27-yard strip. An exchange of short kicks followed and Nickle drove for five. A penalty forced a kick and Sullivan took a 15-yard pass, but Frank Fitzgerald snaffled an Oakville passer's fumble, and Nickle moved the yardstick before the flag went down.

After losing on downs in the fourth, Orfuns were threatened on a 16-yard end run by Rogers, followed by a Petes' penalty for two first downs. A long completed Oakville pass was called back and Bounce Howe got in to smear Rogers on a bad snap. Langhorne skated around end for six and Milligan, faking a kick threw a nifty long pass to Don McGillis, who held well the slippery pigskin. Brioux and Fowler got 10 between them and they drove in closer with Dave Langhorne finally streaking over on a quarterback sneak for a touchdown, Bill Huntley converting it. Bartley got through fast for a nice tackle on their Kicker, and Nickle rolled for 17 to Oakville's 38. Groves got five more on his reverse special and they were threatening again at the final gun. Teams:

With this honor goes the John Black Trophy. Two years ago, Huntley jointly held this trophy with Jimmy Loreno, of Oshawa.

Albert College Rubs Out Senior Saints

Showing superior form but throwing away their advantage, St. Peter's High was knocked out of COSSA football competition Saturday sustaining a 5-0 loss at the hands of Albert College.

The only score of the game came when hard-running Jerry Lake of Albert carried the ball 85 yards, eluding three St. Peter's tacklers for a major score.

St. Peter's big chance came late in the game as a climax to a downfall march by the Peterborough team. Only four yards on a third down the St. Peter's ball carrier fumbled and the ball was recovered by the same Jerry Lake who had broken St. Peter's fans heart earlier.

POOR CONDITIONS

Officials of the two teams almost decided not to play the game because of the unmarked, snow-covered field, and the lack of refereeing. Two Toronto officials finally did show up after a car accident.

As a result of a time shortage, however, the game was played on straight time.

Dick Foley played St. Peter's outstanding game. His punts, in spite of a stiff north wind, consistently drove Albert backfielders back.

The snow could be blamed for several fumbles on both sides but it wasn't until three minutes to go, and when the ball was dropped near the Albert goaline, that one proved to be costly.

St. Peter's missed another point just prior to Lake's great run in the second quarter. Foley kicked into the Albert end zone where the visitor's runner was smeared but the play was disallowed because the runner was given no yards.

Emms Gets Gate As Flyers Beaten By Galt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was like old times in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Saturday.

The league, known in the past for its colorful incidents, was fairly quiet during the first 50 games of the 1953-54 season. But there was an indication in Galt Saturday night that things will be restored to normal.

While Galt Black Hawks were on their way towards handing the Barrie coach Hap Emms was asked to leave arena. Following the departure of Emms, ejected for arguing a penalty against the Flyers too vehemently, the teams took up the battle in a third-period brawl which resulted in four major penalties and two 10-minute misconducts.

Elsewhere in the league, Hamilton Tigers fired an overtime goal on home ice to defeat the league-leading St. Catharines TeePees 6-5.

HOME TEAM WINS

In the Sunday doubleheader at Toronto both home teams were successful. Toronto Marlboros defeated the last-place Quebec Citadelles 4-2 and Toronto St. Michael's College Majors downed Galt Black Hawks 4-1.

At Galt the Hawks slammed home three unanswered tallies in the second period to win. Ralph Markarian, Rick Collin, Ron Halstead, John Sleaver and Pete Kowalachuk scored for Galt. Ross Hudson, Cleland Mortson, Don Cherry and Jim Robertson were the Barrie marksmen.

PAYOFF GOAL

In Hamilton Ed Loutitt's second goal of the night, this one in overtime, gave the Tigers a 6-5 victory over St. Catharines. Marlin McAlendin, Larry Hillman, Ted Reid and Fred Mitchell fired the other goals for Hamilton. Brian Cullen led the TeePees with two goals. Jack Higgins, Barry Cullen and Hugh Barlow scored the others.

Dave Reid scored a goal a period in Toronto Sunday to spark Marlboros. Howie Glover notched the other for the Toronto crew. Mike Ratchford and Pat Prestley bagged the Quebec goals.

Jim Logan fired two markers for St. Michael's. Ray Hannigan and Dick Duff salted it away for the Irish. Rick Collin scored for Galt.

Kitchener Greenshirts play host to St. Catharines and Quebec travels to Galt Tuesday night.

FIND WINS CAP

NEW YORK (AP)—Alfred Vanderbilt's Find sloshed to victory in the $50,000 added Empire City Handicap Saturday and moved his owner's earnings to near the $1,000,000 mark for the season. Find led from the start.

Find, ridden by Eric Guerin, won by a half length over the Valley Farm's Impasse, with third money going to Mrs. Harry L. Nathenson's Guy.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Congrats to the champs, the Peterborough Orfuns, who Saturday won the ORFU intermediate "A" championship for the second straight year. Beat Oakville Black Knights 7-0 here to sweep the Ontario final series 26-6 and qualify for the Eastern Canada final in Montreal next weekend. Whether Montreal will guarantee Orfuns' expenses for the trip— as required by the CRU— or not we don't know at this writing, but they're supposed to do so. If they do, the game will be Sunday in the metropolis and Orfuns' officials will have to decide early this week on the method of transportation, plane or train. An early meeting will be held. ORFU intermediate manager Bill Fry couldn't get through from Toronto on Saturday to attend the game and make arrangements for the next round.

* * * * * *

Neither could field officials and Oakville players get through to start the game on time. The sudden heavy snowstorm caused slippery highways and traffic tie-ups here and there (especially at Welcome) with many accidents occurring. So the game didn't get underway in Morrow Park till nearly five o'clock, instead of two, and was played under flood lights. Four to five inches of snow blotting out lines on the gridiron, plus a driving fall of snow throughout, didn't help matters, either. We can't recall seeing a local team trying to play football under such conditions. But Oakville had to play it, too, and they were minus several of their good players.

Outplayed by Orfuns

The Knights made it a real battle but were outplayed again by Orfuns, local fumbles keeping down the Peterborough total. It was pretty much two bucks and a kick with Orfuns as they played it close to their fur-lined vests. Knights had to take chances and had several passes intercepted. Jim Milligan did fake one fine pass to Don McGillis and set them up for a touchdown by Dave Langhorne. It was converted by Bill Huntley. Their other point was a kick to deadline by Don Bark. The Knights never seriously threatened in close though they fought doggedly to the finish. A fairish crowd for the weather but many left during the long delay. However, quite a few stuck it out.

* * * * * *

All the champs went well in this fray and 'twas good to see Don McGillis, Johnny Berry and Beak Bartley back in action. Still a few absentees, and Bark and Berthelot suffered injuries this game—but should be okay within the week. Bill Huntley deservedly won the John Black trophy as most valuable ORFU intermediate player this year, as voted upon by Ontario field officials. It is only fitting as the chunky Orfuns' backfielder is a standout in all departments and would help any Big Four club. Grid fans here long will recall this memorable playoff triumph for Orfuns in the heavy snowstorm, a game nearly three hours late in starting. But "better late than never" they say.

SPS Edged in Snow

Terrible weather prevailed at Riverside Park, too, on Saturday when Albert College of Belleville pulled out a 5-0 victory against St. Peter's High to advance into COSSA senior "B" finals. This game was late starting, also, on a snow-clogged gridiron and late-arriving officials were tempted to postpone it. However, they finally decided to play it off and a fumbling fray ensued Johnny Lynch's local squad battled hard but had some costly fumbles, and the one scoring break of the tilt came on an 85-yard run by Jerry Lake of Albert for an unconverted touchdown. Dick Foley booted well for SPS in the heavy going. Game was played in straight time after the tardy start. Tough luck on the good SPS squad. Welland beat Barrie to make COSSA senior "A" finals and will play PCVS here Saturday afternoon in the big joust for the title.

* * * * * *

Those horrible Mills brothers return to the mat ring here this week, going together in a tag team bout against Timothy Geohagen and Oyama Kato (Jap grabbler) in the main tilt. It's Wednesday eve at the Brock Arena, Pat Flanagan meets Firpo Zbyszbo in the semi-final, as Johnny Harmon tackles Al Costello in the prelim. But it's that main bout which will pack in the customers. The payees comeout to hate those huge villainous westerners, Al and Tiny Mills, and they hate 'em out loud! Up in Toronto they figure Joe Louis as referee when the Mills duo go in a tag team bout as the pair use everything but legal wrestling tactics. They'd just as soon crown a rival with a chair as apply a hammerlock.

Orfuns' President Praises Local Fans

Following the football playoff here Saturday when Orfuns beat Oakville for the Ontario intermediate "A" championship, club president Dr. Donald Aitken said in an interview:

"Our club certainly appreciates the support and the patience of Peterborough football followers in braving such weather to cheer us along. We especially thank the many who stayed through the long delay until the Oakville team and officials arrived and remained throughout the game. That's real support and very encouraging to a club under such terrible weather conditions. We had hoped to improve our financial status considerably at this playoff but the weather was against us, and we're further than ever in the hole now."

Dr. Aitken said he would know by this evening what the setup is concerning the Eastern Canada final, following an afternoon meeting in Toronto today of CRU, QRFU and ORFU officials. A local meeting will be held to discuss the next round this evening.

Chicoutimi First With 7-4 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicoutimi Sagueneens stood alone in first place in the Quebec Hockey League today after outscoring Valleyfield Braves 7-4 at Valleyfield Sunday night.

Quebec Aces, who could have overtaken the leaders, stayed in second spot by dropping a 4-2 decision to Montreal Royals and Ottawa Senators dropped to a third-place tie with the Royals as a result of their scoreless deadlock with Sherbrooke Saints, still the league's cellar team.

In Saturday's games, Chicoutimi beat Ottawa 4-2 in the capital city and Quebec travelled to Springfield and shut out the Indians 2-0.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

This afternoon 40 lady curlers commenced play for the Ostrander Trophy and tonight 112 men curlers will start their long grind in quest of the Homy Foote Memorial Trophy.

Tomorrow another group of curlers—ladies and gents—will do the same thing, and so it goes on and on day after day, right up till March 31, 1954. That we are going to have a very busy season at curling there is no doubt. The schedule book tells us so.

And before the season is too far advanced we would like to pass on to curlers—ladies and gents, new and old, just a few things to keep in mind:

Remember:

You get out of this game of curling, just what you put into it.

It's played by gentlemen, with gentlemen.

Play hard to win, but play fair and keep it clean.

Be on time for all games, one curler coming late can upset the best laid plans.

Play your position and do the best you can—your skip will show appreciation.

Curling is a study of a life time, in which you may exhaust yourself but never subject.

Tigers Slip Back To '52 Form With Two Losses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tigers, who won their first four games of the 1953-54 schedule, appear to have slipped back to the brand of play that won them only two games during last season's Ontario Hockey Association Senior A play.

The Tabbies, showing a reversal of early form, have dropped four consecutive games. They suffered a double defeat during the weekend—a 3-2 decision by the Greenshirts in Kitchener Saturday and a 10-2 pasting by the Bulldogs in Windsor Sunday.

In other Saturday games Owen Sound Mercurys climbed into first place with a 7-3 trouncing of Chatham Maroons in Owen Sound, Stratford Indians edged Windsor 5-4 in Stratford and Sarnia Sailors shut out the last-place Niagara Falls 1-0 in Sarnia.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series Saturday Sudbury Wolves trampled North Bay Trappers 8-2 and Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds defeated Pembroke Lumber Kings 5-2. Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians beat the Lumber Kings 8-2 Sunday.

LATE SURGE

In Owen Sound the Mercurys scored four goals in the final period. Tom Burlington and Bill McComb tallied twice each. Buck Forslund, Doug Gillespie and Bill Hagen netted the others. Al Plouffe Bill Lee and Doug French scored for Chatham.

Fred Hildebrand struck three times for Windsor Bulldogs as they were defeated 5-4 by the Indians. Mickey Roth scored twice for the winners and Apples Finkbeiner, Don Oberholtzer and Billy Frick rounded out the total. Dick Kotanen scored the other goal for the Bulldogs.

Harry O'Connor's first-period goal was all the Sailors needed to hand Niagara Falls its ninth loss.

KULLMAN NETS THREE

Sunday Wally Kullman scored three goals for Windsor. Hildebrand added two with Frank Bathgate, Kotanen, Gord Haidy, Lyle Wiseman and Alex Birukow sharing the others.

Chatham is at Windsor, Stratford at Niagara Falls and Hamilton at Owen Sound Tuesday.

Bisons Win 8-1 Over Syracuse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons continued to thunder along in the American Hockey League during the week-end, stampeding over Syracuse Warriors 8-1 Sunday to remain well in front of the pack.

In the only other game Sunday, Providence Reds climbed out of the cellar with a 3-1 decision over Pittsburgh Hornets.

At Buffalo, rookies Russ Kowalchuk getting three goals and Marshall two. Gaye Stewart, Pete Wright and Eddie Slowinski completed the route. Bill Gooden was the Syracuse marksman.

At Providence, second-period goals by Pete Kapusta and Ken Davies turned the trick. Rookie Parker MacDonald scored for the Hornets and Paul Gladu matched it with the Reds final goal.

Detroit Scrambles For Two Ties In Weekend Game

By ED SIMON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

There is a natural temptation today to write down Detroit Red Wings, the National Hockey League's perennial champions. Twice this weekend the Wings had to scramble for a tie against clubs that not even their best friends would rate on a par with the mighty Detroiters. Instead of gaining on league-leading Montreal Canadiens, held to an even break by Boston Bruins Detroit dropped into a second-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs and have the Bruins breathing down their necks a single point back.

All this resulted from 2-2 ties against the Leafs and New York Rangers in which the five-time league title-holders never held the lead at any stage. Alex Delvecchio saved them in Toronto Saturday night with some six minutes' playing time left. Ted Lindsay cut it finer Sunday, tying it up with less than three minutes to go.

But there are signs that the Detroit situation isn't as unhealthy as it appears at first glance.

TWO MORE GAMES

In their 13 starts this season, the Wings have won six, lost three and tied four. That leaves them four points behind the Canadiens, who have an identical 2-1 ratio of wins over losses and have played two more games.

The Detroit defensive average of 1.38 goals a game scored against them is easily the best in the NHL. Rookie centre Earl Reibel and his famed line-mates, Lindsay and Gordie Howe, top the league scoring race, with defenceman Red Kelly close behind.

Tod Sloan and George Armstrong were the Leaf marksmen Saturday night. Lindsay fired the first Detroit goal.

In other action Saturday, the Canadiens beat Boston for the first time this season, 5-2, and New York edged last-place Chicago Black Hawks 3-1. The Hawks suffered their second home loss Sunday as the Leafs edged them 2-1. The Bruins blanked Montreal 2-0 at Boston.

SECOND SHUTOUT

Defenceman Tom Johnson, filling in at centre for the short-handed Habitants, scored the winning goal and set up another by Bernie Geoffrion in the Canadiens' home victory. Ken Mosdell, Lorne Davis and Paul Meger were the other Montreal marksmen. Leo Labine and Johnny Peirson scored for the Bruins.

Peirson and Labine again did the scoring Sunday, firing their goals less than three minutes apart early in the third period to give the Bruins their second shutout of the year.

A penalty to Reibel indirectly paved the way for Detroit's tying goal against the Rangers. Emerging from the box after serving his sentence, the uncovered rookie raced in to blast a shot at New York goalie Johnny Bower.

At Chicago Saturday, veteran centre Max Bentley salted the game away for the Rangers in the first period, setting up Billy (Hard Rock) Dea for one tally and scoring a second unassisted within 12 seconds of first-period play.

Camille Henry widened the margin late in the second period and defenceman Bill Gadsby got the lone Chicago counter early in the third.

The Hawks' Sunday night loss to Toronto followed a similar pattern. Bobby Hassard gave Toronto the lead in the first period and defenceman Tim Horton made it 2-0 early in the third before George Gee put the losers on the scoresheet. It was the Hawks' fourth straight defeat.

Three In Running As Queen's, Blues Win Tilts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three senior intercollegiate football union teams remained in the running for the title today with a couple of old rivals, University of Toronto Blues and University of Western Ontario Mustangs, in the favored positions. They are tied at the top of the standings with eight points each, two up on Queen's Golden Gaels.

The Blues rubbed it in on the defending champion Mustangs at Toronto Saturday with a 12-0 decision on a snow-covered Varsity Stadium field before 10,000 fans. At Hamilton, the Gaels kept their playoff chances alive with a 28-0 victory over McMaster Marauders, also on a greasy, snow-sprinkled field and before 1,000 fans.

The week-end activity set the stage for the final scheduled games next Saturday when the Blues and Gaels meet at Kingston and Mustangs have a home date against the fourth-place McGill Redmen.

The Blues converted Mustang miscues into touchdowns.

After a scoreless first half, Varsity went ahead when a bad Western snap sailed 35 yards over the head of Flying Wing Jocko Thompson and the ball was gathered up by Toronto on the Western 20. Steve Handyk hit half Bob Pinkney with a short pass and Steve Oneschuk pitched to end Ted Kennedy on the five and the end ambled over.

Those were the only two Varsity pass completions in four tries.

In th fourth quarter, the Blues picked up a Jacques Belec fumble on the Western 20 and half Phil Muntz crashed over on second down from the 11. Steve Oneschuk converted both majors.

Ron Stewart, 162-pound halfback from Toronto, scored three touchdowns for the second straight week in the Gaels' triumph. Pete Zarry scored the other while Frank Geard kicked three singles. Pete Cranston two converts and Wally Mellor one and Lorne Wrigglesworth conceded a safety touch for the other two points.

Marauders, who completed the season with six straight losses, penetrated into Queen's territory only once—on a 36-yard passing play from Joe Kosakowski to Burt Kellock. They fumbled on the next play.

Four Teams Fall In Junior Rugby

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four teams dropped out of competition during the weekend as the Canadian Junior Football eliminations were narrowed down to the eastern and western finals.

Verdun Shamcats won the Quebec Junior Championship and the right to enter the eastern finals when they trounced Ottawa St. Anthony's 21-0 in Montreal Sunday.

The other finalists for the eastern title, Windsor AKO, were decided in Hamilton Saturday when AKO defeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats 20-7.

Vancouver Blue Bombers, who won the Alberta-British Columbia championship edging out Calgary Bronks 3-0 in Vancouver Saturday, will clash with Saskatoon Hilltops in the western final. Saskatoon won the Saskatchewan-Manitoba crown by smearing Winnipeg Western Wildcats 25-1 in Saskatoon Saturday.

Both Canadian semi-finals will be played Nov. 14. The western representatives will be decided at Vancouver. The eastern final will be played in Windsor. The Dominion final is scheduled for the home grounds of the western winner Nov. 21.

Maurice Richard, famed right-winger of Montreal Canadiens, fired his first NHL goal 11 years ago tonight. And exactly 10 years later he established an all-time record of 325 goals, breaking the mark of 324 set by Nels Stewart of the old Montreal Maroons, Boston Bruins and New York Americans.

NY Names Firms For Seaway Hydro Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two engineering firms were named Sunday to direct construction of the New York state half of the $600,000,000 St. Lawrence river power project.

Charles M. Goetz, Washington counsel for the power authority of New York, said Sanderson and Porter, New York city, and Charles T. Main, Inc., have been named for the job.

New York will join with the Ontario hydro-electric power commission in building the international project which, engineers estimate, will produce more than 12,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of energy a year.

The New York authority has been granted a 50-year licence by the federal power commission to construct and administer the U.S. half of the project. President Eisenhower last Thursday signed an executive order formally designating New York as the U.S. partner in the undertaking.

Actual construction of the huge project will not begin for several months, pending the outcome of litigation instituted by opponents who seek to bar New York from participating.

The justice department Saturday petitioned the U.S. court of appeals to give the suits a speedy hearing. The department asked that arguments on the opponent's petitions for a rescinding or a review of the FPC order granting the licence be heard by mid-December.

FINANCING METHOD

Goetz, in announcing that the two firms will begin their duties today, said that arrangements have been completed with four New York city investment firms to underwrite the $315,000,000 New York share of the financing.

The firms are Harriman Ripley Co., Lehman Brothers, R. W. Pressprich and Co., and the Union Security Corp.

Goetz said that the two engineering firms selected bear approval of the underwriters. Each, he said, has had more than 50 years' experience in constructing steam and hydro-electric generating plants both in the U.S. and abroad.

Jail 2nd Suspect In Metals Theft

TORONTO (CP)—A second suspect in the $250,000 platinum-concentrate robbery in Port Colborne last week was arrested here Saturday.

Edward Blair, 29, of Toronto, was arrested and charged with the theft after being spotted by an off-duty policeman. Constable E. Williams of the traffic squad said he saw Blair driving on a Toronto street.

The other suspect in the robbery last Wednesday is Joseph Harboway, 36, of Toronto. Harboway is in a Hamilton hospital with a broken neck, suffered in an automobile accident.

Fear Five Drown In River Storm

MT. CLEMENTS, Mich. (AP)—One body was recovered Sunday and four other persons were feared drowned in the wind-whipped waters of the St. Clair river.

The body of John J. Jesky, 37, of Detroit, was found floating near Harsens island, where the river empties into Lake St. Clair.

Jesky and his brother-in-law, Walter Wells, 28, also of Detroit, went duck hunting Saturday despite 40-mile northeast winds and posted storm warnings. No trace has been found of Wells. Their small boat was found capsized.

Three fishermen who set out in a small cabin cruiser Saturday afternoon also were missing. State police found what was believed to be wreckage of their boat.

The three were Leo Renkowski, 58, of Detroit; his son Jerome, 17, and Phillip Price, 35, of Mt. Clemens. The Renkowskis picked up Price and went fishing in Price's boat.

Opinions Complicate Civil Defence Plans

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Civil defence planning is being complicated by the divergent opinions of the military, politicians and economists, Bradley Norton, director of the Niagara Falls, N.Y., civil defence organization, said Saturday.

Mr. Norton, speaking at a meeting of the five-county international mutual civil defence area here, said the military is urging a strong well-trained civil defence organization, the economists warn that money must not be spent and the politicians fear alarming people by revealing the real facts of the danger at hand.

He said it was time top government men got together and unified their thinking.

PROFESSOR DIES

TORONTO (CP)—Professor John W. Scrivin, 40, dean of residence and assistant professor of classics at Trinity College, died Saturday.

Australia To Collect Antarctica Scientific Data

WASHINGTON. — Ten Australian scientists and technicians will sail from Melbourne in January to set up Australia's first scientific station on the mainland of Antarctica.

The expedition is expected to base on the coast at a point southwest of Western Australia. The advance party will land supplies, erect buildings, and make a limited land survey during the first year.

Detailed weather studies will begin early in 1955, as will research in geology, biology, cosmic rays and geophysics. Each expedition member will do a 12-month tour of duty. The frigid outpost will be maintained through 1958.

ANTARCTIC "WEATHER EYE"

The Australian Government began its long-range plan to explore and develop the neighboring Antarctic area six years ago, when weather stations were established at Heard and Macquarie Islands. On these lonely, windswept land spots meteorologists conduct a 24-hour-a-day study of an eight-mile-high column of air to classify Antarctic weather sweeping up into the temperate zones.

Antarctica is known to contain huge deposits of coal and other valuable minerals—possibly uranium. Its seas hold tremendous food resources in whales, fish, seals, birds and plankton, to which the world might eventually be obliged to turn. Flights between South America or South Africa and Australia may some day be routed over the Antarctic.

Australia's Antarctic territory lies between longitudes 45 degrees east and 160 east. The area embraces 2,472,000 square miles and is almost as large as Australia itself. At its nearest point, Antarctica is only 1,500 miles south of Australia.

DANISH SHIP CHARTERED

Most of the men in the advance party have already served on Heard or Macquarie Islands. They will sail to Antarctica in the 1500-ton Danish motor vessel Kista Dan. It has a speed of 12 knots when fully loaded, a range of 14,500 miles, and is one of the world's most modern ice ships.

The Kista Dan is powered by a directly reversible six-cylinder diesel engine, with propeller and rudder protected against ice. It will take soundings in uncharted coastal waters.

Strapped to the ship's decks will be two light aircraft. Mounted on floats or skis, they will be used for reconnaissance flights, flown and serviced by Royal Australian Air Force personnel.

Expedition members will be equipped with polar ski boots from Norway, windproofs of Australian design, eiderdown jackets from France, and polar tents made in Britain. On land they will travel in "weasels", tracked snow vehicles manufactured in the United States for use in World War II. Dog sledges will be hauled by huskies bred and trained at Heard Island.

Margaret's Walks Yard Headache

LONDON (Ruters) — Officials responsible for royal security have a new worry—Princess Margaret has decided to go out walking with her dog.

The princess took a walk last Friday in St. James's Park, just across the road from Buckingham Palace. In doing so, she broke an unwritten rule that senior members of the Royal Family do not walk beyond the walls of the palace.

The gossip columnists say Margaret complained to the Queen that this rule was out of date. The Queen gave her permission to break it.

Now Margaret plans more expeditions with her dog. And Scotland Yard and the home office will have to work out new security precautions.

Newspaperman Dies

HAMILTON (CP)—George Isaac Campbell, 68, former editor of the tri-weekly Hamilton News, died Saturday. Newspapers on which he worked included the Lethbridge Herald, the Hamilton Spectator and the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Canadian Consul Stricken In U.S.

BOSTON (AP)—George S. Patterson, 66, Canadian consul-general here, died unexpectedly Sunday.

Police said Patterson was talking with two Canadian government attaches, Chester A. Ronning and Paul Veaulieu, when he complained of illness and collapsed a short time later.

His widow, Lena, was visiting a sister in Ontario and was notified.

Patterson joined the Canadian foreign service in 1943 and had served in Ottawa, Chungking, Nanking, Tokyo and Shanghai before being appointed consul general in Boston last September.

Harvester Ants Strip 90,000 Acres Of Wyoming

WASHINGTON—The harvester ant, extolled by King Solomon as an example of industry because it stores food in the summer against winter need, is less popular with ranchmen in the western United States.

The busy foragers have denuded 90,000 acres of grazing land in Wyoming's Big Horn basin. They have cleaned seed from almost half a million acres, and they stymie reseeding experiments.

Methods of controlling the reaper ants have proved ineffective. Most chemicals fail to kill them. Dynamite and flooding are equally unsuccessful.

THRIVE IN HEAT

Harvetsers, members of the ant subfamily, Myrmicinae, inhabit arid, temperate lands. In the United States they are concentrated in the South and West. Parts of the Big Horn basin are infested with as many as 32 colonies an acre, with an estimated 10,000 atns per colony.

Like provident farmers, harvesters forage for fallen ripe grass seed. Each grain is carried back the the nest, where the ant strips the husk. Chaff and pod are dumped outside the nest. The kernel is stored in chambers carved from the earth, beneath the surface of a dome-shaped hill.

After a heavy rain, the tireless ants transport their grain supply, seed by seed, from the storehouses to the open air. When the sun has dried it, the reserve is carried back and restored. Seeds that have mildewed or sprouted inside the nest are discarded.

ORGANIZED OPERATIONS

Harvesters, or agricultural ants as they are often called, keep a circular clearing seven to twelve feet in diameter around each nest. From the clearing, three or four, sometimes as many as seven, paths lead into the grass where workers hunt seeds. Harvesters search individually, at a distance of three times the radius of the cleared area.

In the Big Horn region, harvester hills are capped by mounds of sand and dirt excavated from the subterranean nest. Mounds meausre more than a foot high and up to three feet in diameter. Nests extend from six to ten feet into the ground.

The ants vary in size. Some of the larger ones, equipped with abnormally large heads, act as millers for the colony. They open the flinty seeds in their strong jaws. Harevsters will eagerly devour insects but normally eat only seeds.

VOL. CVI. NO. 261 — MONDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1953

Main Street Topics

SEND IT TO JAIL

The only crime in Peterborough over the weekend was the weather. Otherwise police had a quiet two days except for the wave of accidents which needed investigating as a result of the slippery roads and poor visibility.

RECORD HEN'S EGG

Mrs. Hugh Newnham of RR 4, Peterborough, today sent in a record-sized egg laid by a hen born this spring. The circumference of the egg was 8¾ inches one way and 7¾ inches the other. The hen was a cross between a Barred Rock and a Hampshire.

"DIT" SCORES AGAIN

When a member of the Examiner staff tried to drive away in the deep snow from the curb in front of Dit Clapper's Store Saturday noon the rear of his car slewed in and the bumper was neatly wrapped around a steel lamp standard. Out of the store came a husky line led by "Dit" who easily pushed the car clear of the post and on rolled the happy, grateful driver.

ELK AND DEER LUCK

Of the small elk herd in the northern section of Peterborough County, four animals have been reported taken the first week of the hunt. Two to the Millard brothers camp, one each to Herb Payne and Bill Saxby of Keene. Five Rice lake deer hunters got their quota at Loucks lake but reported game generally scarce in that area. They were Ken Tedford, Cecil Phillips, Bill Steele, Keith Pimmett, Bill Garvey and Bill Wood.

FIRST SOD WAS TURNED Sunday for the new $100,000 Grace United church at Howden Ave. and Monaghan Rd., at a brief service conducted by the Rev. I. G. Pollock. The ceremony took place after the morning service allowing about 150 people to witness the first step in the erection of the new church. They crowded at the side of the old church (top photo) and along the sidewalk to watch senior elder, Wilbert Harrison (centre, lower photo), the first member of Grace United when the church was started five years ago, turn the sod. Mr. Pollock said that he hopes excavation will begin this week and that the church will be completed by next summer.

Officer Helps Pair Out Of Snowdrift, Arrests Them On Armed Robbery Charges

TORONTO (CP)—An automobile stuck in a snowdrift near Kingston Sunday led to the arrest of two men on four charges of armed robbery of United Cigar Stores.

In custody here are William Jones, 28, and Neil Owles, 18, both of Omemee. They face an additional charge of car theft. Two men were stuck in the snow near the village of Arden when a provincial police cruiser driven by Constable Harvey Adams came along. Adams offered to help them and shoved the car out of the drift with his cruiser. Acting on a hunch he checked the stolen car list and found the vehicle was wanted. He arrested the men and took them to the county jail in Kingston.

Toronto detectives questioned the men and later laid the charges. The men are charged with robbing three United Cigar Stores here during October and November and the one in Ottawa of $403 Saturday.

City Accidents Aplenty Damage To Cars, Not People

In spite of property damage in excess of $2,500 to cars and trucks involved in accidents on slippery Peterborough streets during the weekend, no drivers or passengers in the vehicles involved required hospital attention. Only one car, that driven by George Oakley, 58, of London, was damaged to the extent of more than $500. His car smashed into the end of a truck driven by Alphonse Brioux, 58, of 51 Alfred St. The truck had been parked and was knocked 50 feet forward on Otonabee St. by the impact.

Damage to the vehicle of Oakley was estimated at $550 while the truck sustained only $15 damage. Oakley had been driving west on Otonabee St. and had just rounded a curve when the crash occurred.

CAR AND TRUCK

Two cars and a truck combined to sustain damage of over $700 in a three-vehicle intersection crash at Lansdowne and Park Sts. Sunday morning. Earl St. Pierre, 28, of 64 River St. slid into the intersection after braking for a red light, striking a car driven by Bruce Steenson, 22, of 233 Princess St.

Steenson's vehicle was knocked into a truck driven by Dale Goodfellow, 20, of 460 Bonaccord St. Both Steenson and Goodfellow sustained minor cuts.

An 18-year-old Dunsford driver, J. W. R. Patrick escaped uninjured as his car flipped into a Chemong Rd. ditch Saturday. Damage to the car was set at $300.

Two cars crashing on Monaghan Rd. resulted in $230 damage. Bernard Monaghan, 54, of 251 King George St., was driving south on Monaghan, intending to turn left, and Mrs. Betty Johnston, 27, of RR 5, Peterborough, north on Monaghan when their cars collided.

A hit-and-run car pushed another into a truck on a Chemong Rd. service station, causing damage to both vehicles, and then fled. The car was owned by Jim Dillman of RR 2, Peterborough, and the truck by W. McIntyre, RR 8, Peterborough. They received over $50 damage.

HIT AT INTERSECTION

An equal amount of damage was received by cars driven by James Allen, 38, of Camp Borden, and Stanley Boyle, 28, of 401 Wolfe St. Allen was driving west on McDonnel St. and Boyle, south on Reid St. when they collided at the centre of the intersection.

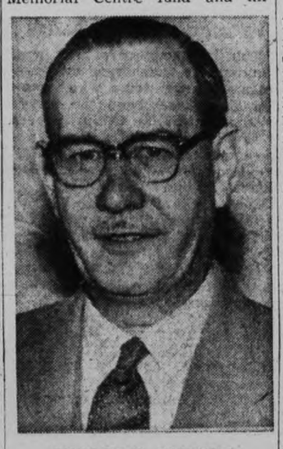
A car driven by Stephen Miller, 66, of 269 Burnham St., slid into one driven by James Hopcroft, 25, of 129 Dufferin St. at the intersection of Rubidge and Sherbrooke Sts. Saturday, resulting in $250 damage.

Slowing for a George St. line of traffic, B. A. Sybertson, 37, of 53 Morrow St. skidded and his vehicle slid into one driven by Gordon Farrance, 30, of 253 Park St., resulting in $150 damage to Sybertson's car.

Finally able to pull out of his parking spot after his progress was impeded by snow, Ross Wiles, Jr., 25, of RR 4, Peterborough, was in collision with a car driven by H. E. Casson, 54, of 135 Lansdowne St. on Hunter. Damage as a result was estimated at $150.

Several other accidents reported, concerned cars sliding into backs of others at stop streets and traffic lights.

George Carphin Seeks Seat On City Council



George W. Carphin, 51-year-old accredited public accountant of 181 London St. who actively opposed the recent annexation by the city of a portion of Smith township, has announced his bid for an aldermanic seat on city council at the December 7 election.

Mr. Carphin, who is the fifth person to announce himself an aldermanic candidate, organized a petition from Smith township ratepayers and one from Peterborough against the annexation. He attended the municipal board hearings on the application where he argued against the move. At that time he was secretary-treasurer of the board of Separate School Section 13, Smith township, administering four separate school sections, including St. Anne's school, which was brought into the city by annexation.

In an interview with the Examiner today, Mr. Carphin said he felt there should be very rigid economy measures at city hall in an endeavor to reduce the tax rate," in spite of the commitments with which council has been saddled by past administrations."

FAVORS WARD SYSTEM

He is also very strongly in favor of the ward system of electing aldermen and thinks there should be a thorough investigation of the Memorial Centre fund and immediate action on plans for erection of the centre.

GEORGE W. CARPHIN

Mr. Carphin, who was first president of Brookdale Home Owners Association and was instrumental in organizing Parkdale Home Owners Association, is of the opinion that the annexation from Smith township was too big an undertaking for the city. He also thinks it was carried through too soon because there was still lots of vacant land within the city that could be used for housing.

"The city cannot afford to annex land for housing without a comparable increase in the industrial assessment," he said.

"Moreover," he added, "the question of annexation involving huge costs to the city should have been submitted to the taxpayers before being acted on by council.

INCREASE TAXES

In elaboration of this point, Mr. Carphin said the annexation could only serve to increase taxes. He had pointed out at the time the application was made that the area to be annexed was a third the size of the city. He had warned that annexation would entail spending millions of dollars for sewers and other necessary facilities, including the interest on the money required. The area would require 50 miles of roads and 100 miles of sidewalk.

As for the ward system, he is of the opinion that each section of the city should have an alderman to look after its interests. The ward system would enable each alderman to represent the people in his own section more effectively that he can represent the whole city.

Mr. Carphin was born on the island of Malta, where his father was regimental sergeant major of the 40th South Lancashire regiment. He received his early education in Edinburgh and come to Canada in 1916.

During the First World War he was a member of the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve, serving as a Chief Petty Officer on patrol vessels and minesweepers doing convoy duty.

HOMESTEADER

After his discharge from the navy in 1919, he homesteaded in the Peace River district and worked at various jobs in the Canadian West. He later moved to Montreal where he was employed for 16 years by the Montreal

40 Deer Placed In Storage During 1st Week

Forty deer and two elk have been stored in commercial deep freezes by Peterborough hunters as a supplementary stock of meat to tide them through the winter's dining.

That is presumably a substantial count of the actual kill last week in the woods north and east of Peterborough. At one of the refrigerators there is more venison packed away than last year.

Kawartha Polar Food Services on Queen St. reported for the first week's shoot as it came to them, between 25 and 30 deer and two elk, considerably more than a year ago.

Johnston's frosted food storage at George and McDonnel St. had 14 head up to Saturday, fewer than their first week's storing a year ago.

The "processing" of the game meat is the same at each place. A deer is skinned, cut into roasts and chops carefully wrapped and set away in lockers, rented by the successful hunters. Any time they feel like a change to venison steaks or a roast of deer, all they have to do is go and help themselves.

If you don't empty your locker in six months, and the commercial cupboard still isn't bare, you are required to apply to the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries for permission to keep the deer meat another six months, from the first of April.

Vandals At Work

ORILLIA (CP)—Police are investigating several hundred dollars damage done Sunday night at a new housing project near the southern outskirts of Orillia. In one case a $700 cement mixer was rolled into a cellar excavation where it wrecked itself and smashed a cement floor. Carpenters reported many tools stolen.

Welsh Poet Dies

Thomas, 39, had been on a lecture tour. He entered the hospital Nov. 5.

Crashes Put Seven In Hospital

200 Cars Immobilized On Port Hope Highway During Peak of Storm

Seven people were sent to hospital and a minor host are nursing bruises and bumps after Saturday's heavy and unexpected snowfall that fouled up traffic on district highways.

A Cobourg provincial constable on duty on Highway 28 south, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., said it was the worst tie-up of motor traffic he had ever seen. The eight inches of slushy snow left as many as 200 cars immobilized on the Port Hope highway at one time.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Two Toronto residents were taken to Port Hope General Hospital Saturday afternoon when their car turned over on its right side in the ditch, three miles south of Bewdley.

The injured are Mrs. Samuel Lipshitz, 46, of 102 Kendal St., and Charles Sims, 52, of 204 Albany Ave. Both received broken collarbones as well as cuts and bruises.

Mr. Lipshitz, driver of the car, Mrs. Sims and a Miss Cohen—all three from Toronto—were shaken up and bruised but did not need hospital treatment.

The heavy fall of snow, making the road surface slippery and cutting down visibility, is also blamed for an accident on Highway 28 north, in which two Peterborough men were hospitalized.

HILLTOP CRASH

A southbound car, driven by Thomas F. House, 61, of 865 Water St., collided at the top of a hill, 4½ miles south of Apsley, with a northbound car driven by Robert James of Hunter St. The House car which received about $600 damage stopped in its tracks, but James' 1947-model car dropped over a 10-foot embankment on the east side of the highway and was wrecked.

Finley Meeks, 60, of 263 Armour Rd., a passenger with House, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with facial cuts and undetermined head injuries as well as shock. He is being X-Rayed today.

House was shaken up and bruis-

Skids On Bridge Car, Truck Hit

Lakefield's first motor vehicle accident in three weeks was reported early today.

A Hamilton man, driving north for the deer hunt, applied his brakes while going over the canal bridge. His car skidded and collided with the half ton truck being driven west by Orville Redpath of Lakefield.

Both front fenders of Redpath's truck were damaged as was the left front fender and radiator of the Hamilton car, driven by Michael Benzien. Neither man was injured.

City Plowmen Ready, Brush Aside 8 Inches Snow

Saturday's surprise snowstorm, which blanketed the district with eight inches of snow, may have caught a lot of people unprepared. But not so the city works department. Hundreds of pedestrians were caught downtown without overshoes to brave the mounting drifts, while motorists, whose chains were oiled and stored away, slithered and swore as fenders bumped and cars refused to scale steep grades. For city and provincial police alike it was one prize headache.

But contracts for plowing city sidewalks were completed weeks ago and it only required fastening the plows on city trucks to start clearing the streets.

SANDED STREETS

Sanding of streets was started in the morning and at 10:30 a.m. telephone calls started to go out to private contractors to get to work on the sidewalks. By noon there were 17 plows clearing the sidewalks. By afternoon two graders and two truck-plows were scraping the snow from the streets.

It was scarcely possible to keep up with the heavy fall of snow which didn't let up all day. But both private contractors and city plows were out again Sunday morning and by afternoon most of the thoroughfares had been cleaned.

Visitors from Toronto were amazed at the speed and efficiency of Peterborough's snow removal system. With wistful thoughts of the perennial sad state of affairs in their own home town, they had nothing but praise for the public works department here.

First Sod Turned To Start Building Of Grace Church

A snow-covered sod was turned Sunday by Wilbert Harrison, first parishioner on the roll of Grace United Church, and senior elder of the church, to mark the beginning of construction of a new church.

Actual work on the new building is expected to begin this week, said the Rev. I. G. Pollock, and should be completed next year.

Members of the congregation are at the moment conducting a campaign to raise $55,000 to help build the church which will be built for $100,852 by Charles Huffman Ltd.

360 FAMILIES

At present the congregation of 360 families is worshipping in a temporary frame church brought to the site when the church was organized five years ago.

Some 150 members of the congregation and visitors from other churches in the city gathered beside the temporary church to witness the sod-turning ceremony. Mr. Pollock offered a short prayer.

The church of modern design will seat a congregation of 500 with space for a choir. It will be the first permanent United Church south of Lansdowne St.

4 Cars Damaged On Havelock Sts.

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Two car accidents on the snowy streets of Havelock Saturday damaged four cars but caused no serious injuries.

In the afternoon, two cars hit head-on. Mrs. Helen J. Laird, 45, Havelock, driving east on Highway 7, swung out of a line of traffic to turn left. A car driven by Wallace A. Chesher, 24, Spring St., Norwood, was travelling in the opposite direction. He saw the Laird car swing out and applied his brakes, but skidded and the two cars nosed into each other.

Mrs. Jean Chesher, riding in her husband's car, received a small cut on the forehead and their two-year-old son received a bruise over his left eye. Mrs. Laird was not injured. The fronts of both cars were damaged. Chief Robert W. Hall investigated, assisted by OPP Constable Archie Eady.

At 9:15 p.m., a car owned by Anthony Yenta, Campbellford, and driven by his son, Glenn, 18, skidded into a parked car owned by Benjamin Franklin Pollock, RR 4, Havelock. About $250 damage was done to the left rear of the Pollock car and $150 was done to the right rear of the Yenta car. Chief Hall investigated.

Charged With Theft Of 6-Point Buck

CAMPBELLFORD —(ENS) — Charged with theft by putting his tag on another hunter's deer, Harry Comeault, 96 Wheeler Ave., Toronto, was arrested by provincial police Sunday.

The offence is alleged to have taken place in Methuen township north of Havelock. Comeault was arrested in his truck by provincial constable Archie Eady. A six-point buck was found in the truck. Police said Comeault admitted the theft.

Fair Year Ahead Government Economist Sees

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A federal economist suggests that Canadians may have a "pretty fair year" of business ahead of them in 1954, even though there is some talk of a mild recession in the United States.

Dr. O. J. Firestone, the trade department's economic adviser, said that if Canadians go about their business "sensibly," they may even find 1954 bringing more economic activity than 1953.

What has caused talk of recession, said Dr. Firestone, is the widespread view among American business men that 1954 will see a decline in U.S. defence spending, business investment, housing and sales of consumer goods.

Americans expect a drop in the gross national product of five to 10 per cent and a decline of 10 to 20 per cent in industrial production.

Expanding on views he expressed in a speech before the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating at the Seigniory Club, Que., the economist said:

"This kind of thinking has been reflected in an uneasy stock market and in a cautious inventory policy on the part of many business firms in the U. S., as well as a growing conservatism on the part of the financial community in respect to its lending policies."

But it doesn't necessarily follow, he added, that Canada must trim its economic sails because the U. S. does.

The U. S. had a recession in 1948-49, but in Canada economic activity continued to increase. In Canada, civilian rather than military spending was the main impetus for economic expansion.

The backlog of unfilled consumer requirements was greater in Canada than in the U. S. and the impetus in Canada's resources development program appeared to be stronger.

"As long as Canada's population is growing more rapidly than that of the U. S., there is a firm basis for expansion of the domestic market in our country."

Dr. Firestone suggested "there is little indication that the level of employment and income in Canada may be lower in 1954 as a whole than in 1953."

Small Auto Makers Facing Battle For Survival In '54

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP)—Regardless of further mergers or absorptions in the United States auto industry, the smaller companies face a big battle in 1954.

Mergers continue to be talked about in Detroit and New York. In Detroit industry analysts say that even if all the smaller companies were combined all their problems still wouldn't be solved.

The smaller companies are going to be caught in 1954 in the competitive battle that will be waged among General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. These major producers have been preparing a long time for the big fight.

ONLY 10 PER CENT

Even if all the smaller firms get together they still would command only about 10 per cent of the market. More important, perhaps, is that it would take two or three years to whittle down surplus manufacturing, assembly and distribution facilities.

Industry sources are convinced more mergers are coming. Some informed quarters say each of the so-called "independents" has been sounded out in recent months regarding merger possibilities.

It has been suggested huge savings in manufacturing costs could be effected through the organization of a single division to produce car bodies or engines for a group of the smaller car firms.

Every discussion of auto company mergers invariably gets around to the question of which two companies could be brought together to the best advantage. Currently Nash and Hudson are reported to be negotiating a consolidation. A few years ago Nash and Packard were said to be talking merger plans. More recently Henry Kaiser was reported trying to buy into Packard. His Kaiser Motors bought Willys Motors last spring.

STUDEBAKER STRONGEST

Strongest of the "independents"—and less frequently mentioned in merger talks of all the car companies—is Studebaker. So far this year Studebaker has built about 162,000 cars and 32,000 trucks. In the first 10 months of 1952 it built about 130,000 cars and 47,000 trucks.

Packard has a 1953 production to date of about 74,000 cars against 47,000 in the like 1952 period. The other "independents" haven't done so well. They are behind or only slightly ahead of last year.

This may explain in part the recurring merger gossip. Last year the "independents" had the advantage of governmental production quotas. This year, with limitations removed, many of them lost ground.

Royal Receives 12,000 Entries

TORONTO (CP) — More than 12,000 livestock entries have been received for the 25th Royal Agricultural Winter Fair which opens here Friday.

Some 1,000 horses will take part in the fair's horse show, one of the fair's features. There will also be a two-day dog show.

Square dance contests continue throughout the eight days and more than 1,000 Canadian Girl Guides will gather on opening night to be inspected by Lady Stratheden, world guide leader.

The poultry show, the largest on the continent, dominates farm exhibitions. Fruit, vegetables, hay and seed grain entries make up a considerable portion of the show.

Total Canadian and United States cattle entries reach 2,775 when entries closed.

Howe Pays Visits To Iron Ore Mine

WAWA, Ont. (CP)—Trade Minister Howe made a surprise visit Friday to the iron ore mine at nearby Michipicoten and later attended a party at the Canadian Legion hall here as guest of Sir James Dunn.

As a cabinet representative of northern Ontario, Mr. Howe said he wished to increase his knowledge of the area. It was the first time the minister had visited Wawa 100 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, since 1939.

He called the increased ore production in this district a great contribution to Canada's defence program and preparedness in case of war.

Move Beauty Contest

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The 1954 Miss Canada pageant will be held here as a feature of the city's centennial celebration, Mayor Arthur J. Reaume announced Saturday. Officials of the contest in Hamilton have agreed to stage the event here July 19-24.

Figureheads Back On Ships Of Norwegians

WASHINGTON — By placing figureheads on its modern motorships, a Norwegian shipping line has revived one of the sea's oldest traditions.

In the golden days of sail, a vessel rarely went into service before the ship carvers had bolted her painted wooden figurehead to the stem. Superstitious sailors feared to put to sea without these guardians perched beneath the bowsprits.

The earliest ship carvings may have been the eyes that were engraved into the bows of Egyptian craft. They prove that from ancient times on, mariners have been prone to endow a wind-driven ship with a personality. Even today, small boats in the Orient carry "oculi" to help them "see" their way.

VIKING SHIPS DECORATED

Viking ships bore figureheads of hawks, dragons and other animals. But when Leif Ericsson missed Iceland in thick weather and landed in Labrador, he had probably left the figurehead back in Norway. Orders of the day were to remove the fierce figures from Iceland-bound shipping lest they frighten the superstitious natives.

During the 17th and 18th centuries, ships of Europe were frequently so burdened with figureheads and other carvings as to damage their sailing qualities. American shipowners generally specified only figureheads and carved stern boards. Hundreds are still known to exist, some in far places. Hardly a year passes but what more turn up somewhere.

In a New Zealand garden is the statue of an Indian chief, believed to be the figurehead from the American square-rigger King Philip, wrecked "down under." An English museum has the likeness of Abraham Lincoln from some long-dead Yankee ship.

A bust of General Armstrong, from the American warship of that name, rested for many years at Fayal in the Azores, where the Armstrong was sunk during the war of 1812. Still bearing the marks of shot, the bust today is at the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland.

The figurehead of the clipper Donald McKay, a statue of the famous shipbuilder who turned her out, remained until quite recently in the Cape Verde Islands, scene of the clipper's loss. It is now the property of the Marine Historical Association at Mystic, Connecticut.

WORSHIPPED BY SAVAGES

The sea goddess of the ship Galatea was worshipped by a primitive African tribe which took the figurehead from the wreck of the ship in the 1870's. After a period in a museum at Capetown, it came home to the United States.

When a statue of President Andrew Jackson was attached in 1834 to the famed old U.S.S. Constitution, there ensued one of the most heated political controversies in American history. At its height, a Boston merchant sailor sawed the head from the likeness in the dead of night.

Best known figurehead in the land is "Tecumseh," the Naval Academy's "God of 2.5," to which midshipmen jocularly pray for passing grades. Actually Tecumseh is a bronze replica of Tamanend, a Delaware Indian figurehead carried by U.S.S. Delaware. The Delaware burned at Norfolk during the Civil War.

Because the plumb bows of steamships held no place for them, and because steamers rarely are personalized as were sailing vessels, figureheads did not survive the age of sail. In the Norwegian revival, they are cast in metal — less incongruous than wood on a steel hull.

Estimate 500 Deer Shot In West Ontario

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—An estimated 500 deer were shot during the four-day hunting season in five western Ontario counties, game officials said Sunday.

More than a thousand hunters were out during the four days, 500 of them in Perth county alone, where an estimated 300 deer were bagged.

Open season for deer was held in Huron, Grey, Bruce, Perth and Oxford counties.

KIDDIE CADDIE—Ralph Hartley, Jr., of Hollywood, Calif., is only nine years old, but he's already driving his second car. To top it off it's a Cadillac. His dad, Ralph, Sr., kneeling beside it, built the car. The elder Hartley has been offered $4,000 for the car, but it's not for sale. Although it will travel 70 miles an hour, any racing of the hand-made Caddie will be confined to backyard freeways.

Experts Appraise Soviet Air Strength At Nearly 20,000 Operational Planes

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (CP) — Appraisals of Soviet air strength by experts here suggest that Russia now has around 20,000 planes in operational units.

Those experts say that at present Russia could certainly put a force of 7,500 tactical craft into the air — possible 10,000 for short periods.

But they doubt whether the Soviet air arm as such is yet a completely effective work striking force able, for instance, to embark on saturation bombing of a wide range of U.S. cities should there be a war.

Experts here query recent American estimates which put the Soviet total air strength as high as 36,000 planes. They say such as "umbrella" figure must include trainer aircraft, civil airliners and practically every plane flying in Russia.

11,000 A YEAR

For this reason they consider the estimate of little value as a comparison with the reported United States Air Force strength of 8,000 planes spread over 105 combat wings, with 7,000 in 98 wings "combat ready."

Among sources closely following aircraft development behind the Iron Curtain, there is fairly wide acceptance of the estimate that Russian fighter production may now be about 11,000 annually or about half her total plane output.

This figure is quoted by Jane's "All the World's Aircraft," British standard work of reference, published annually, on Soviet plane production for 1951.

What then, would be the present striking range and force of the Soviet air arm in the event of a major conflict

Here is the fairly recent assessment of one authority—Asher Lee, wartime wing-commander, former senior intelligence officer at the air ministry, and author of "The Soviet Air Force," revised and brought up to date last year. In this work Lee said: "Their bomber forces should be able to cover the complete nge of European and middle east targets and, of course, Japan.

FRINGE TARGETS

"The scale of attack against the main targets of the North American continent would be only moderate, though sizable forces could reach fringe targets, for instance in Alaska.

"The big blitz on a wide range of American cities is most unlikely. In the early stages of a future war the Soviet is likely to use part of its heavy bomber forces as a close adjunct to the immediate ground battle."

While no expert here tends to underrate the huge potential of Soviet air production, some of the best informed declare the Russian Air Force, as such, has a lot of leeway to make up.

This is because of the large number of Russian planes used by satellite countries and in Korea and China, and because growing Allied air strength has increased Soviet defensive commitments in the West.

Official sources estimate that more than 4,400 Russian planes were used in the air war in Korea up to a year ago, including 2,000 jets.

The Soviet Union has made large numbers of MiGs available to Czechoslovkia and Poland—though it is known that both these satellite countries have now begun to produce the Russian-designed jet fighter for themselves.

While on the fighter side Russia may be able to keep pace with the numerous demands on her production, it is questionable whether she can for some time equal this with a long-range jet bomber force capable of large-scale intercontinental retaliatory action.

Battles Of Colorful Fish Form Major Siamese Sport

WASHINGTON—For more than a century a major Siamese sport has revolved about brilliant-hued little fish that fight each other on sight.

Aquariums all over the world now include Betta splendens, the fighting midget of Southeast Asia. It ranks as perhaps the most beautiful and interesting of the so-called tropical fishes.

In their home country of Thailand, the battles of Bettas have evolved both elaborate rituals and profitable businesses for breeding and supplying fighters.

Fights are staged like cockfights, either in public arenas where betting may be heavy, or in private matches for small groups of fanciers.

Two fish of similar size, held in separate jars, are brought together to catch a glimpse of one another. Usually this is enough to begin a remarkable transformation; the two-inch-long contestants begin to glow with their most fiery colors, spreading their fins and raising their gills in fury.

Placed in the same tank, the fish take a sparring position, like two boxers in a ring, and flash into stabbing attacks. Their combat may last for hours, even all night. It ends only when the weaker fighter, worn out, refuses to answer the challenge and swims away.

Rarely do these amazing fighters inflict serious injuries. Their fins may be torn but they will regenerate, and within a few days the fish are ready to fight again.

QUEENSBURY RULES

A sort of sportmanship marks the affrays. Bettas require air at regular intervals, as well as oxygen from the water. Their battles pause regularly while the pugilists swim to the surface for a deep breath. Then the fight resumes, all in gentlemanly fashion.

In courtship and family life, the fighting fish rank among the varieties known as "bubble-nesters". From a secretion in the mouth, the males are able to build intricate, fragile nests of bubbles near the surface of the water. Such nests cradle the female Betta's eggs.

By domestication and experimental breeding, fanciers of the fighting fish have purified and intensified their most brilliant hues—reds, blues, greens, and creamy tints—and produced long, flowing fins of contrasting colors.

Slippery Pavement Saves Lives Of Two

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Slippery pavement probably saved the lives of two men in an automobile hit by a train near here during the week-end.

Its occupants, orchestra leader Johnny Downs and band member Harvey Lambert, were unhurt but the smash destroyed band instruments valued at $2,000.

Medical Officer Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Frank Stewart Park, 65, commanding officer for the medical board of military district 2 during the Second World War, died Saturday. He retired from the army in 1944 with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He played on a University of Toronto football team which won the Grey Cup in 1910.

Seeing Is Believing

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature's reform institutions committee Sunday called at Toronto's Don Jail to check on the handling of weekend offenders. They found 40 behind bars as a result of weekend arrests, instead of the 90 or more usually booked. This was because arrangements had been made to enable minor offenders to obtain bail at police stations.

Big Loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional tax fraud investigators said Sunday that top treasury officials intervened in tax cases which resulted in a revenue loss to the federal government in excess of $10,000,000. The report was made by a House of Representatives ways and means sub-committee in concluding more than two years of investigation and hearings.

Still More Troubles

WOODSTOCK (CP)—While Walter Ross of Hickson was in hospital being treated for a leg wound suffered in a hunting accident, fire destroyed his barn and livestock. Ross received the wound while deer hunting. The fire was discovered by his two brothers who had journeyed to the farm to do the chores.

Chimes, Steps Dedicated At St. Andrew's

NORWOOD (ENS)—On Sunday afternoon at 3:30 in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Norwood, a service was held for the dedication of the chimes in the tower and the new cement steps and railings in front of the church.

The service was conducted by the Rev. R. D. Duncanson and the sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. John McNab, M.A., D.D., the editor of the Presbyterian Record in Toronto.

The service was opened by a prayer and the scripture lesson was read by Dr. McNab.

The chimes in the tower of the church, dedicated by Dr. McNab, were given to the church by the Innes family in memory of their sons, Frederick, Eric and Garfield Innes, who gave their lives in the Second World War. Mr. Keith Innes unveiled the plaque which was on the wall of the tower. The new steps and railings were given to the church by George Irving.

Mr. Duncanson at this point in the service took time to welcome Fred Bennet, the soloist, the Norwood Branch Canadian Legion, and especially Dr. McNabb on behalf of his session and congregation. A solo was sung by Mr. Fred Bennett of Havelock, "The Old Rugged Cross", a favorite of the Innes family's. A hymn "Rock of Ages" was sung.

REMEMBRANCE SERMON

The sermon was delivered by Dr. John McNab, who was a group captain and chief Protestant chaplain in the RCAF during the Second World War. The sermon was on remembrance.

The Norwood Branch Canadian Legion had some of its members on parade and in attendance at this memorial service.

$100,000 Fire

CHATHAM (CP)—A $100,000 fire Saturday night destroyed a farm implement sales building on No. 2 highway just east of the city. Firemen were unable to check the flames in the main building but prevented them from reaching an annex and a near-by furniture store.

Peace Depends On Russ Attitude

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The United States told the UN today disarmament and world peace depend on a "change of mind and attitude" by Russia's rulers.

In a major policy speech prepared for the UN Assembly's 60-nation political committee, chief U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge said:

"The fighting in Korea obviously made disarmament talk unreal. But now we have an armistice and the United States continues therefore to hope that, despite the discouraging nature of the Soviet note of Nov. 3 in connection with a four-power conference on Germany, the Soviet leaders will yet give concrete indications that they actively desire to remedy the current state of international affairs."

He hopes Russia would join the U. S. in "practical steps to reduce international tension."

"Disarmament is impossible without international security . . . international security depends on a change of mind and attitude on the part of the rulers of the Soviet Union," he said.

"The proper safeguards for conducting disarmament can only take place when the Iron Curtain no longer exists, so that we will know what they are doing as they can know what we are doing. The answer in every case lies with the Soviet Union."

Sees No Reason War Should Start Again

MONTREAL (CP)—Brig. M. P. Bogert former Commander of the 25th Canadian Army Brigade in Korea, said Saturday he sees no reason why hostilities should break out again in Korea.

"We must realize that the Chinese hate losing face," he said in an interview shortly before addressing the annual dinner here of the Black Watch Regiment.

Brig. Bogert, now deputy adjutant general of the Canadian Army, said truce negotiators in Korea have done "a better job than they would seem to have done from out here."

He said he knows of no deterioration of morale among Canadians in Korea and all efforts are being made to keep it high.

Rough Riders' Straight Split T Dump Argos 13-4, Out Of Grey Cup Picture

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Western Interprovincial Football Union clubs, whose sad experiences against Toronto Argonauts in the Grey Cup final are legend, can relax. The defending champions are out of the picture this year.

The curtain to an in-and-out Toronto season was lowered Saturday at Ottawa when the Rough Riders, switching from the straight-T to split-T formations, swept Argonauts out of the Big Four playoff scene with a 13-4 triumph.

The Ottawa victory, coupled with Montreal Alouettes' 31-18 triumph over Hamilton Tiger-Cats, left Argonauts out of reach of a playoff spot with only one game remaining in the 14-game schedule.

A few hours after the Toronto loss, the original split-T kids of Canadian football, Edmonton Eskimos, smacked Winnipeg Blue Bombers 25-7 in the first game of their best-of-three WIFU final at Edmonton. They did it with the same finesse that sent them to a runaway first-place finish in the regular schedule.

WRETCHED WEATHER

It was a wretched week-end for football from a weather and attendance standpoint. Field conditions for all seven scheduled senior games ranged from a snow-hardened surface at the Alberta city to snow-and-rain-sodden fields in the east.

Attendance hit a week-end low for the season—less than 60,000. The largest crowd, 15,500, sat through 23-degree weather in Edmonton.

The Als took an early 12-0 lead and went into the last 15 minutes with only a 19-18 margin. They drove for two converted fourth-quarter touchdowns to salvage the triumph and draw into the first-place tie with Riders and Tiger-Cats with 14 points each.

In other week-end activity, Toronto Balmy Beach defeated Sarnia Imperials 18-12 in their home-and-home total-point Ontario Rugby Football Union semi-final series played in rain and snow. Beaches lost 2-0 at Sarnia Saturday before a 900 crowd and defeated the defending champions 18-10 at Toronto Sunday with 700 fans in attendance.

ARGOS DIDN'T HAVE IT

It was a win-or-else game at Ottawa and Argonauts just didn't have it. Their points came on two safety touches—one conceded by Ottawa as a defensive manoeuvre.

Now the club that polished off Edmonton Eskimos 21-11 in the Grey Cup last season, can act only as a spoiler in the Big Four schedule windup Saturday.

Alouettes, who defeated Toronto 39-11 in their last outing, will be out of the playoffs if they lose to Argonauts and Hamilton and Ottawa play to a tie at Hamilton. That is the only possible way the Als, last-place club the previous three years, could miss out on the post-schedule series.

The winner of the Edmonton-Winnipeg series will meet the winner of the Balmy Beach - Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen home-and-home total-point final opening at Kitchener Wednesday. But the west hasn't much worry of missing the Nov. 28 cup final—the ORFU, with the exception of Sarnia, is made up of farm clubs of Big Four teams and it is expected the west winner will take it easily.

Riders fashioned their win over Argonauts on touchdowns by Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts and Bernie Flowers, converts by Roberts and a single by Avatus Stone. Stone was smeared for the first safety touch late in the game and then conceded the other.

The scoring standout at Montreal was Chuck Hunsinger who went over for three touchdowns, one set up by a sensational 90-yard runback of a kick by Alex Webster. Joey Pal and Webster accounted for the other Montreal majors, Ray Poole kicked five converts and quarter Sam Etcheverry a single.

Ralph Toohy, Tip Logan and Lou Kusserow scored the Tiger-Cat majors and Logan kicked three converts to extend his string to 70 without a miss.

The Imperials, the last senior club, apart from the colleges, to remain almost strictly Canadian, went down fighting. They spotted the Argonaut farm club two first-half converted touchdowns, carried over for two unconverted majors in the third quarter and lost the game in the fourth when Toronto intercepted a forward with the Imperials on the Beach six-yard line.

Nayland Moll, Toronto high school product, scored two Beach majors and import Dick Gregory went over for the other. Gregory made the converts.

Eric McKeever and Corky Duchene scored Sarnia's touchdowns.

ATTEMPTS BOW OUT

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, finding itself named respondent in injunction proceedings, has decided to see if it can't dissociate itself from the case and have the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association "take the full responsibility, financially and otherwise, of the consequences."

The QAHA was named in injunction proceedings brought Friday by Quebec Frontenacs, in dispute with Quebec Citadelles over ownership of Jacques Marcotte, 18-year-old junior goalie.

The Frontenacs club seeks to have the QAHA restrained from suspending the club for using the player. The QAHA had notified Frontenacs that continued use of the player "in defiance" of a ruling by the CAHA would bring suspension.

The QAHA gave Marcotte permission to play this season with Frontenacs. Citadelles, who owned the goalie last season, claimed he is their property and carried the case to the CAHA. The CAHA ordered Marcotte's return to Citadelles.

UNIQUE PROBLEM

NORTHWICH, England (AP)—A disputed goal in a soccer match Saturday gave British football officialdom a problem unique in its history.

The Runcorn team walked off the field after insisting a Witton Albion shot had entered the goal through the net and not fairly. The referee had given them five minutes to accept his ruling that the goal was good.

Rules make no provision for forfeits when a team refuses to finish a game—nothing like that ever happened before. The only regulation that could possibly apply calls for a replay if a game is not completed.

Witton Albion, which felt it was leading 3-1 at the time, might not like the idea of starting all over again.

Eskimos Whip Bombers 25-7 In Snow

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos, relaxed and warm in their new heated dugout, scampered out in the frosty air Saturday night to whip the numbed Winnipeg Blue Bombers 25-7 in the first game of the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union finals.

A bitter 15-mile-an-hour wind in a 23-degree temperature sent icy blasts across the snow-hardened field but on the Edmonton bench two big heaters, of the type used by the air force to heat aircraft engines in cold weather, threw waves of warm air over the Eskimos and two huge ducts carried the heat along the gravel-bottomed pen.

Meanwhile, Bombers were taking their breathers huddled under parkas and blankets on a similar uncovered dugout bench.

Edmonton football fans are wondering if it was this new heating system that got quarterback Claude Arnold and reserve quarter Ray Willsey so warmed up that their combined efforts on polished signal calling stopped Bombers cold.

MILES, PANTAGE STAR

Negro scatback Rollie Miles, in for injured halfback Billy Vessels, plunged over for two easy majors to spur an almost invincible Eskimo ground attack.

Rod Pantages subbed brilliantly for Eskimos' other all-star casualty, backfielder Normie Kwong. Pantages went over for the third Edmonton touchdown, and his accurate toe lifted seven punts an average 53 yards, and two of them resulted in singles.

End Neill Armstrong, former Philadelphia Eagle, caught a five-yard toss across the line for the Winnipeg major with only a minute remaining, and Bud Korchak converted.

The other Bomber point came in the first quarter when Miles bullied back over the line after taking Jack Jacobs' long punt.

Bombers had only 11 plays in Eskimo territory, and came within scoring range only five short-lived times.

Eskimos outran Bombers 204 yards to 43. Whenever Eskimos have used their split-T ground offensive to that advantage this season, opposition passing plays haven't made much difference. Bombers beat the Esks twice in five meetings during the season's regular schedule, and both times with a stronger ground attack.

Five Teams Enter Junior "B" Group

LINDSAY (ENS)—Collingwood and Midland Junior "C" teams will be added entries this year in the Eastern Ontario Junior "B" group, which already comprises Lindsay, Peterborough and Port Perry. The two new members of the group were admitted at a meeting here yesterday in which a schedule was also drawn up for the season. The two new teams, which replace Kingston, now a member of the Ottawa Valley League and Belleville will revert to junior "C" playdowns at the end of the schedule. The two top teams of the remaining three junior "B" entries will play off for the group championship.

The schedule, which was drawn up under the direction of group convenor Frank Buckland, of Peterborough, consists of two round-robin series for the eastern teams, and two home-and home series for Collingwood and Midland along with two complete series of the five teams entered. It opens on Nov. 16 in Peterborough with Lindsay juniors the visitors.

The schedule gives each of the eastern clubs 12 home games, eight within the group of three teams and four against the western representatives. Lindsay's representative at the meeting voted for inclusion of Midland and Collingwood on the condition that games be played on Saturday nights, both home and away. The schedule concluded on Monday Feb. 8 with group playdowns to follow. All games will start at 8.30 p.m. except for Saturday night games in Collingwood and Port Perry and one Friday night game in Lindsay.

CORNWALL (CP)—Shot accidentally while hunting, Albert Wilfred Ostler, 57, of Cornwall today was reported in good condition in hospital here. Ostler was shot in the hip Saturday when a companion's shotgun discharged.

MISS K-W DUTCHMEN — Shirley Bolitsky, 18, has been chosen Miss K-W Dutchmen and will represent the Ontario Rugby Football Union team in the Miss Grey Cup contest at Toronto November 28.

Grimsby Meets Albert In COSSA Jr. Finals

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP)—Grimsby High School moved into the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association junior football finals here Saturday with a 23-0 victory over Midland High School.

Grimsby now meets the winners of the Peterborough St. Peter's College-Belleville Albert College semi-final for group honors.

Probe Conditions In Lumber Camps

The Peterborough Humane Society met on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Fred Holmes, Aylmer St. The president, Mrs. S. R. Hamilton, conducted the meeting.

The report of the Humane Society inspector showed more than the average number of investigations during October.

Mrs. W. Cole, who represented the society at the OSPCA convention in London, Ont., gave an excellent report. A need for more extensive humane education is under way in the province. A full-time inspector has been appointed to investigate the appalling conditions among lumber camp horses in the Sault Ste. Marie district. Contributions to this fund are solicited and may be made through the local society.

A meeting of the Humane society will be held at the YMCA November 25 at 8:00 o'clock, to which the public are invited. An interesting program is being arranged. A draw will be made for a doll beautifully dressed in coronation robes, for which tickets are available from members or at the door that evening.

Canadian Riders Win N.Y. Event

NEW YORK (AP) — Canada's equestrian team Sunday won the three-day international low-score competition, top international event of the National Horse Show.

In the third leg of the competition the Canadians were charged with eight faults to 12 for the second-place United States team. It was the fifth Canadian victory in nine international events since the show opened.

Canada won another event Saturday night as Lt.-Col. Charles Baker of Toronto guided Star Clift to victory in the fault-and-out event, clearing six of the eight barriers before his first miss.

The low-score victory was Canada's second in three years. The final Canadian total was 21¼ faults to 24 for the U.S. team, 43 for Ireland and 64½ for Britain.

The Canadian team, riding three abreast over the eight-jump course, was the third to compete. Shirley Thomas of Ottawa aboard Revelon's White Sable, Baker astride Star Clift, and W. R. Ballard of Toronto guiding Reject, took the first five barriers cleanly. At the sixth Miss Thomas knocked off the bar and again at the eighth her horse sent a pole down. Both Baker and Ballard rode cleanly.

THE WAR MEMOIRS OF WINSTON CHURCHILL

YALTA (continued)—RUSSIA AND POLAND: THE SOVIET PROMISE

Poland was discussed at no fewer than seven out of the eight plenary meetings of the Yalta Conference, and the British record contains an interchange on this topic of nearly eighteen thousand words between Stalin, Roosevelt, and myself. Aided by our Foreign Ministers and their subordinates, who also held tense and detailed debate at separate meetings among themselves, we finally produced a declaration which represented both a promise to the world and agreement between ourselves on our future actions. The painful tale is still unfinished and the true facts are as yet imperfectly known, but what is here set down may perhaps contribute to a just appreciation of our efforts at the last but one of the war-time Conferences. The difficulties and the problems were ancient, mulitiudinous, and imperatve. The Soviet-sponsored Lublin Government of Poland, or the "Warsaw" Government as the Russians preferred to call it, viewed the London Polish Government with bitter animosity. Feeling between them had got worse, not better, since our October meeting in Moscow. Soviet troops were flooding across Poland, and the Polish Underground Army was freely charged with the murder of Russian soldiers and with sabotage and attacks on their rear areas and their lines of communication. Both access and information were denied to the Western Powers.

The questions which we discussed may be summarized as follows:

How to form a single Provisional Government for Poland.

How and when to hold free elections.

How to settle the Polish frontiers, both in the east and the west.

How to safeguard the rear areas and lines of communication of the advancing Soviet armies.

Poland had indeed been the most urgent reason for the Yalta Conference, and was to prove the first of the great causes which led to the breakdown of the Grand Alliance.

When we met on February 6 (1945) President Roosevelt opened the discusson by saying that, coming from America, he had a distant view on the Polish question. There were five or six million Poles in the United States, mostly of the second generation, and most of them were generally in favour of the Curzon Line. They knew they would have to give up East Poland. As compensaton they would like East Prussia and part of Germany, or at any rate something with which to save face. As he had said at Teheran, it would make it easier for him if the Soviet Government would make some concession such as Lwow, and some of the oil-bearing lands, to counterbalance the loss of Konigsberg. But the most important point was a permanent Government for Poland. General opinion in the United States was against recognising the Lublin Government, because it represented only a small section of Poland and of the Polish nation. There was a demand for a Government of national unity, drawn perhaps from the five main political parties.

I then said it was my duty to state the position of His Majesty's Government. I had repeatedly declared in Parliament and in public my resolution to support the claim of the U.S.S.R. to the Curzon Line as interpreted by the Soviet Government. That meant giving Lwow in the U.S.S.R. I had been considerably criticised in Parliament (as had the Foreign Secretary) and by the Conservative Party for this. But I had always thought that, after the agonies Russia had suffered in defending herself against Germany, and her great deeds in driving them back and liberating Poland, her claim was founded not on force but on rght. If however she made a gesture of magnanimity to a much weaker Power, and some territorial concession, such as the President had suggested, we should both admire and acclaim the Soviet action.

But a strong, free, and indpendent Poland was much more important than particular territorial boundaries. I wanted the Poles to be able to live freely and live their own lives in their own way. This was dear to the hearts of the British nation and the Commonwealth. It was for this that we had gone to war against Germany—that Poland should be free and sovereign. Such freedom must not cover any hostile design by Poland or by any Polish group, possibly in intrigue with Germany, against Russia; but the World Organisation that was being set up would surely never tolerate such action or leave Soviet Russia to deal with it alone.

At present there were two Governments of Poland, about which we differed. The three Great Powers would be cricised if they allowed these rival Governments to cause an apparent division between them, when there were such great tasks in hand and they had such hopes in common. Could we not create a Government or governmental instrument for Poland, pending full and free elections, which could be recognised by all?

After a brief adjournment Stalin spoke. He said that he understood the British Government's feeling that Poland was a question of honour, but for Russia it was a question both of honour and security; of honour because the Russians had had many conflicts with the Poles and the Soviet Government wished to eliminate the causes of such conflicts: of security, not only because Poland was on the frontiers of Russia, but because throughout history Poland had been a corridor through which Russia's enemies had passed to attack her. During the last thirty years the Germans had twice passed through Poland. They passed through because Poland has been weak. Russia wanted to see a strong and powerful Poland, so that she would be able to shut this corridor of her own strength. Russia could not keep it shut from the outside. This was a matter of life and death for the Soviet State. Their policy differed greatly from that of the Czarist Government. The Czars had wanted to suppress and assimilate Poland. Soviet Russia had started a policy of friendship, and friendship moreover with an independent Poland.

He then dealt with some of the points which Mr. Roosevelt and I had put forward. The President, he said, had suggested there should be some modification of the Curzon Line and that Lwow and perhaps certain other districts should be given to Poland, and I had said that this would be a gesture of magnanimity. But the Curzon Line had not been invented by the Russians. It had been drawn up by Curzon and Clemenceau and representatives of the United States at the conference of 1918, to which Russia had not been invited. The Curzon Line had been accepted against the will of Russia on the basis of ethnographical data. Lenin had not agreed with it. He had not wished to see the town and province of Bialystok given to Poland. The Russians had already retired from Lenin's position, and now some people wanted Russia to take less than Curzon and Clemenceau had conceded. That would be shameful. When the Ukrainians came to Moscow they would say that Stalin and Molotov were less trustworthy defenders of Russia than Curzon or Clemenceau. It was better that the war should continue a little longer, although it would cost Russia much blood, so that Poland could be compensated at Germany's expense. When Mikolajczyk had been in Russia during October he had asked what frontier for Poland Russia would recognize in the West, and he had been delighted to hear that Russia thought that the western frontier of Poland should be extended to the Neisse. There were two rivers of that name, said Stalin, one near Breslau and another farther west. It was the western Neisse he had in mind, and he asked the Conference to support his proposal.

Stalin then pointed out that we could not create a Polish Government unless the Poles themselves agreed to it. The Polish Government in London were hostile to the very idea of the Lublin Government, and described it as a company of bandits and criminals. The Lublin Government had paid them back in their own coin, and it was now very difficult to do anything about it.

The Lublin or Warsaw Government, as it should now be called, wanted to have nothing to do with the London Government. They had told him they would accept General Zeligowski and Grabski, but they would not hear of Mikolajczyk becoming Prime Minister. "Talk to them if you like," he said in effect. "I will get them to meet you here or in Moscow, but they are just as democratic as de Gaulle, and they can keep the peace in Poland and stop civil war and attacks on the Red Army." The London Government could not do this.

It was now late in the evening and the President suggested adjourning till the next day, but I thought it right to state that the United Kingdom and the Soviet Government had different sources of information in Poland and had received different accounts of what had happened. I said that according to our information not more than one-third of the Polish people would support the Lublin Government if they were free to express their opinion.

The President was now anxious to end the discussion. "Poland," he remarked, "has been a source of trouble for over five hundred years." "All the more," I answered, "must we do what we can to end these troubles." We then adjourned.

✧ ✧ ✧

Molotov accordingly took the stage (on February 7) and read out the following summary:

1. It was agreed that the Curzon Line should be the eastern frontier of Poland, with adjustments in some regions of five to eight kilometres in favour of Poland.

2. It was decided that the western frontier of Poland should be drawn from the town of Stettin (which would be Polish) and thence southwards along the river Oder and the Western Neisse.

3. It was considered desirable to add to the Provincial Polish Government some democratic leaders from Polish emigre circles.

4. It was considered desirable that the enlarged Provisional Polish Government should be recognized by the Allied Governments.

5. It was considered desirable that the Provincial Polish Government, enlarged as suggested in paragraph 3, should as soon as possible call the population of Poland to the polls for the establishment by general vote of permanent organs of the Polish Government.

6. M. Molotov, Mr. Harriman, and Sir A. Clark Kerr should be entrusted with the discussion of the question of enlarging the Provisional Polish Government and submitting their proposals for the consideration of the three Allied Governments.

Mr. Roosevelt seemed encouraged, and declared that we were making definite progress, but he wanted to talk the matter over with Mr. Stettinius. "I do not like the word emigre," he concluded. "I know none of the people concerned except Mikolajczyk, but I do not think we need only contact emigres. We should also find some people in Poland itself." Stalin agreed to postpone the discussion, but I now intervened, and the interchange which followed may be deemed significant in the light of happened afterwards.

I said that I shared the President's dislike of the word emigre. It was a term wich originated with the French aristocracy who were driven out after the French Revolution, and was properly applied only to those who had been driven out of their own country by their own people. But the Poles abroad had been driven out of their country by the Germans, and I suggested that the words "Poles abroad" should be substituted for emigres. Stalin assented. As for the river Neisse, mentioned in the second of Molotov's proposals, I reminded my hearers that in previous talks Ihad always qualified the moving of the Polish frontier westwards by saying that the Poles should be free to take territory in the west, but not more than they wished or could properly manage. It would be a great pity to stuff the Polish goose so full of German food that it died of indigestion. I was conscious of a large body of opinion in Great Britain which was frankly shocked at the idea of moving millions of people by force. A great success had been achieved in disentangling the Greek and Turkish populations after the last war, and the two countries had enjoyed good relations ever since; but in that case under a couple of millions of people had been moved. If Poland took East Prussia and Silesia as far as the Oder, that alone would mean moving six million Germans back to Germany. It might be managed, subject to the moral question which I would have to settle with my own people.

Stalin observed that there were no Germans in those areas, as they had all run away.

I replied that the question was whether there was room for them in what was left of Germany.

In these general discussions maps were not used, and the distinction between the Eastern and Western Neisse did not emerge as clearly as it should have done. This was however soon to be made clear.

When we met again on February 8, Mr. Roosevelt read out his revised proposals based on Molotov's draft. "No objection," he stated, "is perceived to the Soviet proposal that the eastern boundary of Poland should be the Curzon Line, with modifications in favour of Poland in some areas of from five to eight kilometres." Here at least was one matter on which we could all agree. But the President was firm and precise about the frontier in the west. He agreed that Poland should receive compensation at the expense of Germany, "including that portion of East Prussia south of the Konigsberg line, Upper Silesia, and up to the line of the Oder; but," he continued, "there would appear to be little justification for extending it up to the Western Neisse." This had always been my view, and I was to press it very hard when we met again at Potsdam five months later.

There remained the question of forming a Polish Government which we could all recognize and which the Polish nation would accept. Mr. Roosevelt suggested a Presidential Committee of three Polish leaders who would go to Moscow, form a Provisional Government from representatives in Warsaw, London, and inside Poland itself, and hold free elections as soon as possible.

After a short adjournment, Molotov voiced his disagreement. The Lublin Government, he said, was now at the head of the Polish people. It had been enthusiastically acclaimed by most of them and enjoyed great authority and prestige. The same could not be said of the men from London. If we tried to create a new Government the Poles themselves might never agree, so it was better to try to enlarge the existing one. It would only be a temporary institution, because all our proposals had but one object, namely, to hold free elections in Poland as soon as possible. How to enlarge it could best be discussed in Moscow between the American and British Amabassadors and himself.

"What about the Presidential Committee?" asked Mr. Roosevelt.

"Better avoid it," he answered. "I will mean having two bodies to deal with instead of one."

"This," I said, "is the crucial point of the Conference. The whole world is waiting for a settlement, and if we separate still recognizing different Polish Governments the whole world will see that fundamental differences between us still exist. The consequences will be most lamentable, and will stamp our meeting with the seal of failure. On the other hand, of course, we take different views about the basic facts in Poland, or at any rate some of them. According to British information, the Lublin Government does not commend itself to the great majority of the Polish people, and we cannot feel that it would be accepted abroad as representing them. If the Conference is to brush aside the existing London Government and lend all its weight to the Lublin Government there will be a world outcry. As far as can be foreseen, the Poles outside of Poland will make a virtually united protest. There is under our command a Polish army of 150,000 men, who have been gathered from all who have been able to come together from outside Poland. This army has fought, and is still fighting, very bravely. I do not believe it will be at all reconciled to the Lublin Government, and if Great Britain transfers recognition from the Government which it has recognized since the beginning of the war they will look on it as a betrayal."

"As Marshal Stalin and M. Molotov well know," I proceeded, "I myself do not agree with the London Government's action, which has been foolish at every stage. But the formal act of transferring recognition from those whom we have hitherto recognized to this new Government would cause the gravest criticism. It would be said that His Majesty's Government have given way completely on the eastern frontier (as in fact we have) and have accepted and championed the Soviet view. It would also be said that we have broken altogether with the lawful Government of Poland, which we have recognized for these five years of war, and that we have no knowledge of what is actually going on in Poland. We cannot enter the country. We cannot see and hear what opinion is."

"I do not think," I continued, "that these proposals go nearly far enough. If we give up the Polish Government in London a new start should be made from both sides on more or less equal terms. Before His Majesty's Government ceased to recognize the London Government and transferred their recognition to another Government they would have to be satisfied that the new Government was truly representative of the Polish nation. I agree that this is only one point of view, as we do not fully know the facts, and all our differences will of course be removed if a free and unfettered General Election is held in Poland by ballot and with universal suffrage and free candidatures. Once this is done His Majesty's Government will salute the Government that emerges without regard to the Polish Government in London. It is the interval before the election that is causing us so much anxiety."

Stalin now took up my complaint that I had no information and no way of getting it.

"I have a certain amount," I replied.

"It doesn't agree with mine," he answered, and proceeded to make a speech in which he assured us that the Lublin Government was really very popular, particularly Bierut, Osobka-Morawski, and General Zymierski. The London Government might well contain cleverer people, but they were not liked in Poland because they had not been seen there when the population was suffering under the Hitlerite occupation. It was perhaps a primitive feeling, but it certainly existed.

It was, he said, a great event in Poland that the country had been liberated by Soviet troops, and this had changed everything. It was well known that the Poles had not liked the Russians, because they had three times helped to partition Poland. But the advance of the Soviet troops and the liberation of Poland had completely changed their mood. Stalin said it was his impression that the Polish population considered the driving out of the Germans a great patriotic holiday in Polish life, and they were astonished that the London Government did not take any part in this festival of the Polish nation. They saw on the streets the members of the Provisional Government, but asked where were the London Poles. This undermined the prestige of the London Government, and was the reason why the Provisional Government, though not great men, enjoyed great popularity.

There was dissatisfaction, he continued, because the Polish Government was not elected. It would naturally be better to have a Government based on free elections, but the war had so far prevented that. But the day was near when elections could be held. Until then we must deal with the Provisional Government, as we had dealt, for instance, with General de Gaulle's Government in France, which also was not elected. He did not know whether Bierut or General de Gaulle enjoyed greater authority, but it had been possible to make a treaty with General de Gaulle, so why could we not do the same with an enlarged Polish Government, which would be no less democratic?

"How soon," asked the President, "will it be possible to to hold elections?"

"Within a month," Stalin replied, "unless there is some catastrophe on the front, which is improbable."

I said that this would, of course, set our minds at rest, and we could wholeheartedly support a freely elected Government which would supersede everything else, but we must not ask for anything which would in any way hamper the military operations. These were the supreme end. If, however, the will of the Polish people could be ascertained in so short a time or even within two months, the situation would be entirely different and no one could oppose it.

We thereupon agreed to let our Foreign Secretaries talk the matter over.

✧ ✧ ✧

The three Ministers accordingly met at noon on February 9. They were unable to agree. When, however, the Conference assembled in plenary session at four o'clock in the afternoon Molotov produced some fresh proposals which were much nearer to the American draft. The Lublin Government was to be "reorganized on a wider democratic basis with the inclusion of democratic leaders from Poland itself and also from those living abroad." He and the British and American Ambassadors should consult together in Moscow about how this would be done. Once reorganized the Lublin Government would be pledged to hold free elections as soon as possible, and we should then recognize whatever Government emerged.

Mr. Roosevelt declared that the differences between us and the Russians were not largely a matter of words, but both he and I were anxious that the elections should really be fair and free.

It was impossible, I said, to exaggerate the importance of carrying out elections fairly. For instance, would Mikolajczyk be able to go back to Poland and organize his party for the elections?

"That will have to be considered by the Ambassadors and M. Molotov when they meet the Poles," said Stalin.

I replied, "I must be able to tell the House of Commons that the elections will be free and that there will be effective guarantees that they are freely and fairly carried out."

Stalin pointed out that Mikolajczyk belonged to the Peasant Party, which, as it was not a Fascist party, could take part in the elections and put up its candidates. I said that this would be still more certain of the Peasant Party were already represented in the Polish Government, and Stalin agreed that the Government should include one of their representatives.

✧ ✧ ✧

Just before our last effective meeting on February 10, Mr. Eden and I had a private conversation with Stalin and Molotov at the Yusupov Villa, at which I once more explained how difficult it was for us to have no representatives in Poland who could report what was going on. The alternatives were either an Ambassador with an Embassy staff or newspaper correspondents. The latter was less desirable, but I pointed out that I should be asked in Parliament about the Lublin Government and the elections and I must be able to say that I knew what was happening.

"After the new Polish Government is recognized it would be open to you to send an Ambassador to Warsaw," Stalin answered.

"Would he be free to move about the country?"

"As far as the Red Army is concerned, there will be no interference with his movements, and I promise to give the necessary instructions, but you will have to make your own arrangements with the Polish Government."

This was the best I could get.

Better Than Ever Judy Says Of Latest Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jude Garland is working in a movie for the first time in four years. By her own admission, she's better than ever.

Miss Garland is acting in "A Star is Born," a remake of the 1937 film classic that starred Janet Gaynor and Fredric March. For a variety of reasons, the set has been closed until recently. The first two weeks of shooting had to be scrapped when Warner Brothers decided to make it a cinemascope instead of the normal screen. Also, there were reports of tantrums.

But when I saw Judy on the set, she was just as nice as pie. She giggled her way through a comedy scene in a projection room and was jolly with the crew.

MET THE PEOPLE

When she finished the scene, she plumped down in her dressing room and remarked that she thought she had improved in her four-year absence.

"I think I've become much bitter since then," she said candidly. "I know it sounds awful to say, but I never really liked myself on the screen before. But now I go to the rushes and I actually enjoy them. I even cry a little at the sad scenes.

"The four years have done me a lot of good. I got out and met the people and sang before live audiences. It improved my timing, and my voice is better, too. I think I look better. I don't have that 'little girl' look any more."

About the remake of 'A Star is Born," she said: "We are adding elements that the first movie did not have. We have songs in this one, and cinemascope. In some ways, the story is improved.

"The first picture had no scenes to show why the two leads became top stars, there were no scenes from their own pictures.

"But our picture will show why the girl reaches the top. There will be six musical numbers."

25,000-Ton Freighter Launched On Lakes

MIDLAND (CP)—The 25,000-ton T. R. McLagan, believed the largest freighter ever built inland for service on the Great Lakes, was launched here Saturday.

The 715-foot ship was launched by Mrs. T. R. McLagan, wife of T. R. McLagan, president of Canada Steamship Lines, for whom the ship was named.

The ship will carry 800,000 bushels of grain or 25,000 tons of ore, travelling at 17 miles an hour.

FOWL EXPERIENCE IS (H)ARROWING — Syracuse, N.Y., archers have been hard on wild fowl lately. Two luckless birds in less than a month have chanced to fly in the paths of sharpshooters' arrows. Orono Racing Cancelled By Snowfall

That half a foot of snow Saturday afternoon cancelled the card of harness racing at Orono, and the wind up of the Dufferin Park meet for runners in Toronto.

Two days remained of the schedule for the long season for the thoroughbreds around the Ontario circuit that opened in May. Saturday at the Orono track was to have been the last of the weekend features, with a final card for this afternoon. Heavy snowfall in Toronto advised the sudden termination of the Dufferin program, for the safety of both horses and jockeys.

Orono turf club had arranged an afternoon meet for thoroughbreds with wagering, but the unexpected and heavy fall of snow dropped the boom on that flirting with the fall weather. Eight heats were listed, but as the local horsemen said: "Who'd stand around in that snow?"

Stress Security N.S. Army Camp

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Extra security precautions continued at the army's Camp Aldershot here today as military and police investigators sought the cause of two major fires that broke out within 14 hours Saturday.

The first destroyed the officers' mes, the second the camp theatre. Damage was fixed at about $200,000. Arson or sabotage is suspected.

CAMP PATROLLED

The camp, being made ready for 27th Brigade troops from Germany next month on rotation leave, was under close guard. Sentries patrolled the grounds and all entries and exits. Special permits were required to enter.

About 500 men of the Black Watch and West Nova Scotia regiments are in camp now. Those on week-end leave were recalled when the second fire broke out "Until we can find the cause of the fires, every clue will be followed," Col. H. E. T. Doucette, camp commandant, said. An army fire marshal was due today from Ottawa.

5 Of 6 Hunters Safe, 3 Hurt

SUDBURY (CP)—Five of six hunters missing in Sudbury district bush turned up safe during the week-end. Three hunters were wounded, one seriously.

Still missing is Nick Schurko of Gatchell, near Sudbury, overdue on a hunting trip near Nairn Centre, 35 miles west of here.

Those who turned up were: George Volpel of Minnow Lake, Sudbury suburb; Eino Sakey of Sudbury; Ernest Cook, 39, Wainville, Ohio; Charles Hardy, Toronto, and Reg. Winstall, Toronto.

THREE WOUNDED

Harvey Gauthier, 52, of Sudbury, is in hospital here with a bullet lodged in his chest. His condition is serious. He was shot when a .22 rifle carried by his son, Victor, 25, accidentlly discharged.

Others wounded in hunting accidents were Harry Formanck, of Sudbury, shot in the back by a gun carried by his 10-year-old son, when a twig caught in the trigger; and Vernon Gorham, 17, of Levack, mistaken for a deer by a fellow hunter, Sydney Preston, 17, of Windy Lake. Gorham was shot in the arm.

Two Hunters Still Missing Of Dozens Lost In North

NORTH BAY (CP)—Authorities today issued almost-hourly reports on hunters wounded, missing or found in district bush lands.

Three men are in hospital here with minor gunshot wounds. Of the dozens lost, two are still missing. Both haven't been seen since Saturday. They are William Davis of Callander, Ont., and Sam Stargratt, 45, of Widdiefield township, who are sought separately in Jocko township, some 20 miles northeast of here.

Two others missing since Saturday came out today after surviving a blizzard that roared down on the district Saturday night. They were James Clifford of Toronto and Harry Lackner, 45, Elmire, Ont. Clifford found his way out to a railway section house at Tomiko this morning. Lackner, who ate snow to ease his hunger during two days in the woods, eached Highway 11 today.

ONE-LEGGED MAN SAFE

An unidentified one-legged man, who was lost Sunday, also found his way out this morning.

Scores of hunters' cars, heading north, went into ditches beside Highway 11 Saturday night as snow coated the road with treacherous slush.

Near Powassan Sunday, Robert Borgatte, 32, of Welland, suffered the loss of the small finger on his left hand as a result of a gunshot. Also near Powassan, 23 miles south of here, Alex Virag of Lasaletti, Ont., suffered a bullet wound through his foot.

Also in hospital is a man who was shot in the nose Friday by a companion who was shooting at a large dog he had mistaken for a deer.

Princess Alexandra Edging Margaret For Popular Role

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — A 16-year-old with misty blue eyes is edging Princess Margaret for the role of Britain's most eligible "spinster."

The newcomer is Princess Alexandra, a long-limbed beauty with a Royal flair for elegance. Already she's been around town with some of Margaret's old beaux.

Alexandra Helen Elizabeth Olga Christabel of Kent, Alex for short, is growing up. She is five feet seven inches tall with a taste for fancy clothes and sophisticated chatter.

She gets her looks from her father, the Duke of Kent, fourth son of King George V. The Duke died in a wartime air crash while serving in the Royal Air Force.

GLAMOROUS MOTHER

Her elegance comes from her mother, the former princess Marina of Greece who, in her 50s, still ranks high among the world's best-dressed women.

At school she proved adept at languages but a flop at cricket.

FIRST SOCIAL WHIRL

A chaperone was always near at hand. Sometimes her mother acts as chaperone. Sometimes its the French Vicomtesse de Bellaigue, who earlier this year took the Princess on her first trip to Paris.

Under Colombo Plan Nurses Take Post-Graduate Work

One of the three Colombo Plan students, Mrs. Beatrice Thakurdas of New Delhi, is taking nursing administration. Before coming to Canada she was assistant superintendent of nurses at a medical college in India.

Another Colombo Plan student, Emilia Sequeira, was nursing superintendent of the 850-bed Osmainia hospital, largest in Hyderabad, India.

Maria Parentini of Montevideo, here on a Rockefeller studentship, will become an instructor at Uruguay University when she finishes her course in nursing education.

Maria de Lourdes Ramos dos Santos of Lisbon is taking advanced administration and supervision work. A 1952 graduate of the Escola Tecnical de Engermeiras, Miss Santos expects to work on cancer research when she returns to Portugal.

From England comes Marjorie Matthias of London. She has been working as operating room supervisor at St. George's Hospital—established in 1733 and one of the oldest in England—and now is taking clinical supervision work on a Florence Nightingale scholarship.

Odete Barros de Andrade of Brazil taught nursing students in Sao Paulo's school of hygiene and public health in Brazil. She is taking advanced public health, on a Rockefeller Foundation grant, and will go back to her job as head nurse and teacher.

Alumnae Tea Successful In Spite Of The Weather

Many who would have liked to be at the Purple and Gold Tea on Saturday afternoon were kept away by the sudden arrival of the season's first snow and the resulting road conditions. But, a surprising number of friends did come out to enjoy the hospitality of the Alumnists of Peterborough Civic Hospital School of Nursing at the YWCA Green Room.

Once again this affair offered a doll with bed and complete wardrobe as a draw prize and ticket buyers, as well as the sellers, are hoping for it to go on some little girl's Christmas tree. Miss Evelyn Robson, who is director of nursing at the hospital, drew the winning ticket with this hope in her heart. The name on it was "Norm Booth, Bridgenorth."

A second draw prize was a framed piece of cross-stitch embroidery making an attractive picture, the work of the convener of the tea, Mrs. A. Wade. Winner of this was another member of the Alumnae, Mrs. E. Roberts.

Purple and Gold are the colors of the Alumnae and so provide the familiar name for their affairs, as well as an effective scheme for decorations, this year in charge of Mrs. Eva Brackenridge. Bazaar tables were skirted in purple bordered with gold and the lace-covered tea table was beautiful with its bouquet of giant Japanese 'mums in deep purple and bright gold with ivy spreading out from the large crystal bowl. Candles in matching shades were in the tall silver candalabra.

To this setting the guests were welcomed by Mrs. Phyllis Kingdon, president of the Alumnae.

With her during the first hour of the tea was Miss Robson and for the second hour, Mrs. Wade, while Miss Robson poured tea, presiding at the same time as Mrs. M. J. Swanston, wife of the chairman of the hospital board of governors. Previously Mrs. G. Wainwright and Mrs. P. Logan of the Alumnae poured tea.

Mrs. R. R. Stewart was in charge of serving and her assistants were Mrs. George Oliver, Mrs. Orville Lunn, Miss Jean Preston, Mrs. Don Hill, Miss Mary Nesbitt, Mrs. P. Logan, Miss Dorothy Pidgeon, Mrs. Clara Goodberry, Miss Mary Greer, Mrs. James Yarn and Mrs. E. R. Bestard, while refreshments were arranged by Mrs. W. Jones and Mrs. E. Wellman.

Music in the tea room was by piano pupils of Miss Mary Lackey. They were Doug Deyell, Alan Coin, Nancy, Gwen and David Hancock, Mary Elizabeth Lang and Bernice Pepe.

A new feature of the bazaar section was the sale of roses, singly or in quantity as desired. Mrs. R. Pearson and Mrs. Roberts looked after this table. The mail-box red "parcel post" box in charge of Mrs. G. Powell was soon emptied.

A bazaar table offering much variety in fine needlework was attended by Mrs. Roy Taylor and Mrs. Thomas Holyman and Mrs. Wainright sold aprons. Mrs. Herb Tranter was in charge of the home baking table and had Mrs. G. Morrison and Mrs. J. Thornton as assistants.

Tickets on the doll were for sale at the tea by Mrs. G. Bryett and Misses Lottie Ball and Agnes Bowler. Mrs. F. Revoy sold tickets on the picture. Admission tickets were taken at the door by Mrs. D. Kerneghan and Mrs. W. Clarke.

Gift And Award Giving At Swim Club's Dinner

Climax to a year that has brought unexpected heights of success and ever - widening acclaim to Peterborough Ornamental Swimmnig Club was the anniversary dinner party for all the club members and their friends on Saturday evening. Guests, numbering 150, at the Empress Hotel ranged from a three-and-a-half-year-old junior swimmer to her grandmother.

Presentation followed presentation when the time came for award-giving. Compliments from Canadian and American officials in synchronized swimming affairs were showered on coach Mrs. Pansy Forbes and the club. They have crossed to the United States and won a duet championship and an international and a world team championship, the latter two in the past year.

It had been thought fitting to save the medals won at Niagara Falls, N.Y., and at Florida for presentation at the dinner and the team of 12 "Jumping Jacks" were called forward to receive them from past chairman of the AAU Mrs. Mary Desrosiers, of Detroit.

A surprise trick was pulled from the sleeve when Mrs. Desrosiers and AAU chairman Miss June Houghton presented Mrs. Forbes with an AAU pin given to them at the last Olympic Games for having brought swimmers to another country. They felt that Mrs. Forbes had done as much in crossing their international border with her club.

There was a gift to Mrs. Forbes from her swimmers, too. They chose a handsome wardrobe size travelling bag. Personal gifts to her were from Mrs. C. R. Sellers, of Montreal, Canadian chairman of synchronized swimming, and Mrs. Margaret Sharpe, of Toronto, Ontario chairman, and both presented the club with recordings.

Miss Lillian Weiss, who has been hair stylist for the swimmers at the time of their shows, presented them with a cheque for $20. A gift from the out-of-town guests at the dinner was found to be accompanied by $10 for the club treasury.

The club remembered with gifts the friends who have helped them so much in the past year. Mrs. F. Gant and Mrs. J. L. Young, who take charge of the costuming, each received the club crest, to match lapel pins presented last year, and Mr. Alex Sinclair, recreation commission director, received a tie pin to match cuff links given him previously. Mr. Cook Munro, who is continuing his help to the club, was given a pair of cuff lniks.

Pins to denote honorary membership of the club were given Mrs. Sellers and Mrs. Desrosiers, after they had gone through a "grilling" initiation.

EIGHT PROMOTED

Promotion of eight intermedaite swimmers to the senior group was announced at the dinner. Carol Howe, Carley Lynch, Marjorie and Gerry Vinette, Linda Touchburn, Donna Goodson, Gail Ferguson and Gail Wilkinson each received one of the Lift Lock imprinted sweat shirts worn by seniors, presented by Mr. James McClenaghan of the YMCA staff.

AWARDS

Awards for attendance, progress and good sportsmanship have been made in each section of the club and there were lovely trophies for each of the nine winners.

Senior awards, presented by Mr. Wilf Langan, chairman of Peterborough Recreation Commission, were to Sandra Menzies for attendance, Dorothy Russelle for progress and to retiring club president Isabel Crary for her very successful guidance during the year.

Intermediate trophies, presented by Mr. Alex. Sinclair, were to Diana Sue Delahaye for attendance, Carol Parnell for progress and Annabelle Morley for sportsmanship. In this section there were runners-up, Nancy Girven for attendance and Bonnie McGregor for progress.

Junior trophies, presented by Miss Leta Brownscombe of the YWCA, went to Bobby Vinette for attendance, Harriet Moldaver for progress and Judy Russelle for good work. Runners-up were Claudette Millard and Mary Jane Gardner.

A vote of thanks from Juniors and Intermediates to their coach Mrs. Forbes and the senior swimmers who help her on Saturdays, was extended by Annabelle Morley.

Mr. Ernest O. Stengel, superintendent of park and recreational swimming in the city of Detroit, was a special guest on this occasion and was asked to speak.

He said he came to pay tribute to Mrs. Forbes and the swimmers and he spoke particularly to the parents present in commendation of Mrs. Forbes for the effort in forming junior and intermediate groups within the club. "I think all recreational agencies should strive for family participation" he said.

One statement he made was one long hoped for by synchronized swimming enthusiasts: That synchronized swimming will be the demonstration sport at the next olympics.

Introduction of Mr. Stengel was by Norma Douglas and he was thanked by Shirley Moldaver.

A toast to Queen Elizabeth II was proposed by Miss Houghton, of Detroit, and Miss Nancy Doubt asked that a toast to the president of the United States be drunk.

Announcement was made that the club members would attend the service at George Street United Church on Sunday evening to complete the celebration of their anniversary. Mrs. Arnold Mathews, wife of the minister of that church, attended the dinner and said the grace.

All dinner guests stood for several minutes in silent tribute to a benefactor of the club, the late Mr. Les Bristow, father of senior swimmer Donna Bristow, a member of the championship winning team.

NEW OFFICERS

Final item of the program was the installing of new officers, which has been carried out annually for several years by Mrs. Sellers.

New president is Beverley Dunford; vice-president is Shirley Moldaver; corresponding secretary, Betty Welsh; recording secretary, Jean Russelle; treasurer, Joan Craig; asssitant treasurer, Sandra Menzies.

Retiring president Isabel Crary was chairman for the evening.

8,000-Mile Trip, 7 Months From Vancouver To London

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Geraldine MacKenzie, a 23-year-old Vancouver actress, stepped off a ship in London's dockland on a murky October day. Her arrival climaxed an 8,000-mile trip started seven months earlier.

Last March, Gerry boarded a Norwegian tramp freighter as a stewardess to work her way to London. The ship was re-routed to Japan from the Panama canal and Miss MacKenzie spent months in a return journey to Vancouver.

"A long trip aboard an ex-liberty ship with one other girl who speaks no English can be rough," she said. Gerry quit when they berthed again at Vancouver and made for her parents' home. Two days later the captain sent word he was "really going to Britain this time" and Gerry went back on board, although it meant coming to London with only £8 in her pocket.

"I was pretty scared," she said in an interview. "But Canadians who had been here told me it was fairly easy to get work of sorts while looking around."

MONEY SOON GOES

During her sea trip Gerry sent $30 a month home to help brother Gordon through an engineering course at the University of British Columbia. In London, she spent £4 of her £8 in two nights befode finding a students' hostel. Now she's spent the lot but is working nights at a dish-washing job worth her bed and breakfast. Daytime she pounds the pavement between theatre agents.

At high school Gerry won a school drama award and continued theatre work during a year's psychiatric nursing at Vancouver's Essondale Mental Hospital. She took this job "to study character from a dramatic viewpoint."

Miss MacKenzie also studied singing in Vancouver and during his first week in London was auditioned twice for a singing spot with band leader Harry Roy. The night club maestro thinks "she's quite good," although he didn't give a decision.

She came to London expecting to see Vancouver's talent hunter Carol l Levis, who went to school with her mother. Unfortunately, Levis is out of town until Christmas.

His Wife Entertains So Many Females Husband Seeks Quiet Away From Home

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a very good friend who is always saying that her husband never stays home. I could tell her why, but she wouldn't believe me. The reason is that she has always one or two of her girl friends over for meals, or to stay overnight. If she doesn't have her own friends, then it's her daughter's college chums in for a weekend. I know my husband wouldn't stand for this, although he's a fine, friendly sociable person. I think a man wants, and is entitled to, privacy in his home.

Jessie G.

A HUSBAND NEEDS QUIET

ANSWER: Usually I am inclined to look somewhat askance at letters from "friends" who believe they can solve another person's difficulty, but your summing up of a problem seems exactly right. Virtually every man resents an overdose of lady visitors around the house, and if he doesn't get peace and quiet home, at least occasionally, he most certainly will go somewhere else for it. Hospitality is a virtue, but like so many other good things it can be overdone, and your friend has found a perfect way to overdo it.

I often exhort young people to keep the friends of their youth, since they are irreplaceable, but too often in the first hectic years of marriage the old pals are lost. I certainly would never advise anyone, however, to keep such close contact with friends that they are around day and night. Between the two extremes there's a fine middle course, and your friend had better find it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 16 and considered attractive. However, my best friend, who is the same age and not pretty, has more dates than I have.

Mixed Up

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The difference must be in disposition. Perhaps you are more interested in yourself than in the boys—and boys do like to have a young lady's undivided attention. Are you a cheerful companion, willing to forego expensive places in consideration of a young man's wallet? Are you able to discuss sports, and other things that interest males? "Yes" to these questions should insure you dates. Don't try to rely altogether on your good looks to attract men, for that isn't enough.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My father died three years ago, and my mother is lonely, as most widows are. Now I am planning to marry, but am afraid to leave my mother alone. My fiance is very fond of her, but I don't know whether to ask her to share our home or not. I'm 18.

M. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your mother is still comparatively young (I assume she's no older than her early 40's), and perhaps you're a bit premature in putting her on the shelf. She may be more independent than you think. Give her a chance to work out her own destiny, by discussing your future with her, and asking what she wants to do. The wise thing would be for her to remain by herself.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A few months ago I broke off with my girl over some lies that were told about us both. Now she is talking to me again, and I think she'd go out with me if I asked her. Should I?

Allen H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By all means, do. Since you know neither of you was to blame for the misunderstanding, why not forget it and be friends?

SCOTTISH CENTRE

Aberdeen, Scottish university city on the North sea, was a flourishing centre as early as the 12th century.

Of Interest to Women

QUEEN MOTHER ELIZABETH plants a tree in the grounds of Blithfield Hall, during her tour of Staffordshire, England.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Baked Apple Dumplings No Diet For Reducers

Blindfolds are indicated for the reducers, for I'm going to give you a recipe for Apple Dumplings, that will test your resistance and fortitude. If you read it you are doomed. I did. I was.

Golly, are they ever good! Probably 400 calories per serving.

BAKED APPLE DUMPLINGS

Pare and core 6 tart, juicy medium-sized apples and fill cavities with mixture of ½ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg or cinnamon, and dot top with 1 tablespoon butter—that is, use ½ teaspoon butter to top of each filled cavity.

Pastry (same as for one 2-crust 9-inch pie): 2 cups sifted pastry flour. 1 teaspoon salt. 2-3 cup shortening. 4 tablespoons ice-cold water. Sift together sifted flour and salt; cut in shortening with pastry blender until it looks like meal. Sprinkle water over, mixing lightly with a fork until all flour is moistened. Gather dough together with the fingers so that it cleans the bowl. Press into ball and roll out on lightly floured board, to a little less than ⅛-inch thickness, and cut into six 7-inch squares.

Place an apple that has been prepared as above on each pastry square, apple cavity being filled and dotted with butter. Bring opposite points of pastry up over the apple, overlapping the four points, then moisten them a little underneath and seal. Lifting them carefully place them a little apart on baking dish. Pour this HOT syrup around the dumplings. SYRUP: Boil together for 3 minutes 1 cup sugar, 2 cups water. 3 tablespoons butter, ¼ teaspoon nutmek or cinnamon. When syrup is poured around apples bake immediately at 425 degrees Fahr. for about 40 to 45 minutes or until crust is nicely browned and apples are cooked through. You may test one from the side with a fork. Serve these warm with the syrup and with pouring cream or unsweetened whipping cream.

Now I have given you the regulation recipe but I have a recipe for pastry made with sour cream and a very little butter that makes the tenderest dumplings imaginable. You are supposed to have unpasteurized sour cream for this. If any of you are sure of your source and can get unpasteurized sour cream you are in luck. I tried it with pasteurized sour cream and it was excellent too.

SOUR CREAM PASTRY FOR DUMPLINGS

(Since this cannot be rolled as thinly as regular pastry this pastry will only cover 5 apples.) Sift together 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and cut into it 1 tablespoon butter. Stir into 1 cup sour cream ¼ teaspoon baking soda. Quickly stir this into the flour mixture. If your sour cream is a little thin—do not add all of it. Add just enough to make the dough soft but at the same time stiff enough to roll out. You must be a good judge of pastry texture to do this right the first time. Roll out to about ¼-inch thickness or a little thinner if you can without breaking it, and cut into 5 7-inch squares, Finish as above.

NOTE: You may want to omit the syrup with the sour cream pastry—go ahead. You will need more pouring cream when you serve it though. You may want to use juicy peaches for the filling—if so omit syrup.

MOORE—In loving memory of Mrs. E. C. Moore who passed away Nov. 10, 1952. Always remembered by her friends.

NICHOLSON—In loving memory of my dear wife, Mrs. Harry J. Nicholson, who passed away, November 9, 1950.

What would I give her hand to clasp;
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.
—Ever remembered by husband.

TROTTER—In loving memory of Teddy Wallace Trotter, who passed away six years ago, November 9, 1947.

God marked him when he gave him birth;
And took him with a smile.

OBITUARIES

FREDRICK ROBERTS

A resident of Peterborough for the past half century, Fredrick Roberts of 277 Thomas street, died on Sunday at his home following a prolonged illness. He was born in Wales, son of the late John Roberts and Elizabeth Davis, and came to Peterborough 50 years ago.

He leaves his wife, the former Annie Maude Flannery, a daughter, Miss Eva Roberts of this city and a son, Jack H., of Islington. A brother, Jack Roberts, also lives in Peterborough and two others, James and Thomas, and two sisters, Mrs. J. Hutchison and Mrs. H. Beard, all live in England. Mr. Roberts retired five years ago from the Fairalloy Company of Orillia. He was a member of George Street United Church.

Funeral service will be held Wednesday at the Comstock funeral home at 2 p.m. The Rev. A. W. Rowland will officiate and burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. EMMA ELIZABETH COX

A former resident of Peterborouhg, Mrs. Emma Elizabeth Cox died Friday in Vancouver General Hospital at the age of 79 after a brief illness.

A daughter of the late Donald Baillie and Emma Hoag, Mrs. Cox was born in Prescott. She moved to Peterborough at the age of 12. Before going to Vancouver 18 years ago, she was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church choir and a life member of the Women's Missionary Society.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Cecil Gallagher, (Ethel), Peterborough; three grandaughters, Mrs. Glen Moher (Muriel), Mrs. Campbell Leckie (Joyce) both of Peterborough; and Mrs. Philip Ristow (Alice) Ottawa; five great grandchildren, Mark, Gene, Paul and Maureen Moher and Scott Leckie.

The body is resting at the Comstock funeral home from Wednesday at noon until funeral service at 2 p.m. Thursday with the Rev. C. G. Boyd officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Opposes Guelph Mayor

GUELPH (CP) — Alderman Joseph P. Heffernan today announced he will oppose Mayor Harry Worton in the December municipal elections. Mr. Worton is seeking a third term.

Mishaps Hurt 10

SUDBURY (CP) — Ten persons required medical treatmen during the week-end here for minor injuries in a series of street and highway crashes. Most of the accidents were said to be caused by the week-end snowfall.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS —By Merrill Blosser

Guy N. James, 34, of 89 Hunter St. E., a passenger in the northbound car in St. Joseph's Hospital with a badly cut face. His condtion today is improved.

3 OTHER VICTIMS

Three other people are in Civic Hospital as a result of motor vehicle accidents. All were admitted Saturday night.

Mrs. Frederick Jewison, 66, of Bailieboro, came in at 8:30 p.m. with a fractured collarbone; John Lawrenceson, 50, R.R. 1, Omemee, came in at 10:50 with a fractured left arm; and Earl Lowry, 52, of R.R. 2, Lakefield, came in at 8:15 p.m. with an injured pelvis.

All of them are in satisfactory condtion today.

Two others received treatment: Miss Lindy Joyes, 21, of 112 Queen St., Lindsay, treated 8 p.m. Saturday; and W. R. Walker, 84, of Lakefield, a fractured left wrist.

Steep hills that became slippery from the packed-down snow were the chief traffic blocks. As many as 200 cars were stalled at one time on the Port Hope highway and buses and private motor vehicles were delayed two hours or more.

At the OPP district headquarters alone 15 accidents were reported between 11:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Officers going to an accident on Highway 36 were dispatched at 11 a.m., ran into a traffic snarl on the hill south of Burleigh, and did not get to their original objective until after 1 p.m.

1,200 CARS STUCK

Throughout the blizzardy day it is estimated that 1,200 cars, trucks, buses-motor vehicles of all kinds—were stuck at some time or other on the Port Hope highway. The hill north of Bewdley and the long hill near Fraserville were the two main traffic blocks.

Three OPP constables—Gordon Gray, Thomas Armitage and Ernest Lunn—worked for four hours to untangle a traffic tie-up at the hill east of Indian River, Highway 7 E. One by one, most of the vehicles got out, and resumed their journey. Most of the traffic was at least two hours late in that direction.

Most noticeable delay to Peterborough residents was caused when the bus, carrying Oakville rugby players to Peterborough, was delayed for two hours on Highway 28. Other players—including some from the Peterborough team—were also held up when they tried to drive through from Highway 2.

Early in the afternoon the highways became so bad that the Department of Highways and the OPP issued appeals to motorists not to travel unless it was absolutely necessary. The ditched and stalled cars also held up the snowplows that were trying to clean off the road surfaces.

George Carphin

Light, Heat and Power, Consolidated, a private utilities company, becoming chief cost accountant and personnel manager of the gas department.

From 1937 to 1947 he attended night classes at Sir George Williams College, which at that time operated under a YMCA charter. In his final year he was president of the students council and assisted in securing a provincial charter for the college.

In 1941-42 he studied medicine at McGill University, teaching mathematics and science at Sir George Williams College to finance his medical education. The financial burden became too great however and he resumed his night classes at Sir George Williams College, from which he obtained bachelor degrees in science and commerce.

From 1943 to 1945 he audited war contracts in the treasury department of the federal government and from 1945 to 1949 he was a member of the Montreal section of the appeal board of the income tax department.

MOVED TO CITY

In 1949, Mr. Carphin moved to Peterborough where he opened his present practice as an accredited public accountant. He lived briefly in Bridgenorth before moving into the city.

He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and of the Institute of Accredited Public Accountants of Ontario and a former member of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants. He has been a member of ratepayers associations in Montreal and Peterborough. This is his first excursion into municipal politcs.

He is married to the former Eileen Ryan of Montreal.

Storm Stops Services

HARWOOD (ENS)—Saturday's snowstorm brought cancellation of a Saturday night dance and Sunday morning church services in this district.

Services were cancelled in Bethesda United church and St. John's Church, Harwood, on account of the bad roads Sunday. Services will be resumed next Sunday at Bethesda at 11:00 a.m. and at St. John's at 3:00 p.m.

U.S. Court Rules Baseball Still Only Sport

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court today ruled professional baseball is still only a sport and hence is not subject to federal anti-trust laws.

The court's decision was given on three appeals attacking the much-discussed player "reserve clause," keystone of organized baseball.

The appeals had asked the court to reverse a 1922 unanimous decision delivered by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes that baseball is a sport, not a business.

Today's decision was announced in a per curiam opinion—that is, one not signed by any member of the court.

It said the tribunal was upholding the Holmes' decision of 1922 "so far as that decision determines that Congress had no intention of including the business of baseball within the scope of the federal anti-trust laws."

Today's ruling came less than a month after the high court heard three hours of arguments stretched over two days.

The appeals were taken to the high court by two former minor league players and the former owner of the El Paso, Tex., baseball club. They contended baseball exercised an illegal monopoly over activities of its players by use of the "reserve clause."

This clause—included in all baseball contracts—puts a player under complete control of the club that owns his contract. The club may sell the player's services to another club, but the player may not make any deals of his own with other teams.

Baseball's attorneys argued there was essentially no difference between baseball in 1922 and today. They disputed a theory that radio and TV had changed the structure of the game.

How many Canadians work for Inco?

"Well, in the city of Sudbury there are upwards of 50,000 people, and 20,000 more in the mining communities around Sudbury. A large proportion of them work for Inco or have jobs that wouldn't exist if it weren't for the nickel mines and plants. Many more work at the great nickel refinery at Port Colborne, Ontario."

"It must cost a lot for wages?"

"Yes, dear, in 1952 the International Nickel Company paid over $65,000,000 in wages and salaries to Canadian workers. And of course thousands more people earned a living producing the food, clothing, furniture and other things bought by nickel employees, and the machinery, equipment, lumber and power used in the nickel mines and plants. So Inco really helps to create employment all over Canada."

"The Romance of Nickel" a 72 page book fully illustrated, will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

Cloudy Weather Forecast To Follow Storm

TORONTO (CP)—Cool cloudy weather was forecast for most of Ontario today in the wake of a week-end storm that dumped six to eight inches on southern parts of the province.

The wet snow was blamed for scores of accidents, some fatal, and for several major traffic tie-ups. But it also helped put out the 51 forest fires posing an unseasonable threat in the north country and ended the fire hazard, probably until next spring.

The highways department brought plowing and sanding equipment into play soon after the storm curved into Ontario from the eastern United States Saturday. Buses were able to keep to most of their schedules Saturday. All main roads in Southern Ontario were reported bare Sunday night but wet in spots, while slush hampered driving in sections of the Muskoka and Haliburton areas.

TRAFFIC IMPEDED

Traffic on highway 2 near Brockville Saturday was held up for miles by a series of accidents which blocked the road.

Traffic over the Peace Bridge near Fort Erie and along highway 3 was cut to a trickle at the height of the storm.

The Canadian legion's annual memorial parade and cenotaph service scheduled for Sunday at Fort Erie was postponed until next Sunday due to unfavorable weather.

Freezing rain made streets dangerous in Montreal Saturday and was blamed for a number of minor accidents.

Winnipeg had cloudy weather during the week-end but no snow. Farther north, Flin Flon reported a 10-inch snowfall. Observers forecast a trend toward clearing skies and warmer weather in most of Manitoba today.

While the east coast had Sunday temperatures in the high 30s and low 40s, the west coast reported a cool showery day with readings in the high 40s and low 50s. Southwestern Alberta temperatures were relatively balmy—in the 50s.

The deceased was born in Haldimand township, south of Roseneath, 77 years ago, a son of the late George Thomas and his wife, the former Harriett Clarke, of Roseneath.

Going overseas early in the First World War, he served in France and Belgium. Returning home, he resided in Alnwick township near Roseneath, and later in Peterborough, moving to Colborne village some few years ago.

Train Derailed

KNAPP, Wis. (AP)—Twenty-one cars of two Chicago and North Western Railway freight trains were derailed Sunday at Knapp, a village in northwestern Wisconsin. No injuries were reported. Railroad officials said a car in the middle of an east bound train left the rails because of a broken wheel. The car struck the middle of a west bound train which was passing. The collision derailed 13 cars of the west bound train and eight cars of the other train.

FRESH FROZEN BLOOD PLASMA can be thawed out on the kitchen stove, if necessary, to aid a hemophiliac in an emergency.

Frozen Blood Plasma Gives Hemophiliacs New Hope

NOTE: This is the first of two dispatches that reveal some new strides science has taken in solving the riddle of life of victims of the dread bleeding disease, hemophilia.

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) Medical science has enlisted the aid of the home freezer and the gas range in the latest attempt to make life a little easier for the victims of the dread bleeding disease, hemophilia.

A hemophiliac lives from one crisis to the next. His blood lacks some clotting factor, which means that any cut is a definite threat to his life. And internal bleeding—hemorrage—is a painful experience. A fall or a bump can cause a hemorrage easily, and the hemophiliac suffers torture.

A few years ago, science discovered that a transfusion was helpful. Fresh blood from a normal person, containing the missing clotting factor, stopped the bleeding. However, fresh blood of the right type isn't always available, it must be administered directly, needing several transfusions, soon becomes overloaded with red corpuscles.

BLOOD PLASMA

But blood plasma — the liquid portion of the blood from which the red corpulses have been removed—does the trick. And now there is fresh frozen blood plasma, just what the doctor ordered for a hemophiliac. Its use was explained in one of several hemophilia exhibits during a two-week session on blood at the New York Academy of medicine.

Unlike blood plasma for normal people, the plasma which the Hemopholiia Foundation and the Blood transfusion Association is using for hemophiliacs is "group and type specific.' Ordinary plasma is "pooled" — every donor's blood is mixed, making it ideal for use by the armed services, for example.

But a hemophiliac should have his correct type of plasma because he needs so much at one time, so this frozen plasma is segregated as it is collected, type by type. Then it is frozen so it can be kept for a year, even in a home freezer When needed, it can be thawed, if necessary, on the kitchen stove befor the physician administers it.

Suppose a hemophiliac is working in an office, and accidentally slams his hand in the file drawer. Small blood vessels in the hand burst. In a normal person, all that would happen would be few moments of pain and perhaps a black-and-blue bruise. But a hemophyliac's pain would be lasting, as the internal bleeding continued, and eventually the affected part might stiffen and become rigid.

FROM DOCTOR

Today, if he lives in a metropolitan center, he can go to his doctor who would immediately get a unit of frozen plasma. Under normal circumstances, the infusion of this unit—up to one-and-one-half pints—would be sufficient to stop the bleeding almost immediately. A unit costs $12 in New York City, or its cost can be defrayed by the blood from two donors.

Now suppose a hemophiliac must have a tooth pulled. This is almost major surgery for a hemophilia victim, because of the certain loss of blood. Today, his physician would administer one, two or three units of frozen plasma before the extraction, since the effect of the normal clotting factor in the plasma lasts 12 hours. The dangers from the extraction are minimized. It may be necessary to administer plasma for several days during the healing stage.

One unique factor in the present use of frozen plasma is the method used in the freezing. The plasma is quick frozen at a slant in bottles, so that there is an obvious angle to the frozen, pale orange plasma.

In case the bottle is cracked during shipment, air would get in and contaminate the plasma. But, since the air would also thaw the plasma, it would quickly melt and un-slant. So the administering physician can tell at a glance if the plasma is fit for infusion, by making sure the material in the bottle is slanted.

FIGHTING CHANCE

Doctors who've used the quick frozen plasma say this gives them "a fighting chance" in treating hemophiliacs, and gives the victims the same chance at a normal life.

A few years ago, a hemophiliac boy was faced with a crippling life, as hemorrhages would almost certainly make most of his joints rigid. Worse, there was always the danger of bleeding to death from a particularly bad wound. But today, if he lives in the areas serviced by the Hemophilia Foundation and the Blood Transfusion Association, most emergencies can be controlled by the frozen plasma.

Which is all most hemophiliacs hope for.

(Tomorrow: Science discovers more types of hemophiliacs.)

GM Plant Fire Second Blaze In Three Months

DETROIT (AP)—A short-lived, but potentially dangerous fire disrupted operations at General Motors' hydramatic transmission division Sunday night.

The blaze broke out in the heat treat department of the division's recently-leased quarters in the Kaiser Motor Corp.'s Willow Run plant. It was the second time in three months that fire has struck the GM hydramatic transmission division.

Company officials said the fire started near a number of cyanide tanks. When streams of cold water were poured on the tanks, they exploded spreading fumes throughout much of the plant.

1,200 SENT HOME

A night force of 1,200 workers was sent home, but company officials said the midnight shift reported on schedule.

One person was taken to hospital after inhaling smoke. Three others received first aid treatment for injuries.

Firemen from nearby Ypsilanti and Ypsilanti township joined plant firemen in extinguishing the blaze.

The blaze followed by less than three months a disastrous fire which destroyed GM's transmission plant in Livonia, Mich., and took four lives.

GM moved its transmission operations to the Willow Run plant to lessen the loss of production on some GM lines. GM also supplied automatic transmissions to Ford's Lincoln-Mercury division and several other independent automobile producers.

Havelock-Belmont Service

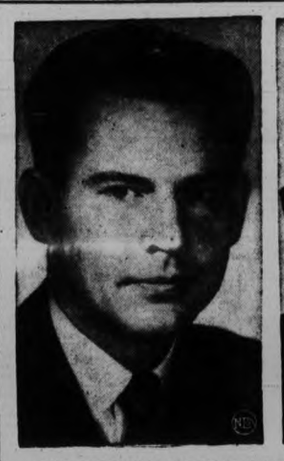
As Years Go By People Forget Sacrifices Made In Wars

HAVELOCK — (ENS) — The Remembrance Day service was held Sunday afternoon, commencing at 2 o'clock at the Memorial Gates with the laying of wreaths, which were dedicated by the Rev. R. D. Duncanson, padre of Havelock-Belmont Branch No. 389 of the Canadian Legion.

The reading of the names of those who had been killed in the two great wars followed. Warden E. J. Leeson read the names of those from Havelock and Gardner Gawley a member of the Belmont-Methuen Council the names of those from the district. Between the sounding of the last post and the reveille by J. Hamblin of Norwood, two minutes silence was observed.

The parade then marched to the town hall for a service which was conducted by the Rev. L. V. Bigelow. Mr. Duncanson gave the address and read the scripture lesson. Mrs. John Beatty was the accompanist.

Mr. Ducanson chose as his subject: "Remember" and basing his ramarks on the hymn "O Valiant Hearts."



He said "The code of the Christion should be to save mankind." He referred to the small attendance at the service and contrasted it with the crowds who turned out in 1918, 1919, 1945 and 1946 at similar services. "The sacrifices were very real and close to them then but as the years go on they forget. The way of humanity seems to be to forget what others have done for them. We also forget what fathers and mothers have done for us to make an easier way of life for us. I am not surprised," Mr. Duncanson said, "for the world seems to have forgotten Christ's sacrifice on Calvary and the assurance of life that is theirs through that sacrifice."

In closing Mr. Duncanson said, "Let us not forget year after year as we gather here, and Sunday after Sunday as we gather in our churches, and day after day as we gather in our homes, to be thankful people to those who have given their all for us."

Three Die

FULTON, Ky. (AP) — Three small children were burned to death Sunday night when an overturned oil heater exploded and threw flames over a room in which they were playing. Their mother and a visitor were burned badly in a frantic effort to save them.

Believe it or not...

this could be you!

The man whose picture belongs here is not necessarily a celebrity or a leading citizen. Indeed, he might be any one of millions of Canadians.

How did so many people benefit their communities so greatly? Simply by insuring their lives! In this way, they set in motion a series of events which have far-reaching effects on themselves and their fellow-citizens.

Take for instance the new highways, schools, bridges, power plants, homes, hotels, hospitals and other important works now being built from coast to coast. Many of these projects have been financed with money which life insurance companies have invested for their policyholders.

Or look at the workers streaming out from some new industrial plant. They may owe their jobs to life insurance policyholders who provide the money needed for investment in that plant's expansion.

Good health, too, is promoted by life insurance policyholders. Several important medical research projects, supported by life insurance company funds, are waging war against polio, heart ailments, cancer and other dread diseases.

But perhaps the life insurance owner's most important service is not any of these things. It is the way he provides for his family so that they will not be a financial burden to his relatives or the community.

So, if you own life insurance, be proud that in all these ways you're helping to make Canada a better land to live in!

Turkey To Enshrine Ataturk In Very Magnificent Tomb

By FRED ZUSY

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Kemal Ataturk, hard-living, hard-drinking dictator from 1920 to his death in 1938, wrought a great revolution in Turkey.

On the 15th anniversary of his death Tuesday, Turkey will enshrine him in one of the world's most magnificent tombs. Under construction for nine years and costing more than $12,000,000, the tomb is a massive, square-pillared stone. It stands atop a hill overlooking this capital city of Ataturk ordered built on marshes once infested with malarial mosquitoes.

ABOLISHED FEZ

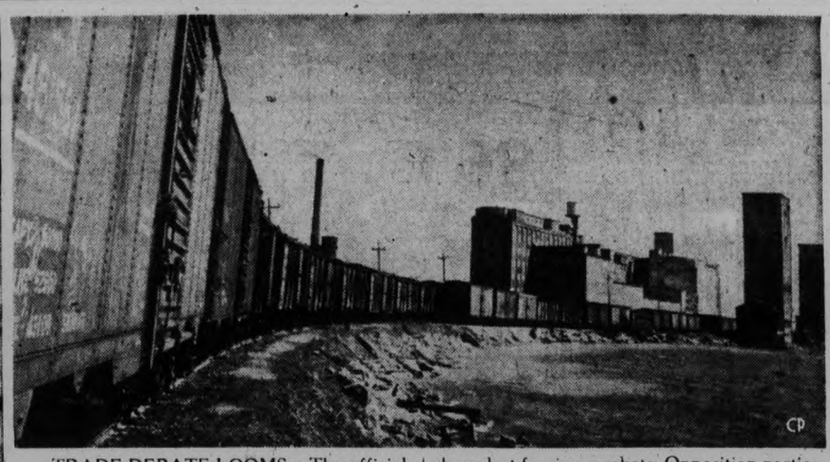
Ataturk threw out the last of the Ottoman sultans, abolished the Moslem caliphate, banned the fez and the veil, replaced the old Arabic script with a new Latin alphabet and substituted Western legal codes for Turkey to assume the important role she plays today as Middle East anchor of the defence against communism.

Ironically, Ataturk made his first international gestures of friendship not to the West but to the Russians. A Russian-Turkish friendship pact signed in March 1921 was the first formal foreign recognition either government had.

At one point, to gain Russian assistance, Ataturk even permitted organization of a Communist party in Turkey. But he made sure some of his best friends "turned Communist" and ran it.

BEST PROOF

Best proof of Ataturk's success in making a modern state out of Turkey came in the 1950 national election when the Democratic party upset his own Republican party, never before beaten at the polls. Ataturk himself had ordered organization of the opposition Democrats.



Most of Ataturk's reforms have stuck despite continued sniping from some Moslem groups. However, Turkey still is no land of milk and honey. Labor unions have little strength. Army and civil servants are poorly paid, living costs are high. Agricultural and mineral wealth is only partially developed.

Ataturk made Turkey socialistic by law. The state planned, constructed and operated almost every big factory and industry, including coal, steel, textiles, cement and even cigarets and alcoholic beverages.

Turkey now is putting emphasis on private investment and seeking foreign capital. New laws under study would encourage foreigners to develop unproved oil resources.

WANTS HEALTH INSURANCE — The CCF party, through its national leader, M. J. Coldwell, will try to persuade the government to introduce a national health insurance plan at the new session of Parliament to open next Thursday. A typical service, under the proposed plan, is shown in this picture of an operating room of the Regina general hospital, where the CCF government has a hospital care scheme.

TRADE DEBATE LOOMS—The official opposition—the Progressive Conservatives—will concentrate early in the new session of Parliament opening next Thursday on government trade policies which it contends have lost foreign markets. Opposition parties want Canada to sell more wheat abroad and relieve the current glut. This long wheat train is moving to a lakehead elevator, crammed, as are most elevators, with grain.

Ex-Consul, Wife Hunger Strike

WINNIPEG (CP) — The hunger strike staged by a former Polish consul and his wife to bring their case to the attention of the external affairs department ende Sunday—and the little family wo dered what would happen next.

Mrs. Helen Krycun slammed her door to reporters as her husband returned to his out-of-town job. It is not known where he is working.

Mrs. Krycun said she and her husband had their first meal Sunday. Asked what the family would do now, she tossed both hands toward the ceiling.

"I don't know anything about it at all," she said.

Mrs. Krycun, speaking through an interpreter, said she knew nothing about a visa when asked about the six months temporary permit which immigration department officials said was waiting at the Winnipeg office for the family to pick up.

2,000,000 Parade To Honor Revolt

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Two million Russian workers paraded in jubilant mood through Moscow's Red square Saturday as Premier Georgi Malenkov turned the spotlight of the Bolshevik revolution anniversary observances on the Soviet people.

In contrast to the precision of the 20-minute military parade which led the procession, the civilian marchers surged informally across the square, often breaking into impromptu dancing to the accompaniment of accordians.

Malenkov looked down on the marchers from the top of Lenin's tomb, bulwarked by Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, President Klementi Voroshilov, Nikita Krushchev, first secretary of the Communist party, and other top leaders.

Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, Soviet defence minister, reviewed the massed troops and then opened the ceremony with a 15-minute speech. He stressed the government's drive to increase output of food and consumer goods on the home front, and accused the Western powers of blocking the road to peace.

Prairie Grits Overhaul Party

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Liberals and Progressive Conservatives have started to overhaul their political systems in an effort to break the grip of socialism in this agricultural province.

The first step in a new policy of the provincial Liberal party, now outnumbered more than 4-1 in the legislature, was made here Saturday. Party officials named a new house leader, Asmunder (Minty) Loptson, 66-year-old member for Saltcoats.

A retired business man and former mayor with 14 years of experience in provincial politics, he will help direct an intensive self-examination of Liberal organizations.

Present standing in the 53-seat legislature is CCF 42, Liberals 10, Progressive Conservatives, 1. CCF members hold 11 of the 17 federal seats, Liberals five and Progressive Conservatives one.

Adam And Fallen Man Lesson-Sermon Topic

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which was read in all Church of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Churches of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden eTxt was "As by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life." (Romans 5: 18.)

Selections from the Bible included the following from Genesis 1: 26, 27: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them.

Johnston, now in Paris, is due to report to President Eisenhower some time next week on the results of his three-week tour of five Middle East countries.

Report Ransom Sold To 'Fence'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The search for the missing $303,720 ransom money in the Bobby Greenlease kidnap-slaying case was stepped up Saturday night with reports it was sold by the underworld.

The Globe-Democrat reported one unverified report was that the money was taken to Chicago and sold by professional "fences" for 30 to 50 cents on the dollar.

Another report said the missing money had been bought by a syndicate to be held on a long-term basis before being put into circulation. This report indicated the money might not be seen for a period of 10 years.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation and police refused to comment on the reports but police sources have said they are checking out all rumors that arise in the case.

Robert C. Greenlease, Bobby's wealthy father, paid the kidnappers $600,000 in ransom but when confessed kidnap-slayer Carl Hall's suitcases were opened only $293,000 was found. Hall said he spent $3,200. The rest of the money is missing.

PC's Will Centre Attack Government Trade Policy

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Lower taxes, economy in government and increased trade likely will form the basis of demands by opposition parties at the new session of Parliament.

At the general election last August the Liberals were returned with a large majority but the Opposition gained strength slightly.

The official Opposition, the Progressive Conservatives, wil concentrate early in the session on trade policies which it contends have lost foreign markets, particularly in the Commonwealth. The government denies this charge.

MAY URGE CONFERENCE

When he speaks in the first main debate after the session opens next Thursday, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, likely will renew a demand that the Liberal government take the initiative in calling a Commonwealth trade conference and seek more world markets for wheat, beef, pork, lumber, butter, cheese, minerals and other products.

This demand probably will receive general support of other opposition groups. The CCF will urge efforts to sell more grain, especially wheat, to countries outside the International Wheat Agreement to relieve Canada's current glut.

Mr. Drew also is expected to urge the government to take the lead in making sterling convertible easily into other currencies so Commonwealth countries can increase imports from Canada. The sterling-dollar picture will be studied next January in Australia by Commonwealth finance ministers.

Opposition parties also will call for lower taxes and more economy in government operations. Mr. Drew is expected to reiterate his election stand that taxes should be cut by at least $500,000,000 annually. At the same time, however, many opposition members will ask the government to increase old age and veterans' pensions.

SEEK BETTER DEAL

Extensive discussion is anticipated on demands for a better financial deal for municipalities. Suggestions may include abolition of the 10-per-cent sales tax on municipal purchases and payment of full municipal taxes on property owned by the federal government. Grants in lieu of taxes now are paid if crown property exceeds four per cent of a municipality's taxable assessment plus the value of the federal property.

Mr. Drew has declined to comment on government proposals to revise the Bank Act but has indicated the legislation will receive thorough examination.

The Social Credit party is expected to expound its monetary theories during study of this legislation.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, has said he welcomes the opportunity to study Canada's banking system.

In an interview, he said his party is "not satisfied that the present organization of our banking system is competent either to meet the needs of the Canadian people or to avert the possibility of an economic recession."

Mr. Coldwell said the CCF will try hard to persuade the government to introduce a national health insurance plan and revise federal social security legislation "to enable it to meet the needs of the Canadian people."

A dozen other controversial subjects will come before the Commons. These include international affairs, military preparedness, civil defence, the St. Lawrence seaway, the South Saskatchewan power and irrigation project, atomic energy, freight rates, television and immigration.

Queen's Christmas Broadcast Be Heard Early Morning Hours

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—For the first time since royal Christmas Day broadcasts were inaugurated by King George V in 1932 this year's message will be aired from outside England.

The Queen will broadcast from the opposite side of the world, speaking from government house here.

Radio experts for months have been examining the problems raised. They believe that as a result of their planning the Queen's speech will be heard by more people than ever before.

SPEAKS IN EVENING

The Queen will make her speech at 9 p.m. Christmas Day, New Zealand time, which will be in the early hours of Christmas morning in Canada. The time chosen was decided upon after lehtngy discussions for three reasons:

It suits the greatest number of listeners throughout the Commonwealth.

It offers the most favorable transmission and reception conditions.

Radio experts examining the world-wide radio channels found that between 8 and 10 p.m. New Zealand time would offer the best conditions.

It will be a summer evening when the Queen sits down to make her broadcast. She will speak from her sitting room in government house, the residence of the governor-general when in Auckland. Set among green lawns and English trees in the heart of the city, the white two-storeyed residence is a venerable building by New Zealand standards, parts of it 100 years old.

The young Queen will sit at a simple, old-fashioned desk. Her message will go by a network of landlines to broadcasting stations beamed to give best reception in the various Commonwealth countries. The transmission to Canada will go either direct or by arrangement with the United States authorities via San Francisco, depending on conditions.

Crushed Ice Health Hazard Too Many Germs-Scientist

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—The ice that chills your food and drinks can be a health hazard, germ tests show.

Ice almost always starts out pure, made from water meeting high sanitary standards. But there can be many a slip twixt freezer and lip by careless handling and serving of crushed or cubed ice.

The tests often find ice carrying germs inviting food poisoning or diarrhoea. How much actual illness they may cause is hard to determine.

CRUSHED ICE WORST

V. D. Foltz of Kansas agricultural experiment station, Manhattan, Kans., analyzed 114 samples of ice collected from public places and hospitals in central Kansas.

From 75 per cent of them, he could cultivate germs of the type responsible for food poisoning, diarrhoea, wound infections, typhoid and dysentery.

Crushed ice was usually worse than cubes, with only 10 of 77 samples of crushed ice meeting good sanitary standards. Foltz found. That's significant, he said, because crushed ice is not only used in drinks but also in direct contact to chill foods, some of which are eaten raw.

Cubed ice made by machines was much better, with nearly half of 37 samples being germ-free. In hospital, particularly where ice-making machines were well tended, the ice cubes were really sanitary.

Folty, writing in public health reports, also found sand, threads, bits of finger nail polish and insects, and other debris in sediment from melted crushed or cubed ice.

HANDS CAUSE TROUBLE

Prof. Edward W. Moore, Evelyn B. Brown and Ellen M. Hall of Harvard University also report germs often contaminating crushed ice as it was formerly dispensed in 16-food serving units of the university.

Spoons or scoops were used to dish the ice into glasses, but despite strict rules, human hands would touch it and were the main source of germs.

An effective remedy was to cover the crushed ice with a weak solution of sodium hypochlorite, supplying chlorine which kills most of the germs.

Use of chlorine brought absolutely no complaints of changes in taste or flavor of drinks, and chlorine now is being used in all the dining halls, Prof. Moore writes in the American Journal of Public Health.

Big Three Plan To Meet In Bermuda December 4

THOUSANDS OF ACRES of bare and sterile land in areas east and west of Peterborough are fit for nothing but reforesting, Frank H. Kortright (centre) Toronto, president of the conservation council of Ontario, told the No. 4 Zone meeting here Monday. "The restoring and maintenance of forest, soil and water resources is everybody's problem, although most people persist in ignoring it." A. H. Richardson, (left) chief forestry engineer with the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and Mel H. Johnston of North Monaghan, president of the Conservation Association of Ontario, helped plan the sessions.

Fines Reduced Wholesale, Loss $100,000

TORONTO (CP)—Evidence of wholesale traffic ticket cancellations and reductions of fines was produced Monday during a meeting of a special committee surveying Toronto civic departments.

Personnel director George Bell produced a list of motorists who had as many as 12 parking tags cancelled during June, July and August of this year. It has been estimated that cancelled tickets amount to a loss of nearly $100,000 by the city each year.

The names included city constables, a police clerk, an automobile salesman, a police reporter, a jobber, a York county policeman, a news dealer, a tire dealer and a department of national defence clerk. None had less than three summonses cancelled.

ONE MAN OWED $500

Alderman William Allan said he knew of one man who owed the city $500 in fines when he applied to the province for renewal of his driver's licence.

"We'd soon put a stop to this practice of ignoring tags and summonses if we could get licences held up until debts of this kind are paid in full."

Thieves Take Bank Shipment

KAPUSKASING (CP) — An express shipment of $11,000 in small-denomination bills was stolen Saturday night while on its way from the Bank of Canada in Ottawa to the Kapuskasing branch of the Imperial Bank.

The theft became known Monday night with the arrival of special investigators of the Canadian National Express.

It was learned that the money, in $5 and $10 bills, was missed after the train which brought it from Ottawa pulled out for Hearst, 60 miles to the west. A phone check with Hearst showed the package of money did not reach there.

Lamport Attack Criticized By MPP

KINGSTON (CP)—W. M. Nickle, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Kingston, said Monday night that Mayor Lamport of Toronto brought administration of justice into contempt by criticism of Chief Justice J. C. McRuer.

A lawyer and son of a former attorney-general of Ontario, Mr. Nickle said "the attack on the judge by the mayor was vicious, cruel and unfair."

The mayor, commenting recently on a decision of the chief justice in connection with a Toronto taxi licence application, said the chief justice had not read the evidence and that the way the chief justice referred to the Toronto police commission was despicable.

Only 17 Years Supply Left Of White Pine; Need Increases For Conservation

Ontario had the richest stand of white pine in the world 100 years ago; today we have only 17 years of white pine cutting left in the province. That was one of the factors of urgency in the cause of conservation cited by Frank H. Kortright, Toronto, president of the Conservation Council of Ontario, at the annual meeting of its Zone 4 section Monday at the Kawartha Golf Club.

"In Southern Ontario alone, forests have been removed from some 8,000 square miles of land incapable of producing any crop but trees, and no adequate reforestation steps have been taken.

DERELICT TRACTS

"This careless denuding of the land by settler, lumberman and pulpwood operator alike, has resulted in vast, derelict tracts of sub-marginal land unfit for any purpose, studded with abandoned farms—mute evidence of human suffering and disillusionment.

From Smiths Falls to north of Peterborough can be seen the outcroppings of bare granite, and limestone from which the forests and soil have been removed. West of Rice Lake there are ridges and dunes of sand, devoid of any tree or grass cover, that have buried roads and farm-buildings alike. In the Ganaraska Valley will be noted the similarity to the Sahara Desert. The Bruce peninsula provides another example of cruel devastation."

Those paragraphs describing conditions recognizable in the Peterborough area discussed the problem of trying to maintain and restore the resource of forest cover and wealth, and Mr. Kortright expanded his subject under kindred topics of soil, water and wildlife.

Although the full significance of the term Conservation seemed in the first stage of this project to elude general notice, its importance has been gradually coming to the realization of the public generally.

Mr. Kortright declared that it was the concern of everybody.

Police Arrest Rome Playboy

NEW YORK (AP) — Police dragged one of Rome's wealthiest playboy globe trotters from the apartment of heiress Brenda Frazier Kelly early today in a tussle which left two officers and the visitor injured.

Pietro Francisco Mele, 30, frequently seen with Mrs. Kelly at Rome night clubs, was booked on a charge of felonious assault. He allegedly refused Mrs. Kelly's request to leave the Park avenue apartment, and tried to lock himself in a bedroom.

Mele, who told reporters he was a director of a few movies and an auto racer, was badly beaten as police finally subdued him on the street in front of the building.

Mele was not subdued until Mrs. Kelly's chauffeur assisted the police.

The assault charge against Mele was filed by patrolman Duncan Christie, who said Mele kicked him in the groin.

Mrs. Kelly is the granddaughter of the late Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, former president of the Bank of Montreal.

Calgary Man Plays Role Of Half-Wit While Spy

CALGARY (CP)—The story of George DePre, Calgary business man who was a British intelligence agent with the French underground during the Second World War, is to be told in a book by Quentin Reynolds, United States war correspondent.

DePre, as a French half-wit, did notable work as a spy with the Maquis and suffered torture at the hands of the Germar Gestapo.

Born at Poona, India, in 1903, the son of a British Army officer, DePre graduated from Cambridge with an arts degree. Later he came to Canada to serve with the Hudson's Bay Company, freighting mail, merchandise and passengers in the western Arctic—by dog sled.

ENLISTED WITH RCAF

War broke out seven years after DePre had moved to HBC's head office in Winnipeg. Shortly after enlistment in the RCAF he was chosen to study at a British spy-training school in Oxfordshire, England.

Until he was parachuted into France in 1940, DePre learned radio operation and maintenance, acquired a general knowledge of the systems of the French Maquis, then aiding the escape of Allied airmen who had been forced down.

His room mate at the school was a half-wit Briton from whom DePre adopted all the mannerisms of the feeble-minded. His conversation was to be almost incoherent, and the most he was called upon to write was "Je ne sais pas,"—I don't know.

Four days after landing in France, DePre went to work as a garage sweeper in a small village, the name and location of which still is a secret. He became Paul Couchette, French half-wit.

Couchette worked for two years in the garage, used mostly by Germans and then was taken to Hamburg to work in a submarine factory.

ARRESTED BY GESTAPO

After 10 months in the factory he was allowed to work his way back to the French village. On the way, he was picked up by an Allied plane and slipped back into the role of citizen George. DePre, hospital patient suffering from the effects of German torture.

While engaged in underground activities, DePre and 19 others were arrested by the Gestapo for questioning. Among the group were seven of the Maquis.

DePre says that for two days and three nights, alternate hour-long blasts of hot and cold air were forced into their cells through gratings.

After this softening-up process DePre was taken upstairs for questioning. Two Gestapo men seized him and his index finger was clamped in a vise. A third man kicked him, and when he fell to the floor, his finger was quickly broken.

Questions regarding the Maquis produced only a babbled "Je ne sais pas." Two days later, he again faced his tormentor.

HOT WATER TORTURE

This time he was strapped into a chair with a pad of paper, with instructions to write the answers to questions fired at him. Before him were three electric elements

Magsaysay Takes Lead In Voting

Predict Landslide For Ex-Guerrilla, 8 Slain In Gunfight

MANILA (AP)—Challenger Ramon Magsaysay today took an expected early lead in Manila over President Elpidio Quirino in apparently the least violent presidential election in the republic's seven-year history.

Eight persons were reported slain by gunfire and stabbing during the balloting. In the last presidential election in 1949, 25 were reported killed and scoresi njured.

Election officials said they do not expect decisive results for about three days.

Philippines news service said the trend looks like a "nationwide landslide" for Magsaysay, the ex-guerrilla fighter who quit his job as defence secretary under Quirino last spring.

EARLY LEAD 3 TO 1

Sparse returns from Manila and the provinces gave Magsaysay a total of 31,707 and Quirino 10,625—only a tiny fraction of the islands' total.

The early reports showed Magsaysay strength in the central Philippines and the heavily populated cities, as expected.

Scattered returns from the north—expected to be a Quirino stronghold—gave Magsaysay the edge, but they were too minor to establish a pattern.

An estimated 5,500,000 Filipinos turned out to choose a president, a vice-president, eight senators and 102 congressional seats.

In troublesome Cavite province, army units in armored cars patrolled the streets of Bacoor, less than 10 miles from Manila, after a gun battle that left the city's vice-mayor, his two bodyguards and a special agent dead.

The Philippine News Service said the vice-mayor and his bodyguards were slain by local police. The special agent of Cavite, Governor Dominador Camerino, was mortally wounded in the battle and died in a few hours.

ARMED MEN

Military investigators were told by witnesses that the killers were supporters of Senator Justiniano Montano of Cavite.

Montano is an ardent supporter of Magsaysay's Nacionalista-Democratic party coalition. Camerino was backing Quirino's Liberal party.

The senator and governor, bitter political enemies, are known to have issued arms to groups of men for protection. Camerino said last week he would "shoot it out" if Montano or his men appeared in

Border Guards Tighten Checks

TRIESTE (AP)—Italian sources today said border guards of the Trieste free territory have tightened their checks on Italian citizens entering the disputed zone in the wake of last week's bloody riots.

Disclosure of the new restrictions came shortly after Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden declared in London that Britain holds Italian "extremists" responsible for the trouble in Trieste and for anti-Allied demonstrations in Italian cities.

The sources said the guards now are following the letter of the law in passing would be visitors to administered zone A. Such comparatively minor infractions as expired identity cards are enough to bar entry, they declared.

(Reuters news agency reported today that American and British troops have been withdrawn from all guard duties over Allied buildings in Trieste, and that today's withdrawal 'completely restored Trieste to a normal appearance of calm." The American and British troops had been rushed into guard duty at the height of last week's riots.)

Speaking to the House of Commons Monday, Eden demanded that the Italian government curb the "irresponsible" and "extremist" elements. In Rome, an Italian government spokesman declared Eden's charges "completely false."

Prime Minister Churchill, meanwhile, advised the Yugoslavs and the Italians—both of whom claim the strategic area—to "keep quiet and behave in a lawabbiding manner."

DROWNING VICTIM—Sterling Rogers, a sailor on the Coalfax, slipped and fell from the pier at Cobourg Monday night as his ship was easing along the dock. His body was later recovered.

Sailor Falls Off Pier, Drowns At Cobourg

COBOURG — (ENS)—Sterling Rogers of Centreville, N.B., 20-year-old crew member of the Coalfax, was drowned Monday night when he stumbled and fell off the pier at 7.40 p.m., while the coal carrier was edging into the dock.

Rogers was standing on the pier at the time, according to the belief of L. S. McCartney, captain of the ship.

His body was recovered by firemen about a half hour after he went in and efforts to revive him with the inhalator were not successful.

He signed on at Kingston with the Coalfax in July of this year. The ship arrived in Cobourg harbour Monday at three p.m. Some of the cargo was discharged near the east pier and the Coalfax was easing along the esplanade to a fresh position. Rogers was watching that the stern did not get too close to the pier, when he fel' in.

Coal in some places extends in loose piles right to the edge of the pier. There are holes here and there to the north of the narrow concrete strip which runs along the edge of the esplanade and it is believed that Rogers might have slipped on the coal or tripped in one of the holes.

HEARD SHOUT, SPLASH

Mike Sampson, one of the crew, heard a shout and a splash and cried "Man overboard." Chief engineer, A. G. Williams, went for the ladder hanging over the side and heavied it up until it rested on the nearby pier. He ran at full speed to the nearby Baltimore Hotel after satisfying himself that whoever was in the water had gone under, and gave the alarm.

Cobourg firemen arrived with dragging apparatus and inhalator. Deputy Fire Chief Bob Fitgibbon and Stan Fisher recovered the body about a half hour after the alarm was given but efforts to revive him were without success.

There has been no decision yet as to an inquest.

Provost Corps Denies Raiding Scotland Yard

LONDON (CP)—Officers of the Canadian Army Provost Corps were kept busy Monday denying reports that they are raiding the ranks of Scotland Yard.

"We have nothing to do with it," one Canadian officer told reporters checking on a Sunday newspaper story that there is "serious anxiety" at Scotland Yard over the number of promising young detectives resigning to join the Canadian force.

"About 20 men from Scotland Yard have joined us this year," the officer said, "but they have all come as individuals and we have accepted them on their merits. We do not advertise for recruits in any way and are very particular not to use any persuasion to get men from British police or other official quarters.

Ask Veteran Allowances Be Raised

Legion Proposes Plan For More Veterans' Housing

OTTAWA (CP)—The 250,000-member Canadian legion today asked the government to raise war veterans' allowances for some 40,000 recipients.

In a brief presented to Prime Minister St. Laurent and the cabinet, the legion also proposed a plan for more veterans' housing under the Veterans' Land Act.

The legion recommended that the basic rate of war veterans' allowance be increased to $60 from $50 a month for a single veteran and to $120 from $90 a month for married persons. Allowances are paid to 30,000 veterans prematurely aged by war and whose earning abilities have consequently been affected, and to 10,000 widows and orphans of veterans.

WOULD UP CEILINGS

The legion also urged that ceilings on total permissible income under war veterans' allowance be increased to $1,200 per year for a single recipient and $2,000 a year for married persons. The ceilings now are around $850 and $1,200 respectively.

Dr. C. D. Lumsden, legion president, said following the meeting with the cabinet that the prime minister had shown great interest in the legion's housing plan and had expressed sympathy with the legion's housing aims.

Dr. Lumsden said the cabinet promised to give careful consideration to all the recommendations.

Escape Trick Puzzles Jailer

TORONTO — A prisoner who had escaped from the Ontario County Jail at Whitby and had been recaptured, successfully demonstrated how he had escaped, for the benefit of the jail governor, and got away again for four days.

The story was told to the legislature's select committee on reform institutions Monday by the CCF House leader, W. J. Grummett.

According to Mr. Grummett, the prisoner's escape puzzled the jail governor to the point where he pleaded with the prisoner to tell him how he got out. The prisoner at first refused, claiming it was his secret.

Finally, he relented, and accompanied by the governor and jail staff walked out into the jail yard for the demonstration.

With the officials looking on the prisoner crossed the yard to a corner of the wall, went up over the wall and kept on going.

Expect Conference Will Last About Four Days

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Laniel of France, will discuss the world situation at Bermuda in the period between Dec. 4 and Dec. 8, the White House announced today. The French foreign office and 10 Downing St., Churchill's official residence, made similar official announcements at the same time as the Washington statement. In London, authoritative sources said Churchill would go to the meeting by warship.

The White House announcement said the Big Three leaders will be joined in the talks by State Secretary Dulles for the United States, Foreign Minister Bidault for France, and Foreign Secretary Eden for Great Britain.

The statement said it was decided "to hold the three-power conference at Bermuda which was planned for the beginning of July but had to be put off. . . .

"It is hoped to meet from Dec. 4 to Dec. 8 and various matters of common concern to the three powers will be discussed."

SCAN RUSSIAN POLICY

The apparent toughening of Russia's anti-Western policies presumably will rank high among the topics.

Informed U.S. officials said the Bermuda sessions will be held primarily to decide what course the West should take in view of Russia's latest note rejecting the Allies' bid to a Big Four foreign ministers' conference in Switzerland. That session was to have begun Monday.

At his press conference last week, Eisenhower said the Soviet Union, in its reply, seemed to be trying to prevent a Big Four conference "by injecting impossible conditions."

The president added at that time that the Soviet reply "manifests no intention to get together, but an intention to create as many difficulties as possible."

WEEKEND ARRANGEMENT

The Eisenhower - Churchill-Laniel parley was said to have been arranged during the weekend at the British leader's suggestion. Churchill has been anxious to meet

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOEST, Germany (CP)—Canada's new military bases in Germany were officially inaugurated today. British, Belgian and German—attended an hour-long housewarming ceremony marked by speeches, inspections and marchpasts. They also heard Britain's Gen. Sir Richard Gale, commanding the northern army group, express confidence in the Canadians who will serve under him.

"You can tell the people of Canada," he said, "that I am proud to have the Canadians under my command—and they, too, should be proud of their soldiers."

Sir Richard formerly commanded the 6th Airborne Army, including the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion.

PARCHMENT SIGNED

A parchment commemorating the inauguration of the new barracks was signed by T. C. Davis, Canadian ambassador in Germany, United Kingdom high commissioner. Davis thanked British groups for "happy collaboration" in the building of the barracks, and Germans for providing the labor.

Lt.Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the general staff, Canadian Army, said the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade group, which will be based in the Soest area, has battleworthiness as its first objective, adaptation into their new community as the second.

A message was read from Defence Minister Brook Claxton congratulating Brig. John Pangman of Toronto, commander of the 27th Infantry Brigade, on the brigade's "splendid record" in recent maoeuvres.

BRIGADE RETURNING

Most members of the 27th Brigade, stationed in the Hannover area for the last two years, are returning to Canada. The brigade, as a unit, will go out of existence.

At today's ceremony, a 100-man guard of honor was supplied by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

The new barracks, only recently completed and still lacking curtains and furniture, are divided into four main camps—two near this 1,300-year-old cathedral town and the others at nearby Werl and Hemer. The buildings hav3 a range of equipment that has flabbergasted most of the troops already here.

Porter Argues Ontario Keep Highway Control

LONDON (CP)—Ontario maintained before the Privy Council that since the provinces are responsible for highways in Canada they also have jurisdiction over anyone using the highways.

The argument was made by Attorney-General Dana Porter as the judicial Committee of the Privy Council continued its hearing of appeals springing from a Supreme Court of Canada decision. The case involves the principle of whether the federal government or the provinces should control traffic crossing provincial and international boundaries.

Ontario, Prince Edward Island and Alberta are appealing the Supreme Court decision which was that the federal government has jurisdiction in such cases. A cross-appeal has been lodged by a United States bus line and the two major Canadian railways.

SHOULD CONTROL THEM

Porter contended Monday—third day of the hearing—that since Canadian highways had been created under provincial statutes, then the provinces should control the "public rights that flow from that creation."

The disputed Supreme Court ruling was that the province of New Brunswick could not prevent the American Bus Line from picking up or dropping passengers with stopover privileges while it travelled through the province on trips between Maine and Nova Scotia. The court ruled that the province could stop only purely New Brunswick operations by the bus company.

See First Break In Gold Strike

TIMMINS (CP)—What may be the first break in the long gold mine strike has come with the announcement that representatives of Hollinger Consolidated Mines and of the United Steelworker's of America (CIO) will meet today to discuss issues in dispute.

The joint announcement from the company and the union said:

"A meeting to explore the possibilities of settlement of all issues in dispute at Hollinger has been arranged for Tuesday, Nov. 10, at 1:30 p.m."

Neither the firm nor the union would elaborate.

However, the announcement touched off a wave of optimism throughout this northern Ontario gold-mining district where some 6,000 men are on strike.

Previously, no other negotiations have taken place since the start July 11 of the strikes which progressively closed eight of the 11 mines in this area.

No talks have been held between the union and the managements of Broulan Reef, Hallnor and Preston East Dome, all strikebound since early in July, nor of Delnite, mines, affected later.

Aunor, McIntyre and Coniarum Hollinger's 1,350 hourly-rated employees walked out Sept. 24.

Find Prehistoric Knife On Trenton Farm

TRENTON (CP)—J. J. Way of Wooler found what is believed to be a prehistoric stone knife on his 50-acre farm, nine miles north of here.

Mr. Way said he found the knife 25 years ago but kept it a secret until Monday. The stone is five inches long, three inches wide and a half inch thick at one end. It tapers to a knife-like edge at the other end. The knife weighs 10 ounces and is made of hard shale.

Two flint arrowheads were also found near the spot where the knife was discovered. The arrowheads are 2½ inches long and have a shape similar to that of a milk bottle, Mr. Way said.

Only 17 Years

"We must recognize that it is our present duty to repair, maintain and improve this natural endowment of our resources of forest, land and water which we hold in trust for future generations.

NEED CO-OPERATION

"Conservation of natural resources cannot be successful without the co-operation and understanding of an interested and determined public.

"Business men must realize that there is no form of business, industry or finance which does not owe its prosperity, if not its very existence, to the wealth that springs from the earth. They have just as important interests at stake as those who work directly on the land. It is an obligation which every one of us owes to future generations. So far, we have largely ignored this responsibility."

Mr. Kortright quoted from the report of the select committee on conservation (1950) that about 28,000 square miles of land south of the French and Mattawa Rivers "should be in forest." Of that total, 6,350 square miles are designed as "required planting."

"At the present rate of production of young trees at the provincial forest nurseries (about 20 million a year), it would take 200 years to reforest this relatively small area.

"In conservation-conscious Britain, reforestation is taking place at the rate of about 1,000 square miles a year. To replant 6,350 square miles would take the British six years, instead of the 200 years we would require.'

Forests are a sponge for nature's water provided by rains and melting snow. With the removal of vast stands of timber, the land is laid bare, exposed to the direct action of sun and wind. Snows melt quickly, the flow of rain is not retarded, and the water rushes away in floods with consequent erosion of the denuded land.

TOP SOIL IN RIVER

An analysis of the flood water of the Humber river at the middle of March a few years ago showed loss of top soil from farm lands at the rate of 2,700 tons an hour. Mr. Kortright said that quick run-off of spring water may cause lowering of the ground water level on which crops are so vitally dependent.

He said that one pound of beef requires, directly or indirectly, for its production, 20 tons of water.

One acre of lush grass will lift about six tons of water on a June day. One ton of corn requires about 300 tons of water for its production.

From improved farm land methods and practice as a means of conserving water and preventing run-off, Mr. Kortright passed on to concern for wildlife. Fish and game, and the recreational enjoyment of woods, lakes and streams were of primary importance in attracting tourists. "And the tourist trade has already assumed the proportions of a major industry."

"More than 100,000 square miles of forest, lake and river lie spread over Ontario to form one of the greatest natural playgrounds God ever gave to man. Will it always be there? Every year the forests dwindle and fish and game slowly but surely will disappear.

"Present conditions are hostile to wildlife. Resident and non-resident hunters and anglers now number more than 1½ million, and hunting and fishing pressure is increasing at an alarming rate. We find it necessary to travel farther and farther afield in pursuit of hunting, fishing and recreation."

Mr. Kortright also spoke of the intangible asset in the woods and countryside with their wild-flowers, birds and animals, their trees and shade, sought today by increasing numbers of city dwellers, apart from those people who live in the country.

RECREATION

"By the conservation of wildlife in all its forms, an opportunity is provided for our people to enjoy healthful and pleasurable recreation which cannot otherwise be realized."

At the morning business session including reports on the Moira and Ganaraska projects, Frank Weldon, of Lindsay, clerk-treasurer of Victoria county, was elected president of Zone 4 for the coming year. Fifty-five members attended from the counties of Prince Edward, Hastings, Ontario, Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough and Victoria.

The officers are: Honorary president, Melville H. Johnston, North Monaghan; past president, Ed. Youngman, Pontypool; president, F. L. Weldon.

First vice-president, Percy Gooding, Hilton; second vice-president, Willard G. Waterman, North Monaghan. Executive members include, Howard Harper, of Goodwood, and Irwin McCoy, of Marmora.

Thanks of the meeting for the arrangements which made it possible were expressed to Herb Crown of the Ontario Department of Planning and Development; Ralph Banbury, Brighton, secretary, and agricultural representative in Northumberland; and M. H. Johnston.

PANEL DISCUSSION

An hour's panel discussion on farm re-planning closed the afternoon session. Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, Peterborough, was chairman. With him were: Tom Lane and Ken King, of the OAC soils and re-planning department; Milford White, of Elizabethville; Roy Sanderson, Bailieboro; Reg. McMullen, Smith.

Mr. Paterson also called for contributing opinion and information on Heber Down, of Brooklin, Ken Petrie and Bert Armstrong, Otonabee; Dan Nill, of Cavan; Clifford Johnston, Lynn Fair, Uxbridge, agricultural representative in Ontario county. John Nurse, of South Monaghan, was proposed for the panel, but was unable to attend.

Hopes Seaway Start In Spring

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier Monday night expressed hope that construction of the St. Lawrence seaway might start next spring.

A start in early 1954 could come about if United States courts dispose expeditiously of a series of suits filed by American opponents of the project, the minister said in a speech to the Ottawa West Liberal Association.

He termed "most gratifying" action of the American administration during the last week in designating the New York state power authority as the agency to co-operate with Ontario in power development, and he welcomed administration representations to the U.S. Court of Appeals for a quick hearing.

"If the representations made before the courts are successful, it is quite possible that construction will begin in the spring of 1954," he said.

Young Boxer, 21 Hanged In B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charles Matthews, young boxer who fought under the name of Sonny Jones and killed to the rhythm of a jazz beat, was hanged at four minutes past midnight today in Oakalla Prison Farm.

Matthews, 21, was executed for the hammer-slaying last March of his manager's sister, Mrs. Los Angeles Smith, whom he accused of breaking up his romance with a young girl, Peggy Bowen.

At the same time, a 23-year-old woman who lived with the Smiths, Mrs. Jocelyn Wallberg, was severely beaten while Matthews played the record "Charlie Was A Boxer," on the phonograph.

Twelve minutes after the trap was sprung, the New York Negro was pronounced dead. His body was taken to a pauper's gave. There were no mourners. His body was not claimed.

Matthews' last request came Sunday, when he asked to be allowed to listen to a radio. It was placed in the death-row corridor, outside the gate to his cell.

He had attempted suicide four times since his arrest and was under constant surveillance.

on which were kettles of water. The first was set at a low heat, the second at medium, and the third was set at high.

A clamp was used to force open his mouth, and the water from the low burner was poured down his throat. The questions brought only the French negative.

Finally, boiling water was poured into the half-wit's mouth but the result was still the same. He was taken to his cell and stayed there while his tongue peeled and his teeth fell from dead tissue.

Of the seven Maquis arrested by the Gestapo, none betrayed his comrades, DePre said. Three of them, including the half-wit, got the "full treatment." One of them died, and the vocal cords of another were paralyzed by the steaming water.

Today, DePre no longer resembles the starved and disfigured man picked up on the French countryside. Branch manager for a chemical firm, he is a member of the local boy scout council, and has undergone plastic surgery to restore damage done by the torture.

Quirino has repeatedly accused Magsaysay of being "America's candidate" and has charged United States intervention in the election. He has played strongly on the theme that a Magsaysay victory would mean a colonial status for the Philippines under U. S. domination.

Magsaysay scoffed at Qurino's charges and accused the liberals of corruption in government to such an extent that the U. S. has lost faith in the Philippines.

Suggest Strike At Steam Plant

TORONTO (CP)—A strike at the Richard L. Hearn plant, largest steam plant generating electricity in Canada, has been recommended by the executive of the Toronto local of Operating Engineers (AFL). The union will vote on the recommendation Wednesday night. Some 160 would be affected.

A conciliation report recommended a retroactive pay increase to Oct. 1. The union wants the pay increase to be retroactive to last April 1. The power from the plant, one of 72 steam plants operated by Ontario hydro, goes into a pool.

The union is seeking a 19-cent-an-hour increase above the $2.06 rate. The conciliation board recommended wage increases from nine to 12 cents an hour. The commission has offered a two-cent increase said Pat Conaghan, president of Local 796.

Remembers Paper Boy In His Window Display

In the Remembrance Day decoration set in his store window at 460 George St., Norman G. Graham has placed two pictures of Captain Don Weese who was killed in action in the Allied campaign in Italy.

"He was my Examiner paper boy for some years when he was a youngster, and I wanted to recall him especially in fixing up my store window for Wednesday," Mr. Graham said today. "The wreath will be placed on the War Memorial in Confederation Square by his father Bryden Weese. Don was one of our young Peterborough men whose character assured him a future on the basis of his business training at the Examiner, but like so many others we think of again on Nov. 11, he did not come back."

Report Prices Lower On Toronto Market

Golds were the lowest group with most weaknesses in juniors. Belleterre lost 15 cents. In holding companies, Placer Deveolpments was down $4.50 and Prospectors Airways was down 35 cents.

Base metals slipped with Labrador and Consolidated Smelters leading seniors down. Junior losses were small.

Western oils made the only rise on the indexes led by Canada Oil Lands' 25-cent gain.

adding that Defence Minister Claxton and Veterans Minister Lapointe would make a complete review of legislation dealing with benefits for the permanent force.

The brief said many WVA recipients "are suffering very real hardship under present basic rates and restrictive ceilings on total permissible income."

The legion's suggested housing plan would permit veterans to build their own homes on city lots as well as on small rural holdings as provided now under the Veterans' Land Act.

Initial capital to start home construction would be made available by a revolving fund set up by the government under VLA until Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. was prepared to take over financing of the home.

The plan would make use of the "build your own home" program initiated by the veterans department. Some 6,000 houses have been built by veterans on small holdings under this scheme. The legion urged that the plan be extended to veterans wanting to build homes in the city.

Many veterans who wanted to build couldn't take advantage of the Veterans' Land Act because of inability to find-two-acre or three-acre properties within commuting distance of employment. Others lacked funds.

Another major recommendation dealt with pensions. It proposed that in cases where pension applicants are found to have disabilities resulting from injuries or diseases not recorded at medical examination on enlistment, such injuries or diseases be presumed to have occurred or had their inception after enlistment.

The legion said such a provision would mean pensions for thousands more veterans.

Snow Surprise To Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS) — Saturday's snow storm which piled an estimated six inches of the white stuff on Lindsay's streets and sidewalks, changing driving conditions from good to bad in a matter of a few hours, caught the board of works by surprise, Deputy-Reeve Bert Hick told council Monday night.

The board of works has not yet let contracts for snow clearing in the town, he said. Although the warm weather of the weekend cleared much of the snow and slush, town councillors were flooded with calls throughout Saturday afternoon, as irate motorists skidded and slid around some of the town's bad corners and hills.

At the same time, said Mr. Hick, enough horses could not be found in the town to pull the small plows used for sidewalk clearance. Council approved proposed prices for contracts for both jobs.

with Eisenhower, but his health prevented a projected Big Three meeting in Bermuda last July.

American officials acquainted with top policy matters said Eisenhower agreed to the sessions in view of Russia's unexpectedly tough note to the Western powers, brushing aside their bid for a four-power conference on Germany.

Some sources believe that the blunt, uncompromising nature of Russia's note may have weakened Churchill's reported determination to meet with Soviet Premier Malenkov, alone if necessary.

Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles have said they are firmly opposed to any such meeting with Soviet leaders until Moscow first proves its willingness to negotiate.

American officials regard as particularly disturbing Russia's twice-repeated assertion that failure to accept Soviet demands will "increase the threat of a new world war."

Clamp Secrecy Lid On Army Camp Fires

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) —Police and military authorities today clamped a secrecy lid on their investigation of Saturday's fires at nearby Aldershot army camp.

Col. H. E. T. Doucette of Halifax, the army's Atlantic Commannd chief of staff, said only that every clue to the cause of the fires is being followed.

The fires, only 14 hours apart, destroyed the Aldershot officers' mess and camp theatre buildings with damage estimated at $200,000. Arson or sabotage has been hinted.

Plans to accommodate 27th Brigade troops due here next month on rotation leave from Germany will not be altered by the fires, it was learned.

Mossadegh Tries Dash Out Of Court

TEHRAN (AP)—Screaming, sobbing ex-premier Mohammed Mossadegh today attempted to walk out of a court-martial trying him for his life after a wild, fist-swinging scene climaxed his attempts to disavow his court-appointed lawyer.

The 73-year-old politician, accused of defying the shah, trying to overthrow the monarchy and illegally dissolving parliament, shouted at his judges:

"Give an order to cut off my head, but I must defend myself."

It was the third straight day of emotional fireworks from Mossadegh, virtual dictator of Iran before his overthrow last August by Royalist supporters. He told the tribunal Monday he would commit suicide if released and would not appeal if convicted.

THREATENS BOYCOTT

He also threatened to boycott future court sessions, asserting that the court is not competent to try him.

Today's outburst came suddenly after an all-out effort by the aged nationalist leader to get rid of Col. Jalil Bozorgmehr, his court-appointed lawyer.

Bawling, "Go away, damn you," Mossadegh rose from the bench and swung at Bozorgmehr, hitting him on the arm. Brushing the lawyer aside, Mossadegh staggered past three dumbfounded court officials and stumbled 20 feet down the aisle before officers caught up with him.

After Mossadegh was halted by the officers, he sobbed hysterically, buried his head on his folded arms and screamed:

"Say whatever you like. God for give your dead father."

Big 3 Denounce Israel For Jordan Border Killings

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The Big Three Monday denounced Israel before the United Nations for the recent killing of 53 Arabs in the Jordan border village of Kibya. But they agreed to hold off a call for security council action until both sides have their say. Israel's chief delegate, Aba Eban, told the council he will plead his government's case when the hearing is resumed Thursday. Israel, meanwhile, faced another charge today before the council on neighbouring Syria's complaint that she is stealing the life-giving waters of the Jordan from Arab farmers by diverting the river for an Israel hydro-electric project. Israel agreed, at the UN's behest, to halt work on the Jordan project while the council debated the Syrian complaint. But Israel sources indicated Monday night that if the council does not take action soon, she will seek permission to resume work.

Britain, France and the United States joined in strongly censuring the Oct. 14 Kibya raid by armed Israeli as a flagrant violation of the already - strained Palestine armistice. They said the incident endangered the peace in the Middle East, and appealed to Israel to stop trying to justify the incident as a logical act of reprisal and to help bring the guilty ones to justice.

WAIT FOR REPLY

An authoritative big three source said Eban's response to the West ern censure largely will determine how strong the wording of their resolution on the border killings is to be.

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb spearheaded the Big Three rebuke, labelling the Kibya incident a "threat to the security of the entire area."

Jebb deplored the revenge motive which apparently sparked all the Arab-Israeli border incidents and said they had resulted in a "vicious circle" which must be stopped before it gets out of hand.

U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge told the council the evidence left "no doubt" that armed Israeli forces had made the Kibya attack. His government subscribed to Britain's stand in the matter.

BLAME VILLAGE

Israel has maintained that the raid was made by local village defence forces — not the Israeli Army—in reprisal for an earlier Jordan raid on the Israeli hamlet of Yahude in which a woman and two children were slain.

France's Henri Hoppenot also echoed Britain's sentiments declarin that the Kibya raid had aroused "horror and reprobation" ironically comparable to France's sympathy for Jewish victims of Nazi persecution.

Decree 14 Days Mourning For Dead King

BEHREIN, Persian Gulf (AP) — Saudi Arabia's new king, Saud Ibn Abdul Aziz, has decreed 14 days of official mourning for his father, the late King Ibn Saud.

A report of the decree reaching this Persian gulf island today said the body of the world's richest and most powerful absolute monarch was flown from his summer palace at Taif to one of the desert kingdom's capitals at Riyadh within two hours after his death Monday morning. It was buried the same day.

The report said the 73-year-old, one-eyed Moslem ruler died surrounded by the male members of his family and tribal heads. They followed the traditional Arabian rite of acknowledging the monarch's eldest son the new king and pledging their loyalty by handclasps around the deathbed. The chiefs also proclaimed their acceptance of Ibn Saud's second son, Faisal, as heir to the throne and prime minister of this land of oil riches.

The new king, reported variously as being between 50 and 55 years old, closely resembles his fabulous father. He is well over six feet, wears spectacles and a dark beard. Presumably he inherits the estimated $200,000,000-a-year income his father built up through shrewd bargaining with his country's vast underground store of petroleum.

OFFICERS OF THE ORDER OF THE EASTERN STAR, Peterborough Chapter 161, were installed Monday night in a ceremony at the Orange Hall. Royal Children Take Walk Near Palace

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Charles and Princess Anne walked hand-in-hand out of the main gates of Buckingham Palace today for a public stroll on a morning of rare winter sunshine.

Two governesses walked beside the browncoated tots. They turned right outside the gates and headed down Buckingham Palace road.

The crowd became so thick after the party had travelled 200 yards that police advised them to step inside the palace trade entrance for a few minutes.

SALUTE GUARDSMEN

From there, they watched the Guardsmen march by. Both the Prince and Princess saluted smartly, to the delight of the crowd.

Police moved the crowds along as the tots returned to the palace the way they had come.

Prince Charles, heir to the throne, will be five years old next Saturday.

Wife Hurt As Car Skids Into Ditch

HALLS GLEN (ENS) — Mrs. George Atkinson, R.R. 2, Lakefield, received an injured knee Monday night, when the car her husband was driving went out of control and into a ditch. The accident occurred about three miles west of Hall's Glen.

Mrs. Atkinson received the injury when she fell against the heater in the car.

Wray Moore, who lives near the scene of the accident, worked with other men for three hours with his tractor before getting the car back on the road.

The Atkinsons were able to drive their car home.

One Child Found, Suffers Exposure

BLAINE, Me. (AP)—Search today in freezing temperatures for a thinly-clad, lost girl of 11 was spurred by the finding of her five-year-old sister more than 12 hours after both strayed from their home Monday.

About 100 persons combed the thickets near the home of Judson Cray for his elder daughter, Faye.

Faye's sister, Elaine, was found about midnight a mile and a half from home, suffering from exposure in her light dress. Her condition was not considered serious.

The elder girl became separated from Elaine in wanderings that began before noon Monday.

Marlene Dietrich Steadily Grown Into a Legend

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—On 1930, a woman named Marlene Dietrich became a film star overnight playing the role of Lola-Lola, a night-club singer in a German-made film, The Blue Angel. With minor changes, she has been playing the same role ever since.

She ignores television. She has never been in a Broadway show. She hasn't even made a movie for a couple of years.

Yet in spite of the peculiar limitations of her career, Miss Dietrich has steadily grown into a legend. Right now, the hard-working Miss Dietrich is adding some new strings to her bow. On Dec. 15 she will start a three-week engagement in Las Vegas at a reputed $20,000 a week. She has written a piece, without the help of a ghost, she vows, called How To Be Loved, for a woman's magazine. And she is busily engaged on a book.

VETERAN RADIO STAR

She's a veteran radio star, playing a nightclub entertainer, of course. Currently, she is Diane la Volte (her own choice of name) once a week in a series called Time or Love. She plays a singer of husky songs in a different murky nightclub in a different world capital of intrigue each week.

A Dietrich who is heard but not seen is a dreadful waste, some say. It isn't that she's such a great actress. Some of her most ardent admirers concede she's scarcely an actress at all. But there's a quality about Miss Dietrich fascinating to watch.

She has a spectacular, slim figure, legs as famous as Mistinguette's and more shapely, and good bones which make her a photographer's delight. She is remarkable in another way, too: A great beauty who takes no particular pains to hide the fact she was born uncomfortably close to the turn of the century. She is maternally boastful about the TV success of her pretty blonde daughter, Maria Riva. She's the doting grandmother of two small boys, and bored stiff with talk about being a "glamorous grandmother."

She was married once, to Rudolf Sieber in 1924 when he was an assistant casting director and she a neophyte movie actress in Berlin. Their daughter was born a year later.

Through the years, Miss Dietrich has been reported intersted in any number of well-known and attractive men. But her marriage has never been dissolved. She consults frequently with Sieber today and apparently they have worked out a very satisfactory relationship, although they live apart.

She has quite a reputation as a cook, "all sorts of dishes," she says casually, but admits she often settles for sandwiches and coffee.

The owner of a Third avenue antiques shop said: "She knows period furniture and she knows art. When she spots something good, she looks it over with an expert eye.

OPINION VALUED

Her living room walls are lined with paintings, a Degas, Utrillo and Renoir among them. Prominently displayed is an affectionately inscribed picture of Ernest Hemingway, who last year was quoted as saying he valued her opinion of a manuscript higher than that of a professional critic.

Business associates in films and radio describe her as a hardworking perfectionist with a feeling for fitness and detail.

R. D. P. Davidson was chairman for a short program which consisted of a mock wedding; a vocal duet by Marion and Margaret McKinley; a solo by Mrs. Paul Harnis and a piano solo by Ronald Linton. Mrs. MacLean was pianist.

Severe Storm Ends In Southern Italy

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (AP) A two-day wind and rain storm that swept across the flood-stricken toe of Italy ended abruptly today, but left three small mountain communities isolated.

For the second time in less than three weeks, raging, rain - filled torrents Monday, cut roads leading to the villages and forced many inhabitants to flee to higher ground.

An Italian air force helicopter crashed today trying to carry food and medical supplies to the village of Amendolea, one of the three isolated communities. The pilot was seriously injured.

Rescue workers are trying to reach two other isolated villages near Amendolea with food and other emergency supplies.

PoW Shot To Death By Indian Guard

PANMUNJOM (AP)—A North Korean war prisoner was shot to death by an Indian guard while trying to escape today, the neutral nations repatriation commission announced.

He was the fifth prisoner killed by guards' gunfire since the Indians on Sept. 25 took custody of PoWs who refused repatriation.

The commission said the prisoner was scaling a wire fence around compound E-34 when spotted by the guard.

Six or seven other prisoners, who apparently were accomplices, began throwing stones and shouting at the Indian soldier, the commission said.

The statement added that the guard fired when the prisoner rushed toward him.

Charge Tavern Keeper In Attempted Murder

HULL, Que. (CP)—A 61-year-old tavern keeper today was charged with the attempted murder of his brother and sister-in-law.

Police arrested Romeo Laroche early today after his brother Ernest, 59, and his wife, Berthe, 59, were both shot in the legs in their bedroom. They are reported in "fair" condition in hospital.

Police said an argument broke out between Romeo Laroche and his brother who with a third brother, Paul, own a tavern here. They said Romeo Laroche left the room and returned with a .32-calibre revolver which he fired five times.

Ernest Laroche received one wound and his wife two. The third brother called in police after the shooting.

Only One Planeload Of Guerrillas Sent

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Only one planeload of Chinese Nationalist guerrillas from Burma arrived today instead of the scheduled three, reflecting a snag at the Lampang, Thailand, embarkation point.

Nationalist reports from Lampang said 100 more were scheduled to leave—but Burmese authorities refused to permit 38 of them to go. Burma said the 38 were Burmese natives rather than members of Genn. Li Mi's 12,000 Nationalist soldiers who fled into Burma before the Chinese Reds in 1949.

All Work Halted At Atomic Plant

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — All work at a multi-million-dollar atomic plant construction project was at a standstill here today, halted by a strike of 550 AFL sheet metal workers.

About 6,000 other AFL workmen refused to cross picket lines thrown up Monday by the shee' metal workers, who struck Nov. 2 demanding seven cents a mile travel pay to and from work.

The strikers' homes are scattered over a wide area and the spokesman estimated their demands for seven cents a mile travel pay would average about $3.90 per worker daily.

It was the second general work on the $46,000,000 job in August, 1952.

Are You On The Voters' List?

Voters in the municipal elections should take particular care to see that their names are on the Voters' List this year. That List is usually compiled with special reference to the Assessment Roll, but this year, owing to the revision of assessments, the Roll is not yet completed. You can be of assistance to the City Clerk, who compiles the List, by checking it, and calling the City Hall if you find that your name has been omitted.

* * *

Several copies of the Voters' List have been made available at convenient points in the city—at schools, at the Fire Hall, at the City Hall and at several other public buildings. The aldermen also have lists, and will help you in checking if you ask them to do so.

* * *

The approaching municipal elections are important, as always, and the likelihood that there will be a mayoral contest this year gives them added interest. Do not risk being disappointed at the poll. See that your name is on the list, and make sure of your vote.

Not So Inconsistent

Elsewhere on this page we print a letter from a correspondent who accuses us of inconsistency because a few weeks ago we wrote severely about hoodlums who had been destroying Peterborough school property, whereas on Saturday last we suggested that the Toronto students who burned an effigy of Senator McCarthy might not be entirely lost to decency. We do not see the inconsistency. The Peterborough hoodlums destroyed public property, for no reason except that they enjoyed destruction: the Toronto students destroyed nothing except, perhaps, the admiration of a few people for Senator McCarthy. The one act was vandalism. The other was a somewhat melodramatic expression of opinion.

Our correspondent seems to think highly of Senator McCarthy. We do not admire him, and we think that he has done his country, and the democratic cause everywhere, great harm by his illiberal antics. To name but one of his achievements, he has pushed the very dangerous doctrine of 'guilt by association' farther than any witch-hunter in history.

There is a tendency among people of fearful nature to suppose that anyone who is not a friend of McCarthy is a friend of Communism. Both McCarthyism and Communism represent desperate denials of freedom which men of goodwill everywhere are trying to avofd. We were very glad when, recently, the Canadian government had to tell the Senator, firmly, that his writ does not run in this country. We are glad that a number of Toronto students disapprove of the Senator, though we do not particularly endorse their way of expressing their dislike. But their hearts are in the right place, even if their behaviour is offensive to people who have never, it appears, been young or done an unwise action.

Comintern And Cominform: Workers Beware

The Comintern, the old Communist International, was abolished by Stalin during the war as a gesture of appeasement to Russia's allies. It was expected that it would be revived when Stalin felt like doing it. But it was not reorganized. However, in 1947, in the first days of the Cold War, the West saw the creation of a new organization—the Communist Information Bureau, or Cominform.

The assumption immediately made that the Cominform was the Comintern in a new guise was wrong. The Cominform was an organizational union of the successful Communist parties of eastern Europe together with the two largest of western Europe, the French and Italian parties. It was a means of exchanging views and co-ordinating policy between the active, powerful Communist parties of Europe. It was not, as the Comintern had been, an agency for creating Fifth Columns and spreading Moscow's disruptive policies into countries where the Communist party was weak, as in Britain, the U.S. or Canada. The Communist Parties of the world continued to get their orders from Moscow directly or indirectly and not through some supranational organization to which all belonged.

We make the preceding distinctions between the Cominform and the Comintern because of the Congress of the World Federation of Trade Unions which recently assembled in Vienna. A striking interpretation has been put on the WFTU and its role by Edward Crankshaw, one of the most acute and best-informed Western observers of the Soviet scene. Mr. Crankshaw says:

The new role of the World Federation of Trade Unions, as now proclaimed in Vienna, is to provide precisely such an organisation. And the recent Congress laid down the lines of the new strategy. In future we are to hear a good deal less of Communism, and a great deal more of the solidarity of the international working class. Instead of encouraging Party members to infiltrate trades unions not affiliated to the WFTU in order to agitate against employers or Government, future policy is to concentrate on creating an international popular front of workers, the main object of which is to disrupt existing unions and thus smash the whole network of trades unions not affiliated to the WFTU.

The main weapon to be used is not the hostility of the workers to the ruling classes, but the hostility of rank-and-file union members to their own leaders, divided from them by over-elaborate and top-heavy organisations and all the red tape of the trades union bureaucracy.

The principal reason for this campaign is that Moscow has realised that perhaps the greatest influence for stability in the "bourgeois" societies is an understanding betwen the workers, as represented by their official unions on the one hand, and employers and Government on the other. The best and quickest way to upset this stability is to disrupt the unions themselves, and hold out the WFTU as the sole repository of working-class solidarity and the workers' shield against "betrayal" by their union bosses, who are said to have sold the workers to the employers and waxed fat on the proceeds.

It is possible that Mr. Crankshaw is seeing tigers in the night where only cats are skulking, yet his interpretation of the 'new' role of the WFTU cannot be considered due just to moonshine. If the old Communist International, the Comintern, is reborn in the innocent guise of an international union organization to cause industrial troubles in the West and to foment rebellions and nationalist movements in dependent territories, then workers in the West and their governments must be wary. The truth which all Western trade unionists should know by this time is that in Communist countries trade unions have not protected the interests of the workers but have been transformed into Government agencies to oppress them and even to take away their right to strike.

First Big Blow

Now that the big snow blow of Saturday has almost been erased by yesterday and today's sun, we can grumble that it was unexpected. What fancy figures the weather forecasters cut! The latest and most reliable weather report which this newspaper could get before going to press Friday afternoon was a prediction for Saturday of "sunny". Well, it serves to show that weathermen like newspapers are sometimes fallible.

The suddenness of it all was a kind of Indian summer in reverse—a sharp heavy reminder to get storm windows on, cars prepared for winter driving, and overcoats out of storage. We are happy to report that the Department of Highways was not caught napping as much as were some individuals. Snow fences were up along parts of Number 7 highway, and ploughs were catching up with the fall of snow by the middle of the afternoon.

It all goes to show that another Canadian winter is setting in. We shall not mention that it is causing Christmas to raise its business head. An item from London yesterday said that the Queen was doing her Christmas shopping. Let this not scare the rest of us too much. The Queen does not have six and a half weeks left for this annual task; she is leaving for the southern hemisphere before the end of the month and will be in New Zealand Christmas day (from which she will make the annual monarchical broadcast). Since the Queen is to be taken as an example in all things, we shall not disparage any shoppers who have the foresight to shop early.

Riding High But In Good Form

The cost of living has gone up again. For the fifth consecutive month the consumer price index has risen, and in September reached almost to the peak of December 1951. It was only 1.5 points below that painful record.

There is neither despondency nor alarm because of the recent rises. Each has been small—the latest was only half a point (to 116.7—100 being the new, 1949 basis of the index). The continuing high prices have come to mean a continuing high level of employment and production; the slight rises reflect the buoyancy of the economy and, based on people's past experience, suggest even more employment, more production, more wages. It is only when the index rises suddenly or falls suddenly that there is cause for alarm.

This is a short-term assessment, of course. There can come a time when increase after increase could break the camel's back.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Plan To Control World Shipping

By O. M. GREEN

IS IT in the interest of commerce and of the travelling public that the highly specialized business of running ships should be left to the management of the men who have made it their lives' work; or should these men be subjected to some form of international control directed by Government officials?

✧ ✧ ✧

SUCH, broadly, is the issue which has just been discussed in London by the representatives of thirteen Governments: Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Burma, Canada, France, Greece, Haiti, Iceland, Israel, Netherlands, the United Kingdom and the United States. Their conclusions are awaited with considerable interest—anxiety may not be too strong a word—in shipping circles all over the world.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE CIRCUMSTANCES which led to this meeting make interesting reading, if only as an illustration of the gradual lessening of interest in international conferences and controls. In 1946, when enthusiasm for the United Nations was at its height, it was agreed—at the United Nations—that an Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organisation (now known as IMCO) be set up for the supervision of shipping. In March, 1948, a meeting was called at Geneva by the U. N. Maritimes Conference and a Convention brought forward for the creation of IMCO which was signed by thirty-two nations. But so far it has been ratified only by fourteen countries: the thirteen mentioned above, and the Dominican Republic, which signed in August.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHEN twenty-one Governments have ratified the Convention, it will come into operation automatically, provided that seven of the Governments own one million tons of shipping. This condition is already fulfilled. The real problem lies in finding seven more ratifications. And in this connection, it is significant that the four Scandinavian States —Norway, Denmark, Sweden and Finland— which form an important maritime group, flatly refuse to have anything to do with IMCO.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALREADY in 1948, it was noticeable that popular favour for international organisations of the IMCO type had cooled considerably. Now in 1953, so far as British and United States shipowners are concerned it has disappeared altogether.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE CONVENTION provides for the setting up of an assembly, council and maritime safety committee—almost a United Nations in little, as one sarcastic critic has said. Its procedure for handling shipping disputes, according to IMCO's champions, has purposely been made as elaborate as possible so as to prevent the airing of petty grievances. But it is this very precaution of which shipowners are afraid. They are willing enough to accept the technical aims of IMCO—co-operation in safety-at-sea devices, telecommunications, meteorology—but beyond these they fear (on the basis, they say, of much experience) that IMCO could easily stray beyond its terms of reference into fields which might considerably hamper the freedom of shipping.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALTHOUGH the initial business of IMCO would be to consult and advise, there might be strong pressure put on Governments to make the resolutions it adopted binding by legislations. One particularly thorny question is that so-called "Flag Discrimination," which has increased greatly since the war, particularly among South American States. In practice flag-discrimination means that Two Governments when signing a trade agreement, also agree that goods exchanged between the two—wholly or at least up to fifty per cent. of the total—must be carried in their own ships.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANOTHER FORM of discrimination is to give preference in allotting berths in port to any other member of the agreement, so that non-member ships may find there is no room for them.

The evils of such practices are freely admitted. But shipowners seem to fear that discussion of them by IMCO might wander far afield; and they would prefer to have the matter taken up directly by their own Foreign Offices with the flag-discriminating Governments.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN ANY CASE, British shipowners' say that they have no time for more conferences. Their own national organization of British shipping firms is closely linked with the International Chamber of Shipping, and, it is said, has hitherto proved well able to deal with controversial shipping questions. And there is no doubt that the British shipowners' objections to IMCO are fully shared by their American counterpart.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE CLEAVAGE between the shipowners' view of IMCO and the official view—particularly the view of the United Nations organization—is very marked. The conference now sitting in London is the outcome of a recent resolution of the UN Economic and Social Council, anxious to get on with the creation of IMCO. In support of this resolution, the conference was called by the British Government, partly, it would seem, because it had ratified the 1948 Convention, partly out of loyalty to UNO.

Only representatives of Governments have been sitting at the conference: there have been no shipping representatives. For the moment the conference is not required to do more than recommend how IMCO can be brought into existence. Presumably the shipowners' voices will be heard at a later date. But unless the Scandinavian Powers can be persuaded to drop their objection to IMCO, it is doubtful whether, even if accepted by twenty-one other States it could function effectively as the agency of the United Nations which it is intended to be.

POOR DOG

A man had his new dog out for a walk when he came to a river. He threw in a stick for the animal to fetch. To his astonishment, instead of plunging in, the dog walked out on the surface of the water and retrived the stick. Not believing his eyes, the man threw the stick again. Again the dog fetched it.

"Where did you get that dog?" asked a passer-by.

"I bought him for a fiver," said its owner, proudly.

"Well, you'd better get your money back," said the stranger. "You've been taken in. That dog can't even swim."

Letters To The Editor

A PROTESTANT FEET

SIR: Thank you very much for explaining to our Anglicans that they are Protestants as well as Anglicans. I have been a bit uneasy of late as I heard that one of our Anglican ministers said he thought marriage should be abolished among our preachers and they should be called Father.

I don't and I think we should stand on our own feet and not imitate any one else.

Surely when they hear that God and John Baptist were Protestants they will be satisfied as I never knew those facts myself. I really thought God did not take sides or if I thought at all I believed He was a Jew. Thank you Mr. Editor, I know you shall print this and for the first time in my life I will not sign Anglican as my religion is just plain,

PROTESTANT

STRONG FOR McCARTHY

Sir: In your editorial of Nov. 5, you implied approval of the disgraceful actions of Toronto University students is most deplorable.

To say the least you are not being very consistent. It is only a few weeks ago, in referring to the local vandalism in Peterborough (children smashing windows in schools, etc.,) that you were loudly condemning the presence of too much "comaraderie" in our schools, and deploring the lack of respect for persons or places of dignity and authority. What has changed your mind?

Senator McCarthy has the courage and ability, as well as the support of thousands of his fellow Americans, to launch an all out attack on this Monster Communism which threatens to engulf us all. He should have the support of all decent freedom loving citizens; but as is to be expected, those whose sympathies lie with the enemy and who wish to undermine the good Senator's influence, turn immediately to ridicule and sneer at his efforts in a vain attempt to silence his voice and put a stop to his Congressional enquiries.

Professor Louis Budenz of Fordham University, a former Communist member and ex-editor of the Communist organ, The Daily Worker, discloses in an article entitled "Attack Communism" that it was Political Affairs (which lays down the party line for U.S. Communists) that originated the term "McCarthyism" and declared it to be the main enemy of the Communist party.

Immediately the Daily Worker took up the hue and cry against McCarthyism, and soon all other Communist-front organizations were bitterly denouncing the Senator and stirring up a sneer campaign of hatred against him.

It is little short of tragic that such a spirit of hatred and ill-will should have invaded grounds of our own institutions of learning to poison the minds of our young. To infer that Dr. Sidney Smith in urging his students to be "characters", would condone such terrorist actions, is to twist his meaning entirely and confuse the issue still further.

It is not true, as you state, that he urges youth to break away from commonplace patterns of thought and behaviour. Instead, he urges them to break away from mass thinking, and mob behaviour, and become strong characters in the real sense of the word, with moral backbone and stamina so lacking in the world today.

In his address on Complete Education a few months ago, Dr. Sidney Smith, clearly condemns that kind of "intellectual arrogance which is ready to discard the abiding values," and says further: "Education of that type is adrift on a sea of confusion, and has lost its way." While we advocate that students should have open minds, we should not strive to make their minds so open that ideas can blow into, through, and out of them with amazing celerity.

We need strong, independent intellects that will sift and select ideas for and by themselves—who will, in the world of St. Paul: "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good."

That should clearly settle for us what Dr. Smith meant by "Characters," and should permanently dispel the false notion that he meant as you would infer, the comic strip hoodlum "characters" that dress like Ku Klux Klan and go about singing songs of hate.

Yours very truly,
"Voice of the Wilderness"
Young's Point.

New B.C. Model

(Vancouver Sun)

The Social Credit League tried to make itself the real government of British Columbia and to reduce the properly elected government at Victoria to an impotent shadow.

It did this by decreeing in convention that elected MLA's from the premier down may not hold executive office in the League, and that they must take their orders on policy direct from the hands of the League's own elected officials.

By this move several hundred thousand citizens who aren't members of the SC League could be shut out from self-government.

"The government does what the convention lays down," one delegate expressed it.

Premier Bennett didn't seem to agree. He said he'd follow the recommendations of the convention "with great interest" and carry them out when it's "feasible and possible and the time is ripe."

That much the Social Credit convention is entitled to. After all Mr. Bennett is their nominal leader elected under their banner.

But Mr. Bennett knows full well—as every responsible premier must know—that he no longer represents just the Social Credit Party but all the people of B.C. He must govern in accordance with the will of the majority of British Columbians—not the majority of the Social Credit Party. Responsible government is in the Legislature—not in party convention.

The new president of the Social Credit League believes in the monetary reform theories of Major Douglas. Mr. Murphy says "you can have your cake and eat it too." It will be interesting to see whether under his guidance the table officers of the S.C. League will instruct Mr. Bennett and Finance Minister Gunderson to do as much as possible provincially to implement Douglasite theories of money and credit.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And I looked, and, lo, a Lamb stood on the mount Sion, and with him an hundred forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads. And I heard a voice from heaven, as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps and they sung as it were a new song before the throne and before the four beasts, and the elders: and no man could learn that song but the hundred and forty and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth. (Rev. 14:1-3.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea . . . And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.

And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these things are true and faithful. And he said unto me, It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely. He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son. (Rev. 21: 1, 3-7).

Santa Claus' Juice

BBC Bulletin

For centuries the bones of St. Nicholas, the Santa Claus of Northern Europe, have lain beneath the High Altar of a church bearing his name at Bari, in Southern Italy. The BBC's correspondent in Rome, Christopher Serpell, recently told listeners of a mystery associated with these relics. "According to legend," he said, "the Saint was Bishop of the city of Mira in Asia Minor. After his death St. Nicholas was buried in the church there, and a miraculous spring of water with healing properties immediately began to flow from his tomb. By the time the Bari expedition went to fetch the bones, in the eleventh century, the city of Mira was in ruins, but the bones were still distilling a strange fluid in such quantities that they had to be kept in a large water barrel during the voyage back to Italy."

The people of Bari say that the bones are still distilling this liquid, which they call "the manna of St. Nicholas" and that it collects in the bottom of the Saint's coffin. Periodically the clergy of the church mop up the liquid with a sponge on a long rod which is inserted through a hole in the tomb; it is then squeezed out, diluted with ordinary water and sold in small bottles to the pilgrims visiting St. Nicholas shrine. The fluid has been analysed and found to be an extraodinary pure water with practically no trace of mineral or organic content, much purer in fact than the tap water with which it is diluted. The bones of St. Nicholas were recently exhumed from their tomb and subjected to what is called a "recognition" or official check, and the official and ecclesiastical authorities who were present at the exhumation announced that the bones are still dripping with liquid. At the traditional ceremony which takes place in Bari every summer a statue of the saint is taken out to sea in a fishing boat and brought back to land amid scenes of great rejoicing. The casket containing his bones was on view during this year's ceremonial festivities, and there may afterwards be some further scientific investigations of the phenomenon of "the manna of St. Nicholas."

550-Pound Bear Shot On Farm Near Deloro

MARMORA (ENS). — A 550-pound female bear was shot on a farm three miles north of Leloro Monday noon by John Terrion, Sr., who dropped the animal with his second shot.

Mr. Terrion and his son John had left a deer-hunting party at Whetstone rapids because of their poor luck, and had gone to the farm of his son-in-law, James Loveless. The bear came into view on a knoll as they were watching a deer runway. It is though their two dogs started the bear.

Proof of the bear's record weight was obtained when the two men managed, with difficulty, to haul the carcass into the Loveless barn and on to the grain scales.

The hide has already been spoken for by Mr. Terrion's daughter, Mrs. Guy Robson, who plans to use it for a fireplace rug in the house tehy are building on Highway 7 near the Deloro turn.

Proof that other bears are still in the area was given by 18-year-old Howard Sabine, who shot his first deer in the Glanmire district on Saturday.

He and his younger brother Bill, who was unarmed, were members of a small hunting party. Howard spotted a couple of bear cubs in the centre of a lake. He fired, but his shot merely broke the ice, giving the cubs a ducking.

What happened to the cubs after that he didn't learn, because at that point he spotted the deer some ditsance off in another direction. He dropped the animal, a four-year-old buck, with a single shot.

OLD RIDERS NEVER DIE

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Hey, Earle Sande, move over a bit.

There's an Irish lad who will ride in the $65,000 Washington, D.C., International Race Wednesday who has been in the saddle on the Emerald Isle since 1911 when he rode his first winner.

Burns, who got his first winner at Thirsk, Yorkshire, in November, 1911—seven years before Sande—is one of the oldest and best known riders in Europe. He'll pilot Mrs. F. L. Vickerman's 1953 Irish Derby winner, Chamier, in the 1½-mile International classic at Laurel Park.

"I was certainly pleased when I heard that Sande won a race in New York," said Burns. "We're all pulling for him in his comeback."

Burns, who often rides against his son, 27-year-old T. P. Burns, has never quit riding. Sande began in 1918, retired in 1932, and came back at Belmont Park last month.

CANADIAN BUYS FILLY

LONDON (CP) — Sixpence, regarded as probably the fastest two-year-old filly in Europe, has been sold to Canadian sportsman Max Bell for a reported £20,000, British newspapers report.

Reports here said the flying Irish filly would be trained in Ireland by P. J. (Paddy) Prendergast for a six-furlong invitation race in Florida next spring.

Sixpence is by Ballyogan out of the Panorama mare Danians, her pedigree thus being dominated by sprinting blood. She has won three races in Ireland and two in England, including the Cheveley Park Stakes at Newmarket.

Prendergast has been suspended by the Jockey Club because of alleged discrepancies in the running of his two-year-old, Blue Sail, but the ban does not apply in Ireland whose turf club gave him a clean slate.

PARKER WINS SQUEEKER

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP)—James J. Parker of Barrie won a unanimous decision Monday night over Edgardo Jose Romero, Lapampa, Argentina, in a dull 10-round bout. Parker weighed 206; Romero 230.

Referee Mark Conn and judge Joe Agnello scored it 6-4 for Parker and judge Charley Shortell 7-2-1 for Parker.

Romero, undefeated in 25 fights, tired after the seventh round after doing most of the leading.

Romero confused Parker in the early rounds, switching to a southpaw style by throwing rights and crossing over with left hooks. Parker opened up in the late rounds using hard rights to the head.

Injured In Fall From Tractor

ROSENEATH (ENS)—Herbert McCracken, 63-year-old Alnwick township farmer, suffered a long gash in the back of his head Monday when he fell from a moving tractor.

The accident occurred on Highway 45, seven miles north-east of Roseneath, near the home of Bruce Trotter. McCracken, his son Ray, Trotter and Don Miller were bringing in their cattle from the pasture at the time.

McCracken was riding on the rear of the tractor which Miller was driving. When they reached the highway from the side road, Miller stopped suddenly for the intersection and McCracken was thrown off.

He was rushed to the office of Dr. A. R. Atkinson in Norwood. It required 12 stitches to close the gash. McCracken is resting comfortably at his home today.

2 Men Convicted In Cream Racket

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Two men were convicted Monday of working a smooth scheme with cream.

Stanley Brandon and Orville Glazerman were given two-year suspended sentences for stealing 16 full eight-gallon cream cans from a Brandon creamery during September. Total value was $436.

Glazerman, a creamery employee, would place a full can on the loading platform. Brandon would take it home, pour the cream into his own can and sell it back to the creamery.

A short time ago, the creamery offered a prize for the farmer bringing in the best quality cream. Brandon won.

CRU Guarantees Expenses For The Grid Orfuns In Eastern Canada Playoff

Dr. Don Aitken, president of the Orfuns Football Club, told an executive meeting last night that the Canadian Rugby Union had decided to guarantee travelling expenses for the Peterborough club to play the sudden-death Eastern Canada intermediate playoff in Montreal next Saturday. At a meeting yesterday afternoon in Toronto of CRU, QRFU and ORFU officials, plans were worked out whereby the CRU would take the Montreal gate toward expenses of the game, but in any case—if the gate was below expectations—pay the Orfuns for the weekend trip. The game is to be staged Saturday (not Sunday as first announced) at Westmount stadium in Montreal at two p.m.

PAY FOR 28

Expenses only for a 28-man party were arranged by the CRU, which means that 24 players, the coach, trainer and two equipment men will come under this blanket offer. They will be given train fare and bus fare, meals and hotel accommodation for one night. The actual expenses work out to eight dollars a person for Saturday, plus train and bus tickets.

Present plans as worked out by the executive last night were to have the team leave at nine p.m. Friday by CNR with sleepers, arriving about seven a.m. Saturday, taking a hotel for the day and night, and leaving Montreal at 9.30 Sunday morning. They would arrive in Port Hope about 3.30 and be picked up by bus there and returned to Peterborough late in the afternoon. It is expected they will stay at Queen's Hotel in Montreal, doubling up to meet expenses.

UNDER THE CRU

The game at Westmount against Lakeshore Flyers—whom Orfuns edged out last autumn in the eastern final—comes under the CRU as being the Canadian intermediate "A" semi-final playoff, the winner to meet the Western Canada victor one week later in the east for the Canadian championship, won last year by Winnipeg over the Orfuns.

After some discussion, the executive last evening decided that other players—who were regulars during the season—than just the 24 who will play under CRU rules for Orfuns this Saturday should be given the trip, too. Eight of these extra players (some presently out of action through injuries) and Manager Wally Farr will have their expenses paid for by the club. The club executive officers who plan to go will pay their own way, it was agreed.

Claim Immunity For Football

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Professional football claims the same immunity from federal anti-trust laws as baseball, a National Football League counsel said Monday.

Thomas Hart, one of seven defence lawyers for the NFL against government charges that the league's radio and television policy violated the Sherman Act, said he was greatly encouraged by the U.S. Supreme Court decision on baseball.

"Although I have not had the opportunity to read the opinion of the court, it is my understanding that the Supreme Court of the United States has once again. . . decided baseball is a sport and not a business and hence is not subject to the federal anti-trust laws.

"This is precisely the position taken by counsel of professional football some months ago when we argued before the district court here that professional football is a sport and not a business."

The schedule for the week of November 16 is: Fire Hall No. 10 vs. Fire Hall No. 4; Lawns Boys No. 2 vs. Legion No. 11; Legion No. 3 vs. Orphans No. 8; LOL No. 12 vs. Glens No. 6; Legion No. 5 vs. Red Patch No. 13; Legion No. 1 vs. Legion No. 7; Legion No. 9 vs. Post Office No. 14.

Results of last week's play: The first game between Glens No. 6 and Legion No. 1 was tied three times before the Glens broke away to win 10-7. The second game was tied at 5-all in the second end but the Glens pulled away and won going away by a 19-8 score.

That big five end in both games by Lawn Boys over Legion No. 7 was the deciding factor in both wins by Lawn Boys when they captured two closely fought matches that finished with scores of 13-11, 15-11.

Singles predominated in the first game that Orphans No. 8 won from Legion No. 5 by a score of 8-6. The second game saw Legion No. 5 leading 10-4 going into the seventh frame—but then No. 8 put the pressure on, and while No. 5 finished strong, went on to capture their second victory of the evening by a 16-15 score.

FINISHED STRONG

Legion No. 3 was trailing most of the first game against Legion No. 9 until they took the lead in the 11th frame and went on to win a close match 10-7. No. 3 was leading 9-4 going into the 10th end and that is all they scored as No. 9 captured the last three ends and the game 10-9. Two very well fought games and resulted in a game apiece.

At the Fire Hall, No. 10 trailed most of the first game against the Red Patches' No. 13 when they scored a great big six in the 11th frame which proved enough to win in a 14-11 game. In the second game the Patches were leading 10-5 going into the 11th frame and, while the Smoke-eaters won both of the two final ends, they only scored a total of three and the Patches won it 10-8.

Legion No. 11 were never seriously threatened in the first game which they won 14-9 from the Post Office No. 14. The second game saw the Posties jump into the lead and, although Legion No. 11 won a big six and captured the next two frames, the Posties won by a 16-13 score.

At the old wash-rack with their carpets all bumpy from the wetting they received at the hands of the fire-fighters' hose at the recent fire at the Orange Hall, LOL No. 12 entertained the Fire Hall No. 4. And did they rub it into those fire-laddies for the damage they had done by really walloping them in the first game by a 16-4 score. But the fire-fighters in the second game got their revenge and, leading and being teid up, went on to take the game by a 13-9 score.

Standing to November 7:

Lawn Boys No. 2	5	1	0	10	54

TO VOTE ON NEW RINK

OSHAWA (CP)—Ratepayers here will vote Dec. 7 on a proposal to build a $700,000 civic arena to replace one destroyed by fire last month. Since the fire, Oshawa has been without an artificial ice surface, causing Oshawa Generals to drop out of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series for the winter.

Letcher Elected President Of Bowlers

TORONTO (CP)—W. M. Letcher of Port Perry was elected president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association at the group's annual meeting Monday.

A. A. McLeish of London was chosen vice-president and Ray R. Knight of Toronto was re-elected honorary secretary-treasurer.

The meeting discussed plans for the reception of 30 British bowlers who will visit Ontario in July and August while on their way to the British Empire Games in Vancouver. Matches will be arranged for the champion bowlers from England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales in the 16 Ontario districts.

Knight said about $1,800 had been raised by the PLBA for the crippled children's fund during last year.

Ti-Cats Will Play Without Armstrong

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four football league will likely be without the services of linebacker Quincy Armstrong and half Royal Bailey when they meet Ottawa Rough Riders here next Saturday.

Armstrong went down after a fierce downfield tackle in last Sunday's game against Montreal and is in hospital with a badly swollen left knee.

Bailey has a water on the knee condition and is taking treatments this week.

End Vito Ragazzo will show up Saturday wearing a nose guard. He suffered a broken nose in the rough Montreal contest but had it straightened out Monday.

OMHA executive member Al Watkins informs us there'll be a clinic for refs, managers and coaches on rules, etc., at Belleville's centre at 7:45 p.m. Nov. 19; also one at Lindsay on Nov. 25. OMHA annual is Dec. 5 in Toronto but teams wanting minor hockey insurance can get it right away. Affiliation is 25 cents a team or association, with insurance rate a dollar a player. The clinics referred to above will be run by top provincial referees under Pat Patterson of the OHA. Al says Marmora now has one of the finest minor puck setups he has seen since, artificial ice there was installed, and gives credit to George Brooks of Deloro, the arena commish and Doug Patterson of Stirling. Our PMHA opens play this Thursday eve in Civic Arena.

OHA junior "B" group up this way will open next week with Lindsay at Peterborough on Nov. 16. Locals, Lindsay and Oshawa—playing at Port Perry—are "B" teams, while Collingwood and Midland were included as "C" entries to round out a grouping, but games with these two centres will be all on Saturday nights because of the travel time involved. Top two "B" teams will playoff when the schedule ends, as will the "C" clubs concerned. Perhaps not an ideal setup, yet it will provide keen junior puck action for these places and Peterborough certainly wanted a fair-sized group this winter. Schedule will be out later this week when all clubs have okayed the draft submitted.

Petes Hit Road Today

Second-place TPT Petes of the senior "B" loop are off tonight for Belleville, and will have Kingston up here on Friday. So far, it's been a dandy race with Oshawa setting the pace but Petes showing a lot of promise in pulling out a victory over the champ Goodyears right in Kingston last start. To sort of stun 3,130 fans and the K's players and officials. Eddie Redmond has the material here this season and the team should give 'em all a stiff scrap every game. But the other clubs have strengthened considerably, too, over last year, which shapes up as an exciting winter for senior hockey fans around here.

At the annual meeting of the Provincial Women's Softball Union, Beth Hodson of Welland was named president for the coming year. The rest of the executive remains the same, including Mrs. Dorothy Millar of Peterborough back in the treasurer's role. This is her seventh year in that office. Dot's sister, Gladys Mortimer, is a former president of the PWSU. The local loop had a Union affiliation for some 20 years but didn't operate last summer—mayhap they'll revive the girls' softball circuit here in 1954. If so, it'll be fastball as the PWSU meeting decided to adopt fastball for senior and intermediate teams next year, using 60-foot baselines, a pitching distance of 38 feet, allowing leadoffs and giving hit batsmen a free ticket.

OK, Says CRU, re COD

Canadian Rugby Union will underwrite Orfuns' expenses to Montreal this Saturday for the Eastern Canada intermediate "A" grid final, that is for a party of 28. This word was received at a club executive meeting last night with the info that the game agains Lakeshore Flyers would be staged at Westmount Stadium on Saturday aft—not Sunday. Meaning the Orfuns will leave here by CNR train at nine p.m. Friday, arriving in the metropolis around seven Saturday morn, playing in the afternoon and staying at Queen's Hotel overnight. They leave Montreal at 9:30 Sunday morning and reach Port Hope at 3:30, taking a bus back to Peterborough in the late afternoon. Those are the present plans for the ORFU champs.

* * * * * *

In CRU playoffs (and this is the semi-final) a team may dress just 24 players. So the Canadian body pays expenses for just 28 men, which in the locals' case will include Coach Tony Kotowski, the trainer and two equipment fellows. Executive pay their own way. However, 'twas decided to take along eight other players (some presently out with injuries) and Manager Wally Farr, the club paying their expenses, as these fellows helped put Orfuns where they are today. Winner of this playoff tackles Fort William in the east a week later in the Canadian crown. Orfuns will drill regularly this week for the big battle in Montreal.

ChooChoo Heads For Top Of Scoring List

TORONTO (CP)—Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts, Ottawa Rough Rider plunging and kicking back from Bonner Springs, Kas., is headed for the Big Four scoring championship.

The 29-year-old American, a three-year import and a big factor in Riders' surge to a three-way tie at the top of standings, holds a 13-point lead over Montreal Alouettes' Ray Poole, veteran field goal and convert kicker from New York Giants. Only one week-end of play remains.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Roberts with 87 points on seven touchdowns, five field goals, 35 converts and two singles against 74 for Poole, who has scored two touchdowns, kicked 10 field goals and 34 converts.

Roberts picked up seven points against Toronto Argonauts Saturday and Poole booted five converts as the Als whipped Hamilton Tiger-cats Sunday.

LOGAN STILL FOURTH

Avatus Stone, who jumped Chicago Cardinals to play for Riders this season, held on to third spot, picking up a point on a single. Hamilton's Canadian-born Tip Logan held fourth position on a touchdown and three converts, giving him 70 conversions without a miss. Stone has 65 points and Logan 56.

Ron Stewart, Queen's backfielder, jumped into the Senior Intercollegiate Union lead with a three-touchdown performance Saturday as the Golden Gaels defeated McMaster Marauders 28-0. It gave him 40 points, one up on Toronto Varisty's Steve Oneschuk, leader the week previously, who kicked two converts in Toronto's 12-0 victory over Western Mustangs.

Canadian Girl Second In Jumping Events

NEW YORK (CP)—Mrs. Carol Durand scored the United States' fourth victory in the international jumping events of the National Horse Show Monday night by winning the International Individual Championship Challenge Trophy.

Canada's Shirley Thomas and Pat Smythe of Britain tied for second. There was a four-way tie for third among Lt.-Col. Charles Baker, Jr., of Toronto, Ronnie Mutch of the U.S., Capt. Kevin Barry of Ireland and William Hanson of Britain, Capt. Michael Tubridy took fourth for Ireland.

The Canadians lead in the international competitions with five victories. The United States is second with four; the Britons third with three. Ireland is still without a triumph.

Curlers: Please change the dates of these two events:

Neill Trophy commences November 25 instead of December 2.

The mixed rink turyek bonspiel will be held on Dec. 2 instead of Nov. 25.

This Saturday afternoon the committee is putting on a draw from the board bonspiel — the draw to be made by 1:30 p.m. and play starting at two p.m. You may enter your name on a list that will be on the notice board. The fee is small—25c—but the fun is big. Come on out and meet a lot of good fellows, and have three hours' curling all for a quarter.

Well, the boys and girls got away to a good start on Monday, and, looking over the scores, we notice very few one-sided scores. It would seem that all the curlers picked up just where they left off last March 31.

Just a thought: If you look like your passport photograph, you need the trip.

Customers Bet $50,000,916 At Ontario Race Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Race-track customers poured a record $50,000,916 into pari-mutuel betting machines at Ontario tracks in 1953, an increase of $8,398,868 over the 1952 figure of $41,602,08, the previous high.

This year's figure would have been higher but for a burst of wintry weather which led to cancellation of the last two days of racing at Dufferin Park in Toronto Saturday and Monday.

The 1953 total came from 157 days of racing, 11 more than the 146 days in 1952.

Racing in Ontario this year was at four tracks—Dufferin,, Long Branch and Woodbine at Toronto and Fort Erie in the Niagara peninsula. There was no thoroughbred racing at Stamford park near Niagara Falls, Thorncliffe at Toronto and Hamilton, which operated in 1952.

OJC EXPANDS

The Ontario Jockey Club, which has conducted racing at Woodbine for years, purchased the charters and assets of the Hamilton, Thorncliffe and Stamford tracks in a consolidation move which has as its eventual aim establishment of a new racing plant in the Toronto area. It also purchased the Fort Erie charter and track and embarked on a modernization program there.

The Orpen interests of Toronto, which own Long Branch and Dufferin, also operated their Ascot charter on the Fort Erie track for one week.

Long Branch, which had 14 more days of racing than in 1952 with a two-week meeting in August, showed the biggest increase in mutuel handle with a total for the year of $10,976,631, up $4,891,639 from the 1952 total of $6,804,992.

Fort Erie was up $1,872,057 with a total of $8,203,355 compared with $6,331,398.

MISS ALOUETTE — Smiling Merne Perry, 20, has been chosen Miss Alouette and will represent the Big Four football team at the Miss Grey Cup contest in Toronto Nov. 28. A native of Montreal, Miss Perry is in her third year at McGill University. Last year she was chosen Canada's "Prom Queen."

Turpin Refuses See Reporters

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP) British Middleweight champion Randy Turpin barred his door to a crowd of reporters sent to interview him aboard the Queen Mary when he arrived early today from New York.

Manager George Middleton blamed Turpin's state of mind on worry over personal affairs before and after losing his word title fight last month with Bobo Olson.

Turpin is being sued for $100,000 by Adele Daniels, 35, comely New York Negro girl who claimed he beat her. He also is co-respondent in a divorce action brought by a policeman in Lancashire county.

"There is no question of him giving up boxing," said Middleton. "But I would not contemplate putting him in the ring again until his mind is free from worry about his private affairs."

Earlier, sipping tea in the liner's garden lounge, Turpin declared: "America, I hate the place. It suits me fine if I never have to go back—ever."

Triple A Basketball League Predicted

TORONTO (CP) — Alex Fisher, manager of Toronto Nortown Tri-Bells basketball team, said onday night an international triple A basketball league in which Tri-Bells would compete will probably be formed this season.

He said the league would include Williamsville, N.Y., Tonawanda, N.Y., Sloan, N.Y., Niagara Falls, Toronto and possibly Hamilton and Buffalo.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Where would Canadian football be, today, if the forward pass hadn't been adopted, in the face of very considerable opposition from die-hards, in 1931? We guess it would still be a minor game, with few if any imported stars, small crowds, moderate enthusiasm. Certainly nothing like the gigantic structure which football has become today.

Origin of the exploitation of the forward pass as an offensive measure carefully designed, is a matter of contention, not that this matters greatly to Canadians who by the hundreds of thousands get their thrills from football today. It has been the custom to give to the late Knute Rockne, and Gus Dorais all the credit for developing the forward pass into the spectacular play which Canada later borrowed. And 1912 was tabbed as the date.

But that isn't the way we hear the story. Into the Legend of the Forward Pass comes another, and less familiar name, that of Edward B. Cochems, former coach of the St. Louis University's football team of 1906-7-8. He is regarded by old-timers as the No. 1 pioneer in the field of forward passing.

Cochems, a graduate of Wisconsin University and a member of one of its greatest teams around the turn of the century joined the St. Louis University staff as head coach in 1905 and the next year, when the forward pass went into legal effect Cochems exploited the possibilities of the new offensive play to the fullest.

Cochems had brought two famous players with him from the Wisconsin squad, Bradbury Robinson and Jack Schneider, whose feats in passing and receiving are legendary.

In the summer of 1906 Cochems took his squad to Lake Beulah, where they put in their entire summer trying the new rules.

Before the season opened Robinson could throw the "projectile pass", as it was called, unbelievable distances and Schneider, racing for the goal line, received the "blimp" as the early type of football was termed. They also had a short pass over the line and other variations.

In their early games they completely befuddled the enemy by first hammering the line or running the ends to pull in the defence, and then bewildering the foe with a shower of forward passes. By the end of the season they had mopped up all opposition, scoring 11 victories. In the course of their successes they fired what is regarded as one of the longest forward passes of all time, a flip that travelled 87 yards, almost the length of the field.

Suggest Getting Canadiens Away From Forum If Other Teams To Win

MONTREAL (CP)—Free tip to five National Hocke; League clubs: An easy way to get Montreal Canadiens out of first place is to drop a bomb on the Montreal Forum. The merry Montrealers have played eight games on home ice and have won them all. On the road it's a different story. They have dropped five of seven. They also are the only team in the league that hasn't played a tie game. Detroit Red Wings, also with eight games at home, have won six, lost one and tied one. Boston Bruins, on home ice only five times so far, have won four and lost one. But the Red Wings haven't yet won a game on the road, getting three ties in five starts. Away from home the Bruins have won three, lost three and tied one.

The up-and-coming Toronto Maple Leafs, one point ahead of Boston and tied for second place with Detroit, have a respectable record both at home and away. In Toronto the Leafs have won three and tied three in seven starts. On the road their record is three wins, three losses and a tie.

LITTLE RUGGED

New York Rangers, scarcely on nodding acquaintance yet with the home fans, have won one, lost two and tied one at Madison Square Garden. It has been a little rugged on the road—two wins and two ties in nine starts.

It's a dismal record either way for the lowly Chicago Black Hawks. At home: One win, six losses and two ties; away: one win and five losses.

The harvest of points—two for a win and one for a tie—shows, of course, Canadiens have collected 16 of a possible 16 at home for 100 per cent. The home-ice percentage of possible points for the other clubs: Detroit, 81; Boston, 80; Toronto, 64; New York, 38; Chicago, 22.

The over-all percentages of total points for all games are: Montreal, 67; Boston, 63 Detroit, 62; Toronto 57; New York, 35; Chicago, 20.

BOOSTED TOTAL

The new compilation of individual scoring records shows champion Gordie Howe of the Red Wings has moved into his familiar top place but the real point-grabbing spree of last week was put on by Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal, Tod Sloan of the Leafs and Ed Sandford of the Bruins. Each collected four points.

This splurge lifted the totals of Geoffrion and Sloan to 14, only two away from Howe's 16 and one behind the 15 compiled by Ted Lindsay and rookie Earl (Dutch) Reibel of Detroit. Sandford's efforts boosted his total to 12 and put him in sixth place.

Geoffrion, Maurice Richard of Montreal and Johnny Peirson of Boston share goal-scoring honors with seven each.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit continues to lead the netminders, with a goals-against average of 1.38. The Leafs' Harry Lumley follows with 1.78. Gerry McNeil of Montreal, with 1.93, is the only other goalie with an average better than 2.00.

Star Kicker Also Works As Wrestler

By GRAHAM TROTTER

EDMONTON (CP)—Wilbur Snyder, Edmonton Eskimos' Mr. Precision in convert and field goal kicking, is a major wrestling attraction when he's not splitting the uprights for the Western Interprovincial Football Union club.

The handsome tackle from Van Nuys, Calif., who set a WIFU record this season when he kicked 31 consecutive converts without a miss in schedule play while finishing fourth in the scoring race, is one of three professional wrestlers on the Eskimo roster.

Snyder, third-year Eskimo Joe Blanchard from Kansas and homebrew Gene Kiniski—three of Edmonton's six tackles—were the darlings of Edmonton wrestling fans this fall—until Oct. 1.

That's the date when football clubs must choose the eight-man American import quota with which they will finish the season. Wrestling was okay with club officials until then but after Oct. 1 they didn't want their stars, especially in the vital tackle position, to risk injury.

NO STIPULATION

"There was no stipulation in our contracts that we quit at Oct. 1," said Snyder, 24. "It was an unwritten gentlemen's agreement."

The six-foot, 2½-inch Snyder is as adept at throwing his 230 pounds around in the ring as on the gridiron. Although he started his pro grunt-and-groan career only last February, he now is an established main-eventer in the Los Angeles circuit.

He fought five matches in Edmonton early in the football season, losing one to Logger Jack McDonald. But he whipped the rough, tough Logger in two later outings.

Blanchard and Kiniski wrestled on the same cards but the Eskimo trio never opposed each other. Blanchard and Kiniski started wrestling in their college days and Kiniski once almost gave up football for a more lucrative wrestling career.

3 Bisons Share League Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran wingers Ed Slowinski and Gaye Stewart, and rookie centre Don Marshall, all of the leading Buffalo Bisons, share the American Hockey League's scoring lead with 22 points.

These three members of Buffalo's high-powered first forward line hold a one-point lead over Johnny McCormack, another teammate. Danny Lewicki of Pittsburgh Hornets is fifth with 20 points.

Larry Cahan of the Hornets is the loop's bad man with 38 penalty minutes while Jacques Plante, Buffalo's goalie, leads his rivals with a 2.33-a-game average.

Biggest Horse Sale Opens In U.S.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The biggest harness horse sale in the United States opened Monday with 170 head changing hands in transactions totalling $122,650.

The week-long auction of 925 of the top American pacers and trotters, sponsored by the Standard-Bred Sales Co., continues through Friday.

Best price Monday was $5,400 given by Dr. F. A. Huber, Williamsville, N.Y., for High Frequency, a five-year-old pacer consigned by Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Farhart of Gloversville, N.Y.

The Farharts also took in the second best price of the day with Master Fingo, two-year-old pacer, going for $3,900 to Billy Haughton of Fultonville, N.Y., leading U.S. driver in money and harness races won this season.

Commission To Work Out Details Of Carter-Savoie Fight

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's athletic commission today meets the managers of champion Jimmy Carter and Montreal's Armand Savoie to work out details of Wednesday night's lightweight championship fight.

Willie Ketchum, manager of the champion, has made it clear he considers his side was gypped in last spring's non-title fight here when Savoie took the decision over the champ.

Willie wants no part of the judges who wrote the decision to that scrap. "They're prejudiced; they see only one man in the ring," says manager Ketchum, "and I'm going to insist none of them be on the list again."

Willie would also like to see Jack Dempsey as referee, or a referee attached to either the New York or Pennsylvania commissions. He figures a Montreal referee is far short on experience.

Names of the officials won't be announced until a few minutes before the fight. Tommy Sullivan and Maurice O'Connell are senior men on the Montreal commission staff.

LIGHT WORKOUTS

Both fighters had only light workouts Monday. Savoie weighed himself at 134½. Carter wouldn't give his own weight. The official weigh-in will be at noon Wednesday, along with the final medical examination.

During the heaviest part of his training, most of it at a camp in the Laurentian mountains, Savoie boxed 140 rounds, his handlers report. Carter is said to have engaged in only 55 rounds with his sparring partners, but he has had three fights in the last couple of months.

Advance sale of tickets was reported at $30,000 Monday night. Promoter Raoul Godbout was hopeful a sell-out $70,000 would be reached, which would mean an attendance of around 17,500. Carter has a choice of 40 per cent of the gate or $25,000, Savoie's share is 12½ per cent of the gate.

MANTLE ON CRUTCHES

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Mickey Mantle, New York Yankee outfielder, got on crutches Monday, another step in his recovery from a knee operation. He hopes to leave hospital this week.

Mantle underwent the operation last Monday for removal of cartilege in the right knee. He injured it in the 1951 world series and reinjured it last July.

Arrange Schedule If Games Tied

EDMONTON (CP)—The Western Interprovincial Football Union has decided what will be done in the event any remaining game in the conference playoff finals is tied.

Edmonton Eskimos won the first game of the best-of-three series in Edmonton Saturday 25-7.

If the second game in Winnipeg Wednesday ends in a tie and Blue Bombers win the third, a fourth will be played.

If Winnipeg Blue Bombers win the second and force a third game in Edmonton Saturday and this third game ends in a tie, two 10-minute overtime periods will be played.

If at the end of overtime, the clubs are still tied, a fourth game will be played.

Battle Down To Wire For Big Four Football

OTTAWA (CP) — It's a battle down to the wire for the Big Four football title and virtually any way you look at the race it's bound to be a photo finish.

The teams meet next Saturday in the final scheduled games: Montreal at Toronto and Ottawa at Hamilton. At the moment only one thing is certain—Toronto Argonauts, Grey Cup champions last year, won't be in the playoffs.

Montreal, Hamilton and Ottawa now are tied for first place. Just how they will finish depends on Saturday's scores. There are a half-dozen confusing combinations.

Playoff dates have been set for Wednesday, Nov. 18, Saturday or Sunday, Nov. 21 or 22, and Wednesday, Nov. 25. D. Wes Brown, league secretary, said Monday that if Montreal is involved, the Nov. 22 date will stand for a Sunday game in Montreal. Otherwise the date will be Nov. 21.

While Argos are out of the running, much will hinge on how they play against Montreal next Saturday. Argos have set aside that occasion as "Joe Krol Day" and will be trying to win that last one for the retiring "Mr. Football."

MANY POSSIBILITIES

And here's what could happen:

1. Montreal beats Toronto and Hamilton beats Ottawa; Montreal and Hamilton play a best-of-three series, the team with the most points scored during the season playing host for the first game and—if necessary—the third.

2. Montreal beats Toronto and Ottawa beats Hamilton: Ottawa and Montreal play off the best-of-three series, the team with the highest scoring getting the advantage.

3. Toronto beats Montreal and Ottawa beats Hamilton, resulting in a second-place Hamilton-Montreal tie: Montreal and Hamilton play a sudden-death game Nov. 18 and the winner plays Ottawa Nov. 21 or 22 and Nov. 25 in a home-and-home, total-point series.

4. Toronto beats Montreal and Hamilton beats Ottawa, leaving Ottawa and Montreal tied for second place: Ottawa and Montreal play the sudden-death game Nov. 18 and the winner takes on Hamilton in the home-and-home, total-point series.

5. Toronto beats Montreal and Hamilton and Ottawa tie: This would throw Alouettes out of the picture with 14 points as against 15 for the other two clubs, and it would be Hamilton and Ottawa in a best-of-three playoff.

6. It could happen that Toronto tied Montreal and Hamilton tied Ottawa. This would leave a three-way tie. In this unlikely eventuality, the two teams with the lowest scoring record would play the sudden-death game and the winner would go into a total-point, home-and-home series with the top-scoring team.

7. If Toronto and Montreal should tie, Montreal would play the winner of the Ottawa-Hamilton game in a best-of-three series.

Hint Orioles May Get Eddie Robinson

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Unless a lot of people are wrong, Philadelphia Athletics and Baltimore Orioles soon will make a deal with first-baseman Eddie Robinson as the main pawn.

Earle Mack, a member of the newly-created advisory board which is running the Philadelphia club, had admitted that the Athletics are interested in dealing Robinson to the Orioles. The big first baseman hit .247, including 22 home runs and batted in 104 runs last season, but his slowness of foot and failure to hit consistently disappointed the management.

Robinson is a native of Baltimore and general manager Arthur Ehlers of the new Orioles believes the husky slugger would be a drawing card. It was Ehlers, then general manager of the Athletics, who brought Robinson to Philadelphia last winter in a deal that sent Ferris Fain to Chicago White Sox.

WHO CAN HELP?

The big question is what do the eighth-place Orioles have that could help the seventh-place Athletics? Eddie Joost, the new skipper of the A's, said he isn't interested in trading for average ball players. But he admitted the need of a catcher, third baseman and some speed in his outfield.

The Orioles are reported to be offering pitcher Marlin Stuart, first baseman Dick Kryhoski and infielder Vernon Stephens for Robinson. The Mack brain trust has indicated that's not enough. Stuart and Kryhoski maybe, but they'd have to get either Clint Courtney, the bespectacled catcher, outfielder Roy Sivers or infielder Jim Dyck.

ARCTIC WEDDING—Just 900 miles from the North Pole, the wedding of RCMP Constable H. A. Johnston and Rita McDonald, both of Dartmouth, N.S., is solemnized by a bearded Roman Catholic priest, Rev. S. Daniels, in the lounge of the government icebreaker the D'Iberville. After a brief honeymoon by helicopter the couple went to a new RCMP station at Pangnirtung, just below the Arctic Circle.

HELICOPTER HONEYMOON—RCMP Constable H. A. Johnston and his bride, formerly Rita McDonald, both of Dartmouth, are ready to take off on a helicopter honeymoon after their marriage at Craig Harbor, 900 miles from the North Pole. It was the most northerly Canadian nuptials in history. The couple will live at Pangnirtung, just below the Arctic Circle, where Constable Johnston will take up duties at a new RCMP station.

Canadian NATO Air Wing Once Only Force Able To Meet Russian MiGs

During one stage of the cold war, the RCAF unit in France was the only fighter force able to meet Russia's MiGs. In this first of a series of five stories, Bill Boss puts Canada's air contribution to NATO in perspective. Tomorrow: Canada's fliers have air-base trouble.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

METZ, France (CP)—Canada's air contribution to NATO is a complete jet fighter division, the first in Canada's history.

Its headquarters are at storied Chateau Mercy-les-Metz just outside this fortress town adjoining the disputed Saar. It has four fighter wings, each of three F-86 Sabre squadrons, and an air materiel wing based in England to supply it with equipment from Canada.

No. 1 wing is at North Luffenham, England, because its intended base at Marville in northern France will not be ready for a year. No. 2 wing is at Gros Tenquin, a 45-minute automobile run from Metz. No. 3 wing is in Germany at Zweibruecken on the other side of the Saar. No. 4 wing is at Baden-Sollingen, south of Weisbaden.

Commanded by Air Vice-Marshal Hugh Campbell of Ottawa, the formation oozes pride that:

1. It has been praised by senior commanders as one of NATO's finest air formations.

2. For a long time it was the only fighter force in Europe able to meet the Russian-built MiGs, only 12 minutes' jet flight away.

3. Next year it will have new Canadian Sabres which will outperform Sabres only recently acquired by NATO's British and United States formations. Also, its squadrons will be strengthened to 25 from 16 fighters each, an increase of 108 in its planes.

4. If Western Europe were invaded tomorrow, the main burden would fall on the Canadians.

5. Canada is the only NATO member which has met all its commitments, and on time.

HIGH OBJECTIVE

At divisional headquarters and bases in France and Germany, I heard these points repeatedly from officers and men.

Air Vice-Marshal Campbell said: "Canada's objective is to have the most efficient air force on the continent. We have the best equipment on the continent and excellent personnel."

This does not mean all is rosy in the division or that its operational fitness came smoothly.

Two of its three continental airfields were unserviceable in September and October.

Since August, workmen have been trying to remedy deficiencies of Gros Tenquin. Even when the present work is finished, the runway will be dangerous during the wet season—November to March. Gros Tenquin's aircraft have been flying from Zweibruecken.

Barely a week after its formal transfer to Canada in September, cracks were discovered on No. 3 wing's runway at Baden-Sollingen. Flying was halted and RCAF authorities called on the contractors to correct the faults. A composite squadron of Sabres from the wing went to North Luffenham to train. Training was provided on the continent for other pilots.

OTHER DIFFICULTIES

No. 3 wing, overcrowded at Zweibruecken by air and ground crews from Gros Tenquin, also had tacked onto it the training schools for the entire division. Then it was told to plan on becoming the European terminal for the RCAF's No. 426 (North Star) squadron based at Dorval, Que.

There is dissatisfaction among pilots and flight-control officers with French electronic equipment in the division's control towers. In due course, it will be replaced by a Canadian product.

Pilots to the rank of squadron leader say their Canadian-built direction-finding equipment is inferior to the British cathode-ray direction finder used by British formations here and No. 1 Canadian wing at North Luffenham. Senior officers, however, say that Canadian equipment is adequate for the moment.

But the air division's morale is high.

Indicative is the spirit at Gros Tenquin where the RCAF met its greatest difficulties with continental contractors. Appalling living conditions of last winter fused a determination to pitch in and see it through.

This winter will not be overcomfortable at Gros Tenquin, but it will be more bearable than last. Married men have moved their families into trailer camps on the station. Self-help groups of officers and men work together in spare time, digging ditches for water pipes and stringing power lines.

CANADA'S AIR DIVISION — Canada's air contribution to NATO is a complete jet fighter division, the first in Canada's history. The four wings in the division are at North Luffenham, England; Gros Tenquin, France, Sweibrucken and Baden Sollingen, both in Germany. The Canadians would feel the main burden in the event of an invasion of Western Europe. This map shows the location of the wings, some of which are only a few minutes' jet flying time from Russian-built MiGs.—(CP from National Defence).

Goal Judge Testifies Fines Planned Brawl

BARRIE (CP)—George Gordon of Collingwood, a goal judge during the hockey game in which Robert Gillies was fatally injured last March, said Monday he had heard Walter Fines tell the Aurora goalkeeper he was going to start a brawl.

Fines, a 19-year-old Aurora defenceman, is being tried on three charges as a result of Gillies' death. He pleaded innocent to manslaughter, grievous bodily harm and assault occasioning bodily harm.

Crown counsel W. M. Thompson charged Fines checked Gillies, a Collingwood player, into the boards where he suffered fatal injuries.

Gordon said he heard Fines tell the Aurora netminder "We are going to start a brawl." The netminder told Fines to wait until two minutes before the end of the game, Gordon said. Gillies was struck about two minutes after the conversation had taken place, the witness added.

Earl Nobes of Collingwood, who was standing beside Gordon at the game, said he also heard Fines' remark.

SICKENING CRASH

Dr. Robert Storey of Collingwood, who was watching the Ontario Hockey Association Junior C playoff, described the fatal fall as a "terrific, sickening crash." He said "just as Gillies reached a loose puck a few feet from the boards, he was struck from behind."

"He lunged head-first into the boards," the Doctor added. "It was a terrific, sickening crash. I knew it was of such force that the player could not have escaped injury of some kind."

Dr. Storey said the player who struck Fines did not make a play for the puck, but charged Gillies.

He said Gillies was taken to a dressing room where he regained consciousness and was rational. He later was transferred to hospital.

An hour later he suffered a convulsive seizure and again lapsed into unconsciousness. He died en route to Toronto.

REFEREE TESTIFIES

William McArthur, referee, identified Fines as the player who checked Gillies.

"Fines didn't appear to be skating that fast when he hit Gillies," he said. "Of course, I wasn't paying much attention to the speed of the players. We watch the puck.

"When Fines charged Gillies, I blew the whistle and stopped play. Members of both teams began to mix it up in a general melee."

He said it took five minutes to break up the fights. He gave Fines a match penalty "for a deliberae attempt to injure."

Dr. Chester McLean, pathologist at Toronto's Western Hospital, performed a post mohtem examination on Gillies. He said the 18-year-old player died of a blood clot on the brain from a fractured skull.

Honeymoon Takes Couple To Within 700 Miles Of Pole

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian couple has settled down to domestic life in the relatively-temperate clime of Pangnirtung, Baffin Land, after a wedding 700 miles further north and just 900 miles from the pole.

The marriage of RCMP Constable H. A. Johnston and Rita McDonald, both of Dartmouth, N.S. was performed closer to the pole than any Canadian nuptials in history.

For their honeymoon trip, they had a helicopter flight over the frozen wastes, an icebreaker voyage to a point 200 miles closer to the pole and another one south to their new home.

IN SHIP'S LOUNGE

A bearded Roman Catholic priest —Rev. S. Daniels—married them Aug. 12 in the lounge of the government icebreaker d'Iberville at Craig Harbor, Ellesmere island, where the constable had been stationed for the last two years.

Miss McDonald had gone north on the d'Iberville, sailing from Montreal July 15 on a supply trip to the Arctic outposts. She was loaded down with heavy clothes and housekeeping effects.

Wilfrid Doucette, Ottawa photographer who went north to record the trip for the transport department, says the course of true love hit a few minor snags before bride and groom finally got to the altar.

First, ice kept the d'Iberville from getting into Pond inlet, 300 miles south of Craig Harbor, to pick up the missionary. The ship's helicopter was sent to take him aboard.

When the ship arrived at Craig Harbor, Constable Johnston set out for it in an outboard motorboat. His engine broke down, and he hauled the boat aboard an ice floe to make repairs.

TRYING MOMENT

From the d'Iberville's deck, the distressed fiancee watched as the floe and the mountie drifted off seaward past the vessel. He repaired the motor though, before rescue was needed.

At the ceremony, the bride was given away by Supt. Henry Larsen, only skipper to navigate the northwest passage in both directions and now commanding officer of the RCMP's Arctic division.

After their brief helicopter honeymoon, the couple sailed north to Twin Glacier, 700 miles from the pole, where the groom put in 10 days helping to build a new RCMP post. Later, he took up a new station at Pangnirtung, just below the arctic circle.

Constable Johnston is a son of Harold A. Johnston, a former mountie, of Dartmouth. His bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. McDonald of Dartmouth.

Bus Service Deficit Riles Councillors

OTTAWA (CP) — The village council of suburban Rockcliffe took a look at a $331 deficit in last week's operations of a bus service there and decided to consider legal action against car-owners who pick up potential bus passengers.

Reeve D. P. Cruikshank said Monday night giving "lifts" to persons waiting at bus stops resulted in loss of business and indicated poor support of the service.

In recent years, car-owners in the Aylmer area of Quebec have been fined for interference with the public transport system—namely, giving "lifts" to persons waiting at Gatineau Bus Company stops.

On Remembrance Day...
We Rededicate Ourselves
To the Cause of Freedom....

A busy nation pauses Wednesday to honor the dead of World War I, and celebrate that day of Armistice, November 11, 1918, that ended that terrible war—a war that failed to end all wars. We have since faced other threats to our freedom, and that of other nations, and fought still another war . . . World War II. The liberty that we possess has been most dearly paid for—and, on Remembrance Day, 1953, we are more determined than ever to hold on to our liberty for ever and ever more.

DOCTOR ILL

Dr. Harry Wright, Keene, assistant to the Peterborough MOH, and in care of health for the public schools in this area, has taken seriously ill. He is not expected to resume duties for at least three months. Other arrangements are being made in his absence.

MARINERS ALSO SHOOTERS

A party of 15 Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company executives and business friends got themselves 12 deer during their week of hunting at Six-Point Lodge. One of the lucky ones, Robert Broad of Melbourne, Australia, had never shot a deer before. Their hostess, Mrs. Lillian Greene, said the male hunting groups are easier to handle than mixed summer crowds. "I ought to know," she said, "this crowd has been coming here for the past 10 years."

STILL SELL POPPIES

City council have given the Legion's welfare committee permission to sell poppies on the streets Wednesday morning. Because of the heavy snowstorm, Saturday's receipts were only half of the $1,400 that Poppy Day taggers usually collect on city streets; and the money is needed for relief work among needy veterans and their families. Many Peterborough people, whether veterans or not, like to wear a poppy on Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, and they didn't get one on Saturday. So to accommodate both the welfare committe and interested residents city council will allow taggers to sell popies up to 11 a.m., the time of the memorial service Wednesday at the Confederation Park war memorial.

Lost An Elk Horn?

Does anybody happen to know an elk with a horn missing? Albert Buott of 486 Paterson St. found an elk horn on the street Monday. The antler is about four feet long and has five big branches on it; so it belongs to no mean elk. Mr. Buott thinks, no doubt correctly, that some sad hunter is wondering where the other half of his trophy went. Mr. Buott has it.

Bylaw Delayed To Charge $75 For Sewers

Ald. T. D. Miller Monday night delayed a move in city council to pass a bylaw increasing the flat rate for sewer services from $25 to $75 to users who are not assessed under the Local Improvement Act.

Ald. Miller, who termed the change a major step, pointed out that the matter had not been brought before the board of works where it should be referred for further consideration. His motion to that effect was unanimously endorsed.

City Engineer E. A. Chalmers, who had sponsored the bylaw, explained to The Examiner today that its purpose was to bring up to date a 1906 bylaw which fixed the flat rate charge at $25.

TOWNSHIP USERS

The rate applies primarily to township users, he said, whose property lies on the township side of streets along city boundaries. The process of assessing them on a frontage basis under the Local Improvement Act was a complicated one. It involved passing township bylaws providing for an assessment on users to be paid to the township and then turned over to the city. The flat rate was a more satisfactory expedient, he said.

The flat rate also applied to a few city users whose properties did not front on the sewer mains to which their services were connected.

Cattle Crowd Winter Fair

Royal Winter Fair has more cattle nominated than can be housed. Total from all provinces and the United States is 2,775 head, as compared with 2,540 last year.

Ontario farmers have forwarded 825 beef entries, 910 dairy cattle, more than 1,000 horses, and some 800 in the breeding horse division.

Ontario leads all sections in the sheep with 772 entries and also 703 swine. Nearly 6,000 entries of poultry are reported, making it the biggest poultry show on the continent. There are also 547 Ontario entries of fruit and vegetables and 603 of seeds, grain and hay.

It was reported today the directors of the livestock show had on their hands a major stabling problem, and possibly some of the nominations may have to be reduced if they are all to get in under the big roof.

Alfred Barber President Labor Council

Alfred Barber, one of Peterborough's veteran CIO-CCL labor leaders, on Monday night was elected president of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL).

Mr. Barber, who has been president of Local 210, UPWA (CIO-CCL) for nine years, succeeds Fred Burrett who resigned in October during his one-year term of office. Mr. Burrett, president of Local 230, Outboard Marine Workers Union (CCL), said that he couldn't give the proper amount of time to council work; so he resigned.

(Local 230 has since changed its trade union jurisdiction, becoming a local in the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).)

Election of labor council officers for the year 1953-54 will be in February. Mr. Barber will head them until then. He moves up from vice-president.

ALFRED BARBER

Edmund S. Humphrey of Local 434, UPWA (CIO-CCL), succeeds Mr. Barber as vice-president.

Besides heading his own local (Canada Packers) for nine years, Mr. Barber was for two years president of the now-defunct Allied Labor Council; two years president of the present CIO-CCL council; and for the last two years he has been vice-president.

He has been active in organizational work for the CCL in the Peterborough district.

Police Arrest Man For Absconding

HAMILTON (CP)—Lloyd George Sterling, 37, wanted by Vancouver police for absconding $5,000 bail on a charge of possessing explosives and safecracking, was arrested here Monday.

Detectives said a search of his room uncovered a .32-calibre revolver under a mattress with 40 rounds of ammunition beside it. Sterling was charged with illegal possession of a revolver and remanded to Nov. 13.

Housing Corporation Buys Brantford Land

BRANTFORD (CP)—About 175 acres of land in Brantford's suburbs have been bought by the Ontario government and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for joint development.

The land, bordering the Canadian National Railways line, was sold by market gardener Leslie McConkey. It may be used for either housing or industry.

2,000 Veterans To March Remembrance Day Service

Wearing their brightly-colored berets and their war service medals, 2,000 Peterborough veterans will march through the city Wednesday morning for the annual Remembrance Day service at the war memorial in Confederation park. The weather forecast for this region is 'cloudy and a little cooler". It is expected that the rain will keep off but the temperature will only be about 45 degrees.

Forming the ranks of the marchers will be veterans of the navy, army and air forces in the First and Second World Wars; some Boer War veterans; a few of the Imperials who fought Britain's colonial wars, and a number of Europeans, who were in the regular army of their native country or served in the resistance movement during the Second World War, and have since emigrated to Canada.

LAY WREATHS

After the two minutes' silence, followed by reveille, some 40 groups of veterans, civic organizations and other groups, will advance and lay wreaths on the war memorial. The Silver Cross Mothers—women who lost sons in the war—will be the first to lay their wreath.

To eliminate confusion that has arisen in the past, Edward Davis chairman of parade activities, has arranged for the two minutes' silence to begin with the blowing of the CGE whistle. Beginning and ending with the CGE whistle was decided on because, too often, there is no synchronization among factory whistles and clocks in the city.

This year an attempt is being made to have the whole city observe the two minutes' silence. Sometimes there is a constant flow of downtown traffic, and shoppers probably unwittingly, continue to rummage about inside the stores during the brief period of remembrance.

A letter, circulated by the Peterborough chamber of commerce among its members, asks them to co-operate in the observance.

Factories will sound their whistles at 11 and again at 11.02 a.m.; stores have been requested to station an employee at each entrance to dissuade people from going in or out during the two minutes. The police have been asked to stop traffic at intersections; and the bus lines have been asked to pull their buses over to the curb.

Parade Marshal Harry Gabbutt estimates that at least 2,000 veterans will be on parade. Markers will fall in at 9.30 a.m. in front of the Armouries and the parade will move off at 10.05 a.m.

FOUR SECTIONS

The parade will be divided into four sections, with the interval of a city block between them. To keep this pre-arranged distance, section commanders have been instructed not to move off from the Armouries until given the order by George McNabb, assistant parade marshal.

Each of the four sections will be headed by a band to provide marching music for the veterans. They will move off onto McDonnel St., go west to Aylmer St., south on Aylmer to Charlotte St., east on Charlotte to George St., and north on George to the war memorial. The column will be formed up on the road, between Confederation park and the city hall, as directed by Parade Marshal Gabbutt.

Following is the order of parade:

Section No. 1—50th A. A. Band and 50th A. A. Regiment in full khaki uniforms, RCEME, Color Party, Wreath Bearers, Executive of Legion Branch 52, Legion Branch 452 (Women's) and Branch 52 membership.

Section No. 2—Citizens' Band, Navy Assoc., SD and G Assoc., 93rd Bn. Assoc., RCAF Assoc., OPP, City Police, and Fire Department.

Section No. 3—CGE Co. Pipe Band, CGE Veterans (first section), Salvation Army Band, and the CGE Veterans (second section).

Section No. 4—Sea Cadet Band, Grove School Band, RCAF Cadets, Sea Cadets, Grove School Cadets, and the Boy Scouts.

If it is raining permission has been received for the remembrance service to be held in the Armouries. Permission for this was received from Col. Max Clarke, CO of the 50th HAA (RCA).

The 20-minute service will begin shortly before 11 a.m. The Citizens' Band will play "O Canada"; the opening prayer will be by Padre A. E. Larke, of Springville (originally it was planned for a Roman Catholic to conduct the religious part of the ceremony this year, but Bishop Gerald Berry, who would make the appointment, was out of town); Mayor Hugh Waddell will speak, followed by Legion President Louis Durkin; then the Salvation Army Band will play "O Valiant Hearts."

By this time it will be 11 a.m. and the sounding of the CGE whistle will interrupt proceedings. The last post will be played by Bugler Cecil Gallagher. After the silence, Bugler Gallagher will sound reveille.

While wreaths are laid on the war memorial, the CGE Pipe Band will play a lament.

After the Citizens' Band play "God Save the Queer.," Padre Larke will give a closing prayer. Edward Davis, the chairman of parade activities, will thank those

Historical Society Asks City For $600 Grant

City council Monday night referred to the 1954 council a request from the historical society for a $600 grant.

President John Londerville, spokesman for a delegation from the society, told council that the Peterborough City and County Historical Society had been reorganized and is now an incorporated society affiliated with the Ontario Historical Society.

Five committee were already at work at various activities, he said. The society's major project was to equip a museum. Other plans included preparation of an account of the city's history and locating historical sites which would be marked with wooden plaques. Eventually these sites could be linked into an historical drive.

Mr. Londerville said it was the society's intention to make the account of the city's history brief, accurate and interesting. It could be used for official purposes, including a guide book for visitors.

TWO COLLECTIONS

In regard to the proposed museum collection, he said that future plans for renovation of the public library included space for housing the Denne collection of pictures of the city and the collection of Katherine Wallis' sculpture, as well as space for a museum.

The society was already engaged in cataloguing suitable materials for the museum. Show cases would have to be obtained, express paid on articles donated and certain purchases of outstanding materials made.

Mr. Londerville said the society felt such projects as these would be of educational value to school children, of interest to the adult population and an attraction to guests and summer visitors. The society was willing to supply all the labor involved but "certain capital expenses are essential if real results are to be obtained".

Provincial regulations provide for a dollar-for-dollar grant on municipal expenditures of this type up to a maximum of $600.

City Should Help Classes For Mentally Slow

The municipality should give some help to the class now being held in the city for mentally retarded children, the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL) decided Monday night.

At present a class for eight children with very low IQ's is being held two and a half hours a day, five days a week, in the basement of the YWCA, Mrs. Edward Chambers, secretary of the Peterborough council for retarded children, told the labor delegates.

This class, the first of its kind in the city, is being financed privately, Mrs. Chambers said, though there is the prospect of a department of education grant at the end of the first school term.

The YWCA has given the class use of the music room in the basement, and the board of education has supplied some old primers and a few odds and ends of equipment. But Mrs. Chambers says that right now they are looking for some financial help and two suitable rooms on the ground level (some of the children have to be carried which make stairs a complicating factor.)

TURNER HOUSE IDEAL

A no-longer used house, such as the Turner house on the city hall lot, would be the ideal setup, Mrs. Chambers said. The mentally retarded children would have a place for themselves, which they would be able to recognize as their own school.

"The Public School Act of 1920—says that children with an IQ under 50 must not be admitted to public schools, said Mrs. Chambers. "The mentally retarded children couldn't keep up with the others, the teachers couldn't give them the extra time required, and they would be a danger to themselves because of lack of muscular co-ordination."

Educational authorities from other countries are shocked to find that there is no provision in Ontario for teaching these mentally retarded boys and girls, Mrs. Chambers said. Other handicapped groups—the crippled, spastics, and deaf and dumb—are recognized by the department.

Recently, however, groups of individuals in cities such as Toronto, Hamilton, Kirkland Lake and Brantford have started up schools for mentally retarded children. And, under certain conditions, they have been getting small grants from the department so they can continue their work.

In Peterborough, first plans for a school began last June, said Mrs. Chambers. There was a difficulty finding accommodation and the school, taught by Mrs. Jean Hamilton who did similar work in Glasgow, Scotland, has only been running for five weeks.

Sunderland Farmer Dies Of Injuries In Fight With Ram

SUNDERLAND, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Cecil Wilson told today how her crippled husband was fatally gored by a vicious ram during a three-hour battle in a pasture. She said he was conscious long enough to tell her he gave up the struggle three times "to let him finish me off." Wilson, crippled in his arms and legs since boyhood, died in hospital Saturday three days after the attack. He was buried Monday.

HANG ON HALF-HOUR

Wilson had gone to get his cows, when he was butted from behind by the ram.

Mrs. Wilson quoted her husband as saying:

"The ram drove me to the ground and I wasn't able to get up. I hung on to him for half an hour. Then my strength gave out.

"I managed to get to my hands and knees and climb on a big boulder. That's all I remember."

Wilson was found sprawled over the boulder by a neighbour, Ross McClennan.

Wilson is survived by his 86-year-old mother, Mrs. Charles Wilson Sr., his wife, the former Marjorie Marks, two daughters and a son. He was buried Monday in St. John's cemetery, West Brock township.

Caution Urged By Churchill

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill, soon to meet with President Eisenhower and French Premier Joseph Laniel in a Big Three meeting, has warned both opposing sides in the Trieste dispute to be cautious in the quarrel over the disputed territory.

In a general review of foreign affairs to the Lord Mayor's banquet Monday night, Churchill advised extremists on both the Italian and Yugoslav sides to "keep quiet" and "behave" during the tense situation brought on by the British-American decision to withdraw their troops from the occupied territorial zone.

Generally, the prime minister's speech to the banquet called for "time and patience and goodwill" to ease world tension, although he conceded that the world is in an "awful muddle." He cautioned against letting "foolish speech" inflame Anglo-American relations, an apparent reference to criticism in some British quarters of State Secretary Dulles of the United States, and in the U.S. Congress of Churchill's prodding for immediate big-power talks with Russia.

The banquet had all the ancient trappings—and also the most impressive menu since before the war.

Soil Campaign

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (CP)—A country-wide campaign to make the natives of South Africa "soil conscious" was launched by the Native National Soil Conservation Association. Native farmers were told of various conservation methods and shown special films.

Canal Residents Ordered Fix Up Property

Residents on property of the federal department of transport in Douro have been notified by the township council that they are given until September 15, 1954, to improve their buildings to the standard required by the building bylaw of the municipality.

Some houses have been built on each side of the canal north of Nassau which were presumably intended to be used as summer cottages. However, families are living in them through the winter, and as places of permanent residence they have to conform with the bylaw. One of the changes that will be necessary is the building of foundations under them.

NO EXCEPTIONS

This improvement is for the advantage of the owners themselves, and apart from that consideration, the council has taken the position that their bylaw does not permit of exceptions if it is to become effective in all cases. It is understood that leases from the canal department are long term, up to 99 years.

A committee composed of Reeve R. Tedford, Deputy-reeve L. Moloney and Councillor Condon was authorized to consult District Road Engineer Ewart Marston about the diversion of the road at South Beach Hotel.

Accounts passed for payment were: general township accounts $758.80; township road $171.24; relief payments $243.00.

As Court of Revision the members of the council granted four reductions of $25 each in assessments.

CAR, TRUCK DAMAGE $200

While a truck driven by Edward Lacroix, 17, of Actinolite, escaped unscathed in an accident at Otonabee St. and Armour Rd. Monday, the car it skidded into sustained $200 damage. Both eastbound on Otonabee St., the car, driven by Robert McIlmoyle, 21, of 33 Armour Rd., slowed and the truck slid into its rear.

NEW HOPE FOR VICTIMS of hemophilia, like this little boy getting plasma at home, has been opened by new discoveries.

Blood Requires Factor For Clotting

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two dispatches that reveal some new strides science has taken in solving the riddle of life for victims of the dread bleeding disease, hemophilia.

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—For centuries, physicians thought there was only one kind of hemophilia. In the last year or so, scientists have discovered at least three, possibly five and there may be more.

They all have one thing in common: bleeding. A person afflicted with any hemophilia can't stop bleeding, because his blood does not clot normally. Since there have always been only a relatively few victims, it has been difficult to do too much research on the problem.

But recently the work has been stepped up, and one definite fact has been established. The difficulty is caused by the lack of something in the hemophiliac's blood needed for clotting, and not by the presence of something that prevents clotting.

It is here that the discovery of hemophilia varieties is being made. Deficiencies in different clotting factors have been found in different patients. At New York's Mount Sinai Hospital they have isolated and identified three varieties.

There is, first, the "classic" or most common type of hemophilia, which is still the most prevalent form. These people, estimated by the Mount Sinai researchers to account for about two-thirds of all hemophiliacs are found to be missing a factor called anti-hemophilic globulin, and hence this type is being called AHG hemophilia.

The other two forms are likewise named from the initials of other missing factors. There is PTC, from missing plasma thromboplastin component, and PTA, from missing plasma thromboplastin antecedent.

At the University of North Carolina, in Chapel Hill, N.C., researchers say they have found these three, but also gradations of true hemophilia, and have identified a similar disease in dogs and pigs.

Currently, treatment for all is identical, with one major exception. Because of the large quantities of normal plasma required to check the bleeding tendency, it is necessary to give victims of hemophilia blood plasma of their specific type to avoid destruction of their own blood. This makes their treatment in emergencies much easier.

A long-believed truth about hemophilia appears to be correct. It had always been thought that hemophilia was transmitted from a carrier-mother to a victim-son. That was the case in the European royal families, where hemophilia was frequent.

But the North Carolina scientists found a family of Irish setters that were infected with a canine variety of hemophilia. They mated victims and non-victims according to a pre-determined pattern and, by seeing whether the pups had the disease proved that the old theory was true.

In addition, they showed that hemophilia occurred in females when the father had hemophilia and the mother was a carrier.

Whatever the type of the disease, and whatever the hereditary system, its greatest menace is that it prevents the living of a normal life. Many boys become permanent cripples, because of internal bleeding in the joints that causes hemophilic arthropathy which eventually makes the joints rigid.

✦ ✦ ✦

Painstaking work by orthopedists at New York's Lenox Hill Hospital, with the cooperation of the Hemophilia Foundation, has produced a slow but successful treatment. The affected joints are gradually straightened and made usable by special casts and braces.

Their prize recovery is a boy who came to them in October, 1951, at the age of 15. He had been lying at home for years, with every one of his joints rigid. Doctors now recall that he was "a helpless mess", and he spent his life being carried from sofa to bed and back again.

By August of this year he was up and around. He walked for the first time since childhood. He still wears braces on his arms, but they are coming around, too.

This combination of new treatment and accelerated research opens the way for hope for hemophilia. It is still tricky and dangerous, but the future is brighter than it has ever been.

Prisoners Getting Expensive Tastes

TORONTO (CP)—Reform school swimming pools, television sets and clothing allowances are giving "graduates" tastes which are too expensive for their parents' pocketbooks, chairman W. J. Stewart of the legislature's reform institutions committee said Monday.

He suggested before the committee that these expensive tastes may be responsible for the fact the 11 per cent of the adult prisoners in provincial institutions have formerly been in the training schools.

Mr. Stewart said he doubts if pupils of any school in Toronto live as well as do those in the training schools at Bowmanville and Galt which the committee visited last week.

W. J. Grummett, CCF House leader, told the committee a prisoner who escaped from Whitby jail and was recaptured showed the jail governor how he had escaped—and got away again for four days.

Abbott Admits Cigarette Tax High

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott, a non-smoker, thinks cigarette taxes are "too high" but that doesn't mean he'll cut them.

Offered a cigarette at a weekend party, Mr. Abbott lightly replied: "No, thanks, can't afford 'em. The taxes are too high."

Asked if that means he will reduce taxes, the minister replied: "That's a big question. My usual slogan is—'Tax 'em, but don't use 'em.'"

Give Closing Dates For RCAF Yule Mail

OTTAWA (CP)—Closing dates for delivery of Christmas mail and parcels to RCAF personnel serving overseas were announced onday.

Mail for Japan or Korea must be in Vancouver by Nov. 15. Prepaid airmail must reach Vancouver by Dec. 5.

Ordinary mail for Britain and continental Europe must be in Montreal by Nov. 27. Parcels by ship must arrive in Montreal by Nov. 25.

Air mail is sent from Montreal to Britain and Europe daily and usually is delivered in two days. However, the air force advises that overseas postal administrations warn there will be delays during the holiday season. To ensure delivery, air mail should be in the United Kingdom by Dec. 16 and parcel post by Dec. 8.

House Speeches To Be Translated

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is considering installing a system for simultaneous translation of all speeches in the House of Commons from English to French and from French to English. French and English are Canada's official languages.

The proposed system would be similar to that used at the United Nations and other international organizations.

Supporters feel such a plan would encourage a greater number of French-language members to participate in debates. The amount of French spoken in the lower chamber has declined in recent years chiefly because the language is not thoroughly understood by the bulk of English members.

A government spokesman said inquiries have been made concerning the cost of installation and performance. If the plan was approved the house might be asked to pass an appropriation for installation and maintenance of the equipment at the session starting Thursday.

New Car Ferry Service To Start

SARNIA (CP)—A new car ferry service between Sarnia and Port Huron, Mich., will start operating about Dec. 10, a Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad spokesman said Monday.

Two Psychiatrists Give Trial Evidence

STRATFORD (CP) — Two psychiatrists, called by the crown in a trial within a trial, were heard here Monday before a jury which has to decide if a Canadian Army paratrooper, Reuben Norman of Nithburg is mentally capable of standing trial for murder.

The sanity trial was adjourned until today after evidence was given by Dr. Charles S. Tenant, psychiatrist of the Ontario department of health; and Dr. William A. Cardwell, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at Penetanguishene, issued court order prohibiting publication of evidence unless Norman is found not mentally fit to stand trial in the shooting of Jean Marie Satche, 17, of Stratford last Feb. 2. Last May a Supreme Court jury found him unfit for trial. He has been in hospital at Penetanguishene since then until Sept. 14.

Hallowe'en Hat Murdered Man's

BARRIE (CP)—A hat worn nine days ago by a youngster as part of a Hallowe'en costume has been identified as belonging to Fred (Scotty) Cameron, Toronto investment house messenger whose bullet-riddled body was found Oct. 30 in a ditch near here.

Rickey Fatherby, 9, found the brown hat in a ditch near Stroud the day Cameron's body was discovered. He used it on Hallowe'en as part of his costume. It was turned over to police Monday.

Officers said it was likely the hat was thrown from a car by the killers after they shot Cameron and dumped his body in the ditch. Police said no further progress has been made in solving the case.

Two Injured

HAMILTON (CP) — Two men were injured Monday night in a car-truck crash on the Queen Elizabeth Way, near Burlington. Admitted to hospital were: John Stackhouse, 21, of Hamilton, with bruised back, in fair condition; and James Botsford, 43, of St. Catharines, injured back. Botsford is reported in fairly good condition and is being transferred to a St. Catharines hospital.

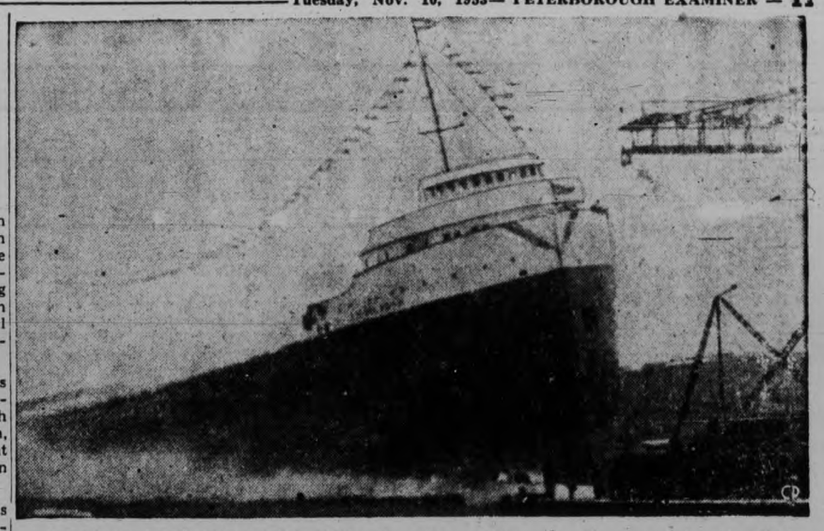
30 Clergymen Attend Archdeaconry

Thirty clergy from the Anglican archdeaconry of Peterborough are in Peterborough today for the second day of a two-day conference. The annual meeting deals with day-to-day parish matters but, this year, special emphasis is being put on parochial missions.



A guest at the afternoon sessions and at the choral evensong Monday night in St. John's Church was the Rev. Harold Frankham, of Lancashire, England, assistant missioner at the Bryan Green Mission.

Presiding at the conference is the Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, of St. John's. And among the attending clergy are the three rural deans of the archdeaconry: Canon Walter G. Gilling, of Peterborough, the Rev. Howard Boulden, of Durham-Northumberland, and the Rev. Lloyd MacFarlane, of Victoria-Haliburton.

Monday afternoon the clergy had a three-hour session discussing the business reports from the deaneries and other parochial topics of mutual interest. The meeting was opened by Mr. Frankham.

Tea was served by the Women's Association at 5 p.m. and choral evensong was at 8 p.m., featuring the united choirs of Peterborough parishes. Mr. Frankham gave the sermon.

Early today (Tuesday) the clergy had Holy Communion, then breakfast, and an address by Mr. Frankham followed by a discussion. In the afternoon the session continued on the theme of parochial missions.

McLagan, believed the largest ship ever built inland for service on inland waters, splashes into the storm-tossed Georgian Bay at Midland. The 715-foot McLagan is 50 feet longer than any ship now using the Welland Canal. The $5,000,000 vessel will carry 800,000 bushels of wheat or 25,000 tons of iron ore. She was launched by Mrs. T. R. McLagan, wife of the president of the ship's owners, Canada Steamship Lines.

Father Day Will Appear On TV Shows

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Father Day, the terribly-tempered parent of the stage and screen, will soon be blasting way on the TV screens.

Mr. Day, the central figure of Life With Father had an historic run on Broadway, chalking up a record 401 weeks. At one time, four companies were playing the show in the United States. The film version, starring William Powell and Irene Dunne, grossed more than $5,000,000 in the U. S. and Canada.

The Day family of 1880 New York will be seen on CBS-TV starting Sunday Nov. 22. The stars will be Leon Ames and Lurene Tuttle. He has long appeared in films and she has been radio's busiest actress (she has given up an average 15 shows a week to become Mrs. Day).

Here to help the show get on the air in the proper spirit is Mrs. Clarence Day, widow of the man who wrote the stories about his irascible father.

STICK TO FACTS

Mrs. Day said she will stick around for a few shows so that the new Days will adhere to the established characters. She advises on the costumes and sets and sees that the scripts hew to the spirit of her husband's stories. She performed the same function when the movie was made, but admitted that some things got out of hand.

"I didn't approve too much of the crowd scenes," she remarked. "After all, Life With Father is an intimate story and is best told in intimate surroundings. The picture showed the Days living in a huge house. Actually, the Days weren't rich; they were comfortable."

HELPED HUSBAND WRITE

Mrs. Day, who helped her husband write the stories recalls her mother- and father-in-law vividly.

"Mr. Day actually had great charm," she recalled. "He could be as charming as you please until something went wrong. He was a man who insisted that everything be orderly. If something interfered with the system, he erupted.

"Mrs. Day was just the opposite. She was flighty and emotional, inclined to do things on the spur of the moment. They were a wonderful pair. They were still alive when some of my husband's stories came out; he died in 1927, she in 1929. She would bring one of the stories and say, 'See!' Then the original argument would start all over again."

As in the film version, the TV series will have to do without the oaths which Mr. Day uttered in the play. The author's widow deplores this.

"The funny part of the play was hearing these oaths in such surroundings," she said. "I think it's silly that children can see all kinds of ways to kill people on TV, but can't hear an occasional swear word."

Motorcyclist Jailed For 30 Days

KITCHENER (CP) — Wilfred Schnarr, 21, of Waterloo, a motorcyclist with a record of 15 offences in the last few years, Monday was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $50 when he was convicted of dangerous driving.

Three other charges, of having no licence on his motorcycle, careless driving and speeding, were adjourned a week.

Car, Truck Sales Show Drop In September

OTTAWA (CP) — Sales of new motor vehicles slipped in September for the first time this year, declining to $75,755,000 from $78,771,000 a year ago.

However, the total for the first nine months of 1953 was still sharply higher than 1952, swelling to $943,362,000—up about $166,000,000 from $777,778,000, the bureau of statistics reported Monday.

With sales of trucks and other commercial vehicles dropping, total vehicles sold in September slipped to 30,029 from 31,936 last year. This had little impact on the nine-month total which rose to 375,897 from 309,464.

CONTINUE DECLINE

Sales of commercial vehicles declined for the fifth consecutive month in September, with 7,534 units selling for $19,992,000 compared to 9,597 retailing for $25,320,000 last year. Sales for the first nine months dropped to 82,742 units from 84,235 and values to $203,261,000 from $217,254,000.

While commercial vehicle sales dropped, passenger cars still showed buoyancy. Total sold in September increased to 22,495 from 22,339 with values rising to $55,762,000 from $53,450,000. This brought total sales in the nine months to 293,155 from 225,229 units pushing total value to $735,097,000 from $560,524,000.

Defence Plan For Europe Snag In France

By LEON DENNEN

PARIS —(NEA)— Ratification of the European Defense Community treaty by the French National Assembly has hit a new snag.

There is little hope that the treaty will be ratified this year, Allied diplomats in France believe.

Now the hard-pressed French parliamentarians "fear"—despite strong U.S. assurances to the contrary—that "the Pentagon" intends to cut U.S. troop strength in Europe and concentrate primarily on the development of new atomic weapons.

One leading deputy of the Assembly put it thus to me: "Suppose the Pentagon overrules the State Department and decides to withdraw American forces from Europe—what then?"

He was quick to supply his own answer: "France will be left holding the bag. As a member of the European Defense Community she will be at the mercy of a strong rearmed Germany."

There is no doubt that uncertainty about French ratification is holding up all U.S. military and economic plans for the West. The State Department, which until now displayed the patience of a Job, is getting tired of the endless zigzags of French politics.

LOSING USEFULNESS

Some U.S. diplomats are even taking the view that perhaps EDC is no longer useful as a scheme for the defense against Soviet aggression—that it may have to be modified or entirely discarded.

U.S. policy remains officially unchanged. But many American diplomats are beginning reluctantly to consider possible alternative frameworks for West German rearmament.

Though the situation—in the face of Russia's aggressive designs—is dangerous it is not without its humorous side.

Advocates of an appeasement policy towards Moscow who were lately bemoaning the "American occupation of France" are now just as bitterly criticizing the "Republican administration's ostensible aim to revert to a "policy of isolationism."

Admiral Arthur, W. Radford, new chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff now touring Europe, tried hard to allay western fears during his recent visit to Paris. His words—like the strong and clear statement by State Secretary John Foster Dulles—made little impression on the French politicians.

Even strong EDC supporters were disturbed by the spate of Washington news dispatches to the effect that the Pentagon wants to reduce U.S. forces in Europe as an economy measure.

As Communist, neutralist and nationalist opponents of the European Army were quick to emphasize, neither Radford nor Dulles flatly denied that such a reduction was contemplated in the future.

The stories from Washington, true or false, hit the western capitals at the most inopportune moment—just as U.S. policy was beginning to make some headway in Europe.

They were a boon to the French Reds who just received orders from Moscow to start an all-out propaganda drive against EDC ratification.

Cab Drivers Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Twenty night shift taxi drivers went on strike Monday night at Bowes Taxi Limited. They accused company officials of permitting non-union drivers from another compan to operate out of their office and also of employing spare drivers when regular drivers were available. Company officials denied drivers of another company were operating from their office. They said spare drivers were hired because the regular drivers did not always report for work.

Padre Appointment

OTTAWA (CP)—The air force Monday announced the appointment of Group Capt. Frank MacLean, 48, of Trenton, N.S., as director of religious administration (Protestant) of the RCAF. Group Capt. MacLean, who served overseas for three years during the last war, succeeds Group Capt. Robert Frayne, who died suddenly last June.

'Not Immigrants' Court Upholds Immigration

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Andre Demers in Superior Court Monday rejected habeas corpus actions by Paul Walter Glazer and his wife by which they sought to have an immigration department ruling reversed so the Glazer family would not be deported to Austria.

In his judgment, Mr. Justice Demers said:

"The petitioners did not enter the country as immigrants but as visitors. Proof which t petitioners made before us is proof of good character but it is not within our realm to substitute ourselves for competent authorities in the matter."

It is expected an appeal will be taken.

The Glazers' case came to public notice about a month ago when a board of inquiry of the immigration department ruled that the family—father, mother and three children—would be deported.

FAMILY SPLIT UNNECESSARY

At that time it was reported that the mother and one son, both born in the United States, would have to return to that country; the father and another son to their native Austria. The 2½-year-old son, it was reported, would have to remain in his native Canada.

Later the immigration department said the family would not be split and that there was no reason why the family could not return to Austria.

Mrs. Glazer served with the United States occupation forces in Austria, where she met her husband.

The immigration department ruled that Glazer was an undesirable under the act and there was a risk entailed in keeping him here charge at a later date. The same in that he might become a public held regarding Mrs. Glazer.

Police Seek Mother Of Abandoned Baby

OTTAWA (CP)—Police are seeking the mother of a two-day-old boy whose body was found in a parked car here Monday.

Mrs. Walter Hudson, wife of an Ottawa police sergeant, made the discovery when she returned to her car for some packages after parking it in front of her home a few minutes earlier.

Coroner Dr. W. T. Kendall, who examined the body, said death was not the result of an abnormal birth, although it was evident the child had been born without medical assistance.

Police Chief Robbed, Befriended Vagabond

MONTREAL (CP) — Chief Viateur Pilon of the nearby Rigaud police department probably will never hear the nd of this:

A penniless-looking man, about 50, walked into the Rigaud police station Friday and was granted lodging for the night. The next morning, Chief Pilon woke up to find the man gone, along with his wallet, identification papers and badge.

"I don't care for the $75," the red-faced chief told Quebec Provincial Police, "but I want my badge."

THE WAR MEMOIRS OF WINSTON CHURCHILL

YALTA: FINALE

The Far East played no part in our formal discussions at Yalta. I was aware that the Americans intended to raise with the Russians the question of Soviet participation in the Pacific war. We had touched on this in general terms at Teheran, and in December 1944 Stalin had made certain specific proposals about Russia's post-war claims in these regions to Mr. Harriman in Moscow. The American military authorities estimated that it would take eighteen months after the surrender of Germany to defeat Japan. Russian help would reduce heavy American casualties. The invasion of the Japanese home islands was at this time still in the planning stage, and General MacArthur had entered Manila only on the second day of the Yalta Conference. The first experimental explosion of the atomic bomb was not to take place for another five months. The large Japanese army in Manchuria could, if Russia, still remained neutral, be thrown into the battle for Japan itself.

With all this in mind President Roosevelt and Mr. Harriman discussed the Russian territorial demands in the Far East with Stalin on February 8 (1945). The only other person present apart from the Russian interpreter was Mr. Charles E. Bohlen, of the State Department, who also interpreted. Two days later the conversation was continued, and the Russian terms were accepted, with certain modifications, which Mr. Harriman mentioned in his testimony before the United States Senate in 1951. In return Russia agreed to enter the war against Japan within two or three months after the surrender of Germany.

During the same afternoon, in a private talk with Stalin, I asked him about Russian wishes in the Far East. He said that they wanted a naval base, such as Port Arthur. The Americans would prefer the ports to be under international control, but the Russians wanted to have their interests safeguarded.

My record of these negotiations is preserved in a telegram which I sent to the Dominion Prime Ministers on July 5.

In the most rigid secrecy Stalin informed Roosevelt and myself at the Crimea Conference of the Soviet Government's willingness to enter the war against Japan two or three months after Germanys' surrender, on the conditions stated below:

(a) Preservation of the status quo in Outer Mongolia.

(b) Restoration of the Russian rights lost in the year 1904, viz.:

(i) Recovery of Southern Sakhalin and the islands adjacent to it.

(ii) Internationalization of the commercial port of Dairen, with safeguards for the pre-eminent interests of the U.S.S.R. and restoration of the lease of Port Arthur as a Soviet naval base.

(iii) Joint operation by a Soviet-Chinese company of the Chinese Eastern Railway and the South Manchuria Railway, providing an outlet to Dairen, on the understanding that the pre-eminent interests of the U.S.S.R. will be safeguarded and that China will retain full sovereignty in Manchuria.

(c) Acquisition by the U.S.S.R. of the Kurile Islands.

2. These conditions wer embodied in a personal agreement between Roosevelt, Stalin, and myself. The agreement recognized that Chiang Kai-shek's concurrence to the conditions would be required, and Roosevelt undertook to obtain this concurrence on advice from Stalin. We all three agreed to see that the Soviet claims were fulfilled without question following the defeat of Japan. The agreement contained nothing else, except an expression of Russian readiness to enter into a treaty of alliance with China with the object of helping the latter to throw off the Japanese yoke.

I must make it clear that though on behalf of Great Britain I joined in the agreement, neither I nor Eden took any part in making it. It was regarded as an American affair and was certainly of prime interest to their military operations. It was not for us to claim to shape it. Anyhow we were not consulted but only asked to approve. This we did. In the United States there have been many reproaches about the concessions made to Soviet Russia. The responsibility rests with their own representatives. To us the problem was remote and secondary. It would have been wrong for us to get in their way unless we had some very solid reason.

✧ ✧ ✧

It was my turn to preside at our final dinner on February 10. Several hours before Stalin was due to arrive a squad of Russian soldiers came to the Vorontzov Villa. They locked the doors on either side of the reception rooms which were to be used for dinner. Guards were posted and no one was allowed to enter. They then searched everywhere—under the tables and behind the walls. My staff had to go outside the building in order to get from their offices to their own quarters. All being in order, the Marshal arrived in a most cordial mood, and the President a little later.

At the Yusupov dinner Stalin had proposed the King's health in a manner which, though meant to be friendly and respectful, was not to my liking. He had said that in general he had always been against kings, and that he was on the side of the people and not that of any king, but in this war he had learnt to honour and esteem the British people, who honoured and respected their King, so he would propose the health of the King of England. I was not satisfied with this treatment of the toast, and I asked Molotov to explain that Stalin's scruples might be avoided by proposing on future occasions the health of "the three heads of States." This having been agreed, I now put into practice the new procedure:

I propose the health of His Majesty the King, the President of the United States, and President Kalinin of the U.S.S.R., the three heads of the three States.

To this the President, who seemed very tired, replied: "The Prime Minister's toast," he said, "recalls many memories. In 1933 by wife visted a school in our country. In one of the classrooms she saw a map with a large blank space on it. She asked what was the blank space, and was told they were not allowed to mention the place—it was the Soviet Union. That incident was one of the reasons why I wrote to President Kalinin asking him to send a representative to Washington to discuss the opening of diplomatic relations. That is the history of our recognition of Russia."

It was now my task to propose the health of Marshal Stalin.

Stalin replied in the best of tempers, and I had the feeling that he thought the "heads of the States" procedure was well adopted to our triple meetings. I have no record of his actual words. Including interpreters, we were less than a dozen, and after the formalities we talked together in twos and threes. I had mentioned that there would be a General Election in the United Kingdom after the defeat of Hitler. Stalin though my position was assured, "since the people would understand that they needed a leader, and who could be a better leader than he who had won the victory?" I explained that we had two parties in Britain, and I only belonged to one of them. "One party is much better," said Stalin with deep conviction.

This led the President to speak of the British Constitution. He said that I was always talking about what the Constitution allowed and what it did not allow, but actually there was no Constitution. However, an unwritten Constitution was better than a written one. It was like the Atlantic Charter; the document did not exist, yet all the world knew about it. Among his papers he had found one copy signed by himself and me, but strange to say both signatures were in his own handwriting. I replied that the Atlantic Charter was not a law, but a star.

As our talk continued Stalin spoke of what he called "the unreasonable sense of discipline in the Kaiser's Germany," and recounted an incident which occurred when he was in Leipzig as a young man. He had come with two hundred German Communists to attend an International Conference. Their train arrived punctually at the station, but here was no official to collect their tickets. All the German Communists therefore waited docilely for two hours to get off the platform. So none of them were able to attend the meeting for which they had travelled far.

In this easy manner the evening passed away agreeably. When the Marshal left many of our British party had assembled in the hall of the villa, and I called for "three cheers for Marshal Stalin," which were warmly given.

✧ ✧ ✧

There was another occasion during our stay at Yalta when things had not gone so smoothly. Mr. Roosevelt, who was host at a luncheon, said that he and I always referred to Stalin in our secret telegrams as "Uncle Joe." I had suggested that he should tell him this privately, but instead the President made it into a jocular statement to the company. This led to a difficult moment. Stalin took offence. "When can I leave this table?" he asked in anger. Mr. Byrnes saved the situation with an apt remark. "After all," he said, "you do not mind talking about Uncle Sam, so why should Uncle Joe be so bad?" At this the Marshal subsided, and Molotov later assured me that he understood the joke. He already knew that he was called Uncle Joe by many people abroad, and he realised that the name had been given in a friendly way and as a term of affection.

✧ ✧ ✧

The next day, Sunday, February 11, was the last of our Crimean visit.

✧ ✧ ✧

That same afternoon Sarah and I drove to Sebastopol, where the liner Franconia was berthed. She had come through the Dardanelles and acted as the headquarters ship, which could also be used in case accommodation on shore at Yalta broke down. We went on board, where I was joined by Sir Alan Brooke and the other Chiefs of Staff. From the deck we looked out over the port, which the Germans had practically destroyed, though now it was full of activity again and in the night-time blazing with lights.

I was anxious to see the field of Balaclava, and I asked Brigadier Peake of the War Office Intelligence Staff to look up all the details of the action and prepare himself to show us round. On the afternoon of February 13 I visited the scene, accompanied by the Chiefs of Staff and the Russian admiral commanding the Black Sea Fleet, who had had orders from Moscow to be in attendance on me whenever I came ashore. We were a little shy and very tactful with our host. But we need not have worried. As Peake pointed to the line on which the Light Brigade had been drawn up the Russian admiral pointed in almost the same direction and exclaimed, "The German tanks came at us from over there." A little later Peake explained the Russian dispositions, and pointed to the hills where their infantry had stood, whereupon the Russian admiral intervened with obvious pride, "That is where a Russian battery fought and died to the last man." I thought it right at this juncture to explain that we were studying a different war, "war of dynasties, not of peoples." Our host gave no sign of comprehension, but seemed perfectly satisfied. So all passed off very pleasantly.

Before us lay the valley down which the Light Brigade had charged, and we could see the ridge which had been so gallantly defended by the Highlanders. As the scene lay before us one could grasp the situation which Lord Raglan had faced some ninety years earlier. We had visited his tomb in the morning, and were greatly struck by the care and respect with which it had been treated by the Russians.

I had much looked forward to the sea voyage through the Dardanelles to Malta, but I felt it my duty to make a lightning trip to Athens and survey the Greek —scene after the recent troubles.

We flew without incident to Athens. Only seven weeks before I had left the Greek capital rent by street-fighting. We now drove into it in an open car, where only a thin line of kilted Greek soldiers held back a vast mob, screaming with enthusiasm, in the very streets where hundreds of men had died in the Christmas days when I had last seen the city. That evening a huge crowd of about fifty thousand people gathered in Constitution Square. I addressed them with a short harangue.

At Alexandria I went on board HMS Aurora. I had taken no part in the discussions between the President and the Middle East sovereigns who had been invited to meet him, King Farouk, Hailie Selassie, and Ibn Saud. These conversations had taken place on board the Quincy, which had been anchored in the Bitter Lake. Later that morning the American cruiser steamed into Alexandria harbour, and shortly before noon I went on board for what was to be my last talk with the President. We gathered afterwards in his cabin for an informal family luncheon. I was accompanied by Sarah and Randolph, and Mr. Roosevelt's daughter. Mrs. Boettiger, joined us, together with Harry Hopkins and Mr. Winant. The President seemed placid and frail, I felt that he had a slender contact with life. I was not to see him again. We bade affectionate farewells. That afternoon the Presidential party sailed for home.

After the departure of our American friends I had arranged a meeting with Ibn Saud. He had been transported to the conference with the President in the American destroyer Murphy, had travelled with all the splendor of an Eastern potentate, with an entourage of some fifty persons, including two sons, his Prime Minister, his Astrologer, and flocks of sheep to be killed according to Moslem rites. On February 17 his reception was organized at the Hotel du Lac at Fayoum oasis, from which he had temporarily removed all the residents. A number of social problems arose. I had been told that neither smoking nor alcoholic beverages were allowed in the Royal Presence. As I was the host at luncheon I raised the matter at once, and said to the interpreter that if it was the religion of His Majesty to deprive himself of smoking and alcohol I must point out that my rule of life prescribed as an absolutely sacred rite smoking cigars and also the drinking of alcohol before, after, and if need be during all meals and in the intervals between them. The King graciously accepted the position. His own cup-bearer from Mecca offered me a glass of water from its sacred well, the most delicious that I have ever tasted.

It had been indicated to me beforehand that there would be an interchange of presents during the course of our meeting. I had therefore made what I thought were adequate arrangements. "Tommy" Thompson bought for me in Cairo for about a hundred pounds, at the Government's expense, a little case of very choice perfumes, which I presented. We were all given jewelled swords, diamond-hilted, and other splendid gifts. Sarah had an enormous port-manteau which Ibn Saud had provided for "your womenfolk." It appeared that we were rather outclassed in gifts, so I told the King. "What we bring are but tokens. His Majesty's Government have decided to present you with the finest motor-car in the world, with every comfort for peace and every security against hostile action." This was later done.

King Ibn Saud made a striking impression. My admiration for him was deep, because of his unfailing loyalty to us. He was always at his best in the darkest hours. He was now over seventy, but had lost none of his warrior vigour. He still lived the existence of a patriarchal king of the Arabian desert, with his forty living sons and the seventy ladies of his harem, and three of the four official wives, as prescribed by the Prophet, one vacancy being kept.

We returned from Fayoum to Cairo, stopping on the way at the British Ambassador's desert house, where we had tea. I stayed for a few days at the Casey villa, and had interviews both with King Farouk, and the President of Syria, at which we talked of the recent difficulties in the Middle East, many of which still continue. Sarah meanwhile unpacked the port-manteau which Ibn Saud had given her. It contained many splendid and beautiful Arab robes and several vessels of rare and delicious perfumes. At the bottom were half a dozen cardboard boxes of different sizes. One of these contained a diamond with the valuation £1,200 attached. There were a number of other gems, and several necklaces of Red Sea pearls. Anthony had a similar set of presents, though in his case the diamond was adiusted to his rank. When eventually I reported on these matters to the Cabinet we told them that of course we should not keep for ourselves any of the valuables. In fact the Treasury, to whom they were given, almost paid with them for the motor-car which I had taken it upon myself to present to Ibn Saud.

On February 19 I flew back to England. Northolt was fogbound, and our plane was diverted to Lyneham. I drove on to London by car, stopping at Reading to join my wife, who had come to meet me.

✧ ✧ ✧

At noon on February 27 I asked the House of Commons to approve the results of the Crimea Conference.

Poland was the issue which disturbed the House.

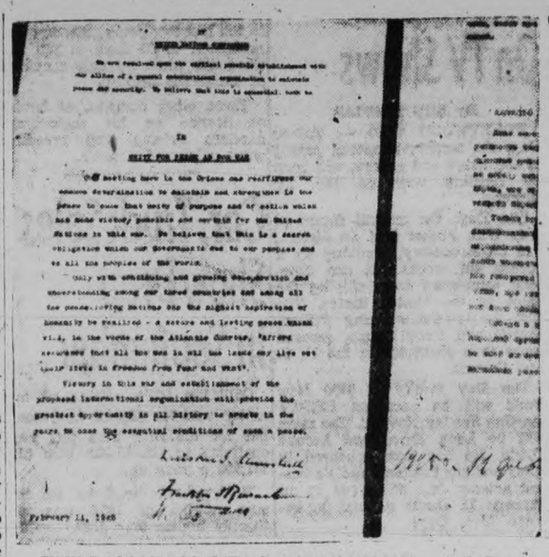
* * * The home of the Poles is settled. (I said.) Are they to be masters in their own house? Are they to be free, as we in Britain and the United States or France are free? Are their sovereignty and their independence to be untrammelled, or are they to become a mere projection of the Soviet State, forced against their will to be an armed minority to adopt a Communist or totalitarian system? I am putting the case in all its bluntness. It is a touchstone far more sensitive and vital than the drawing of frontier lines. Where does Poland stand? Where do we all stand on this?

Most solemn declarations have been made by Marshal Stalin and the Soviet Union that the sovereign independence of Poland is to be maintained, and this decision is now joined in both by Great Britain and the United States. * * *

I felt bound to proclaim my confidence in Soviet good faith in the hope of procuring it. In this I was encouraged by Stalin's behaviour about Greece.

The impression I brought back from the Crimea, and from all my other contacts (I said) is that Marshal Stalin and the Soviet leaders wish to live in honourable friendship and equality with the Western democracies. I feel also that their word is their bond. I know of no Government which stands to its obligations, even in its own despite, more solidly than the Russian Soviet Government. I decline absolutely to embark here on a discussion about Russian good faith. It is quite evident that these matters touch the whole future of the world. Sombre indeed would be the fortunes of mankind if some awful schism arose between the Western democracies and the Russian Soviet Union.

✧ ✧ ✧



The general reaction of the House was unqualified support for the attitude we had taken at the Crimea Conference. There was however intense moral feeling about our obligations to the Poles, who had suffered so much at German hands and on whose behalf at a last resort we had gone to war.

It is not permitted to those charged with dealing with events in times of war or crisis to confine themselves purely to the statement of broad general principles on which good people agree. They have to take definite decisions from day to day. They have to adopt postures which must be solidly maintained, otherwise how can any combinations for action be maintained? It is easy, after the Germans are beaten, to condemn those who did their best to hearten the Russian military effort and to keep in harmonious contact with our great Ally, who had suffered so frightfully. What would have happened if we had quarrelled with Russia while the Germans still had two or three hundred divisions on the fighting front? Our hopeful assumptions were soon to be falsified. Still, they were the only ones possible at the time.

"SURFACE SOFTENED" NEW WHITE SWAN is softer, gentler, more absorbent

PROVE IT WITH THIS TEST

Ordinary tissue may look soft, but try this. Just rub two sheets together. Hear that harsh, scratchy sound? That means this tissue has "invisible roughness" . . . does not have the complete gentleness so necessary in a tissue.

Now listen to New White Swan! All you hear is a slight whisper that seems to say "so soft." It proves to you that "Surface Softened" New White Swan has no "invisible roughness" . . . is so much gentler, softer, more absorbent.

Fighter Of Rebels Seeks Presidency Of Philippines

MANILA, P.I. (NEA)—Raymon Magsaysay is a dynamic, 46-year-old Filipino who believes that despite his country's independence, vital questions of its national defense, domestic security and economic well-being still must be decided in Washington.

At the start of the long and bitter Presidential campaign, Magsaysay was best known in the islands — and America — for the fierce and bold way he smashed the Communist Huk guerrilla forces which had been terrorizing the populace.

Typical of his whole personality is the way he launched the drive against the Huks after being made defense secretary in 1950. At a staff meeting of his top generals he was told that it would be at least two weeks before a battalion could be readied for a move against the Reds. At that Magsaysay slammed his pistol down on the desk and declared: "If that battalion doesn't move in three hours, there will be a court-martial for everyone involved."

The outfit moved.

GOOD CAMPAIGNER

Today Magsaysay has lost none of that fire and zeal to get a job done. Since the start of the campaign he has become an accomplished, polished speaker and a persuasive leader with a comprehensive understanding of his country's problems. That's the way he is now regarded.

Close to six feet tall, he stands well above the average Filipino and cuts an impressive figure. He's handsome, broad-shouldered and exudes vitality. His wife is the intelligent, dignified Luz Magsaysay who was born on Bataan. They have two daughters and one son.

When he took over the army he quickly retired all the over-age generals, instituted a system of promotions based on merit and placed younger, smarter men in key positions. This is his philosophy about cleaning up the government, too, which he attacked throughout the campaign as being corrupt and inefficient.

Magsaysay is the son of a Luzon blacksmith. He holds college degrees in commerce and engineering. His hobby is tinkering with engines. At the start of World War II he was manager of a transportation company and was included in the deal when the firm and its equipment was taken over by American forces at the start of the fighting.

STAYED BEHIND

When Jap troops took the islands he stayed behind as part of an allied guerrilla force and climaxed a brilliant role in this activity by having the beaches cleared of Jap troops for General MacArthur's triumphal return.

MacArthur appointed him governor of the liberated province of Zambales. Later he was elected to the Philippines legislature, where he distinguished himself by being named one of the first five of the 10 outstanding members for the full four-year term.

In April, 1950, he was sent by the Philippines government as a one-man mission to Washington to obtain military assistance for his country. After his successful completion of that job he was made secretary of defense.

An American expert on the Philippines said recently, after observing Magsaysay in action: "His progressive and aggressive leadership, tempered by his solicitous feel for the great masses of the poor people of the country, should make his term of office a great success."

RAMON MAGSAYSAY — He tinkers with armies and engines.

Gets 20 Years Hard Labor For Wife Killing

PARIS (Reuters)—A court Monday sentenced Leonard Wattebled, former Montreal hotel proprietor, to 20 years' hard labor for shooting his wife in a crowded Paris restaurant 16 years ago.

The prosecutor had asked for the death sentence, and described Wattebled as "one of the most revolting criminals" he had ever come across.

Nearly all the witnesses of the crime are by now dead or missing. One vital witness, Cornelius Freund, a Hungarian diplomat with whom Mrs. Wattebled was dining when she was shot, was said to be in Hungary and unable to come to Paris to give evidence.

Wattebled was originally sentenced to death in absentia in 1938. He is alleged to have fled to Canada after killing his wife, Henriette, Nov. 19, 1937.

PROSPERED IN MONTREAL

He assumed the name of Lucien Lebrun and prospered during the Second World War with his Montreal hotel.

He was identified after his arrest by Canadian police when charged with a tax offence, and extradited at the request of the French authorities.

The prosecutor retraced Wattebled's career since his marriage to Henriette, a young dressmaker, in 1933. He was alleged to have beaten her and driven her onto the streets to earn money as a prostitute. The prosecutor said Wattebled was twice sentenced for procuring and once served 18 months in prison for ill-treating his wife.

ASKED FOR DIVORCE

Wattebled's wife made two attempts to escape from him and begged for a divorce, the prosecutor said. The second time she left him she met Freund, an attache of the Hungarian embassy, and fell in love.

Henriette was dining with him the night Wattebled walked into the restaurant, fired one shot into her head, held back the startled diners with his gun as he backed towards the door and disappeared into the crowded boulevard.

Wattebled denied the charge. He claimed that the Hungarian drew a revolver as he approached the table, and that it went off in a struggle.

Church Takes Active Part In Indo-China Fighting

By FRED SPARKS

HANOI, Indo-China (NEA). — A war, with two definite sides, is easier to report than a revolution. And an Oriental revolt, spiced with guerrilla actions and needled by foreigners, is as simple to explain as the best recipe for bird's nest soup.

For example: All medicine is severely rationed. It is not in short supply. But Communist agents—even in French strongholds like Hanoi—would buy such items and smuggle them to Red troops.

Then there is the extreme necessity for security. French families who have employed the same servants for 20 years do not trust them.

In a situation paralleling the Mau Mau revolt in Kenya, countless servants have tipped off Red terrorists to the movement of their bosses, who died as a well-pitched grenade exploded.

When Frenchmen in fortified country stockades decide to weekend in town, they don't even pack a bag. They just take off. Filling a valise would give the chambermaid a clue. She might signal guerrillas who would pump lead at the auto at a cross-roads.

French and loyal Indo-Chinese soldiers are constantly cautioned that loose words about troop shifts — particularly at saloons with strange pretties — can be the words chiselled on their tombstones.

CHURCH ROLE

The Catholic Church is playing an important anti-Communist role in the most fighting way since the Crusades. I have been visiting Buichu province where I saw priests recruiting young men and churches bristling with machine guns.

Catholicism is the religion of one-fourth the area (there are few Protestants). When Communists attack stockades the priests are on the ramparts and the Second World War song could be played: "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition."

For a while the Bishop of Buichu, Pham-Ngoc-Chi, was commanding general. He armed defenders during the period when Allied troops, engaged elsewhere, could not offer protection.

Today, with loyal Indo-China in the area, the Bishop is merely the spiritual leader but he still signs on boys for the Catholic battalions.

During Buichu province's low point, guerillas made it impossible to hold services in all but seven of the 500 churches. Priests were beaten or killed. Children attending Sunday school were treated by Communist youth groups with the awful brutality of the young. Now 150 churches are open.

Recently, the tiny town of Quan Phong was liberated by Catholic forces. The next Sunday the priest returned for the first mass in two years.

MET BY CONGREGATION

The scene was biblical. As the priest neared the town, crossing rice paddies and thin, slippery bamboo bridges, the entire congregation was there to greet him and receive his blessing in an open field.

Some of the sacramentals, hidden in a graveyard, were shovelled up as women wept and the children's choir chanted a hymn.

Because there are loyal Indo-Chinese in almost every hamlet, including those long occupied by Reds, airbombing as a total weapon is restricted. In Korea, anything north of the 38th parallel was fair game.

Troops invading Communist towns must be on their best Boy Scout behaviour. This is indeed hard when buddies have been shot down in the assault.

Unfortunately, the go-easy policy is hard to enforce, as with any combat troops. Field soldiers can hardly resist collecting chickens and other items to supplement tinned rations. If the chickens are taken from a friendly Indo-Chinese he might apply, next day, for membership in the Soviet Oriental League.

The reporter assigned to explain the working of the H-bomb in 500 words has an easier assignment than the correspondent charged with simplifying Indo-China's rebellion, where the man who shakes your hand at lunch might stab your back at dinner.

Children Of Envoys Kept In Poland

WINNIPEG (CP)—Michael Krycun, former Polish consul here, says Communist Poland now is keeping children of diplomatic envoys within the Soviet satellite as hostages.

Krycun completed a three-day fast Sunday in protest to no action by the external affairs department to give official sanction to his stay in Canada. He says he wants "political asylum," not immigration papers.

He said he was one of the last officials out of Poland who was allowed to take his entire family with him to the country he was assigned.

Leading Poet Dylan Thomas Dies In U.S.

NEW YORK (CP)—Poet Dylan Thomas, 39, one of the major literary figures of the last two decades, died Monday in hospital here. According to a friend, encephalopathy, a disease of the brain, was the cause of death.

Thomas came to New York Oct. 20 from his home in Laugharne, Carmarthenshire, Wales, to give readings of his poems and his new play for voices, "Under Milkwood."

The main purpose of Thomas' visit to the United States, his fourth in the last three years, was to discuss with composer Igor Stravinsky plans for an opera. The men had previously talked over the germ of a plot and intended to develop it at the composer's California home.

Much of the poet's education was received at the hands of his teacher father in his native Carmarthenshire. After brief attendance at a grammar school, Thomas was a newspaper reporter for a year and then tried odd jobs.

In 1940, he drew on his early experiences for "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Dog," an autobiographical study of a young poet's growth.

Thomas' reputation as a poet was established almost overnight with "Eighteen Poems," a slim volume published in 1933.

Polio Cases Increase

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Two small Byron sisters, ages three and five years, were admitted to Victoria Hospital Monday suffering from polio. A third new case was a 25-year-old woman from Ailsa Craig. These brought the total of polio patients in the isolation ward at the hospital to 14, an increase of two from Sunday.

Children Opposition

STRATFORD (CP)—School children selling Christmas cards are running opposition to established business firms, Stratford's board of education was told Monday night. Trustee Carl Linkert said he had been asked to bring the matter to the attention of the board. The matter was referred to the management committee.

His father, John (at right), escaped but Paul's mother, Mrs. Tekla Rivney, 52, a sister, Mrs. Mary Guzda, 33, and two children, Sonya Guzda, 4, and her brother Nicky, 2, were fatally injured.

The Dog and the Bone

A DOG was crossing a plank bridge over a stream with a piece of meat in his mouth, when he happened to see his own reflection in the water. He thought it was another dog with a piece of meat twice as big; so he let go his own, and flew at the other dog to get the larger piece. But, of course, all that happened was that he got neither: for one was only a shadow, and the other was carried away by the current.

CUTTING THEIR WEDDING CAKE are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn L. McNevan, the bride formerly Miss Alma Marie Twomey. The couple were married Saturday in Ennismore and will live in Sarnia. (W. H. Staffen Photo)

McNevan-Twomey Rites

The marriage took place Saturday in St. Martin's rectory, Ennismore, of Alma Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Twomey of Ennismore to Glenn L. McNevan, son of Mr. and Mrs. David McNevan of Keene. The Rev. P. J. Lynch performed the marriage ceremony.

The bride wore a wool suit in two-tone grey with navy accessories and had a corsage of Bettertime roses. Miss Marlene McNevan, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. She wore a wool suit in coronation blue shade with pink feather bandeau and accessories of navy. Her corsage was also of Bettertime roses. Mr. Jerry Twomey, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

The wedding reception was held at the Empress Hotel. The bride's mother received in a navy dress of nylon sheer and wore a corsage of carnations. She was assisted by the groom's mother, wearing a navy blue crepe dress and a corsage of carnations also.

After a honeymoon in Quebec Mr. and Mrs. McNevan will live in Sarnia where he is on the staff of the Bank of Toronto.

McMahon-Baldwin Rites

CAVAN (ENS)—The wedding was solemnized at St. John's Anglican Church, Ida, on Saturday, of Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baldwin, of Oshawa, to Vertle Carl McMahon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard McMahon, of Bailieboro. The double ring ceremony was performed by the rector of the parish of Cavan, the Rev. Mr. Pocock.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of navy hammered satin with powder blue feather hat and navy accessories. Her corsage was of red Sweetheart roses.

Bridesmaid Miss Eleanor Day, of Peterborough, wore a teal blue taille dress with matching hat and black accessories. Her corsage was of yellow baby 'mums.

Mr. Merril McMahon was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were Allen Baldwin, of Oshawa, and Kenneth McMahon, of Bailieboro, brothers of the bride and groom.

Miss Jean Lough played the wedding music. Mrs. Lawrence Winslow sang, "The Lord's Prayer," before the cermony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride's father and mother were married in this historic old church and for this reason she chose it as the setting for her wedding. Decorations for this occasion were yellow chrysanthemums with white satin bows on the guests' pews.

Owing to the weather on Saturday, a number of guests from Toronto, Peterborough and other points were unable to attend.

For the honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls the bride added a red wool top coat to her wedding ensemble. They will live on the groom's farm near Bailieboro.

Before her marriage the bride was at the telephone office switchboard in Millbrook.

She has made her home with her grandparents Mr. and Mrs L. H. Winslow who entertained at a family dinner party in her honor prior to the marriage.

Mrs. L. Shorten Is WA Speaker

Fall executive meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery WA was held in Lakefield United Church on Friday, president Mrs. T. E. Rath of Lakefield presiding. Sessions were held morning and afternoon.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Lloyd Shorten, wife of the minister of St. James Church, Peterborough, and her subject was the United Church Training School and the different types of work that can be done by trainees, such as being minister's missionaries.

She said "People on every side are yearning for spiritual life; There are homes without security and encouragement for young people who are yearning for the training the church gives and the peace that is found through Christian living—but there are not enough trained workers who can meet emotional as well as spiritual problems". Her conclusion was: "We can be sensitive to the needs of the world and if we cannot be full time workers, can help and answer the challenge individually."

Mrs. Shorten was introduced by Mrs. Henry Turner and thanked by Mrs. C. Barnard.

A skit titled 'Second place citizenship" was put on by ladies of St. James', Mrs. G. Hewitt, Mrs. H. Monks, Mrs. W. Poast, Mrs. M. Drysdale, Mrs. A. Brumwell, Mrs. A. Saunders and Mrs. H. Brown. The well acted portrayal showed how easy it can be to discriminate against people of minority groups.

Mrs. H. Fee gave a talk on citizenship and Mrs. F. Horton on visiting and christian fellowship. Mrs. Carmen Bell outlined the duties of officers and presented an educational questionnaire.

Ladies from Westwood were in charge for the devotional period.

Welcome to the church was extended by the minister, the Rev. H. C. Wolfraim and Mrs. T. Darling, president of Lakefield WA, welcomed the visiting associations. Greetings from the Bay of Quinte Conference WA were brought by Mrs. Crow of Oshawa and from the WMS by Mrs. A. Metcalfe of Hastings. Dinner was served by ladies of Lakefield WA.

Miss Timlin is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Timlin, of Coldsprings, and will be married Wednesday to Mr. Ivan Johnson, of Harwood.

QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOOL

Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association observed "Fathers' Night" at the meeting Monday. Following the usual business Mr. W. J. Weaver, husband of the president, took over proceedings.

Guest speaker was Mr. Leo Copp, principal of the Peterborough Teachers' College, and his topic was "The United Nations". Mr. Copp spoke about the several bodies— General Assembly, Security Council, Trusteeship Council, International Court of Justice, Economic and Social Council and Secretariat—which make up U.N. He pointed out "the more debating they do at U.N. Headquarters, the less likely they are to fight. If U.N. has its way wars will cease." Mr. Copp said that U.N. could be helped by support of the local United Nations Association.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. A. Long and thanked by Mr. H. W. Race.

Entertainment was provided by the "Notewits", a Barbershop quartet, and their several selections were favourably received.

It was planned to hold a bake sale on November 28th in the vacant store formerly occupied by Morrow's Flower Shop and a Christmas party was announced for December 14th.

Coffee and doughnuts were served by the fathers.

Outstanding Musicians At ORMTA Convention

Outstanding musicians were heard in lecture and in recital on the program of the first zone convention in Peterborough of east central zone of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association, held at Trinity Hall Monday.

The program was designed to teach, benefit and inspire music teachers, and concluded with an hour of entertainment in a concert arranged by Peterborough branch.

Lecturers were Miss Cora B. Ahrens of Stratford, Mr. R. H. Bell of Lindsay, on "Use of Contemporary music in relation to teaching material." assisted by Mrs. A. J. Bell, pianist, and Mr. Boris Berlin of Toronto.

Following Mr. Berlin's lecture on contemporary music, there was a performance of Canadian compositions by Susan Holbrooke, pianist, Margaret Nixon, advanced pianist, Robert Rudan, violinist, Patricia Coulter, soprano and Erwin Pourie, tenor soloist at Deer Park United Church, all of Toronto. All were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Avery Byram who is accompanist for Dorothy Allan Park's advanced pupils and concerts.

Guest speakers were the Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell, minister of Trinity United Church, Peterborough, whose subject was 'Music as an aid to worship"; Dr. S. L. Osborne, principal of Whitby Ladies' College and professor of music, whose subject was 'The relation of theory to piano teaching"; and Mr. R. Edmonds of Toronto, who is music director for the Canadian National Exhibition and a member of the Canadian Bureau for Advancement of music."

The concert in the evening was arranged by Mr. Chirstopher Gledhill and featured the Coventry Singers, whom he conducts, the PCVS double trio conducted by Mr. M. J. Curtis, and two young pianists, Elizabeth Evans and George Jenkinson, who were the winners this year of the Gledden Memorial scholarships given by Peterborough Branch of the ORMTA.

Miss Ahrens urged teachers to adopt a constructive attitude as better than a veto. She handed out suggestions for branch meetings and said "We should have meetings to make better teachers of ourselves." She then discussed in detail various methods of teaching small children to play the piano, and stressed the importance of getting the cooperation of parents.

Mr. Maxwell began defining music as "an expression of sound in scale", and worship as 'conscious response of the soul to God." He said the place of music in the Christian church today is as an expression and serves to help the soul in its outreach to God. A prelude of music sets the mood, the atmosphere and the tempo of the worship service. He charged the music teachers that it is their duty to cultivate and improve the taste of the people in the art of music, which "lifts the soul."

Dr. Osborne declared there is "lamentable lack in teaching of theory". He said pupils are taught to perform on the piano, but they are unable to answer questions. "A pupil should be able to write everything he can play. Theory should go hand in hand with practice", he said. He then went into the technical aspects of his subject.

Mr. Edmonds spoke during the supper hour and dealt with the ethics of music teaching.

Civic greetings were extended to the out-of-towners by Mayor Hugh Waddell when he was guest for noon dinner.

Mr. Donald Kennedy, president of Peterborough Branch of the Association, was chairman.

A business session was held, during which it was decided to hold the next convention at Oshawa.

India's Ability To Solve Food Problem Only Sure Guard Against Communism

CALGARY (CP)—A woman who has spent 41 years in India as an educationist says India's most pressing problem still is food.

Mrs. A. A. Scott of Toronto, wife of the moderator of the United Church of Canada, believes the question of whether India ever turns Communist depends on the ability of the Indian government to solve the food problem.

Most of India's peoples are vegetarians, and there is great suffering when grain is scarce and vegetable prices climb beyond reach of the ordinary people.

WOMEN CONSERVATIVE

On the part played by women in the Republic of India, Mrs. Scott noted that more women than men turned up at the polls when India held its first independent election in 1947.

Women are the most conservative members of the country. In the college with which Mrs. Scott and her husband were associated there are 120 women students.

Mrs. Scott says the opinion of the Indian man is that an educated woman makes a better wife than an uneducated one. Marriages in India are still "arranged" but young men now want wives who have been to school, and they want to have a look at their prospective brides. No more taking them sight unseen.

The caste system has died out greatly in the last 41 years, Mrs. Scott reports. There is little distinction in the schools but there is still a certain amount of friction in the smaller villages and towns.

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Finds Pleasure In Drinking, Philandering

DEAR MISS DIX: Mine is a long story—the history of twelve years of unhappy marriage. I have loved my husband always, but have had little devotion in return. We have two boys of school age. My husband recently took a job in another part of the country and I'm really glad he's gone, athough I am lonely. He is a heavy drinker, ready to fall for any girl who gives him encouragement—and plenty of them do. I've tried leaving him, but he always begs me to stay, with hollow promises of reform.

I don't have any training so would find it difficult to support the boys. I have thought of taking a business course while my husband is away (he'll be gone a year), thus fitting myself for some sort of job. If things haven't changed by the time my husband returns, I should be in a position to take care of myself and the children. However, I wonder if it would be right to spend the money he sends, for that purpose. I know if I told him of my intentions, he wouldn't send me money.

Rose E.

MAY RETURN A BETTER MAN

ANSWER: By all means take the business course and forget the scruples. Considering the amount of money your husband must have spent in the past twelve years on liquor and women, you are certainly entitled to a little education. Furthermore, in the happy event that he does return changed, and you can pick up your life together, what you've learned will be aways helpful. No education is never lost; if it isn't used at one time, it may come in handy later. At least you'll be equipped to face any future emergency with some confidence, knowing that you have the training for a job. Taking the course will give you something new to tackle, will help while away the lonely hours, and will keep your mind occupied so there will be less time for brooding.

When hubby returns—a penitent and reformed character we hope—he should be pleased and proud that you put your spare time to such good use.

I see no indication, in your long letter, that you are responsible for your domestic unhappiness. Your husband has apparently always had a two-track mind—alcohol and flirtations—with his home life trailing in third. Just pray that his year away will effect a much-desired change. Absences often do.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I will be graduated from high school next June. The boy I go with wants me to quit school because he's jealous of me and doesn't trust me around the boys at class. I have given up all my friends and interests for him, but school is different.

A. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The most foolish thing you could do would be to give up school for such a flimsy reason—and the second most foolish thing would be to continue going with a boy so unreasonable. Can you picture the future you'll have with him? Devoid of friends, relatives, outside interests? Give this friendship a good airing before you do anything as drastic as leaving school to marry!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 20 and going into the Army soon. At present I am working and doing well. I'm going with an 18-year-old girl, whom I have known for four years. Her family likes me, but they think we shouldn't become engaged because she's never gone with any other boy. I thing they are right, and I have advised her to go with others to satisfy her family. Also, I think it's better to find out now, if she would be interested in anyone else, than to wait until we are married.

S. P. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If everyone took as understanding a view of things as you do, there would be far fewer problems. Your girl's family coud use a bit more faith in you two young people, but since they are apprehensive over her single dating all these years, it's best to prove your mutual devotion by giving their plan a trial. I feel sure it won't effect your future.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

You Can Make Sweet Yeast Doughs

There are some skillful cooks and managers in this audience that have taught me plenty.

Remember to notice the letter from Florence M. T. in next Friday's column. There's a girl who knows what she is doing and where she is going and why.

Our transplanted European friends can teach us a lesson too, in providing our families with delicious sweet breads from yeast doughs at a minimum cost. Sweet breads from yeast dough cost less than butter or sponge cakes and serve the same and more purposes. I think they taste better too.

There is a popular restaurant that features Orange Rolls made from yeast dough. The recipe I am giving you today is not theirs, but it is good—I nearly said equally good—but dear old modesty forbids.

Regardless of whether you have made yeast doughs before or not you can make these Orange Rolls. Your second batch probably will be lighter than your first if you are a yeast dough novice, but how are you going to learn if you don't try?

(That reminds me of Marianne when she was learning to iron Pete's shirts. I would always take the iron out of her hand and finish off the collars. Once, in her mild way, she rebelled: "Mum how am I going to learn to iron the collars if you always do it?" That floored me. From then on she finished the shirts herself and now can iron them better than anyone in the family. On his special dates Pete always wears the shirts that Marianne has ironed.)

You can become the yeast dough expert in your family and community by a little practice.

ORANGE ROLLS

(Exactly same dough and method are followed for cinnamon rolls—but a different filling is used.)

Soak 2 packages dry granular yeast in ½ cup lukewarm water with ½ teaspoon sugar for 5 minutes. Do not stir until you add it. In large mixing bowl put 1½ cups lukewarm milk, ½ cup sugar and 2 teaspoons salt. Add the soaked yeast, after stirring it, then stir the mixture to blend. Stir in 2 eggs and ½ cup soft shortening. With a wooden spoon mix in 7 cups sifted bread or all-purpose flour—you may need as much as 7½ cups sifted flour to make the dough handle easily. As soon as you have stirred this in knead the dough in the bowl with the hand, turning it over, punching it down, turning it a quarter turn and folding it over and punching down for about 2 minutes. Turn dough out onto lightly floured board and knead it the same way until it is satin smooth and squeaks—about 25 turns and punches. Clean out your bowl and grease it and return dough to it and cover well and set it to rise in warm place out of drafts—not near a radiator—about 70 to 80 degrees Fahr. is ideal. Let rise until double—about 1½ to 2 hours. Your finger tip will leave indentation in dough when it is doubled. Punch down dough in bowl, pulling edges into centre and turn it over in bowl. Let rise again until almost doubled. To make the Orange Rolls divide dough in half. Roll out to oblong 9 x 18 inches. Spread with ORANGE FILLING: Mix, cook 2 minutes, and cool until thickened: ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 1¼ cup orange juice and pulp, ¼ cup butter. Spread dough with about 4 tablespoons of this. Spread remainder of filling in pan about 13 x 9 inches. Roll dough up tightly, beginning at wide side. Seal well by pinching edges of roll together. Cut roll into 1-inch slices. Place a cut side down in pan lined with filling about ½-inch apart. Cover and let rise until doubled—about 35 to 40 minutes this time. Bake until golden at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 25 to 30 minutes. To test for doneness separate a roll slightly with fork to see if it is well baked. At once turn out on tray. Filling runs down over rolls.

If desired, make cinnamon rolls with last half by rolling out and spreading in mixture of ½ cup sugar and 2 teaspoons cinnamon, after spreading dough with 2 tablespoons soft butter. Finish same as Orange Rolls, but there will be no filling in pan.

WA Bazaar Succeeds Despite Snow

MILLBROOK (ENS) — The Women's Association of St. Andrew's United Church held a successful bazaar, sale of home baking and afternoon tea in the waiting-room on Saturday afternoon.

The women had been sewing for the annual event for some months past. When the day arrived, a blanket of fresh snow made driving treacherous, so that many from the country could not attend. There was considerable discussion as to whether or not it should be called off. It was decided to go ahead and in spite of the weather handicap well over $300 was realized with the returns not yet complete.

Mrs. John McKnight, Tupper, the president, and Mrs. H. R. Edmunds, vice president, welcomed the guests at the door. The Rev. Margaret Butler pourede

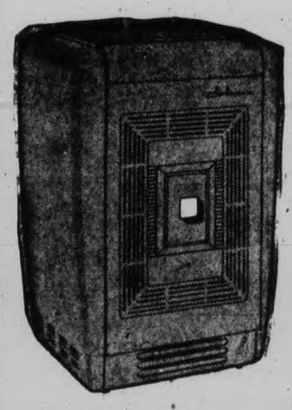
The large lace-covered tables and the small tables were centered with baby 'mums grown by Mrs. J. H. McKnight and Mrs. Walter Widdis. Mrs. John Barringer convened the tea assisted by Mrs. John Ridge and Mrs. Robert Guthrie.

In charge of the small tables were Mrs. Clarence Ball, Mrs. Alex. Gilbert, and Mrs. Herbert Bremner.

Mrs. J. H. McKnight, Mrs. McMillan and Mrs. J. H. Bingham were at the sewing table where aprons, pillow-cases, fancy work of all kinds, knitted goods and children's garments in great variety were displayed. At the baking table Miss Josie Sutton, Mrs. Arthur Fallis and Mrs. A. R. Payne were kept busy supplying the demands for pies, cakes, tarts, muffins, rolls and cookies.

The country store, where Mrs. Fred Winslow, Mrs. Clifford Allin and Mrs. Vertil Kennedy were in charge, did a rushing business in selling vegetables, apples, pickles, jams, canned goods, house plants and potted parsley.

Under the direction of Mrs. Chester Fisher and Mrs. Homer Ouellette the "Touch and Take" table supplied fun and mystery with its vari - shaped parcels, bought contents unseen.



Mrs. Allan Wood and Mrs. Aubrey Fallis did a brisk trade in delicious home-made sweets at the candy table.

His 32nd Charge Of Wife Beating, Assault Heard

A woman who has laid 32 charges of assault and wife-beating against her husband during their married life appeared in magistrate's court again Monday, sobbing as she heard his 15-year criminal record submitted to the court.

Harry Jones, 34, of 64 James St., appeared in court to answer to another charge of assaulting his wife, in addition to charges of assaulting an officer and having liquor in a place other than his residence.

Jones had been convicted five times on charges of assaulting his wife, once for breaking, entering and theft, and once for vagrancy. He has also earned fines and jail sentences on liquor counts.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw submitted the accused's record, wondering if an habitual criminal penalty could be invoked. This was after PC Ted Stephens testified how he had fought a knock-down, drag-out battle with Jones which resulted in the accused's arrest and subsequent charges, and a broken finger, ripped jacket and slightly battered face on the part of the officer.

Besides the latest two assault charges, Jones also faces a third offence liquor charge. Convictions were registered on interdicted counts in March and April while he pleaded guilty to having liquor Monday.

QUOTES WIFE

Intending to ask for a heavy penalty, Mr. Bradshaw quoted Jones' wife, who sat throughout the hearing, as saying Jones will kill her some day. They have three children, eight nine and 10 years old.

Magistrate Moore told the Crown, however, that Jones, at the age of 34, is "hardly entitled" to be put in the category of being an habitual criminal. Mr. Bradshaw agreed and said it was "only for fear of what might happen" the request would be made.

"I can only request the maximum," Mr. Bradshaw finally agreed. The accused was remanded until Friday for sentence.

University Women Hear Report Of Triennial

Dr. J. S. Pratten, consultant psychiatrist, Peterborough Civic Hospital, spoke on "Mental health in the community" Monday evening at the monthly meeting of the University Women's Club in the YWCA Green Room. He was introduced by Miss Verna Burgess and thanked by Mrs. J. Miner, members of the group who had arranged a panel discussion with Dr. Pratten following his talk.

Miss K. Macdougall presided for a business meeting. Mrs. A. Heideman read a report and financial statement on the recent Glen Gould concert and presented a cheque representing the club's share of proceeds to Miss Helen McGregor, chairman of the bursary committee.

Miss Alexandria Howson enthralled members with her account of the International Federation of University Women triennial, held in Bedford College, London, England, this past summer, at which she represented the Peterborough Club.

Theme of the conference was "Human values in the technical world" and Miss Howson gave the highlights, including five major social events at which the delegates were honored. There were 679 women attending from 28 countries, 40 of them being Canadians. Two of the Canadians were chairmen of committees: Dr. Violet Douglas, dean of women at Queen's University, head of the scholarship committee, and Miss Royce, Registrar at Queen's, of the standards committee.

Miss Howson said that since the organization began in 1920 there have been 96 fellowships granted in 27 different countries, with a total value of more than $200,000. A plea was made for help for university women in the European countries, some of whom are in great distress.

It was noted that interest is being shown in the far east and Korea has applied for membership. There has also been an application from Yugoslavia. Retiring president Dr. Frances Moran was voted expenses for a world tour, which she has just begun, to encourage formation of branches in the far east. She will return by way of Mexico, United States and Toronto, Canada, and is planning also to visit South America where there are member clubs in Argentina, Brazil and Uruquay though no delegates from the country attended the convention. Miss Howson remarked.

She advised also that the new president of the IFUW is Miss Leet, head of Reid Hall in Paris, an international university women's residence, and that the next triennial will be in Paris in 1956.

Program chairman Mrs. J. H. Shields distributed printed programs of the club's activities for '53-'54 and announced that the guest speaker for the annual open meeting on February 8th is to be Mrs. Michael Comay, wife of His Excellency, the Ambassador of Israel to Canada.

AMAZING PROGRESS

"In that five-week period there has been amazing progress," said Mrs. Chambers.

She said that when the school began one little boy was terrified and even at home could only communicate by grunts and other inarticulate noises. Now he has picked up a number of words and is even able to string them together.

The class now consists of eight children between five and 10 years of age. There are at least 10 more known cases in Peterborough but the children are unable to come to school because of their "terrible physical handicap."

Available statistics indicate that one per cent of a community comes within this definition of mental retardation. Presumably this percentage also exists in Peterborough, said Mrs. Chambers, but sometimes parents are reluctant to make their family problems known.

"If the children are getting individual love and attention it is a shame to send them to an institution," said Mrs. Chambers. In any case Orillia and Smiths Falls haven't the accommodation for all these mentally retarded children.

During their two and a half hours of instruction the children must have a change in program every five minutes or so. They are unable to focus their attention on anything for a longer period.

Many of the pupils in the special class have no muscular co-ordination when they start. They are even unable to grasp a pencil or any other utensil.

For most of the boys and girls in this unfortunate condition it is a case of being kept occupied, improving the muscular co-ordination between brain and fingers. The boys play with blocks (they learn the alphabet with blocks), toys and perhaps graduate to manipulating tools. The girls learn to do something useful in the home.

"Even if they don't learn anything else in class they have the social experience," said Mrs. Chambers. "They learn to meet other children and get along with them."

Any money received by the Peterborough council for retarded children is being set aside in a reserve fund, she told the labor delegates. The parents hope to rent a ground-level premises, preferably two rooms, and then furnish it.

Eventually they hope that the Ontario government will provide regular schools and experts to teach the mentally retarded.

Members of the labor council, who had last month given a token donation to the retarded children, thought that something could be done on the municipal level for them.

URGE HELP

Charles Batchelor of Local 570, IUE (CIO-CCL), and George Linsdell of Local 19, National Union of Public Service Employees (CCL), introduced a motion that the city council and the board of education be asked to include some money in their estimates for a ground-level classroom or classrooms suitable for the mentally retarded children. A copy of this resolution is being forwarded to the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC) for their support.

"The parents of these children are taxpayers," said Mr. Linsdell. "I don't see why they can't be helped by city authorities."

"We have an active election campaign come up," observed Ed Humphrey of Local 434, UPWA (CIO-CCL), "here's a matter that could be considered.

"I see a group in the city is concerning itself about the beautification of Jackson creek and Otonabee river," said Mr. Humphrey. "The city can forego a little beautification of a creek if it's to help these children."

Confirms Changes In Street Names

Changes in the names of nine city streets became official Monday night when city council gave third and final reading to the covering bylaw.

Five streets in the north ward now have new names. Here are the changes: Lee St. becomes Hillside St.; William St. becomes Poplar St.; Nicholls St. becomes Hemlock St.; Hall St. becomes Willow St. and Gordon St. becomes Birch Ave.

Two streets are affected in the east ward where Erskin Ave. becomes Trent St. and River Road N. becomes Armour Rd. Two other changes affect Second Ave. which becomes Maryland Ave. and Elm St. which becomes Hopkins Ave.

SIMILAR NAMES

The changes in the north ward were made because certain streets in the area recently annexed from Smith township bore names similar to other streets in the city. The Second Ave. and Elm St. changes were made after petitions were signed by a majority of residents on them. Elm St. was an extension of Hopkins Ave.

It was considered desirable to change the name of Erskine Ave. in the east ward to Trent St. because it was a short street of one block and there was a long street named Erskine Ave. in the south ward.

It was considered desirable to change the name of River Rd. N. in the east ward because it is an extension of Armour Rd. in the north-east part of the city and there is a street named Riverside drive in the extreme south part of the city.

Hydro Employees Join Union

LINDSAY (ENS) — Employees of the Lindsay Hydro operating department have signed in force to apply for membership in the National Union of Public Service Employees (CIO-CCL), according to a spokesman for the group. The meeting was held this week.

Plans are being laid by union officers to apply for certification as bargaining agents for the group and to arrange contract talks with Lindsay Hydro management. The union has already organized employees in other centres.

Area representative for the union is Frank Ketchen, of Lindsay.

Indians Abandon Hope Of Getting PoW Program Under Way

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Indian command today all but abandoned hope for getting the stalled prisoner-of-war explanation program under way again, and told the Communists that any solution is up to them. "It seems better to face the situation as it is rather than to go on with these intermediate stoppages," said Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the neutral nations repatriation commission. Thimayya met for four hours Monday night with the Communist high command at Kaesong. He told a press conference he would see the Red generals again in two or three days.

It appears likely that the Communist explanation program will collapse unless the Reds abandon slowdown tactics and agree to new rules laid down by Thimayya.

Observers said there seems little chance that they will agree.

WANT TO ESCAPE

There have been growing indications that the Communists want to escape from the explanation program which has cost them a humiliating propaganda defeat. So far, 97 per cent of the Chinese and North Koreans interviewed have refused to return to their Communist homelands.

The Indian general told the repatriation commission he can see no solution to the stalemate unless the Reds agree to two new rules: Call out and interview complete compounds of 500 prisoners each at a time, or agree to forget about odd lots of prisoners not interviewed in any single day.

Allied and Communist staff advisers meanwhile met in private for the third time. And for the second day Allied negotiators called a recess to study a Communist statement in connection with efforts to arrange an agenda for setting up a Korean peace conference.

There was no hint of what the Reds said.

American envoy Arthur Dean and the chief Red Chinese and North Korean diplomats, who failed to solve the agenda controversy in 11 meetings, are in recess while two staff advisers from each side tackle the problem.

Hard To Prove Major's Role

LONDON (CP)—A British Army major named Patrick MacKellar may have set up victory for Gen. James Wolfe on the Plains of Abraham—but it will be hard to prove.

That is the word from the Canadian government section at the British public record office.

After a preliminary check, they found references to a Maj. Patrick MacKellar in the engineers. But they said a full-scale search "might take six months and authority for such a search must come from Ottawa."

The preliminary inquiry was taken on the basis of a newspaper report from Toronto in which historian Lyman Jackes sketched MacKellar as a cloak-and-dagger hero who engineered victories at Quebec in 1759 and at Fort Louisburg, Cape Breton, the previous year by finding secret trails.

Jackes said that MacKellar's log books were ordered sealed by the contemporary British cabinet to protect descendants of the French-speaking Canadians who helped spy for MacKellar.

"That may be true," said a spokesman for the Canadian section in the public record office. "However, we have gone as far as we can without checking under miscellaneous listings."

300 Sailors Died In 1913 Storm

TORONTO (CP)—A storm 40 years ago this week wrecked two dozen ships along the Great Lakes and caused the death of more than 300 sailors. First reports of it were published Nov. 10, 1913.

The 50-mile-an-hour gale fanned a fire that leaped from building to building in Nipigon and almost destroyed the village.

The storm lasted four days. It was so furious that freighters had difficulty passing through the ship canals at Sault Ste. Marie and more than 100 vessels anchored near Whitefish point, west of the Sault, where some went aground and were broken up.

Ghouls were reported to have robbed the bodies of sailors washed ashore along the lakes. Wreckers combed the beaches to salvage cargo from shattered vessels.

Big Three Money

BONN, Germany (CP) — West Germany agreed Monday to let the Big Three powers carry over money they have saved on occupation costs. The United States, Britain and France have underspent by $420,000,000 the monthly $140,000,000 West German appropriation alloted to them.

Iron Record

LONDON (Reuters)—British production of steel and pig iron reached record levels during October, it was announced today. Steel output during the month averaged 355,000 tons a week, and pig iron production 221,000.

Grain Shipping Ends Ahead Of Schedule

MONTREAL (CP) — The shipping season has ended here for some of the inland grain carriers, a month ahead of schedule.

Shipping officials said today crews are being paid off and ships filled with storage grain in an effort to alleviate the shortage of elevator space during winter.

They said lack of overseas demand caused the glut in elevators from the Great Lakes as far down the St. Lawrence river as Trois-Rivieres, Que.

Oppose Lifting Controls

TORONTO (CP)—The Church of England's Toronto diocese Monday opposed the ending of provincial rent controls March 2. A unanimous vote of the diocesan council for social service asked the provincial government "to defer or rescind" such action. The council said it feels rents are already too high.

$58,000 Unpaid Fines

TORONTO (CP)—Motorists owe Toronto more than $58,000 in unpaid fines for parking and traffic violations, it was reported Monday at a meeting of a special committee surveying civic departments. Warrants outstanding total 5,150.

Driver Backed Into Police Car, Fined Total $42

A 21-year-old Toronto driver, William Green, found in court Monday he picked the wrong car to back into the early morning of November 1. It was a police cruiser and there were two officers riding in it.

Not only that, he said, but "five or six more came around. Everybody was asking me questions; I don't know what I said.

Seldom does an officer have a chance to give eye-witness evidence on an accident so OPP constables George Louth and Emmett Crough took advantage of their first-hand knowledge and gave evidence which helped convict Green on a charge of careless driving.

The accident happened at the intersection of Dublin and Park Sts. The OPP cruiser, driven by Constable Louth was northbound on Park St. behind the Green car. Green stopped some distance ahead of the cruiser and as the police car drew near, Green began to back up.

Because of oncoming traffic, the officer didn't have a chance to do anything but stop, blow his horn and hold his hat.

When the smoke cleared, the 1952 model cruiser had a demolished front end while the other car sustained about $15 damage.

This testimony was corroborated by PC Crough, while PC Eldon McDonald of the city force, who investigated the accident, described the scene.

In his defence, Green said he saw the lights of the prowl car but thought it would pass him without trouble.

Expressing no doubts about his decision, Magistrate R. I. Moore convicted the accused and fined him $25 and $5 costs. Additionally, he was fined $10 and $2.50 for driving without a licence.

Criticize Cities For Pollution

BRANTFORD (CP)—The cities of Waterloo and Galt were criticized Monday by the Grand River anti-pollution committee for their carelessness and laxity which caused pollution of the river.

The committee said its investigations have found that sewage from the town of Bridgeport has been hooked into the Waterloo main sewer line without the knowledge of Waterloo authorities. The investigations also found that Galt had been dumping raw sewage into the Grand river during a two-week period last month.

The Galt offence was said to have occurred in October when the city's treatment plant was out of operation. In its report the committee said that after passing a by-law prohibiting the dumping of sewage into the river, the city broke its own by-law.

The report said that "oversights and laxity of this type helped the Grand river to maintain its position as the No. 1 polluted river in Ontario."

Railways To Open Contract Talks With 150,000 Workers In Nov.

By BOB JOYCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Representatives of some 150,000 railway men this month will meet company officials to hammer out a wage-work pattern for the coming year.

Date of the contract talks has not yet been fixed, but most of the rail unions concerned have already filed notice of their demands.

The unions' negotiating committee is composed of delegates from 17 unions whose members—classed as non-operating employees—man shops, stations and offices across the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific's rail network.

Union representatives, headed by Frank Hall, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (AFL-TLC), announced they do not intend to seek wage increases at the coming contract talks.

TWO-DAY HUDDLE

Mr. Hall made the announcement in Montreal last September after the group's top policy body—the general conference committee—came out of a two-day huddle.

Last year the unions asked for a 45-cent-an-hour general increase, and other concessions including a one-cent-an-hour bonus for every point rise in the cost of living, and checkoff of union dues.

The railways refused, saying it would cost them $32,000,000 a year.

The workers finally settled for an increase of roughly 16 cents an hour. Dues checkoff was granted.

In 1950 it took a nine-day general rail strike and action by Parliament to settle the dispute.

PAID HOLIDAYS

Demands this year by the unions are:

1. Premium pay for Sunday work at time-and-a-half for the first eight hours; double-time thereafter.

2. Eight paid statutory holidays for all employees (at present hourly-rated employees do not qualify) and double-pay for a statutory holiday worked.

3. Eighteen days sick pay each year, with any part not used up transferable to the following year.

4. Increase in paid holidays from the present five-to-10 days to 10-20 days depending on length of service.

So far the companies have withheld comment.

Claims may also be put in by the big four unions in the running trades. Three of these unions—the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, the Brotherhood of Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Conductors—sat in when the non-operating unions were formulating their demands, but decided to take action independently. A fourth—the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers—is not associated with the group.

Theft Of Venison, Beef Admitted To Magistrate

Meat must be rare nowadays; not in quality but in quantity, or so it seemed from Monday's magistrate's court.

Harry Como, 41, 96 Wheeler Ave., Toronto, Charles Viner, 21, 180½ Simcoe St., and Robert Fontaine, 20, 146 Aylmer St., all appeared on some form of meat-steal charge. Como was convicted on a charge of stealing a deer, Fontaine pleaded guilty to theft of a quarter of beef, and Viner committed for trial on a charge of stealing the same quarter.

Fining Como $100 and costs for stealing the deer, valued under $25, Magistrate R. I. Moore pointed out "to take another man's deer is serious among hunters."

In giving Fontaine a two year suspended sentence for taking a quarter of beef from Canada Packers, October 23, however, he pointed out "a deer is valued much more highly than a quarter of beef . . . there's a different value." He added, though, he "couldn't commend" the youth for his action.

NO DEFINITE VALUE

An unusual legal situation arose as a result of the meat theft, however. Canada Packers could not set a definite value on the quarter of beef and did not know whether its value was in excess of $25 or not.

To give the accused youths the benefit of the doubt, Crown Attorney Bradshaw charged them with taking the quarter valued at less than $25. Then in stepped Viner's counsel, Ralph Standish, and requested the value be set over $25 so that, if committed, Viner could be tried by a higher court with a jury if he wanted.

The end result was the quarter was valued at less than $25 for Fontaine and more than $25 for Viner. Nine crown witnesses testified against Viner during the preliminary hearing and he was released on $1,000 bail to stand trial in a higher court.

Initial crown witness, Graham Eastwood, manager of the CPC beef department said the particular quarter of beef had been sold as a part of a whole side. When separated however, each half, the hind and front quarter, have different values, the hind being the most expensive.

GENERAL VALUE

Therefore, in spite of much coaxing on behalf of Mr. Standish, Eastwood could not set a value on the quarter except it was anywhere from 21 to 28 cents a pound. He was also uncertain about the weight but thought it to be 113 to 115 pounds.

Frederick Innes, superintendent of CPC, set the weight at present at 111 pounds but thought it originally weighed 115.

Canada Packers' night shipper Bruce McNaughton described how, on October 23, he set the quarter of beef on the loading platform at about 1.25 a.m. It wasn't left there for more than 10 minutes but when he went out again, it was missing.

In checking the area he found a meat hook on the road. Later, about 2.20, the quarter was recovered and when he weighed it, he found it to tip the scales at 115 pounds.

With that weight and using Eastwood's figures, the cost then could be anywhere from $24 to $32.

PC Ted Stephens saw two men, one Fontaine, crossing the CPR tracks from the direction of the freight sheds and board a taxi at the station at about 2.15 a.m.

FOUND MEAT

Later he found the quarter south of the tracks leaning against the northeast corner of the sheds, 50 or 60 feet from where the cab had been standing.

Kenneth Patterson, taxi driver, said he picked up two fares at the station, Bob Fontaine and another, taller chap whose name sounded like "bud". Fontaine was released at Aylmer St. and the second, at Simcoe. Asked if he recognized Viner in the courtroom, Patterson said "it looks a lot like him there" but " I could be mistaken; I've been mistaken before."

PC Eldon McDonald who had been with Constable Stephens identified the man with Fontaine as Viner.

Detective Sergeant John Stevenson told the court he supervised a lineup the next morning which contained both Fontaine and Viner. One witness, John McFarlane, said he had been working on the platform when the two youths strolled by before the 1.35 train arrived. After the train left he saw the two again in the well-lighted platform area, carrying a piece of meat to the other side of the track. They set the meat by the shed, recrossed the track, got into a cab and drove away.

This concluded the evidence and in the opinion of Magistrate Moore, it was sufficient to warrant a trial of Viner before the next court having competent criminal jurisdiction.

New Polio Vaccine Said Showing Progress In Tests

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—A new polio vaccine made with aid of sun-tan rays shows promise in its first human tests, Chicago scientists reported today.

This vaccine uses polio virus inactivated or "killed" by exposure to ultra-violet light—sun-tan rays—for two seconds.

It thus differs from the famous vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of Pittsburgh. The Salk vaccine, scheduled for mass human tests soon, inactivates the viruses with formaldehyde.

The sun-tan vaccine produced antibodies against all three types of polio virus in most of 30 human volunteers, Drs. Albert Milzer, Sidney O. Levinson and H. J. Shaughnessy of Michael Reese Research Foundation and Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago, told the American Public Health Anociation in a prepared paper at its annual meeting.

The 30 included a few persons who before vaccination had no detectable antibodies against one or more of the types of virus. Usually the vaccine brought a four-fold increase in antibodies any of the volunteers had from previous unknown exposure to polio.

The key to a safe vaccine is to render the polio virus powerless to cause sickness, but still keep some of its power to make a human produce antibodies against the virus.

They said they thought their vaccine "sun-tan" irradiation of the viruses offers a promising method of doing this.

Thty said they thought their vaccine still has only a minimal ability to stimulate antibodies, and efforts should be made to step it up either by better methods of growing virus or by concentration of virus.

Byrnes Quotes Truman Surprised At Spy Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—James F. Byrnes, once-time secretary of state in the Truman administration, quotes former President Truman as saying he read with surprise an FBI report linking Harry Dexter White, former United States government financial expert, to Communism.

Byrnes, now governor of South Carolina, said he suggested that Truman withdraw White's nomination to a higher government post—a nomination Attorney - General Herbert Brownell contends was made early in 1946 despite an FBI report that White was engaged in Soviet espionage.

Two other former members of Truman's official family said Monday night that they did not recall such a report. But Byrnes said he read it, went to the White House, told Truman he was "shocked," and asked what the president intended to do about it.

"The president stated he had read the report and that he also was surprised," Byrnes said.

SUPPORTED EISENHOWER

At the time Brownell first made the accusations, Truman said "I don't recall that such a thing happened." He has also said "it was never proven that White was a spy."

Byrnes and Truman have become bitter political foes in recent years, and the South Carolina governor supported President Eisenhower in the 1952 campaign.

Spruille Braden, an assistant secretary of state under Byrnes, and Admiral William D. Leahy, persona, chief of staff to Truman, said they do not recall seeing any FBI report on White.

The names, and others, were brought into the mushrooming political dispute late Monday by Brownell. Eisenhower's attorney-general issued a new statement declaring that the FBI director, J. Edgar Hoover, had given "full and adequate notice . . . of spying activities" by White to the White House, to four cabinet officials and four other top men.

MAINTAINED SILENCE

Truman, who has termed Brownell's accusations a desperate political manoeuvre, to draw attention from the Republicans' record in office, maintained silence on the new statement.

Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.), chairman of the Senate investigations sub-committee, said "it begins to look more and more as if Truman will have to be called as a witness."

"It is important beyond words to pin down whether Truman knew White as an espionage agent when he promoted him, and he ought to have a chance to say under oath whether he did get such a report and when he got it."

CONFIRMED ACTION

Byrnes said that when he called on Truman the Senate already had confirmed White's nomination as director of the International Monetary Fund. He then suggested that Truman should refuse to issue a commission to White. Byrnes quoted the former president as saying he had been told, on a previous occasion, that once the Senate acted he had no alternative but to confirm the action.

White was confirmed by the Senate for the monetary fund job Feb. 6, 1946. He died in 1948, a few days after swearing before the un-American activities committee that he had no connection with a Soviet spy ring.

Government Not Reviving Many Formalities At Opening Of Parliament

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—There will be few frills and flounces at the opening of Parliament Thursday. The government, re-elected last August, does not plan to revive many of the traditional formalities scrapped at the start of the Second World War.

An official in the prime minister's office says opening ceremonies will have a "minimum of pomp and pageantry." This rule likely will be followed during the life of the Parliament, expected to be four or five years.

However, Rideau Hall, home of Governor-General Massey, has announced one link with the past will be reintroduced: Mr. Massey will drive to the opening in an open four-horse carriage escorted by a troop of RCMP, instead of in a limousine.

The carriage was last used in Coronation ceremonies on Parliament Hill in June.

WAS GALA EVENT

Before the war, the opening was a gala social event. The speech from the throne was read by the governor-general in the Senate to an audience wearing evening clothes or Windsor or service uniforms. There was a reception later at which debutantes were presented, and a state dinner at Government House.

Nowadays the only social activity is informal receptions held by speakers of the Commons and Senate. The opening will be rightened, however, by perky hats and evening and afternoon dresses worn by women guests, and by the national costumes of wives of many diplomats.

Mr. Massey will be escorted from the main door of Parliament to the Senate by high-ranking officers of the navy, army and air force. He will wear the special uniform reserved for representatives of the Queen in Commonwealth countries.

The formalities in opening a new Parliament last most of a day. At 11 a.m. Leon J. Raymond, clerk of the Commons, will call members to order and read a letter from the governor-general's secretary announcing that His Excellency will go to the Senate at 3 p.m. to read the speech from the throne.

BLACK ROD'S KNOCK

Then Maj. C. R. Lamoureux, gentleman usher of the black rod, will knock on the main door of the Commons. After being given permission to enter, he will inform members that Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, the deputy governor-general, desires their "immediate attendance" in the Senate.

The commoners will troop to the Senate and stand at the "bar," just inside the main entrance, which no commoner may pass. The deputy governor-general will note that the Commons has no speaker and order members to elect one.

Back in the Commons, Mr. Raymond will rise and point to Prime Minister St. Laurent. The prime minister has said he will propose the election as speaker of Rene Beaudoin, Liberal member for Vaudreuil-Soulanges. Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, is expected to second the motion.

After election of the speaker the House will adjourn until 3 p.m. when the speaker will again read the letter from the governor-general's secretary. Black Rod will hammer on the door and repeat his request for members to go to the Senate. However, this time he will say the request is made by the governor-general.

LED BY SPEAKER

The speaker will lead the MP's to the Senate for a second time. Standing behind the bar they will listen while the speech from the throne, outlining proposed government measures is read in English and in French, and then return to the Commons.

Meanwhile the centre block of the Parliament buildings is being spruced up.

Members' offices are being cleaned and furniture polished. New plumbing is being installed in many sections of the building, and most of the driveway on Parliament Hill has been resurfaced.

Work is still proceeding on repairs to the fire-damaged parliamentary library and to the stonework on the outside of the centre block. A make-shift library for parliamentarians has been set up in the Commons reading room.

GET READY FOR OPENING—For weeks the staff of the House of Commons has been maknig the centre block of the Parliament Buildings ready for the new session which opens Thursday. A $2,200 floor-washing machine is used to clean the 2½ miles of corridors, a six week job.

DRIVE TO PARLIAMENT—One of the few links with pre-war traditions of pomp and formality at the opening of the new session of Parliament Thursday is the open four-horse carriage in which Governor-General Massey will ride for the opening ceremonies. A mounted RCMP escort accompanies the carriage.

Truckers Oppose Plans For Federal Road Control

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Automobile Transportation Association, national organization of truckers, Monday heard a demand for a definition of federal policy towards the highway transport industry.

The question was raised as the CATA, at its first annual convention, discussed the possibility of the federal government taking over control of international and interprovincial highway traffic. A case involving the constitutional issue of federal-provincial jurisdiction now is being heard by the Privy Council in London.

"Our position will not be secure if federal control is exercised," Alberta delegate John Taylor said. "Powerful forces are at work that will do all they can, not only to regulate and control, but to eliminate the motor transport industry from the highways."

"Our policy is that we are unalterably opposed to federal control," CATA president G. M. Parke of Toronto said.

However, Mr. Parke's annual report of the CATA directors, informed the delegates that a model "federal motor carrier act" has been drafted by the organization for submission in the event the central government decides to assume trans-border control should it get a favorable verdict from the Privy Council.

Terms of the CATA-proposed legislation were not made known.

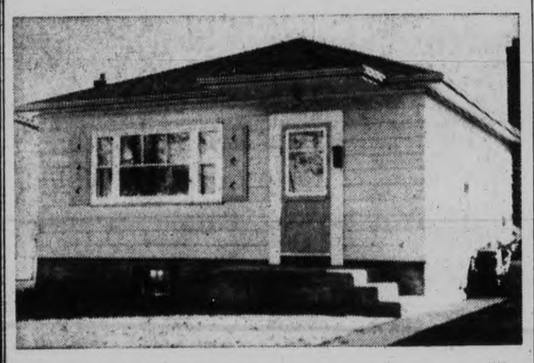
Carpenters Sign Contract

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Both parties involved in a dispute which led to the strike of 800 carpenters two weeks ago have agreed to sign a new iontrart today, it was announced Monday night following a series of meetings.

A spokesman said it was expected some of the workers would return to their jobs as soon as the contract is signed. Others would be back at work on some 100 construction jobs in the area Wednesday morning.

An estimated 4,000 other building trades workers also have been idle since they refused to cross picket lines set up Oct. 27 by members of Local 494, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (AFL).



The spokesman declined to give details of the contract.

The carpenters, who now get $2 an hour, sought an hourly wage increase of 18 cents which was recommended by a conciliation board. The employers offered 15 cents.

Ironic Note

DERBY, England (CP) — An official report here showed there were more accidental fatalities on Derby county roads during "national road safety week" than in the eight previous weeks.

Board Feels Big Change Poor Policy

Air Cargo Service Expansion Now Not Good Move

OTTAWA (CP)—The government today rejected the application of Canadian Pacific Airlines for a licence to operate an air cargo service between Montreal and Vancouver.

An announcement from the prime minister's office said the cabinet committee which has given lengthy study to the application "is not of the opinion at this time that it would be in the public interest" for the licence to be issued.

The application, heard first by the air transport board last February, was opposed by the government-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines, which holds a monopoly on east-west passenger and cargo service in Canada.

In rejecting CPA's application for the present at least, the cabinet followed the recommendation of the air transport board, not previously made public.

INVOLVES MAJOR CHANGE

The cabinet noted that the board had said that "the application by Canadian Pacific Airlines would involve a major change in policy." The cabinet said that in its own opinion, "such a major change would not be in the public interest at this time."

CPA's proposal had been for a cargo service only, to run between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver via The Pas, Man., and Edmonton, but excluding local traffic rights between Montreal and Toronto.

The cabinet, in addition to its study of the evidence presented to the air transport board, heard direct representations from CPA and TCA Oct. 30 and 31. The cabinet said it was "impressed" by this evidence:

"1. High utilization of air transportation equipment and facilities is necessary to keep unit costs and remunerative rates for transportation services at reasonable level."

2. Even in countries where all-cargo air services have been established, carriage of goods by planes engaged primarily in the carriage of persons and mail provides a higher utilization of equipment and facilities than would otherwise be possible.

"3. In the Canadian transcontinental air service the equipment and facilities of Trans-Canada Air Lines have thus far met the demand for air-cargo space."

4. In order to attract additional cargo traffic, rates were substantially reduced in July 1952. Early in 1953 TCA proposed further reductions "to about or below the level proposed in Canadian Pacific Airlines' application." TCA had ordered more aircraft which "are apt to be adequate to provide sat-

Will Hear Charges

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The UN General Assembly today agreed to air American charges that the Communists in Korea committed atrocities against UN prisoners. The vote in the 60-nation body was 53 to 5 with two abstentions. The overwhelming approval represented a resounding rejection of Russian claims that the United States brought the charges only to torpedo the Korean political conference.

Hockey Player Acquitted Of Manslaughter

BARRIE (CP)—A young hockey player was acquitted on Tuesday night of a manslaughter charge arising from the death of an opponent who skated into the boards during a hockey game in Collingwood last March 4. A jury which deliberated 4¼ hours also cleared the player, 19-year-old Walter Fines of Aurora, of charges of assault causing bodily harm and of common assault. Evidence was that Robert Gillies, 17, of Stayner, suffered a fatal skull fracture when he struck the boards during an Ontario Hockey Association junior "C" playoff game between Aurora Bears and Collingwood Greenshirts.

Fines, who played for Aurora, was accused of sending Gillies against the boards during a scramble near the Collingwood net late in the third period.

LESSON NEEDED

Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court said he hoped the trial had taught Fines a lesson. He said he did not disagree with the jury's verdict but he hoped Fines realized that one of his fellow hockey players is no longer in this world.

"It is not a light matter," he said. "I hope you will treat it seriously for the rest of your life."

Earlier, Fines, testifying in his own defence, said he did not intend to injure Gillies.

"We were playing hockey that was hard, but not dirty," Fines said.

John Druery of Aurora, official timekeeper at the game, testified that Gillies would have been injured even if no one had touched him, because he lost his balance as he raced for the puck.

TERRIFIC SPEED

"It was going to be a toss-up whether Gillies or Fines would get to the puck first." Druery said. "Fines, a fast player, was travelling at terrific speed. You could tell there was going to be an accident.

"Gillies more or less lost his balance because of the crouch he was in when stooping down to get the puck. He would have been hurt even if no one had touched him. It was a chain reaction collision."

George Gordon of Collingwood, a goal judge, testified earlier that he heard Fines tell Aurora goalkeeper Ken Burke that he planned to "start a brawl" during the game. Fines denied using the word "brawl" and said he did not intend to injure anyone.

Food Merchants Divided On Price War

TORONTO (CP) — Food merchants split into two camps today over a big price war forecast by a food market executive.

While housewives sat back and hoped, some chain store executives said they put little stock in the forecast made Tuesday night by Morton M. Collins, director of meat operations for Power Food Markets, Limited. Others said they agreed with him.

Collins told a meeting of food suppliers and Power Market executives that competition for the housewife's dollar is increasing and he expects "the biggest, roughest, noisiest and most desperate price war you have ever seen."

U.S. TREND DOWN

Ray Wolfe of the Independent Grocers' Association said there are many signs of a price war and, "If one observes United States markets he will find a considerable trend in that direction." He added:

"As the consumer dollar field becomes 'saturated' with more super-markets, competition is bound to increase because the consumer dollar is not keeping pace with the number of new outlets."

A chain store executive said: "No business in its right senses is going to launch into a city-wide or province-wide price war."

Princess Agrees To Transfer Regency Rights

LONDON (CP)—The House of Commons tonight unanimously approved the principle of a bill transferring Princess Margaret's regency rights to the Duke of Edinburgh.

Labor and Liberal members as well as the Conservatives supported the measure on second reading after a debate in which the Commons was told that Princess Margaret agrees to the transfer of regency rights.

Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe said he was authorized to state that "Princess Margaret shares the desire of the Queen that the statutory provisions should be amended so that if a regency should become necessary the Duke of Edinburgh should be regent."

Sir David added, however, that the proposed amendment to the 1937 Regency Act is confined to the duke as a "limited exception."

If the duke as acting monarch should die, then Princess Margaret would herself become regent, he declared.

Under the proposed amendment, submitted to Parliament a week ago, the duke and not Princess Margaret would become regent—acting monarch—in case the Queen should die before her son, Prince Charles, reaches the age of 18. Prince Charles will be five on Saturday.

Maxwell Fyfe was moving second reading—approval in principle—of the Regency Act amendment.

Labor party leader Clement Attlee quickly endorsed the amendment, saying the Duke of Edinburgh as the Queen's husband should be "the natural guardian of the children and the natural regent if such a misfortune should occur as the death of the Queen."

He added it is "quite clear there was no question of excluding Princess Margaret, who is very fully qualified to perform the services of regent."

850 Soldiers Arrive From Germany

QUEBEC (CP)—A total of 850 officers and enlisted men arrived today aboard the liner Samaria after two years service with the 27th Brigade in Germany.

Troops started filing down the gang-plank shortly after dawn. Small knots of relatives of the soldiers waited around the wharf for their husbands, sons and fathers to disembark.

Mrs. Harold Nowe of Fredericton waited for three hours for her son, Cpl. Bernard Nowe, who was scheduled to be among the last to disembark.

When the plight of the elderly lady was made known, army officers pushed the corporal to the head of the line and he raced down the gang-plank to greet his mother.

He grabbed her and lifted her up in his arms to plant a solid kiss on her cheek. She could only say, "My son, my son."

Pacing among the troops was their commanding officer, Lt.-Col. G. M. C. Sprung, 40, of Ottawa.

Col. Sprung said in an interview that the men are "obviously happy to be back."

Weather on the Atlantic was rough but the ship was good and few men were sea-sick.

Asked about relations of the Canadians with the Germans in Hannover where the Canadians were based, Col. Sprung said:

"When we did meet the Germans we got on well with them. Of course, we were out on manoeuvres much of the time—for weeks at a stretch. I should say relations were generally good.

"The group would organize a dance and pass word around to the nearby farms and business offices to invite single girls. This and such things as Christmas parties for the children all improved relations between our men and the Germans."

The men received word before leaving for Canada that they would be on leave until Jan. 4 next year.

2 Airmen Save City Hall On Fire

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Two young airmen from Montreal were credited Tuesday night with saving Belleville's city hall from destruction by fire.

AC. Jean Audet, 18, and LAC. J. Pronovost, 21, spotted the fire while walking along a downtown street after seeing a movie.

They tried the door, found it unlocked, ran in and found two fire hoses. They hooked up the hoselines and had the blaze under control by the time firemen arrived.

The airmen are stationed at nearby Trenton.

Damage to the 22-foot-wide wooden staircase of the 110-year-old Belleville landmark was estimated at about $3,000.

It is believed the blaze may have been caused by a live cigaret butt.

Priceless Nelson Relics Stolen From Museum

MONMOUTH, England (Reuters) Police sought today to recover unharmed priceless historical relics linked with Admiral Lord Nelson which were stolen from a museum here.

Their greatest fear is that the thieves will melt down the treasures for their gold content. Their intrinsic value is about $6,000, but historically no price can be set on them.

The biggest single loss was 84 golden guineas reputed to have been found on Nelson's body when he was wounded fatally at the Battle of Trafalgar. They were made into a canopy to cover a replica of his tomb.

The jeweled hilt of a sword presented to the admiral by the King of Naples also is missing. The jewels were removed some years ago and replaced with paste stones as a safety measure.

Train Derailed 33 Injured

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A crowded Pennsylvania Railroad commuter train was derailed on a bridge over the Schuylkill river today injuring 33 passengers. One of the derailed cars was cut nearly in two.

Twenty-two passengers aboard the Chestnut Hill-to-Philadelphia train were taken to hospitals. Four others were given first aid.

No fatalities were reported.

The wreck occurred just outside the 30th street station, on a bridge difficult for rescue workers to reach.

Railroad officials said they had not determined the cause of the derailment.

New Anti-Sub Planes Planned By Navy

TORONTO (CP) — Aircraft Magazine says the Royal Canadian Navy plans a $100,000,000 order for new anti-submarine aircraft.

The monthly magazine says in its November issue that the navy has chosen the twin-engined Grumman S2F as a replacement for its anti-submarine Avengers.

The federal government is considering contract, proposals from de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. in Toronto and Canadian Car and Foundry Co. Ltd. of Fort William, the story says.

20,000 Attend Ceremony At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—It was so still one could hear a tear fall.

In the dramatic hush around the National War Memorial, Canada in pride and sorrow today bowed her head for the more than 100,000 men killed in three wars.

Some 20,000 persons and legions of troops ringed the memorial as an invisible mist dropped from a grey sky, forming small drops on the leafless branches of the gaunt maples and elms in Confederation Square.

Canadian Legion buglers sounded the "Still" as Governor - General Vincent Massey joined Prime Minister St. Laurent, cabinet ministers, chiefs of the armed forces, legion executive and the diplomatic corps at the memorial.

MASSED BANDS PLAY

Just before 11, the massed bands of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, RCAF and RCMP played "O Canada."

At 11, a signal gun boomed out for the two-minute silence, the one pause in the year when Canada remembers.

Then legion buglers sounded the "Last Post," the lament for the dead.

Mr. Massey placed Canada's wreath.

The second wreath was placed by Mrs. J. J. Casey of Ottawa, representing the war-bereaved mothers of Canada. Two of her three sons were killed in action with RCAF Bomber Command during the Second World War.

Mr. St. Laurent placed the third wreath. He was obviously deeply moved.

The last official wreath was placed by Dr. C. B. Lumsden of Wolfville, N. S., legion president. He gripped the wreath in his right hand. His left sleeve is empty.

Remembrance Day

Living Bought For Price Of Lost Men, Veterans Told

"We are not our own; we are bought with a price." So the Rev. A. E. Larke summed up the purpose and meaning, the history and sentiment, of Remembrance Day. Nearly 4,000 people gathered in front of the cenotaph in Confederation Park before 11 a.m. today for the brief, simple service of remembrance and dedication.

Two thousand were veterans who had paraded in four sections to the service, some were mothers whose sons died in the war and became part of the "price" Mr. Larke spoke of. Some were schoolchildren whose appreciation of the service's meaning was not clear, and some—about 700—were onlookers.

Five bands took part—the CGE pipe band, the Salvation Army Band, the 50th HAA Band, the Citizens' Band, and the Sea Cadet Bugle Band.

FOCAL POINT

The focal point of the ceremony, as Mr. Larke said, was the two minutes of silence, preceded by The Last Post, and followed by Reveille, both played by Bugler Cecil Gallagher.

Other speakers at the service were Mayor Hugh Waddell, and Louis Durkin, president of Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion. In charge of the arrange-

British MP Throws Egg At Labor Opposition

LONDON (Reuters)—Conservative Sir Herbert Williams threw an egg at the Labor opposition in the House of Commons Tuesday night.

But his aim was short, and the egg splattered over the green carpet between the government and Opposition benches. Williams was as surprised as anyone—he thought it was a china egg.

Amid laughter a Labor member asked if it was in order for a member to throw eggs.

The speaker solemnly said: "It is quite out of order in this chamber, different from some political assemblies, to throw eggs."

But nothing was done about the gooey mess till a Labor member discreetly covered it with an agenda paper.

The egg first appeared during a debate on food, when Williams was speaking about imported Danish eggs. Labor member Norman Dodds interrupted him, took the egg out of his pocket and asked: "Have you seen the small eggs from Denmark?"

Dodds pretended to throw it at Williams but instead walked across the floor to hand it to Conservative Gerald Nabarro. Nabarro carefully placed it on the floor and rolled it partly out of sight.

Williams, thinking it was a phoney, retrieved it and threw it back towards Dodds.

Body In Car Wreck May Be J. J. Marsh

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP)—An inquiry was under way here today to determine whether a man killed in an automobile wreck near Clinton, Ky., Saturday was Thomas John Marsh, whose name was connected with the Greenlease idnapping case.

State police Lieut. James Mason said the body of the wreck victim, identified as Billy Starr, 45, of Mexico, Mo., bore marks of identification similar to those described by officers as belonging to Marsh.

Mason said an unidentified woman called the Hopkins and Brown funeral home Tuesday night and said that Starr and Marsh were the same. Mason added that Starr's fingerprints have been sent to the FBI in Washington.

President Gives Speech Topic

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower said today his speech to the Canadian Parliament Saturday will be a general discussion of problems common to Canada and the United States.

He made the comment at a press conference on the eve of his departure for a two-day state visit to Ottawa. Eisenhower will be accompanied to Canada by Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations.

Eisenhower also disclosed that no formal agenda has been drawn up for the forthcoming Big Three conference in Bermuda.

He said he, Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Laniel plan to hold a round-table discussion of problems of interest to the three countries. The conference begins Dec. 4.

Flying Saucer Laboratory Built

OTTAWA (CP) — The world's first laboratory to prove or disprove the existence of flying saucers is being built by the transport department at Shirley's Bay, 10 miles northwest of Ottawa.

W. B. Smith, engineer in charge of the broadcast and measurement section of the department, said the laboratory or sighting station should be in operation in a few days.

Mr. Smith said the laboratory "is being built in the hope of finding out something tangible about flying saucers." He said if flying saucers actually exist "the equipment in the laboratory should be able to detect them."

AUTOMATIC RECORDER

Mr. Smith said the laboratory is 12 feet square and is located about 200 feet from the transport department's ionospheric observatory at Shirley's Bay.

"The building and equipment cost practically nothing," he said, "because we had most of it on hand from a previous project. All of the recording equipment is automatic and merely required servicing by officials of the ionospheric observatory."

Mr. Smith said the equipment is designed to detect gamma rays, magnet fluctuations, radio noises and gravity or mass changes in the atmosphere. Later, he said, "We will attempt to detect high level ionization effects in the upper atmosphere."

Mr. Smith said scientists do not believe there is any real proof that flying saucers exist or are interplanetary. However, he said "There is a high degree of probability that they do exist and are interplanetary."

Open Hostility Flares

Reporters-Army Quarrel Over Censorship

TOKYO (AP)—Military officials and news correspondents were embroiled today in a dispute over censorship in Korea—even as the United States army denied that censorship has been "exercised over anything but information affecting military security."

Relations between the military and the press in Korea have reached a point of open hostility.

And there has been no improvement despite defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson's statement in Washington Tuesday that "misunderstandings that seem to have existed have been or shortly will be cleared up."

ARMY ISSUES DENIAL

Wilson spoke at a National Press Club meeting shortly before the army released in Washington—but not in Korea or Tokyo—a Far East command report denying that dual censorship exists in Korea or that censorship has been used for reasons other than military security.

The Far East command statement was an answer to a recent story by Associated Press correspondent John Randolph criticizing censorship in Korea and the U. S. 8th Army's relations with the press.

The Far East command statement contended that some of the things about which Randolph complained were brought on by the correspondents themselves.

WRITERS DISSATISFIED

In general, correspondents in Korea voiced dissatisfaction with the army statement.

They said there had been no apparent change in relations with the military and there still is a growing belief that the 8th Army has taken a position of opposition to the press.

Randolph also criticized military refusal to release information about a mistake bombing in which 14 Americans were killed.

"The facts were released but tardily," the army statement said. It also said a new policy has been established under which the 8th Army will release the facts on an 'as soon as possible' basis."

BOMBING KILLED 13

Far East command headquarters released a brief statement tonight saying a joint investigation of the bombing had concluded that aircraft of the U. S. 1st Marine air wing accidentally bombed the front-line position.

The statement said 13 men were killed and nine were wounded.

It was released shortly after the headquarters duty officer reported no knowledge of such a report, then telephoned a few minutes later to say a colonel had the report but he was out of the office.

The duty officer said she did not know how long the report had been available.

Doesn't Like Subpoena For Truman

Eisenhower Says He Wouldn't Call Former President

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower declared today he personally never would have subpoenaed former president Truman in the Harry Dexter White case. He declared, too, it is inconceivable to him that Truman knowingly would do anything to damage the United States.

At a press conference which dealt almost entirely with the politically explosive case, Eisenhower said he was voicing his own opinion in declaring he is opposed to subpoenaing Truman.

The House of Representatives un-American activities committee has subpoenaed the former president for Friday to tell what he knows about Attorney-General Herbert Brownell's charges that Truman promoted White in 1946 after FBI reports labelling White as a Russian spy had been delivered to the White House.

In reply to another question, Eisenhower said, again expressing his personal opinion, that he probably would not have subpoenaed Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark, who was Truman's attorney-general at the time of the White incident.

Clark's name came into the Brownell-White controversy when Brownell said copies of the FBI reports were turned over to a number of high officials in the Truman administration.

Among those Brownell said received copies were Clark and the then state secretary James Byrnes.

Byrnes, now governor of South Carolina and in recent years a political foe of Truman, has been called to testify before the committee along with Clark.

SERVED SUBPOENA

The un-American activities committee has served subpoenas for Friday morning on Truman and Clark and for Wednesday on Byrnes and Harry H. Vaughan, retired major-general who was Truman's military aide.

Vaughan says he doesn't recall ever seeing the FBI reports which Brownell says were delivered to him for Truman's attention.

Byrnes said in a statement Monday night that he saw one report, went to the White House about it, and suggested that Truman withdraw White's name from nomination to the Fund. He said he left with the impression that Truman planned to call White in and talk to him.

SERVED TILL 1947

But the appointment went through, and White served until 1947—when, Truman has said, it was learned White was "wrong."

There is some doubt that Truman, Byrnes or Clark can be forced to comply with any Congressional summonses to testify.

In any event, all the sessions planned for this week have been scheduled behind closed doors. Whether there will be open sessions is something only time could tell.

Truman, who has termed Brownell's charges a desperate political move, said in a New York speech Tuesday night that it is ridiculous to suggest that as president he was soft toward Communists. He said, however, that he always showed respect for the rights of individuals.

Some Progress Made In Gold Mine Talks

TIMMINS (CP)—A joint union-management statement said "some progress" was made Tuesday in talks to end a strike of 1,350 workers at the big Hollinger gold mine here.

The meeting, first between the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) and officials of a mine since a wave of strikes left more than 5,000 miners idle in the Porcupine gold fields, was adjourned to Saturday. No details of the talks were disclosed.

As negotiations opened, hundreds of Timmins district citizens attended special church services to pray for a settlement.

Says Line In Korea To Be Impregnable

OTTAWA (CP) — Maj.-Gen. M. M. R. West, retiring commander of the 1st Commonwealth Division in Korea, said Tuesday that within two or three months the United Nations line in Korea will be "absolutely impregnable."

At a press conference, he described the present military situation in Korea as a "military impasse." He said the Commonwealth Division which includes Canada's 25th Brigade now is busy at three tasks, in the following priority:

1. Construction of a defence line, which should be completed within two or three months. He said this was a "mammoth" undertaking.

2. Preparation for the Korean winter.

Acquit Captain Of Theft Of Shell Casings

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Capt. Martin Franklyn Smith, 34 year-old army officer of Ottawa, Tuesday was acquitted in assize court here on a charge of stealing about $30,000 worth of brass shell casings from nearby Shilo military camp. The brass, weighing more than 150,000 pounds, was allegedly sold as scrap.

A principal crown witness in the two-day trial was Staff Sgt. Douglas Robert Morley who said Capt. Smith told him to load more brass casings on a scrap dealer's truck than specified in the sales order. He said he at first refused a "cut in on the deal" offered by Smith but later accepted $50 from the officer. He said he did not report the incident because "he was my friend."

In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice G. A. Tritschler said Morley's evidence stamped him as an accomplice. The jury could convict on an accomplice's evidence but it was dangerous if the evidence was uncorroborated.

He said Morley's evidence was in the nature of a confession rather than an accusation against Smith.

Would Sell Eyes To Get House

TORONTO (CP)—Bruce Martin, father of six children who live in a small garage, said today he will sell his eyes for $10,000 to get a house.

Martin, a 36-year-old janitor, was ordered by Toronto township officials to move from the garage by Saturday. He said he decided to try to sell his eyes after one landlady told him to "drwn your six children" when he asked for accommodation.

"They're good eyes and I hope one might bring $10,000," he said. "If not, I'll sell both."

However, a lawyer here said he doubted whether Martin will find a buyer. "A point of law forbids a person to consent to an assault against himself, and an operation to take out his eyes, without undisputed reason of health, might come under the definition."

Magsaysay Holds Overwhelming Election Lead

MANILA (AP)—Youthful Ramon Magsaysay today took acommanding lead in the Philippines presidential election and appeared to have unseated ailing Elpidio Quirino.

Magsaysay has not claimed victory and Quirino has not conceded defeat, but a government spokesman said the President might have an announcement today.

The first official returns from Tuesday's election gave Magsaysay 68 per cent of the votes or 255,691 to Quirino's 118,936. Unofficial tabulations showed Magsaysay 982,077 and Quirino 341,007.

A record 4,760,000 votes were cast.

Magsaysay, 46-year-old former guerrilla and recent defence secretary under Quirino, said: "It's too early . . . to form any definite opinion."

But he added that he would wait "three weeks or more before I name a cabinet."

Each new vote tabulation dampened the re-election hopes of Quirino, 62-year-old Liberal party chieftain.

NO HOPE

As returns began coming in from outlying districts, Quirino cut Magsaysay's margin slightly. However, there appeared to be no hope of his taking the lead.

Complete returns are not expected for at least two or three days.

Political observers generally agreed that the election was one of the cleanest ever held in the Philippines—despite sporadic violence which claimed at least eight lives.

Magsaysay leaned heavily during the campaign on charges of corruption in Quirino's administration. Quirino accused Magsaysay of encouraging United States intervention in Philippines affairs.

Visitor Likes Simplicity Of City's Memorial Service

By JACK OLIVER

I saw Peterborough for the first time this morning, Remembrance Day, November 11, 1953.

I come from New Zealand and I've been doing a lot of travelling lately. Maybe that is why I had to stop and think for a minute just why a column of troops, led by three bands, would be on parade today. I glanced along the sidewalk and there was an old, old gentleman doing his best to hide behind an enormous beard and a vast show of military ribbons.

That was the clue I needed and so I just took a little time off to see how people of Canada observe Remembrance Day. Naturally I just could not resist making a few comparisons with New Zealand's methods of treating this important day.

SMARTER PARADE

I suppose there must have been about 2,000 troops in the parade and right off I had to begrudingly admit that they looked quite a bit smarter than their counterparts from "down-under".

However, the parade and I managed a brisk march to the War Memorial in Confederation Square. I delighted in the simplicity of the service. I don't know want it is, but North Americans have the happy knack of doing away with much of the pomp and artificial ceremony that goes along with these public occasions in England, Australia and New Zealand.

For a start there was only one speaker at the function and that put me on side right away. After all we can remember the things for which we owe graitude, without a long line of orators embarking on pious speeches. New Zealanders must like to talk, because on Remembrance Day, every mayor, alderman and city chief can be sure of the opportunity to tell the assembled residents a lot about nothing.

Consequently, when the two minutes' silence was observed at 11 a.m. there was not the accompanying shuffle of itchy feet, a sure sign that folks have had enough and want to be on their way.

For the rest, I guess the ceremony followed much the same line to which I'm used, except that the citizens of Peterborough managed to lay twice as many wreaths in just half the time it would take my fellow countrymen.

CITIZENS TURN OUT

On the credit side there is just one thing more I can say for Canada today. I couldn't possibly count the number of people who went with the parade to the War Memorial, but at a rough estimate I'd say there were about 1,500. Now for that number of local residents to turn up at a Remembrance Day ceremony, is indeed a feat, especially in the face of a not particularly nice day.

I'm ashamed to admit that our representations at such a gathering are mostly confined to the aforementioned city chiefs. Then of course we are well into summer in New Zealand on November 11, and I know that the combination of a holiday and a beach picnic are difficult to combat.

So I liked your parade and the service. You have reason to be proud, not that you impressed unimportant me, but that you carried out with simplicity and efficiency, the observance of a day whose meaning is lost to the greater proportion of the free world.

Ceylon Refuses To Have British Governors-General

COLOMBO (Reuters)—The Ceylon government, which last month banned Britain's flag and national anthem, Tuesday served blunt notice that a British governor-general is no longer wanted in this Commonwealth country. Prime minister Sir John Kotelawala sent a terse note to Governor-General Lord Soulbury on the subject. It was a reply to Soulbury's request for an explanation of the decision not to fly the Union Jack or play "God Save the Queen" at official functions.

"Although Ceylon is an independent country now, there are three points which the people of Ceylon are unable to understand," the premier wrote.

"First: Why in this free land should there be a foreign governor-general?

"Second and third: Why should there be an English flag and an English national anthem in free Ceylon?

"The second and third have been suitably dealt with, which may kindly be taken note of."

All Commonwealth countries have governors - general except India, which declared herself a republic three years ago and chose her own president as head-of-state. Pakistan will follow suit.

Judge Deplores Roughness Used In Hockey

BARRIE (CP)—Mr. Justice Dalton Wells of the Supreme Court of Ontario says he deplores roughness in modern hockey.

"Hockey is a legal game, but there is an obligation for all players to restrain themselves so as not to cause bodily harm to any player," he said Tuesday at the manslaughter trial of Walter Fines, a 19-year-old hockey player.

Fines was charged with the death of Robert Gillies of Stayner, a member of an opposing team in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior C game March 4. He was acquitted on the manslaughter charge and also of charges of assault occasioning bodily harm and grievous bodily harm.

"LIKE A ROMAN CIRCUS"

Mr. Justice Wells said:

"If those who are responsible for the administration of hockey generally in Ontario, in their view think the public likes roughness and players being hurt, and in some cases seriously injured, they should then permit that style of playing.

"If this be the case, I think they are wrong and hockey can be compared only to the Roman circus in the days of Nero when people were seriously injured for the amusement of the Roman populace. The difference is not one of kind but one of degree."

George Dudley, secretary - manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said in Midland "There is still too much rough play in hockey but we are doing everything to curb it."

"I feel the public impression of roughhouse hockey is greatly exaggerated."

ments for the service was Edward Davis.

"During that significant and vibrant pause, each of us will be alone — alone with his own thoughts . . . not of a list of names inscribed on an honor roll in formal alphabetical order, but (of) particular comrades . . .

"Some of us will be sending up a silent prayer . . . Remembrance Day is never an easy one for them even though their grief is softened by the pride in the nobility of the sacrifice which was made," said Mr. Larke.

The ceremony was "one act; one commitment." It had, to have any meaning, to be an act of remembrance accompanied by an act of devotion."

"To what are we to dedicate ourselves? Surely to the realization and fulfilment in our own time of those high values for which our comrades gave the last full measure of their devotion. That these ideals were not always clear in our minds or theirs; that these were often obscured by our own moral and spiritual blindness and disobedience to the inner voice of conscience, none will deny.

"Nor do most men find it easy to speak freely of those things they believe, or would like to believe, most deeply. But all who have lived close to death know that such high thoughts did arise in our best moments."

Man's desire to be good and to do good "may at times be overlaid by pessimism, camouflaged by cynicism, or transformed by bitterness; nevertheless the desire is there."

"Our act of remembrance and dedication will be one of significance today, and come to fruition . . . if we . . . commit our lives to a high conception of God, man and duty or calling; the acceptance of such leadership as best incarnates man's faith or religious belief; the commitment of our lives to such ideals and such leadership, manifesting thereby that same selfless devotion and sacrifice which marked the days of shared comradeship in the service of our country—then in war, but now in the quest for peace and righteousness, justice and true brotherhood; each man working out a life of such dimensions and stature in the daily job by which he earns his daily bread. A life so dedicated and lived out calls for the highest order of heroism," Mr. Larke concluded.

The government's reference to a rejection "at this time" left the way open to a change in policy later. The cabinet already has given indications that a major policy change may be contemplated.

Montreal Pays Tribute To Dead

MONTREAL —(CP) — Veterans of the two world wars and of hostilities in Korea today joined in tributes to Canada's war dead.

Under leaden skies, the veterans attended annual armistice ceremonies at the cenotaph in centrally-located Dominion square.

In the forefront were veterans of the First World War, some of whom stood on the battlefields of France 35 years ago while bugles sounded the "cease fire."

Prior to the non-denominational service at the cenotaph, Roman Catholics gathered in St. James Cathedral for religious services in honor of the war dead. Similar services were held in St. George's Church for non-Catholics.

Government offices and banks were closed for the day, but many business offices and stores operated as usual. In some cases employees were given time off to attend the Armistice Day services.

Girl Describes Stabbing Of Lalande

L'ORIGNAL, Ont. (CP)—Louise Capello, 19-year - old unmarried mother, today gave a hushed courtroom a detailed account of the death of Antonio Lalande, stabbed to death last May, she said, by Joseph George Lahaie, the father of her two-month-old son.

The Ottawa girl testified for the crown at the trial for murder of the 20-year-old Lahaie who sobbed in the prisoner's box after Miss Capello said he slugged the sleeping Lalande with a bottle then stabbed him with a kitchen knife.

She said she fled with Lahaie in Lalande's panel truck in the early hours of May 6. She said she carried with her from Lalande's house, where she and Lahaie had been living for several weeks, $58 which Lahaie told her he took from Lalande's pocket.

Speaking rapidly and clearly, the girl kept her eyes fixed on Lahaie who stared back at her in the crowded courtroom.

WAKENED BY SCREAMS

She said Lahaie and she went to bed together May 5. She was awakened by screams about 5:30 a. m. She found Lahaie leaning over Lalande in a bedroom across the hall. He held a butcher knife in his hand.

"Mr. Lalande was lying on his back on the bed and he was all covered with blood.

"When I saw what had happened I grabbed George by the waist and tried to pull him away. He pushed me off and told me to get out of the road. . . .

"George came into our room and his shirt was full of blood. He had some money in his hand and he told me to take it.

She obtained some of Lalande's shirts; his shoes and a pair of pants for Lahaie to wear, she said.

She said Lahaie told her during their 25-mile flight to Ottawa from Bourget, Ont., in Lalande's truck that he "was tired of seeing me that way. I had been pregnant for a couple of months and he said he wanted the money for the baby."

TELLS OF ATTACK

"He told me he had gone into Mr. Lalande's room and that he had hit Mr. Lalande over the head with a bottle."

She said Lahaie told her Lalande grabbed his assailant by the throat.

"That was when George stuck the knife into him . . . I asked George whether I could call a doctor for Mr. Lalande but George said to me, 'No, there is no use. He is dead. There is nothing we can do for him now.'"

Miss Capello said she and Lahaie spent 10 days wandering around, sleeping in a tourist home, under verandahs and under a bridge until Lahaie decided to surrender to police. The body was discovered May 16, the day Lahaie decided to surrender.

Yugoslavia Suggests Compromise

Won't Accept Italian Occupation of Zone A As Advance Condition

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslav leaders have called for a compromise solution to the bitter quarrel over Trieste, accusing Italy of attempting to use the issue to force a breach between Yugoslavia and the West.

The government's position was outlined Tuesday night by two of President Tito's top aides, Vice-Presidents Edvard Kardelj and Moshe Pijade, in speeches at Ljublana and Belgrade.

Kardelj, the administration's foreign policy-maker, took a more optimistic line than some other members of the government have done since the British-American Oct. 8 announcement of their decision to turn zone A of the Trieste free territory over to Italy.

SEEK COMPROMISE

"Let us look for a compromise solution with our perspective on future Italian-Yugoslav relations," Kardelj said. He was careful to emphasize, however, that Yugoslavia would never participate in any talks which had Italian occupation of zone A as an advance condition for the meeting. Pijade followed much the same line.

Britain and the United States still say they intend to carry out their pledge to turn zone A over to Italy, but have avoided setting any date for withdrawal of the 7,000-man Allied garrison. Yugoslavia, which controls the territory's zone B, has threatened to march on zone A the moment Italian troops enter.

In Rome, Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella was reported to have told Clare Boothe Luce, the U. S. ambassador, that continued Allied delay in turning over zone A to Italy is giving the Fascist right and Communist left in Italy strong weapons against his shaky centre government.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in London last week blamed "Italian extremists" for provoking the riots in which the British-trained Trieste police killed six persons and wounded 77.

Jet Crashes Near Ottawa

PORTAGE DU FORT, Que. (CP) Two crew members died in the crash of a CF-100 jet plane near this town 50 miles west of Ottawa Tuesday night.

The jet, on a training flight, apparently exploded in the air about 8 p. m.

Constable W. H. McNally of the Ontario Provincial Police said he saw what he first thought was "a flare" in the sky to the northwest as he patrolled highway 17 between Arnprior and Renfrew, Ont.

Cancel Interviews For Sixth Day

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Interviews with North Korean and Chinese war prisoners who have refused to go home were cancelled today for the sixth consecutive day as the tottering explanation program moved nearer collapse.

The Indian custodial command almost automatically called off interviews scheduled for Thursday after the Communists insisted again on seeing 365 Chinese prisoners missed last Thursday by stalling Red persuaders.

The neutral nations repatriation commission turned to secondary matters, one an Indian report that some United Nations sources—presumably South Korean—had tried to smuggle a pocket-sized radio transmitter into an anti-Communist North Korean compound.

The set, hidden in a food bag, was discovered two days ago. It was impounded and shown to the commission.

Accused Agrees With Magistrate Should Be Fined

Walter Zachariah, 23, RR 2, Peterborough, did such a good job of convicting himself Monday that the province ought to hire him full-time as a crown attorney.

His witness, Albert O'Coine had just finished telling the court he had never ridden with Zachariah when the accused's licence was under suspension when the defendant chided: "Oh yes you did."

He then explained to the court that O'Coine was "lying just a little bit."

Walter was facing a charge of driving a car while his licence was suspended. PC William G. Scott said he saw the accused sitting in his car and when he returned a few seconds later, found the car down the block with the accused getting out.

A department of highways certificate was filed to show the accused's licence was suspended.

WHY NOT BEFORE?

The cross-examination was a little unorthodox. Walter asked PC Scott: "Why didn't you catch me before? You've seen me drive hundreds of times." This just about cinched the crown's case but O'Coine's evidence didn't hurt it either.

Magistrate Moore realized that Zachariah was probably a little too honest for his own good, but asked: "How am I going to get away from convicting you?"

"You can't, sir," the accused admitted.

For one so honest the penalty was perhaps a trifle unjust, but it couldn't be avoided. Walter was fined $25 and costs and his car was forfeited to the crown.

Open New School Honoring Ex-Principal

COBOURG (ENS) — Cobourg's new $280,000 east end school, named the Charles Gummow school in honor of a former principal, was a source of wonder to many who had been educated years ago in the old public school, when they inspected it at the official opening on Monday night.

It was built to relieve the congestion of pupils at the central public school and to accomodate classes which had been "farmed out" among other buildings in the town.

Mr. Charles Gummow, for whom the scool was named; taught for 35 years at the central school, then the only public school in town. He was appointed principal after ten years on the teaching staff. He retired in 1946.

The new school is a modern one-storey building, laid out so that additions can be added when necessary without upsetting the general plan. The halls are quiet and well-lighted. The accoustical tile on the ceiling and the daylight lighting of hals provide a change from the dingy and noisy halls of the schools built years ago. The floors are durable and easy to keep clean.

GREEN BOARDS

For sight relaxation, the "blackboard" are green. Each room has its project corner with sink and working space where the teacher is able to carry out projects in science, social studies and art.

The cloak rooms are well-ventilated by forced-air ventilation. An exhaust fan draws the air into the classroom via a no-draught window. After circulating through the rooms, the air exits through vents in the roof.

The classrooms have ample natural lighting provided by windows all along the left side of each room. Light is admitted and diffused by glass brick in the whole upper portion of the outside walls. On dull days, artificial light provides adequate illumination.

The desks are of the latest design, permitting necessary adjustments to suit the size of the pupil.

Accident Victim Earl Lowery Better

Condition of Earl Lowery, RR 2, Lakefield, injured in a mishap Saturday near Hall's Glen, is reported satisfactory by Civic Hospital officials.

A car in which Lowery had been riding became mired, and several other autos stopped to give aid. Lowery, standing by the mired car, was struck by a U.S. car that had swerved to miss the other autos parked by the roadside.

It was thought at first Lowery's pelvis was fractured, but this was not so. The accident occurred three miles west of Hall's Glen.

Training School Pleases Select Committee

COBOURG — The Legislature's select committee on reform institution announced they were favorably impressed after a tour Tuesday of the Ontario Training School for Boys here.

Accompanied by Welfare Minister George Goodfellow, the committee made a thorough inspection of the three former residences now occupied by the school. Only criticism was that the buildings are too old. They suggested that special buildings should have been constructed.

Another suggestion came from committee member W. J. Stewart (PC-Parkdale) who said the students are almost too well looked after. The enviroment might be spoiling them for the life they will find when they go home.

"If you keep a person in a good hotel for a year, and then sudenly move him to a small room in a poor neighborhood, he's not going to very well satisfied with life," Mr. Stewart said.

Discipline among the students, who range in age from 7 to 14, was excellent, committee members felt.

Daily cost for each student is $3.44, they were told.

Moscow Denies Malenkov Wants Meeting

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio today denied a report that Premier Georgi Malenkov had indicated a willingness to attend a high-level Big-Four conference.

The radio broadcast this dispatch of Tass, the official Soviet news agency:

"The French press agency, referring to a British source, has circulated a report alleging that a proposal has been made to G. M. Malenkov, chairman of the council of ministers of the U. S. S. R., to take part in a conference of the heads of the governments of the four powers—the U. S. S. R., the United States, Britain and France—and that G. M. Malenkov has informed the British government through (Foreign Minister) V. M. Molotov, that he is prepared to agree to the convocation of such a conference.

"Tass is authorized to state that the above-mentioned report in no way conforms to reality and is evidently designed to detract attention from the aims pursued by the suggested separate conference of the heads of the governments of the United States, Britain and France on Bermuda island."

The French news agency is a semi-official news organization. Its report had been denied by the British foreign office. Both the French foreign office and the U. S. state department said they had no knowledge of such a report.

First Canadian Wins Coveted Medal

LONDON (CP) — Betty-Jean Hagen, 23-year-old Toronto violinist, Tuesday night captured one of the music world's most coveted awards, the Carl Flesch Medal.

Miss Hagen, born in Edmonton, was running a temperature from an attack of influenza and still suffering from airsickness following a transatlantic dash by plane when she topped a field of 10 competitors from South Africa, France, Britain, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Italy and the United States.

The five judges were impressed by her playing of the Sibelius Violin Concerto and the Bach Sonata in B Minor. They acclaimed her standard of playing as "very high."

Miss Hagen is first Canadian to win the Flesch Medal.

CGE Veterans Muster At Plant

The east lawn of the Canadian General Electric Co. served an annual Remembrance Day purpose this morning as the parade ground of the ex-service men of the works in their muster for the public celebration of the Armistice of November 11, 1918.

Custom has by this time se the arrangements for the different sections of the veterans. Slim posts designate group positions in this order: CGE Pipe Band color party, wreath party; Nava section, 1st Army section, Salvation Army Band, 2nd Army Section, Air Force.

A loud speaker was hooked up for convenience in lining up the groups. The employees whose service qualified them for the parade quit work at nine o'clock.

Half an hour later the parade swung around past the office on Park St., into Rubidge St. and headed up town. Girls of the office staff clustered on the steps as the men marched across the wide junction of the two streets. Major C. E. Whatley was in charge of the parade.

Ten minutes after the veterans left the lawn, the parade markers were down, the loudspeaker gone, and the men were off to join in the memorial procession and the public ceremony opposite the City Hall.

Her late husband was a civil engineer whom she met while he was working for the Canadian National railways in northern Ontario.

Surviving are a daughter, Mary Barbra Willet of Toronto, and two sisters, Mary Higgins and Mrs. W. F. Connal (Lydia).

Canon Walter Gilling officiated at the services here.

11 Towns Seek Changes In Constitution

VAL D'OR, Que. (CP) — Eleven northwestern Quebec towns said today before a royal commission Canada's rapid growth calls for "substantial" changes to the country's constitution.

In a joint brief prepared for delivery before the Quebec royal commission on constitutional problems, the municipalities, grouping a population of 50,000, said the constitution should be changed to give governments at all levels the means to fulfil their obligations.

The towns are Amos, Bourlamaque, Cadillac, La Sarre, Malartic, Rouyn and Val d'Or.

In 1930, the brief said, municipalities in Canada collected 39.3 per cent of all taxes. Today, they collected 11.9 per cent of national tax revenues.

The municipalities suggested a four-cent proportion of the 13-cent provincial gasoline tax might be turned over to municipalities.

Federal and provincial governments were urged to pay real estate taxes to municipal administrations.

The brief noted that municipalities paid the federal 10-per-cent and the provincial two-per-cent sales taxes on all purchases. The towns suggested there should be a meeting of federal, provincial and municipal authorities to discuss the situation.

France Observes Armistice Day

PARIS (Reuters)—France today saluted the dead of two world wars with solemn armistice day ceremonies.

At the Arc de Triomphe, in provincial towns, and in overseas outposts the rites also commemorated the men who have fallen in the Indo-China jungle war.

The observances started in Paris Tuesday night. Amputees and "poilus" in their grey-blue 1914 uniforms stood guard throughout the night at the tomb of Marshal Foch, hero of the First World War.

Early this morning the flags of 90 historic regiments were massed in front of the Invalides War Museum, where the great golden dome over Napoleon's tomb showed dully under a leaden sky.

The parade moved slowly to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier under the Arc de Triomphe for ceremonies.

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—Some 4,000 servicemen from four countries paraded in this port city today in observance of the 35th anniversary of the signing of the armistice ending the First World War.

More than 50,000 Koreans and United Nations personnel crowded downtown streets with soldiers airmen and marines from the United States, Britain, Turkey and Korea, in a two-mile procession.

Fear Crew Of 14 Killed In Crash

TOKYO (AP)—A U. S. navy PBM Mariner patrol plane crashed into the sea off the south tip of Korea Tuesday and 14 crew members are believed to have been killed, the navy reported today.

Four destroyers searched the crash area all night without sighting survivors. One spotted debris.

The Mariner was based at Ikakuni, Japan.

Vancouver Attracting West German Industry

VANCOUVER (CP)—This city is attracting investors and industry from West Germany, despite the fact that Canadian and German funds are not convertible.

James S. Eckman, chairman of the greater Vancouver metropolitan industrial commission, says his group is receiving many inquiries from German companies which wish to either locate here or invest in Canadian industry.

At present, Mr. Eckman said, negotiations are going on with half a dozen such interests.

One of these involves a $750,000 contract for German tools to equip a Vancouver factory for manufacturing welded pipe by a European process.

Richard M. Reiner, head of Canadian Western Pipe Mills, Ltd., is in Germany arranging the order with the aid of financing by eastern Canadian interests.

Mr. Eckman said the situation is reflected in other parts of Canada. Germans, he said, have already established machinery, cement, shoe tanning and optical industries in Newfoundland; foundry, textile, watch and toy companies in Quebec and a camera plant in Ontario—all within the last three years.

Conservatives Defend Seats

CROSBY, England (Reuters)—Sir Windston Churchill's Conservatives defend parliamentary seats in two by-elections Thursday—one here and the other in the neighboring Lancashire constituency of Ormskirk.

The government party is confident it will hold both seats without any serious drop in the big majorities it secured in the 1951 general election.

The Crosby contest was caused by the resignation through ill health of Capt. Malcolm Bullock, who was returned for the Conservatives in 1951 with a majority of 14,783.

At Ormskirk, the contest is due to Sir Arthur Salter's elevation to the peerage. Salter's 1951 majority was 13,821.

The present contest at Crosby is a three-way affair. R. Graham Page represents the Conservatives and E. J. Adams Labor. J. A. Freeman is standing as an Independent Conservative.

In Ormskirk, the candidates are Conservative Col. D. Glover and Mrs. M. Ferguson, Labor.

First Woman Delivers Falconer Lecture

TORONTO (CP)—Lady Violet Bonham-Carter, British politician, Tuesday night delivered the Robert A. Falconer lecture at the University of Toronto, the first woman ever to do so.

"We are all in a little danger of the tendency to over-emphasize the means and not the end, the tools and not the hands which wield them," she said. "The vastness of knowledge and the techniques of modern industry have led to the creation of machines which will overwhelm individuals."

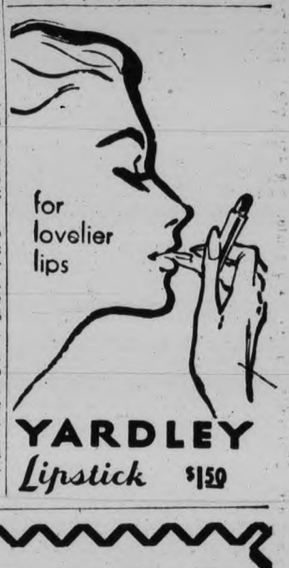
Crafty Admiral Race Favorite



LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Thoroughbred prestige of Great Britain and three continents is at stake today in the 1½ miles Washington International at Laurel Park. The field of 10 in the $65,000 event includes horses from Europe, the United States and South America vying against Britain's defending champion.

Last year's winner of the International, Wilwyn, owned by Robert C. Boucher, is back to defend his crown. The favorite, however, is expected to be the American horse, Crafty Admiral, from Charles and Frances Cohen's Charfran Stable.

Crafty Admiral, winner of the Empire Cold Cup, will be ridden by Bill Boland and is listed at 3 to 1.

There is also support for two French horses, Paul Dubosco's Silnet and Worden, owned by Ralph Strassburger, Norristown, Pa., publisher now living in France Silnet and Wilwyn are listed at 4 to 1 each, with Worden 10 to 1.

Track conditions at post time, 4 p.m. EST, will have a lot to say about the result. The snow, which caused postponement of the race Saturday, was cleared from the course at mid-day Tuesday, and then the sun came out and helped take up some of the moisture.

Another Republic For The Commonwealth

The Dominion of Pakistan is to become a republic. This was decided last week in Pakistan. The name of the new republic is to be "The Islamic Republic", and we presume that the office of Governor-General will be changed to that of President, with the Prime Minister remaining so—in English translation—the P.M. and the principal political officer of the state.

* * *

Pakistan won a friendly place in the minds of other Dominions people if only for the reason that it became a Dominion and did not turn to republicanism as India and Burma had done. Pakistan also had an able and genial ambassador of good-will, to the United States as well as to Canada—Mohammad Ali. He was High Commissioner to Canada from shortly after the State of Pakistan was created until February, 1952, when he was transferred as ambassador to Washington. It is this same Mohammed Ali (a name as common in Pakistan as John Smith in English-speaking countries) who now as Prime Minister has announced that his country is to be a republic.

* * *

Actually, the process from colonial status (as part of India within the British Empire) to a republic is natural and not unexpected. The reason Pakistan has been slower than India is that it is less developed politically; it has arrived at popular elections and constitution-framing haltingly. When Mohammad Ali was in London for the Coronation he gave his own reasons for supporting the change from Dominion status to republican sovereignty: "India became a Republic. Pakistan recognized the Crown and my people watched to see what difference it would make. My people know that your Queen is our Queen but still they ask what difference does it make? After six and a half years of Whitehall indifference Pakistan is disappointed with Britain."

* * *

One must take this criticism lightly. His charge of "indifference" merely may mean Pakistan expected special favours and support from London against India in the dispute over Kashmir, and did not get it overwhelmingly and completely. India, too, has national rights which Britain must recognize and an importance which she cannot ignore. Mohammad Ali must be aware, in making the announcement last week, that the future of Pakistan depends greatly on the result of the deliberations on the national constitution which are taking place in the ensuing months. His support of republicanism against dominion status is a gambit likely to have popular appeal in quarters where the quasi-theocratic fabric of the new state is suspect. It may be put up as a counter to this, a palliative to the millions of Hindus left in Pakistan after the partition of India. They are to have republicanism as India has, although a remarkably curious kind—based to some extent on Islamic procedure and edicts.

* * *

What importance now to the Commonwealth is the technical status of its member nations? The Republic of India seems to be within the Commonwealth, the Republic of Ireland outside it, the Dominion of South Africa as far outside as the bonds will stretch. And yet one cannot help look with regret upon the history of India's development in the last eighty years which is changing "the brightest jewel in the Crown" to a star-spangled republican banner. Incidentally, Mohammad Ali maintains that Pakistan, as the Islamic Republic, will remain in the Commonwealth.

Persian Bonanza Dried Up

The rantings and tears, threats and dictatorial actions of the former premier of Iran, Mohammed Mossadegh, are of little avail when he and the Persians are faced with the wreck Mossadegh has caused. The country is on the rocks, stone broke, because Mossadegh stopped the flow of oil. Whether he commits suicide, is sentenced to be executed or is incarcerated for the rest of his life; or whether he becomes a free man again—none of it matters, for this one man is insignificant compared with the economic ruin he has brought on his people.

Mr. Herbert Hoover, President Eisenhower's special oil adviser, has finished his exposition of the world oil situation to the Persian Government. The Persians have been told that the world can do without their oil and that their country can enter the market again only if neighbouring countries curtail their production. Further, they have also been told that the Abadan refinery is now obsolete and will never again reach its old capacity because of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's present policy of distributing smaller refineries in different countries. We hope that these facts will be brought home to the Iranian people, so that whatever Mossadegh says or does will not bring the author of their present plight into favour again.

This is not to say that Persian oil is no longer valuable or that there are no purchasers for it, should the refineries again go into production under equitable arrangements between the country and the company. But Persia's oil industry has utterly collapsed. The only amends Dr. Mossadegh can now make are to acknowledge his mistake and urge a renewal of friendly relations with the British and ask their co-operation with the Iranian government which has replaced the Mossadegh rule. Thus can further hardship to the people and damage to the country be avoided.

Largest In The World

Everybody knows, or should know, that Peterborough has a hydraulic Lift Lock. Everybody knows, or should, that it is the largest in the world, and one of its wonders. For decades Peterborough has lived high in pride on the Lift Lock, and indeed, has acquired notoriety if not stature from possessing something that is the biggest in all the earth.

We have long suspected that Peterborough, even the Trent system, might have something else pretty remarkable about it, too, and we were gratified to be told the other evening by an authority in the Trent Valley Canal office, that the Kawartha system, from back of beyond, down through the lakes, through the Otonabee, Rice Lake and into the Trent, that this Kawartha system is the largest natural controlled reservoir in the world. Put that in your pipe and smoke it!

In the gentleman's expert opinion, moreover, the Lift Lock is the merest trifle of a wonder compared with the greatness, use and importance of the water reservoir which the Kawartha-Trent system is. It is not only locks and dams on the navigable way, but dams far beyond, in the lakes in the north of the County, in Haliburton, and in Hastings and Victoria for power as well as to keep the canals fed evenly. The marvel they accomplish is to ensure this entire great stretch of country, and particularly the towns and cities on it (notably Peterborough) a continuous, constant, level supply of water. In the old days streams and rivers ran madly in the spring, dried to a trickle in the summer. Lakes flooded with the thaw, withdrew from their banks and grew shallow and stagnant in warm weather. (The evidence of this is everywhere in the Kawarthas—for instance, stumps of old trees in the water far beyond the present shore-line.) Now we have lots of water but are not swamped by it, all year around.

When a visiting professor who remembered the Otonabee in its old days of flashing waters (before the Trent canal was built) threatened last week his desire to blow up the Lift Lock, the whole town shuddered. What, do without our pride and monument? Our one claim to world fame? Now we can look on the professorial itch with more poise; we have another wonder of the world, another world's greatest, and it is even more important than the Lift Lock . . . All the same, the blowing up of the Lift Lock would be attended locally by some inconvenience. We had better keep the two; after all, they are interdependent.

Dulce et Decorum

Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori. So it is sweet and proper to die for one's own country, but as the years pass and wars mount and fade, the sweetness loses its savour, though the propriety of it remain. The South African war, the Great War, the Second World War, all have taken their toll of Canadian manhood and it is this sacrifice we hold in remembrance today. Yet where are the bogeys which roused hearts in those days—where the despicable Kruger, the heinous Kaiser, the sinister Japanese Emperor, the monster Hitler? Gone; or the passions they roused are forgotten.

Ten years ago the Allies were in the midst of their Second Front crusade, the whole Grand Alliance (with Russia) were stretching sinews and spilling blood to defeat the Germans and the Japs. Today Japan is one of the most trusted—because Americanized—outpost ally of the West against Communism, and Germany the most wooed and admired. It is happy for the peace of the men we remember today that few fought bogeys; their passions were not inflamed against Kruger, the Kaiser or Hitler. They were not dupes of shibboleths but men in a world of men, doing their duty as custom, blood, comradeship and sworn allegiance required of them. Because the enemy has become the post-war friend does not diminish their courage, their deeds and their life's blood spent. They are at peace, and in going to that eternal peace they bequeathed the possible friendships and peace which are ours to make or mar today. Mankind is lifted up because they dared to do, not because of their reasons for doing it, and the spirit is exalted because of their sacrifice, not because of its results. Therein is their abiding glory.

Dylan Thomas

By JOHN MORGAN

(Ed. Note: Dylan Thomas, poet, died Monday at the age of 39.)

DYLAN THOMAS was the rare instance in Britain of a "professional poet." He was not a bank clerk, university lecturer, business director, book reviewer or cultural councillor; and there always hung about him an aura of the Bohemianism which was once synonymous with the condition of being a poet. His rolling features matched his rolling voice and gait; he was as robust in company as his imagination was bold and fruitful when he was retired to write poetry. A figure, in fact, on a generous scale; yet one whose giant humour and fantasy was masterfully disciplined for the purpose of his poetry.

Dylan Marlais Thomas was born in Swansea, on the South Wales coast, in 1914. His youth is well documented in the charming and very funny stories in the more-or-less autobiographical "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Dog." He spent a lot of time in the Carmarthenshire countryside, at Llanstephan by the sea and at a farm at Fernhill inland.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE YOUNG Thomas, brought up in Swansea and Carmarthenshire, although not Welsh-speaking himself, was moulded by the simple Welsh culture with its violent Biblicity, its rhetoric, its mordant obsessions its macabre humour and by the varied and lovely countryside.

He worked for a year on a Swansea newspaper and, at the age of eighteen, left for London. During this period he was writing the poems which when published in 1934 under the title "18 Poems" caused Dr. Edith Sitwell to write: "A new poet has arisen who shows every promise of greatness."

He had subjected London to the technique of the "Provincial Rush" or the "Up Rimbaud and at em" approach, with, behind him, a "body of ferocious and ununderstandable work." (The phrases are his own, although he was not writing about himself.) In 1936 "Twenty Five Poems" was published and, in 1938, the collection of poems and poetic stories of "Map of Love." The stories collected under the title "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Dog" in 1940 differed in style from earlier ones but were successful. About his own adolescence in Swansea and the countryside, they are hilarious, irreverent and often moving.

✧ ✧ ✧

DURING THE WAR he wrote commentaries for documentary films and notably the verse commentary for "Our Country." He was still spending most of his time in London—his second child was born there during an air-raid—but now and again living at Laugharne or at New Quay, Cardigan. After the war he lived for a while at Oxford before moving to Laugharne, near Llanstephan.

In 1945 "Deaths and Entrances" was published and demonstrated that his genius was as fertile as ever.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN THE FORWORD to his "Collected Poems," published in 1952, Dylan Thomas wrote that "these poems with all their oddities, doubts and confusions are written for the love of man in praise of God and I'd be a damn' fool if they weren't." Many of them are written in memory of childhood. Few writers have his capacity for recreating the innocence, the self-centered, poetic universe of the child:-

"Nothing I cared in the lamb white days that time would take me
Up to the swallow thronged loft by the shadow of my hand
In the moon that is always rising,
Nor that riding to sleep
I should hear him fly with the high fields
And wake to the farm for ever fled from the childless land.
Oh as I was young and easy in the mercy of his means,
Time held me green and dying
Though I sang in my chains like the sea."

✧ ✧ ✧

THE PRAISE of God is sung in the frequent Biblical imagery. The God is not invariably Christian.

"The force that through the green fuse drives the flower
Drives my green age; that blasts the roots of trees
Is my destroyer.
And I am dumb to tell the crooked rose
My youth is bent by the same wintry fever."

Often there are expressions of doubt:

"Should lanterns shine, the holy face,
Caught in an octagon of unaccustomed light,
Would wither up, and any boy of love
Look twice before he fell from grace.'
The features in their private dark
Are formed of flesh, but let the false day come
And from her lips the faded pigments fall,
The mummy cloths expose an ancient breast."

✧ ✧ ✧

WHEN the Swansea Grammar School Dramatic Society presented Galsworthy's "Strife," the magazine's critic wrote of the boy who played Roberts, the men's leader: "D. M. Thomas is too good an actor to make a hash of any part . . . but . . . his vowels were occasionally too genteel; and he was innocent of gesture, an essential part of the demagogue's equipment . . . ." Gentility was the least likely adjective for the celebrated voice of the mature Thomas, made familiar to many by the B.B.C. It was rich, subtle and authoritive, perhaps the most effective poetry-reading voice in the English-speaking world. Dylan Thomas once said that in these days, and for young writers, Broadcasting House should be substituted for the word "sea" in the phrase "running away to sea." He himself ran away to this particular sea often, as a man who believes that "Posterity does not pay" may need to do.

✧ ✧ ✧

A CHAIN SMOKER who enjoyed a drink, his fabulous imagination was not reserved for his poetry but flowed freely out for the benefit of the most casual of pub acquaintances. To hear him tell one of his long, digression-riddled funny stories was a memoable comic experience. Yet he avoided the whimsical pitfalls of the pub "character" by a sharp and acid sense of the ridiculous which effectively disciplined the fertilities of his talents.

A young man by the standards of other professions, Dylan Thomas was at an important stage of his career. His early death is a tragedy not only for his friends and his family, but for English literature.

HER SAY

"It's awfully late!" he remarked to his friend after a long session at the club. "What will you say to your wife?"

"Oh, not much, you know," was the reply, "Good morning, dear," or something of that sort. She'll say the rest."

LOCAL DIALECTS

Sir,—In Nottingham the word "us" is frequently used for "our." For example, this week I heard a woman say: "We all have us temperaments."

It is also typical of this district to say "not it go?" and "not he (or she) come?" and abbreviation of "will not." It would be interesting to know if your readers have come across these forms of speech in other parts of England.

STANDARD ENGLISH—

Sir,—It would be interesting to hear the views of some of your readers on the question, "What is standard English?"

This question arises constantly in the teaching diction for the stage; and more especially in the case of the many American students training in this country.

Their object is not to be taught to speak like an Englishman; since that, for Americans, would be to acquire an English accent. They claim that there is a "standard English," and that this is what they desire to be taught.

But what is this standard English, and where could it be said to be found? Is it English as it is spoken by the announcers of the B.B.C.? Is it the beautiful English we hear from Sir John Gielgud? Or again, that spoken by Sir Laurence Oliver who, since his first professional visit to America many years ago, has given one the impression of aiming at a compromise between the American and the English way of speaking?

—AND LOCAL DIALECTS

Sir,—In South Staffordshire "us," "our" and "ourselves" are all frequently replaced by "we." For example: "Er's putting on we"; "They took we names"; "We made we some tea." In the first example "she" has become "her."

In the conjugation of the verb "to be," "we'm," "you'm," "they'm" and "you was" are all prevalent (unfortunately the local forms "I bin" and 'thee bist"seems to be slowly disappearing). In the East Riding we hear 'I is" and "we is" and in Lancashire "I were" is common.

Is the dropping of flexions becoming more or less general?

STANDARD ENGLISH—

Sir,—Standard English is free from faulty vowel pronunciation, whether due to carelessness, ignorance or dialect and in it the English rhythm is heard at its best. Its three outstanding characteristics are—correct vowels, correct grammar and good rhythm.

Where can it be heard? It is spoken by a minority in all parts of England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland. The most perfect exponent I have heard is Dr. Fisher, the Archbishop of Canterbury, and no one who heard him at the Coronation can have failed to note the perfect balance between voice and pronunciation.

In the world of entertainment may I suggest Freddy Grisewood as another user of Standard English at its best, while many will still remember the beautiful English of the late Sir Gerald du Maurier. Most of the B.B.C. announcers use Standard English but there is considerable variation in their proficiency.

— AND LOCAL DIALECTS

Sir,—Your correspondent, M. G. Cooper, asks if the dropping of inflections is becoming general. The answer would appear to be yes. It is clearly one of the reasons for the wide acceptance of English. It is also one of the reasons for the backwardness of Russia, the inflections of the language being a nightmare.

In 1943, as an escaping PoW, I spent many days talking to Italian peasants. Large numbers of them never conjugated their verbs, simply using the infinitives. I had less difficulty in understanding them than they frequently had with my laboriously correct endings.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil. . .

And the Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it. And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die. . .

And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; and the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man. And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man. (Gen. 2:, 15-17, 21-23.)

✧ ✧ ✧

They which are the children of flesh, these are not the children of God. (Rom. 9:8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

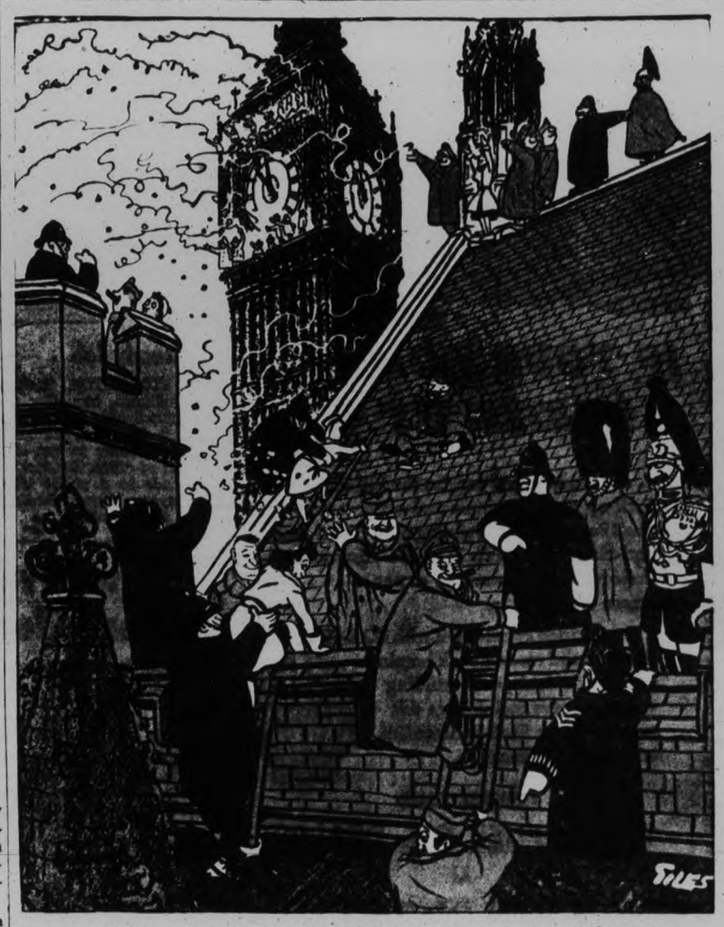
Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children . . . And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. . . Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. (Eph. 5:1, 11, 14.)

Letter To The Editor

THANKS TO WASHROOM MATRON

SIR: I wish to sincerely thank Mrs. M. Wildman, matron of the Public Washrooms of your city.

After shopping in your city, I left a small parcel in the washrooms. I wrote to Mrs. Wildman to find out if she had located the package.



She very kindly mailed it to me. In return I sent her a letter of thanks along with a very small remuneration. She has written me since to say thank you for the little kindness. However, she did tell me in her letter that it is the very first time she has ever had anyone recognize her honesty in serving the public. She has worked for the city for eleven years and in those years has found many misplaced articles even a large sum of money in the neighbourhood of two hundred dollars. Yet no one in any way has taken the trouble to remunerate or reward her in any way for her kindness let alone her honesty.

We all realize, I'm sure that a matron's wages would not be high. For one to take the trouble to wrap and mail a small out-of-town parcel is most thoughtful to say the very least..

I would like a public and special thanks to be offered to Mrs. Wildman.

Yours truly,
(Mrs.) H. D. DISNEY

Artist Develops Techique "To Astound Art World"

By DON GRANT

Tucked in his tiny studio in his log cabin home near Ormsby, 12 miles south of Bancroft, a young Canadian artist, Bob Henderson, is developing a striking, new style of painting which he calls "astrals." After 20 years of sketching and painting, nine years during which he has worked to perfect his new creation, Henderson feels he has reached the point where he'll astound Canadian art critics with his work.

His paintings, similar to the abstracts and surrealisms, yet not exactly either, are rather weird, yet striking, even to the point where they're awesome.

The manner in which Henderson says he finds his ideas is just as weird. Every nine days Henderson gets "an urge or message to take a walk into the bush or to some quiet place." In a little while Henderson has his foundation for a painting from "astral projections."

SKETCHED THOUSANDS

During the past nine years, Henderson has sketched thousands of these projections. Some have been painted but many discarded.

Pinning his ideas down, Henderson said they could be his interpretations of other planets, time dimensions, various planets or perhaps all three.

Only once has Henderson visualized anything that slightly resembles life in any of his astral projections.

"This life I can't describe. I can't draw it. Yet I have the picture in my mind. It's not earthly. It's almost beautiful, but in what way I don't know. I'm still attempting to paint it."

His light effect in the astral paintings brings out the weirdness in the design. Using soft, yet striking shades of yellows, whites, blues, reds and greens in the foreground, backed by blacks, purples and blues, Henderson has achieved a luminous effect. The highlights seem to glow in a semi-darkness.

Other artists have claimed that the Ormsby artist uses luminous paint. This accusation Henderson regards as a compliment Since his early days in painting he has always been interested in light and its effects. His results have been attained through studying works of old masters.

The shape of the astral canvas is usually just as irregular as the design and coloring in the paintings. Never until he "breaks up the shape of a painting" does Henderson feel he's brought out the desired effect.

ODD SHAPES

The astrals are never rectangular; they're always cropped at odd angles. The peculiar shapes tend to emphasize the fantastic designs in the paintings.

Henderson has completed one painting and has a second just about finished. These he feels will cause a stir in Canadian art.

Brought to Canada from England when he was two years old, Henderson started on his own in Montreal when he was 13 years old. His interest in sketching and painting saw him through the depression as he worked across Canada and the United States.

Gradually by spending every spare cent on art books to study the old masters and on the odd visit to art gallerys in Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton, Henderson tried to develop his own technique and subject. These he may have in his astral paintings.

Early this year he moved from Beamsville to Ormsby where he built a small log home for his wife and children.

His income is derived from several sources. Henderson, besides being an artist, is a cartoonist, having had numerous cartoons published in national magazines. He also paints pot-boilers (small paintings such as scenery, nicknamed by his wife) for sale throughout the district to residents and tourists.

MAKING HIS BID FOR FAME among Canadian artists is Bob Henderson, of Ormsby, about 22 miles east of Apsley. An artist for some 20 years, Henderson hopes to have developed a new, striking type of painting called "astrals" similar to surrealism and abstract. Henderson (top photo) holds one astral (unnamed as yet) with which he hopes to astound Canadian art critics. Son Donald (left, middle photo) praises dad's work on his latest astral. Just for fun, Henderson painted a man on the front door of his log cabin home (lower photo). It wasn't meant as a self-portrait but neighbors could see a resemblance.

State Corporation Handles British Atomic Research

LONDON (Reuters)—Control of Britain's atomic research and production will be handed over Jan. 1 to a state corporation, the government said Tuesday.

The proposed Atomic Energy Corporation will have full charge of both military and industrial development, previously under the supply ministry.

An official report issued said: "As the industrial uses of atomic energy become relatively more prominent, the case for a form of control of the project which is more akin to the structure of a big industrial organization than to that of a government department becomes increasingly strong."

The new corporation will take over all atomic research and production facilities from the supply ministry, which up to now has controlled atomic energy entirely. The government still will decide overall policy, but the corporation will have a free hand in production, development, personnel and security.

The corporation, to be set up after a bill providing for it is passed through Parliament, will be headed by a Chairman, four full-time and two part-time directors. It will be directly responsible to Lord Salisbury, lord president of the council.

The first chairman will be Sir Edwin Plowden, 46, the government's former economics planner.

5 Law Lords Learn About Ottawa Taxis

LONDON (CP)—Five law lords of the Privy Council learned Tuesday about taxi cabs operating between Ottawa and Hull and milk trucks supplying Lloydminster on the Alberta-Saskatchewan border.

In their fourth day of hearing consolidated appeals in a Canadian highway traffic dispute, the judicial committee of the Privy Council was asked by Alberta's deputy attorney general, H. J. Wilson:

Should either Ottawa in Ontario or Hull in Quebec lose its power to control the number of cabs that move across the provincial boundary:

Or would a dairy operating in Lloydminster—half in Alberta and half in Saskatchewan—come under the jurisdiction of the federal government because of that fact?

Both instances, contended Wilson, serve an analogies in the case being heard—where the principle in dispute is whether the federal government or the provinces should control highway traffic crossing provincial or international boundaries.

Alberta, Prince Edward Island and Ontario are appealing a Supreme Court of Canada decision which upheld federal government control. A cross-appeal was lodged by a United States bus line and the two main Canadian railways.

Selwyn WA Group To Hold Hobo Party

SELWYN (ENS) — Mrs. Jim McConkey was hostess to the WA of Selwyn United church for their November meeting. Mrs. George McIlmoyl presided and the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Reg. Bell while Mrs. Harold McIlmoyl gave a Remembrance Day topic, Mrs. Elton Miles reported a balance on hand of $354.10.

The fowl supper netted the WA about $240.00.

On November 20th, the ladies planned to hold a hobo party in the church hall when everyone is to come dressed as a hobo, or they will be fined if dressed otherwise. A pot-luck lunch will be served, and a silver collection taken.

The group leaders were appointed to arrange games and contests.

Mrs. Wilfred Nichols and Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald were appointed as a nominating committee as the December meeting will be the election of officers and will be at Mrs. William Elliott's home. There will also be an exchange of Christmas gifts.

Plan New Court House

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Board of control Tuesday took the first step towards establishment of a new county courthouse to replace the present building, criticized by judges, lawyers and grand juries. The board approved in principle payment of the city's share in having architects' plans prepared. The building would cost between $700,000 and $1,000,000.

Quinte Crew Catches Fire To Sweep Aside Petes In One-Sided Puck Tussle

BELLEVILLE (Special)—Smarting under three defeats the Belleville Memos roared back for their first senior "B" win here last night trouncing the Peterborough Petes 8-1 in a rough, rugged game. The Memos were full value for the victory as they outplayed the Petes in almost every department. They opened a sustained offensive in the first period that netted them four goals and added three more in the second when the Petes got their lone marker, and climaxed a bruising third period with a single goal.

The desperate Petes drove furiously in the third period and Rolly Sarault, the star of the game, played sensationally to hold them out.

Play grew rough and rugged with both teams belting hard and often. Goyer and Crowley went off and Mason drew a minor and misconduct, Elwin Duncan scored 14 minutes on a bullet passing the only goal of the period after play with brother Erwin and Jack Wardhaugh.

STARS OF GAME

Sarault played scintillating hockey, as did Jake Wade, the Duncan twins and Vern Goyer, Keith Montgomery, Crowley, Redmond and Greenlaw went well for the Petes.

Play started slowly with both teams cautious. Memos tested Donlevy early. Play speeded and became rugged with the Memos six penalties to two in the period.

The Memos rapped in four goals in a rugged offensive battle. Semark batted in Duke Doran's rebound in three minutes and Jake Wade made it two minutes later. Sarault, Memo's goalie, was unbeatable time after time. Elwin Duncan made it 3-0 on Red Doran's pass and brother Erwin added the fourth from Elwin in a neat passing play near the period end.

Memos picked up where they left off in the second period when Goyer put a 70-foot shot along the ice that Donlevy fanned on.

ADDED IT UP

Ted Degray made it 6-0 a minute later when he fired home Hull's pass. The Petes soared back but a stubborn memo defence kept them out. Wardhough whirled in front of Donlevy and backhanded a low hard shot for the Memo's seventh goal.

Fryia and Schreider started punching and both went off. The Petes staged a terrific ganging offensive and Hill broke the ice at 13 minutes when he slammed in a loose puck.

Tempers started to flare and the game developed into a hard hitting affair.

PETES — Goal, Donlevy; defence, Redmond and Montgomery; centre, Leonard; wings, Fryia and Greenlaw; alternates, Armstrong, McMaster, Crowley, Hill, Mason, Belisle Prentice and Peterson.

Turpin Automatically Under NY Suspension

NEW YORK (AP) — Randolph Turpin, British middleweight champion, is under automatic suspension in New York for actions detrimental to the best interests of boxing, Dan Dowd, secretary of the New York state athletic commission, said Tuesday.

The suspension went into effect Nov. 2 as a result of an assault charge brought against Turpin by Adele Daniels.

Dowd said the procedure is automatic and the suspension remains in effect until the case is closed.

Turpin was permitted to return to Europe when Miss Daniels withdrew the assault charge to file a civil suit for $100,000. He reached Britain Tuesday.

Ireland Wins Jumping Event At Show

NEW YORK (AP)—After eight days of frustration, the Republic of Ireland finally won an international jumping event Tuesday night at the final session of the National Horse Show.

All told, there were 13 international jumping classes over the eight days and nights and for 12 of them, Captains Mike Tubridny, Colm O'Shea, and Kevin Barry watched Canada, the United States and Britain win event afted event.

This time, though, some one must have rubbed a shamrock. In the complicated scoring for the International Perpetual Challenge Trophy, Ireland scored 23¾ faults to 28¾ for England, 36 for Canada and 40 for the United States.

After a horse refused three times it was charged with 20 faults more than the worst score of any of its team's other horses. And both the United States and Canada had horses eliminated for refusals. That just about put them out of the running. Neither Ireland nor England had a refusal so it really developed into a two-team contest.

PERFECT PERFORMANCE

It was ironic that only Shirley Thomas, 18-year-old member of the Canadian team, up on Revlon's White Sable, and Mrs. Carol Durand of the United States, who handled Reno Kirk, made perfect performances. Briar Lad, ridden by Ronnie Mutch, was eliminated for refusing for the United States and W. R. Ballard's mount Reject was eliminated for Canada.

The Canadian team finished the show with five victories, the United States with four, England three and Ireland one.

Savoie Gets Crack At Title

Although Savoie took a split decision from champion Jimmy Carter in a non-title fight here last February, the powerful little New York Negro rules a 5-2 favorite in the light betting reported.

Carter has twice successfully defended his title this year—against Tommy Collins in Boston and George Araujo in New York. Savoie is ranked sixth in the boxing ratings.

Willie Ketchum, Carter's manager, foresees no difficulty for the champion, with the title on the line this time. Ketchum predicts a kockout by Carter between the 10th and 12th rounds.

Cliff Sowery, the Montreal challenger's manager, is confident that if there is a knockout, Savoie won't be on the receiving end. Savoie himself maintains he is in top condition and sees no reason he can't repeat his win over Carter with the title at stake.

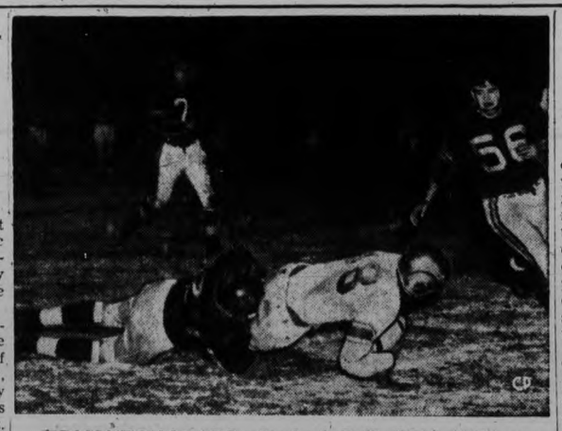
The fight is scheduled for 10 p.m., EST, at the Montreal Froum. There will be no radio or television.

Hamilton Victorias Reach 3r Round

GALT (CP) — Brian Timmis' Hamilton Victorias curling rink Tuesday reached the third round of the Gore Trophy competition in the Early Bird bonspiel.

Timmins, former Hamilton football player, skipped his rink to an 11-10 win over R. Earl Green's Toronto High Park rink in a first-round match, then knocked off Stan Burns of Palmerston 11-7.

The Timmins rink's opposition in the thrid round is Carl Renwick's Belmore four, which defeated D. McLennan's Brantford rink 11-2 in the first round and gained a 7-6 nod over L. E. Ross of Agincourt in the second.



Scheduled for the third round of the other feature event, the G. J. Little trophy, was a match between Gib McIntyre of Guelph and Sid Smithers of Galt.

Warriors Trample Cleveland Barons 5-3

CLEVELAND (AP) — Scoring three goals in the first period, Syracuse Warriors trimmed Cleveland's Barons 5-3 Tuesday night in an American Hockey League game.

Bill Gooden featured the Warriors' attack with two goals as Syracuse rolled up a 5-1 margin in the first two periods. Ed Leier, Rickey Hogg and Hugh Currie scored the other Warrior goals.

Cleveland scorers were Jackie Gordon, Jack Stoddard Glenn Sonmor.

EDMONTON LEADS—Scatback Rollie Miles of Edmonton Eskimos is stopped after catching a forward pass in the first game of the Western Interprovincial Football Union finals against Winnipeg at Edmonton. Winnipeg quarterback Jack Jacobs made the tackle. Miles scored two touchdowns in Edmonton's 25-7 victory. Winnipeg guard Buck Rogers (56) and end Ron Vaccher (left background) rush over to the play. Eskimo end Frank Anderson (70) looks on. Second game in the best-of-three finals was to be played at Winnipeg today.

Latest NHL bulletin to hit the desk reveals that Ike Hildebrand is up among the top 18 scorers in the National League. Gordie Howe of Detroit leads with 16 points in 13 games while Ike has seven in as many tilts. He scored four goals so far for New York Rangers and aided on three more, being tied with such established aces as Joe Klukay, George Armstrong, Eric Nesterenko, Ted Kennedy, Paul Ronty, Tim Horton, Fleming Mackell and Jim Thompson. Nice going for the rookie Ranger, who plays his lacrosse here in the summers—though not likely next year. The little winger has served but four minutes in penalties to date, always being a heady player who kept away from the sin bin as much as possible.

Until they have natural ice of their own, probably in late December, the Lakefield Indians play home games of the lakeshore loop here at Civic Arena. They tackle Orono up this way tonight. Among rules drafted in this intermediate puck setup is one saying that a player joining the army can be replaced, and banking employees on the job ere May are not rated as imports. TVL players may perform in this loop, but if they live in Peterborough they must be waived upon by the Petes first. An injured goalie can be replaced and he may return later to action after getting a doc's certificate. Two things cause us some wonder (a) isn't Lindsay over the 10,000 population yet for intermediate and (b) how can intermediate teams draw from senior centre? Omemee couldn't draw from here a few seasons back without going into senior "B" ranks.

Our grid Orfuns are keeping in trim this week for their big encounter Saturday in Montreal. They leave here Friday aft and take on the Lakeshore Flyers next afternoon at Westmount stadium in a sudden-death game for the Eastern Canada intermediate "A" title. The Kotowski bunch expect a fierce fight against the husky Montrealers in the metropolis this weekend. Some local fans plan to attend. Winner meets Fort William in the east (maybe here) the next weekend for the Canadian championship.

Leave From Port Hope

A few changes were announced in Orfuns' travel plans at an executive meeting last p.m. Montreal officials, through the CRU backed up a bit on having all Orfuns' expenses underwritten and made a flat guarantee to Peterborough of $700 for the trip, plus 20 percent of the net gate. So 'twas decided that Orfuns would eliminate the sleeper from here, but would drive down to Port Hope Friday aft and catch the flyer at 5:13, reaching Montreal at 10:15 and bedding down at the Queen's Hotel. They would return Sunday, reaching Port Hope at 3:30 and being driven back to Peterborough. It was felt that the players would be in better shape, too, by sleeping the night before in a hotel rather than aboard train. Return fare is $10.15 if local fans are interested. The worm turned in rough fashion last e'en down Belleville way. The winless Memos arose in wrathe to smother the second-place Petes under an 8-1 senior "B" puck deluge to the delight of the home customers. Red Doran's dudes—with Jake Wade among the stars—came up with a hot performance to earn the duke, whilst the Petes had an off night, none of them showing the form which last week beat Goodyears in Kingston. Ah, well, it sure looks like a hectic group race shaping up, with no weak sisters in it. Kingston comes here on Friday to give the locals another stiff test.

Orioles Decide To Buy Marty Marion Contract

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago American said in a sports page story Tuesday that Baltimore Orioles, new entry in the American League, have decided to buy up the contract of Marty Marion, general manager of the now-defunct St. Louis Browns.

The American said that "when it suits the convenience of Arthur Ehlers, general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, Martin Marion will join the ranks of managerial unemployed."

The newspaper said it learned the settlement of Marion's one-year contract "has been agreed upon by the Baltimore interests

By nine o'clock this evening all of the 70 men's schedule rinks will have played at least one game in the schedule, and, while it is much too early to even suggest the group winners, one thing is certain—there is going to be no easy pickings. Out of 21 games played so far only two have been one-sided. That's a pretty good sign, and we only hope it stays that way.

Schedule games Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. On Saturday at 1:30 p.m., men's bonspiel, draw from the board; at 7:30 p.m., mixed rink bonspiel, draw from the board. You may enter your name for either or both of these 'spiels on the open list posted on the notice board.

Bratton Ready To Try Again

CHICAGO (AP)—Johnny Bratton's three big breaks in boxing were anything but.

They were jaw fractures that three times destroyed fight careers he had built to the peak. Each time, broken financially, he had to stop and build anew.

Now he is at the crest of his third comeback, ready to take on Kid Gavilan for the world's welterweight championship Friday in a nationally-televised bout.

Gavilan was the third man to break Bratton's jaw. He did it in the first round of their championship fight in New York May 18, 1951. Johnny also broke a bone in his right hand in the first round and he lost the welter crown he had taken over two months earlier.

Bratton's two previous fractures were handed out by Beau Jack in 1948 and by Ike Williams in 1950.

But the Chicago "Brat" says broken jaws are a thing of the past. "I don't have to worry about it any more," he says. "It's as strong as ever."

Hymie Wallman, Bratton's manager, said his fighter's jawbone became subceptible to fractures because of a couple of bad wisdom teeth and improper diet. And that has been fixed.

Underdog Eskimos Have Become 8-5 Favorites To Take Title

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG (CP) — The odds have changed.

Edmonton Eskimos, underdogs before the opening game of the Western Interprovincial Football Union finals last Saturday, now are 8-5 favorites to wrap up their second successive title today when they tangle with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the second game of the best-of-three series.

Bombers went into the series as 6-5 favorites but Eskimos' 25-7 victory in Edmonton changed the bettors' tune. If Winnipeg should prolong the finals the deciding game will be played in Edmonton Saturday night.

Both teams went through light workout Tuesday night—Eskimos at the new Winnipeg stadium, scene of today's game, and Bombers at their training grounds in St. Boniface.

WOULDN'T PLAY

Coach Darrell Royal said his two all-star backs, Normie Kwong and Billy Vessels, both of whom missed the opener due to injuries, probably would dress for today's game but wouldn't play. He said he thought the Bombers "still could be tough."

"I don't know what we'll do if they're really up for the game. They're a hot club when they're on."

The former Oklahoma quarterback, picked as the west's all-star coach in his first year in Canada, made no predictions.

"We got the breaks last Saturday."

BORROWED BOOK

In the other camp, coach George Trafton, who gained all-star honors last year, was more definite.

"We'll kick the H--- out of them."

Some of the players echoed those sentiments. Saint halfback Len Meltzer:

"I borrowed a book in Edmonton last Saturday, and I told them I'd return it the following Saturday. I'm not making the trip for nothing."

Giant tackle Buddy Tinsley, western all-star from 1950 to 1952, said:

"We can take them if all the boys give out. But it's got to be a team effort like when we whipped the riders."

He was referring to Bombers 43-5 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in the first game of their two-game, total-point semi-final.

The clubs will get a break in the weather. A high of 40 has been predicted for the afternoon, with the winds south at 15 miles an hour.

The stadium itself is in perfect shape after being covered for more than a week by the Winnipeg club's new tarpaulin.

FARM DE LEO TO JUNIORS

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Bruins Tuesday night sent Ralph De Leo, 18, of Kingston to try out with that city's entry in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B series.

De Leo, a centre, scored 11 goals in one game last winter for Boston technical high school.

He is not under contract to the Boston National Hockey League club which sponsors the Kingston team.

Boucher's Shuffle Gets Tryout Against Chicago

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Boucher's psychological shuffle gets the test tonight. When New York fans booed Ranger captain Allan Stanley out of National Hockey League in their belief that the Timmins-born defenceman was responsible for the Broadway Blues' feeble showing at the start of the season, Bouchard sent him off to Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League. He handed the captaincy to Don (Bones) Raleigh and brought Ivan (The Terrible) Irwin from Vancouver to fill the breach in defence.

Irwin makes his New York debut tonight against Chicago Black Hawks. Sid Abel's last-place club has defeated the fifth-place Rangers in their last six New York visits over two seasons, including a 6-1 trouncing two weeks ago.

WONDERFUL PLAYERS

Fans in Toronto may see a point-geting tussle between Bernie Boom Boom Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens' and Toronto's Tod Sloan. Both are tied for fourth place in the individual standings with 14 points.

Hab coach Frank Selke tossed a couple of bon mots about his boys on his arrival in Toronto Tuesday.

"We have nothing to brag about except that we're fortunate in having a couple of wonderful hockey players," he mused obviously referring to Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Jean-Marie (Big Jean) Beliveau.

Only Richard will be on the line-up for Montreal's seasonal debut in Toronto. Beliveau, Canadiens' highly-touted rookie, is still on crutches from a broken ankle bone.

Canadiens, holding a four-point lead over second-place Detroit Red Wings, face a red-hot Toronto Club. The Leafs have been unbeaten in five games with three wins and two ties. They now share second place with the Wings.

The third game tonight sees the Wings facing fourth-place Bruins in Boston.

Dutchmen Meet Beaches In Playoffs

KITCHENER (CP) — Near-perfect playing conditions are expected today when Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen meet Toronto Balmy Beach in the first game of their two-game, total-points series for the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union championship.

The snow which covered the field during last weekend's storm has disappeared and the playing area was firm and dry Tuesday. Second game of the series will be at Toronto Sunday. The ORFU champions will meet the Western Interprovincial Football Union winners in the west Nov. 21 to decide an opponent for the Big Four champions in the Grey Cup game at Toronto Nov. 28.

The Dutchmen, first team from this area ever to reach the senior finals, received disheartening news that Al Auchterlonie, flying wing from London, Ont., had been taken to hospital in his home city as a suspected polio case. Auchterlonie, a 200-pound linebacker recently returned to the line-up after missing more than a month of action with a broken right hand.

Paul Amodio, a half, may take over Auchterlonie's post on offence.

Al Finch, a linebacker from London, Ont., appears to be another absenitee from the Kitchener line-up.

Half Jack Mancos, an import is still on the doubtful list. He aggravated an ankle injury against Sarnia Imperials here Oct. 31. It is expected that Canadian Bobby Kuntz will fill in at right half if Mancos isn't ready.

Empire Games Plans Studied

MONTREAL (CP)—The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada opens its 60th jubilee annual meeting today with a program that includes preparation for the British Empire Games and the selection of outstanding athletes who will receive trophy awards.

Decision will be reached on the place and dates for trials to determine the make-up of Canada's Empire Games team. Entries close July 9, and it is likely the trials will be held no later than the week-end of July 2. It is possible the team may be kept together after the trials in readiness for the games.

Decision on awards of three trophies will be made—the J. W. Davies Trophy for the outstanding track and field athlete in Canada; the Fred A. N. Rowell Trophy for the outstanding field athlete; and the Norton H. Crowe Trophy, top award to the outstanding AAU athlete.

TeePees Edge Kitchener 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Citadelles seem doomed for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A cellar.

Two games Tuesday night caused two shifts in the junior standings. St. Catharines TeePees took over first place by defeating Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 4-3 in Kitchener and Galt Black Hawks vaulted into second over Toronto Marlboros by blanking Quebec Citadelles 3-0 in Galt. The Citadelles remained in last place.

St. Catharines rebounded from a 3-2 deficit with two goals in the third period for their win over Kitchener. Barry and Brian Cullen, Chester Warchol and Hank Ciesla scored for the Teeps.

Gary Collins, Claude Boileau and Greig Hicks counted for the Greenshirts.

SECOND SHUTOUT

Les Binkley scored his second consecutive shutout over Quebec. Galt had its scoring evenly divided over the three periods. John Sleaver fired a pair and Pete Kowalchuk netted the other.

Of the 22 penalties handed out, including three majors and two misconducts, the Citadelles drew 12.

Tonight Quebec plays the Tigers at Hamilton and Guelph Biltmores meet Barrie Flyers in Barrie.

Stampeders Won't Retain Bob Snyder As Coach

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced Tuesday night that Bob Snyder will not be retained to coach the team again in 1954.

The 40-year-old Snyder, former head coach of the University of Toledo, and of Los Angeles Rams, guided the Stamps this season when they finished in last place.

The Stampeders' announcement said the directors feel the team's failures were not "due primarily to a lack of material" and Snyder had not fulfilled his pre-season promise to open up the game and make it more interesting from a spectator's point of view.

D. P. McLaws, the retiring president, said the decision not to rehire Snyder was made before Snyder was informed Tuesday that he would not be the 1954 coach.

NO COMMENT NECESSARY

"No comment is necessary," McLaws said in commenting on a Toledo report that Snyder announced he had resigned.

Asked about prospects to fill the coaching job, McLaws said:

"There is nobody being particularly considered."

The club statement said that when Snyder was hired he promised to "use new and different formations to open up the game and make it more interesting from a spectator's point of view" but throughout the year "practically nothing but the T formation was used and the resulting type of play was neither novel nor entertaining."

LACKED LEADERSHIP

The statement added that the directors felt Stamps lacked "the leadership and morale" essential for a winning team and there was no reason to believe such leadership or morale would be forthcoming in another year.

"The directors were particularly disappointed in the use Snyder made of the material which was at hand.

"Although Snyder contended that he did not have sufficient material, the fact remains that there were many players who sat almost the entire year on the bench and took practically no part in any games.

"The ability displayed by these players in the final two games of the season leads the directors to believe that had they been used oftener, the results obtained would have been better."

Mercurys Wallop Skidding Tigers 9-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As long as Bobby Gillson continues his outstanding netminding and the forward line keeps up its scoring pace, there seems little doubt the first-place standing of Owen Sound Mercurys in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series will be threatened.

The Mercurys won their fifth consecutive game and their seventh in nine games when they trounced the slipping Hamilton Tigers 9-3 in Owen Sound Tuesday night.

Owen Sound moved into third place with a 7-2 victory over Chatham Maroons in Windsor. Stratford defeated Niagara Falls Cataracts 6-2 to keep one point behind Owen Sound.

Sault Ste. Marie (Ont) Greyhounds edged out Pembroke Lumber Kings 2-1 at Pembroke in Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A action.

During their last five victories, one in which Gillson scored a shutout, Mercurys have scored 28 goals and have allowed only 11—a little better than two goals a game.

Tommy Burlington fired four goals, one on a penalty shot, and notched two assists for Owen Sound. Herbie Carnegie and Buck Furslund each added a pair with Jaydee McArthur scoring the other. Gordie McGinn, Murray Comfort and Jack Taylor tallied for Hamilton.

Billy Flick scored two goals for Stratford. Don Obserholtzer, Fred Plestsch, Bob Mader and Herve DeJordy netted the others. Sandy Air and Bill Hartsburg countered for Niagara Falls.

Windsor Bulldogs kept up their six - goals - a - game average. Alex Birukow scored two for the Bulldogs. Frank Bathgate, Johnny Horeck, Fred Hildebrande, Doug Towers and Gord Haidy bagged the others. Carl Liscombe and Bill Cupolo were the Chatham marksmen.

At Pembroke Jim McBurney's second-period marker won it for the Hounds. Tom Smelle scored the other goal for Sault Ste. Marie. Nobby Clarke saved Pembroke from a shutout.

Sarnia Sailors are at Kitchener and Niagara Falls in Chatham tonight.

RUNWAY TROUBLES — Canadian airmen in France have had to contend with greasy runways and slip-shod airbase construction. Sabre jets at the RCAF's No. 2 Fighter Wing at Gros Tenquin have been unable to use the runways since early August. French contractors work on grading a 50-foot safety border alongside the runway. Even this work will leave the runway unserviceable in wet weather.

Greasy Runways Grounding Canada's NATO Airmen

Canadian airmen in France have had to contend with greasy runways and slip-shod air-base construction. But they think they are better off than some other NATO forces. Bill Boss, in this second of a series of five stories reports on their problems. Thursday: RCAF happy in Germany.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GROS TENQUIN, France (CP)—The Sabre jets of the RCAF's No. 2 fighter wing took off early in August and turned over their runway to French contractors for a face-lifting.

When they return sometime this month, only part of the job will be done and senior officers say the runway will still be useless in wet weather.

Some officers even claim Canada would be better off to demand another station from NATO to avoid staggering maintenance costs. But morale on the station, commanded by Group Capt. Bill Weiser of New York, is excellent.

Gros Tenquin's troubles derive from its location, its unsightly appearance, the materials used in construction and poor workmanship. On the day it was turned over to the RCAF by the French government, the roof of almost every important building was blown away in a storm.

WATER SUPPLY FAILS

Mains gave out and for weeks drinking water had to be hauled miles. Toilets could not be flushed. Central heating wasn't properly installed until May and the billets and offices were cold all winter. Hip-length rubber boots were standard wear because of faulty drainage.

Senior officers say Gros Tenquin had to be occupied before it was ready because of the operational and strategic situation. No. 2 fighter wing was NATO's first effective opposition to the MiG. Its presence was considered important enough to override hardship and discomfort caused the men.

Now, a year later, Weiser says progress is gratifying and "we feel we have broken the back of it."

However, it is an open secret that the work under way will not correct the runway. It would cost $80,000 to make it safe for $225,000 Sabres, engineers say, but the red-tape experts can't decide whether NATO, France or Canada should pay.

GRADING NECESSARY

Because planes sometimes run off the ends or sides of a runway, grading of the adjoining land is standard procedure. Neither ends nor sides were graded here. That job is being done.

But Gros Tenquin's main problem is slipperiness. In wet weather the surface gets greasy and the jets can't be braked in landing. Between November, 1952, and the end of February, no Sabre here flew more than three hours—grounded because of the "grease."

Officers say it will be the same this year. They complain that time is being wasted trying to find the cause of the greasiness instead of correcting it.

Samples of the runway concrete are under study by the National Research Council in Ottawa. Reports on the study circulate among Paris, London and Ottawa.

Meanwhile the fault is uncorrected. Officers say a topping of asphalt costing $60,000 would make the surface safe.

Meanwhile, all aircraft are grounded in wet weather.

REPAIRS BAD TOO

Poor workmanship in the original construction is being repeated by French workmen on the repair projects.

BUILD OWN TRAILER CAMP—When civilians were slow connecting trailer camps to water and electricity mains at the RCAF's No. 2 Fighter Wing at Gros Tenquin, France, airmen pitched in to help regardless of rank. Left to right: FO. D. J. MacLean, of London, Ont., chairman of the camp trailer committee; Sgt. M. H. Reynolds, Vancouver, and Cpl. D. F. Nivins, Goderich, Ont.—(CP from National Defence).

To eliminate mud, curbstones are being laid along the station roadways. The stones are simply laid end to end, without mortar, in a shallow trough.

Paving between buildings is equally simple. Two shallow troughs are dug a yard apart, six inches wide and two inches deep, then filled with crushed stone. Over the unprepared ground between the troughs, and over them, a quantity of asphalt is dumped and rolled. That's a "sidewalk."

A gymnasium is being built. The steel frame is on concrete piles sunk into uncleared ground. The building is going up on land from which even scrub grass has not been cleared.

The central heating is an unsightly network of pipes on trestles six feet above the ground.

It was hoped to landscape the station this summer. One thousand trees were to be imported from Holland. The only ground so far levelled and seeded to grass is near the hospital. Not one tree has arrived.

There is little the RCAF can do directly. The work is entirely in the hands of French contractors and workmen.

Still officers say the Canadians have done better here than Americans have done at U.S. Air Force stations in France which, 1½ years after occupancy, still are under canvas.

Verdun Like Atomic Ruin 400,000 Men Killed In Single Battle

By PRESTON GROVER

VERDUN, France (AP)—Nearly 2,000 years ago, Verdun was a busy Roman city. Thirty-seven years ago it was the scene of the biggest battle of the First World War. Today, in an area 10 miles square, it looks like the ruin of an atomic era.

In this area in 1916 more men were killed in a single sustained battle than ever before were killed in such a battle in history—nearly 400,000 men.

It represents, as nearly as anything can represent, what might happen to such an area under the first hydrogen bomb.

The Verdun fortress area was never thickly inhabited in the ordinary sense of the word. But in 1916, the German general staff decided that, by a hard and sustained attack, it could cause such losses to the French Army that surrender of France would be inevitable.

The fight lasted 18 months. In all, 66 divisions were used on the French side, at different times. The Germans used up 43½ divisions.

TWO STRONGPOINTS FELL

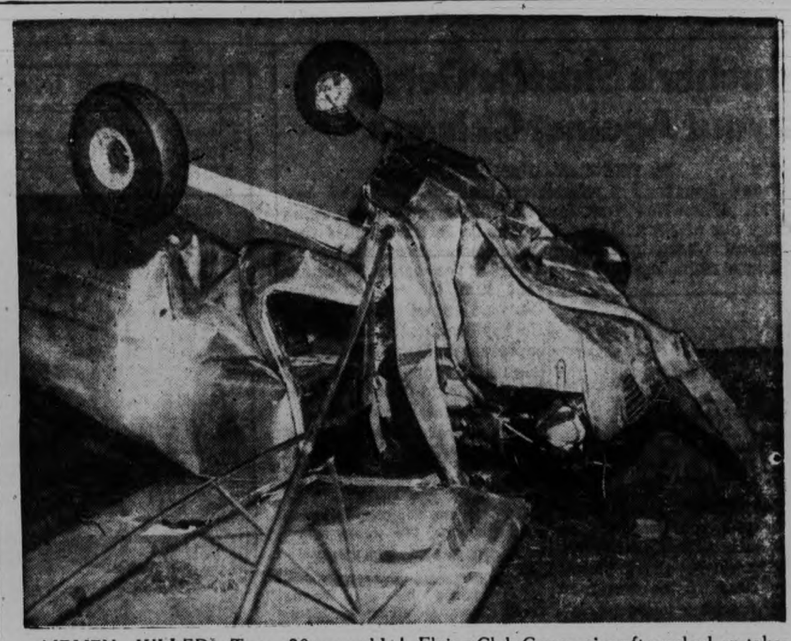
The Germans never took the fortress area, nor the town of Verdun on the Meuse river. But they did occupy the two main strongpoints of the fortifications, Vaux and Douaumont.

The area is a military preserve. Only certain parts are open to the public. Others are forbidden because there still are shells buried.

For no other reason than that I had never seen the place, I visited the Verdun battlefield just before Armistice Day.

Verdun was levelled to the ground by German shelling—except a tiny area around the cathedral. Not only was the land mixed to a hopeless putty with the under layer of chalk blasted up, but the soil itself was burned into lifelessness by the blazing powder of millions of artillery shells.

The French fired more than 12,000,000 shells in the long battle and the Germans must have fired at least as many.



When I came, a heavy mist covered the hills along the Meuse. The only dry spot seemed to be that long grim strip called the "Trench of Bayonets." Here French and German soldiers were in hand-to-hand combat when artillery fire caused the rain-sodden walls of the trench to fall together, buying them upright, the barrels and bayonets of their rifles sticking from the ground. There they remain.

STILL FIND SKELETONS

On the hilltops and in the ravines the skeletons of soldiers buried by shell blasts continue to be found, year after year. Those found are carried to a tomb in the middle of the battlefield.

My guide was Henri Longuet, son of a man who fought through the battle of Verdun, and lived. Henri himself was deported to Germany in the last war. He took me to this long, grey tomb and as we entered he stopped talking, only whispered.

Under the floor are the bones of thousands and thousands of men—a massive warehouse of skeletons. In a chapel over the tomb, masses for these thousands of dead are said every day.

AIRMEN KILLED—Two 20-year-old pilots, Pilot Douglas Allan, and Miss Adrienne Blackwood, both of Montreal, died in the twisted wreck when their Montreal Flying Club Cessna aircraft crashed on take-off. The plane went about 50 feet in the air, stalled and fell to the ground killing the two occupants instantly.

Reaboro Girl Hit By School Bus

LINDSAY (ENS) — Nancy Robinson, a 15-year-old Reaboro girl, was struck by a school bus as she waited at the stop Tuesday and was knocked unconscious.

She was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital and was X-Rayed after having three stitches put in a gash in her head. Her condition was reported as good.

Nancy was waiting for the bus from Bethany that takes her every day to Lindsay collegiate when she was struck about 8:30 a.m. The bus is believed to have skidded on the boudary road, between Victoria and Durham counties, a mile east of Highway 35, and the rear-end brushed against her knocking her to the road.

The unconscious girl was treated by Dr. T. W. L. Broadfoot of Lindsay and then taken to hospital.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Robinson of R.R. 1, Reaboro, who live four miles south of the village.

OPP Constable Tom Fitzpatrick investigated.

Food Price War Predicted

TORONTO (CP) — A full-scale price war among Toronto food merchants has been predicted by Morton M. Collins, director of meat operations for Power Food Markets Limited.

Addressing a meeting Tuesday night prior to the opening of a new store he said:

"The battle that started a few months ago as a fairly mild skirmish is about to break out into a general full-scale war.

"Meat prices already have started to skid. Eggs are down. So are poultry and potatoes and other staples. Now watch others join them and watch the fight."

He said competition for the housewife's dollar is increasing and he expects "the biggest, roughest, noisiest and most desperate price war you have ever seen."

Hermit Of Humber Who Ate Skunk, Dead Killed By One Of Cars He Hated So Much

TORONTO (CP)—The friendly Hermit of the Humber, who ate skunk, made skunk oil and lived under the stars for a few dollars a year, is dead.

Arthur Scholes, 63, was killed by one of the cars he hated.

More than 20 years ago, Scholes fled civilization's "clocks, radios and fast cars," and headed for the bush north of Toronto. He came out of isolation Monday night to attend his brother's funeral in Toronto. A car hit him as he walked home.

He hated cars. He thought people lived too fast. He lived in a tiny shack, which he rented from a farmer for $1 a year.

There he played the guitar, hunted, fished and made the skunk oil which he sold for $1 a quart to clients in Canada and the United States. It was used by stablehands to rub down horses after races.

A former track star who ran in the 1920 Olympics in Belgium, he was a cousin of the late Lou Scholes, champion sculler. He served in the Sportsmen's Battalion in the First World War and in 1928 he defeated the late Tom Longboat, famous Indian runner, in a race at Scarboro.

Prisoners To Resume Their Tile Making

TORONTO (CP)—Prisoners will resume tile-making at Kingston county jail next spring, Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions for Ontario, said.

Tile-making was stopped two months ago because prisoners were needed for an excavation job, Col. Basher told the legislature's select committee on reform institutions.

Committee members earlier criticized a decision of one of the reforms department's inspectors that tile-making be stopped in the interests of security.

Members said this project is one of the few in the province that puts jail inmates to work. In many jails most inmates are idle, they said.

At the First Sign of a COLD

and feel better FAST!

Here's sound and effective advice about colds.

No matter how you try to stop or shorten a cold, the first thing to do—before you do anything else—is to take Aspirin.

You should do this because a cold is almost invariably accompanied by muscular aches and pains—and a headachy, feverish feeling. And for your own good, you need a medication that will relieve these distressing symptoms—relieve them quickly.

One reason Aspirin tablets bring this relief is that they're ready to go to work with amazing speed . . . actually start disintegrating almost instantly.

So don't experiment with a cold. Use Aspirin. And for sore throats due to colds, gargle 3 times daily with 3 Aspirin tablets dissolved in ⅓ of a glass of water.

To Relieve Aches and Pains of Colds, Take

ASPIRIN

CROSSING THE RHINE

Despite their defeat in the Ardennes, the Germans decided to give battle west of the Rhine, instead of withdrawing across it to gain a breathing-space. General Eisenhower planned three operations. In the first he would destroy the enemy west of the river and close up to it, then he would form bridgeheads, and finally drive deep into Germany. In this last phase there would be two simultaneous thrusts. One would start from the lower Rhine below Duisburg, skirt the northern edge of the Ruhr, which would be enveloped and later subdued, and drive across the North German plain towards Bremen, Hamburg, and the Baltic. The second thrust would be from Karlsruhe to Kassel, whence there were options northwards or eastwards according to circumstances.

We reviewed this plan at Malta with some concern. We doubted whether we were strong enough for two great simultaneous operations, and felt that the northern advance by Montgomery's Twenty-first Army Group would be much the more important. The matter was hotly argued by the Combined Chiefs of Staff. General Bradley attributes to Montgomery most of the pressure which was brought to bear. This is not a fair assessment. The British view as a whole was that the northern thrust, with its consequences to the Ruhr, was paramount. In a second respect also we questioned the plan. We were anxious that Montgomery should cross the Rhine as soon as possible, and not be held back merely because German forces were still on the near bank at some distant point.

The first task was to clear the enemy from the Colmar pocket. This was completed at the beginning of February by the First French Army, helped by four American divisions. More important, and leading to a long and arduous battle, was Montgomery's advance to the Rhine north of Cologne. A thrust from the Nijmegen salient by General Crerar's First Canadian Army, composed of the British and IInd Canadian Corps, began on February 8 (1945), and was directed south-eastwards between the Rhine and the Meuse. The defences were strongly and obstinately held, the ground was sodden, and both rivers had overflowed their banks. The first day's objectives were reached, but then the advance slowed down.

General Simpson's Ninth U.S. Army, which had been placed under Montgomery's orders for the operation, was to strike northwards from the river Roer to join the British, but they could not cross the Roer until the great dams twenty miles upstream were captured. The First U.S. Army seized them on February 10, but the Germans smashed open the valves and the river downstream became uncrossable until the 23rd. The Ninth U.S. Army then opened their attack. As their momentum gathered the Canadian Army renewed their attacks towards Xanten, and the XXXth Corps met the Americans at Geldern on March 3. By then the right flank of the Ninth Army had reached the Rhine near Dusseldorf, and the two armies combined to expel the enemy from their bridgehead at Wesel. On March 10 eighteen German divisions were all back across the Rhine, except for 53,000 prisoners and unnumbered dead.

Farther south General Bradley's Twelfth Army Group proceeded to drive the enemy across the Rhine on the whole eighty-mile stretch between Dusseldorf and Koblenz. On March 7 a stroke of fortune was boldly accepted. The 9th Armoured Division of the First U.S. Army found the railway bridge at Remagen partly destroyed but still usable. They promptly threw their advance-guard across, other troops quickly followed, and soon over four divisions were on the far bank and a bridgehead several miles deep established. This was no part of Eisenhower's plan, but it proved an excellent adjunct, and the Germans had to divert considerable forces from farther north to hold the Americans in check.

Only one large pocket of Germans now remained west of the Rhine. These stood in a great salient formed by the Moselle from Koblenz to Trier and thence along the Siegfried Line back to the Rhine. The Allies attacked on March 15 against stiff opposition. Good progress was made west of Zweibrucken, but east of it the Germans held firm. It availed them little, for Patton had reached the Rhine north of Koblenz, and he turned five divisions southward across the lower Moselle. The stroke cut in behind the salient. It came as a complete surprise, and met feeble resistance. By March 21 it had reached Worms and joined the XXth Corps, which had burst through the bulge south of Trier.

The defenders of the renowned and dreaded Siegfried Line were thus cut off, and in a few days all organized resistance came to an end.

Thus ended the last great German stand in the West. Six weeks of successive battles along a front of over two hundred and fifty miles had driven the enemy across the Rhine with irreplaceable losses in men and material.

✧ ✧ ✧

While the Americans farther south were closing on the Rhine Montgomery had made ready to cross it.

Montgomery pressed forward his preparations and the Allied Air Forces brought all their power to bear. In the last week of February they began a bombardment from Bremen to Koblenz to deny the enemy arsenals of the Ruhr and isolate the battle area.

Under Montgomery were the First Canadian, the Second British and the Ninth U.S. Armies. The two latter would seize bridgeheads north and south of Wesel, while the 1st British Commando Brigade, in the centre, captured Wesel itself. We would cross by night after an hour's bombardment by 2,000 guns, while the Canadians protected the left flank and themselves crossed later to drive northwards. Next morning two airborne divisions, the 6th British and 17th American, would drop behind the enemy's lines north of the town to disrupt his defences from the rear. This arrangement promoted their early junction with the other troops, which had played us false at Arnhem. In support were our heavy bombers and no fewer than 3,000 fighters under Air Marshal Coningham.

I desired to be with our armies at the crossing, and Montgomery made me welcome. Taking only my secretary, Jock Olville, and Tommy (Thompson) with me, I flew in the afternoon of March 23 by Dakota from Northolt to the British headquarters near Venlo. The Commander-in-Chief conducted me to the caravan in which he lived and moved. I found myself in the comfortable wagon I had used before. We dined at seven o'clock, and an hour later we repaired with strict puntuality to Montgomery's map wagon. Here were displayed all the maps kept from hour to hour by a select group of officers. The whole plan of our deployment and attack was easily comprehended. We were to force a passage over the river at ten points on a twenty-mile front from Rheinberg to Rees.

All our resources were to be used. Eighty thousand men, the advance-guard of armies a million strong, were to be hurled forward. Masses of boats and pontoons lay ready. On the far side stood the Germans, entrenched and organized in all the strength of modern firepower.

Everything I had seen or studied in war, or read, made me doubt that a river could be a good barrier of defence against superior force. In Hamley's Operations of War, which I had pondered over ever since Sandhurst days, he argues the truth that a river running parallel to the line of advance is a much more dangerous feature than one which lies squarely thwart it; and he illustrates this theory by Napoleon's marvellous campaign of 1814. I was therefore in good hopes of the battle even before the Field-Marshal explained his plans to me. Moreover, we had now the advantage of mastery in the air. The episode which the Commander-in-Chief particularly wished me to see was the drop next morning of the two airborne divisions, comprising 14,000 men, with artillery and much other offensive equipment, behind the enemy lines. Accordingly we all went to bed fore ten o'clock.

Throughout the night the attacking divisions poured across, meeting little resistance at first, as the bank itself was lightly defended. At dawn bridgeheads, shallow as yet, were firmly held, and the Commandos were already at grips in Wesel.

In the morning Montgomery had arranged for me to witness from a hilltop amid rolling downland the great fly-in. It was full daylight before the subdued but intense roar and rumbling of swarms of aircraft stole upon us. After that in the course of half an hour over 2,000 aircraft streamed overhead in their formations. My view-point had been well chosen. The light was clear enough to enable one to see where the descent on the enemy took place. The aircraft faded from sight, and then almost immediately afterwards returned towards us at a different level. The parachutists were invisible even to the best field-glasses. But now there was a double murmur and roar of reinforcements arriving and of those who had delivered their attacks returning. Soon one saw with a sense of tragedy aircraft in twos and threes coming back askew, asmoke, or even in flames. Also at this time tiny specks came floating to earth. Imagination built on a good deal of experience told a hard and painful tale. It seemed however that nineteen out of every twenty of the aircraft that had started came back in good order, having discharged their mission. This was confirmed by what we heard an hour later when we got back to headquarters.

The assault was now in progress along the whole front, and I was conducted by motor on a long tour from one point to another, and to the various corps headquarters. It was late in the evening when I returned. My private secretary, Jock Colville, had work to do for me, and could not come with me in the car. He had however made a plan of his own, and actually crossed the Rhine in one of the boats during the morning. There was no opposition to the passage, but the lodgments on the other side were under artillery fire. A shell burst near him and an officer with whom he was talking. A soldier of our airborne division standing beside them was severely wounded, and Jock was drenched in his blood. He naturally would have said nothing about this incident but for the fact that he arrived back at headquarters at precisely the same time as Montgomery and I. His blood-stained tunic caught the Field Marshal's eye and he asked what had happened. He then complained that a civil servant should not have crossed the river without his personal permission having been obtained. I protected Jock from his wrath, and promised to rebuke him myself, which I did in suitable terms after learning what had passed, and pointing out how much inconvenience he would have caused to the work of my Private Officer if he had been killed. Who would have decoded and presented to me the secret telegrams that came in every few hours? He expressed his contrition, and I advised him to keep as far away from the Field-Marshaal as possible during mess. This he did by dining elsewhere, and all passed off quietly.

Things went well all that day. The four assaulting divisions were safely across and established in bridgeheads 5,000 yards deep.

At 8 p.m. we repaired to the map wagon, and I now had an excellent opportunity of seeing Montgomery's methods of conducting a battle on this gigantic scale. For nearly two hours a succession of young officers, of about the rank of major, presented themselves. Each had come back from a different sector of the front. They were the direct personal representatives of the Commander-in-Chief, and could go anywhere and see anything and ask any questions they liked of any commander, whether at the divisional headquarters or with the forward troops. As in turn they made their reports and were searchingly questioned by their chief the whole story of the day's battle was unfolded. This gave Monty a complete account of what had happened by highly competent men whom he knew well and whose eyes he trusted. It afforded an invaluable cross-check to the reports from all the various headquarters and from the commanders, all of which had already been sifted and weighed by General de Guingand, his Chief of Staff, and were known to Montgomery. By this process he was able to form a more vivid, direct, and sometimes more accurate picture. The officers ran great risks, and of the seven or eight to whom I listened on this and succeeding nights two were killed in the next few weeks. I thought the system admirable, and indeed the only way in which a modern Commander-in-Chief could see as well as read what was going on in every part of the front. This process having finished, Montgomery gave a series of direction to de Guingand, which were turned into immediate action by the Staff machine. And so to bed.

✧ ✧ ✧

The next day, March 25, we went to meet Eisenhower. On our way I told Montgomery how his system resembled that of Marlborough and the conduct of battles in the eighteenth century, where the Commander-in-Chief acted through his lieutenant-generals. Then the Commander-in-Chief sat on his horse and directed by word of mouth a battle on a five-or six-mile front, which ended in a day and settled the fortunes of great nations, sometimes for years or generations to come. In order to make his will effective he had four or five lieutenant-generals posted at different points on the front, who knew his whole mind and were concerned with the execution of his plan. These officers commanded no troops and were intended to be off-shoots and expressions of the Supreme Commander. In modern times the general must sit in his office conducting a battle ranging over ten times the front and lasting often for a week or ten days. In these changed conditions Montgomery's method of personal eye-witnesses, who were naturally treated with the utmost consideration by the front-line commanders of every grade, was an interesting though partial revival of old days.

We met Eisenhower before noon. Here a number of American generals were gathered. After various interchanges we had a brief lunch, in the course of which Eisenhower said that there was a house about ten miles away on our side of the Rhine, which the Americans had sandbagged, from which a fine view of the river and of the opposite bank could be obtained. He proposed that we should visit it, and conducted us there himself. The Rhine—here about four hundred yards broad—flowed at our feet. There was a smooth, flat expanse of meadows on the enemy's side. The officers told us that the house was unoccupied so far as they knew, and we gazed and gaped at it for a while. With appropriate precautions we were led into the building. Then the Supreme Commander had to depart on other business, and Montgomery and I were about to follow his example when I saw a small launch come close by to moor. So I said to Montgomery, "Why don't we go across and have a look at the other side?" Somewhat to my surprise he answered, "Why not?" After he made some inquiries we started across the river with three or four American commanders and half a dozen armed men. We landed in brilliant sunshine and perfect peace on the German shore, and walked about for half an hour or so unmolested.

As we came back Montgomery said to the captain of the launch, "Can't we go down the river towards Wesel, where there is something going on?" The captain replied that there was a chain across the river half a mile away to prevent floating mines interfering with our operations, and several of these might be held up by it. Montgomery pressed him hard, but was at length satisfied that the risk was too great. As we landed he said to me "Let's go down to the railway bridge at Wesel, where we can see what is going on the spot." So we got into his car, and, accompanied by the Americans, who were delighted at the prospect, we went to the big iron-girder railway bridge which was broken in the middle but whose twisted ironwork offered good perches. The Germans were replying to our fire, and their shells fell in salvos of four about a mile away. Presently they came nearer. Then one salvo came overhead and plunged in the water on our side of the bridge. The shells seemed to explode on impact with the bottom, and raised great fountains of spray about a hundred yards away. Several other shells fell among the motor-cars which were concealed not far behind us, and it was decided we ought to depart. I clambered down and joined my adventurous host for our two hours' drive back to his headquarters. It seemed to me he had one standard for Jock Colville and another for himself.

✧ ✧ ✧

During the next few days we continued to gain ground east of the Rhine, and by March 28 the Ninth U.S. Army was approaching Duisburg and had entered Gladbeck. The airborne divisions, with the aid of a British armoured brigade, penetrated deep towards Haltern, when the line was carried to Borken and Bocholt. The fighting on the left flank had been severe, but the 3rd Canadian Division, working down the bank of the Rhine, was closing on Emmerich to join the rest of the Canadian Army on the near bank. Thus by the end of the month we possessed a springboard east of the Rhine from which to launch major operations deep into Northern Germany. Of the engineering feats that were an essential part of this historic battle I need mention but one as an example of many. By the evening of the 26th no fewer than a dozen bridges had been thrown across the great river.

✧ ✧ ✧

All this time the American armies in the south, though not opposed so strongly, had made astonishing progress. The two bridgeheads which were the reward of their boldness were being daily reinforced and enlarged, and more crossings were made south of Koblenz and at Worms. On March 25 the American Third Army was in Darmstadt, and on the 29th in Frankfurt. On the same day the Seventh U.S. Army occupied Mannheim, and the First U.S. Army, breaking out from Remagen, was already in Giessen and heading north. On April 2 the French were also across the Rhine on the right of the Seventh U.S. Army, which was driving east beyond Heidelberg. Kassell fell. The left of the First U.S. Army gained touch with the Ninth U.S. Army east of Hamm. The Ruhr and its 325,000 defenders were encircled. Germany's Western front had collapsed.

U.S. Hoping To Air Atrocity Cases

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—United States officials estimate they have more than enough votes lined up to win United Nations General Assembly approval today for a full airing of American charges of Red atrocities in Korea.

U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge was slated to call on the 60-member assembly to put the atrocity item on its agenda, as recommended last week by the steering committee.

A source close to the Americans said an informal poll of the delegates indicated the only opposition would be from the small Soviet bloc, with a few abstentions from Arab-Asian states.

Lodge brought the atrocity issue before the UN two weeks ago after a documented U.S. Army report came out claiming that some 30,000 persons were killed by torture or starvation at the hands of their Red captors in Korea.

SWITCHES SIGNALS

As the 60-member political committee prepared to continue its arms debate this afternoon, Russia switched signals and threw in a revised proposal calling on the UN disarmament commission to submit plans by March 1 for substantial cuts in big-power armaments and a ban on the atomic and hydrogen bombs.

This shunted aside Russia's perennial demand for a one-third reduction in the armed forces of the U.S., Britain, France, Red China and the Soviet Union. Russia has tried fruitlessly for the last five years to get that proposal through the assembly.

In general, however, Russia has indicated it is following the same old line on armaments. It wants the commission to evolve a plan for banning atomic and hydrogen weapons, and at the same time set up strict international control.

The West has fought this stand, contending the commission should work out effective control plans first and then see about a ban on mass-destruction weapons.

"But, even with this increase, Canadians are paying only 11 cents per person toward the upkeep of UN technical assistance."

"The CCL views with grave concern the difficulties now facing the UN technical assistance program . . ."

Says Improperly Being Tried By Iranian Court

By DON SCHWIND

TEHRAN (AP) — Mohammed Mossadegh claimed today that he was haled before an Iranian military court on treason charges in violation of his own decree.

The 73-year-old former premier, defiantly maintaining he still holds that post, told the five-man army tribunal that he had barred military courts from trying civilians in a decree issued under the special dictatorial powers granted him last year by Parliament.

Mossadegh, ousted by an army-backed revolt last August, is accused of defying Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, trying to overthrow the monarchy, and illegally dissolving Parliament.

SAYS COURT INCOMPETENT

Mossadegh claimed Tuesday no court could try him until Parliament, through legislation, nullifies the plenary powers given him as premier. His court-appointed lawyer, Col. Jalil Bozorgmehr, contended that Mossadegh should be tried in Iran's Supreme Court.

"Even before that," Bozorgmehr added, "the Majlis (parliament) should rule whether Mossadegh is still Iran's prime minister. Political charges must be tried before a civilian jury."

Under rules of procedure, an Iranian court-martial must first establish its right to judge a defendant. If the court decides it has jurisdiction, the indictment will be read and the actual trial of Mossadegh will proceed.

The emotional old politican apparently decided to give up fighting against Bozorgmehr's counsel. The two sat shoulder-to-shoulder at today's hearing and several times Mossadegh leaned over to whisper to the lawyer. Mossadegh reviled and punched the colonel Tuesday, saying, "This man is not my lawyer."

Today Mossadegh read slowly from a brief, wagging his finger at the court chairman as he made his points.

Included in the edition were four supplements, totalling 88 pages, which dealt with the growth of the Journal, Edmonton and the oil and agriculture industries.

Gothic On Way

LONDON (Reuters)—The liner Gothic nosed her way into the Thames Tuesday night, bound for Jamaica where the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will join the ship Nov. 27 for their voyage to Australia and New Zealand. Dockside workers gave the 5,902-ton vessel a rousing send-off as tugs eased her slowly away from the King George V dock.

Ray's School Student Wins Oratory Contest

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — Speaking on "Our Wild Animals," Grant Sheward of Ray's public school, took top honors in the public speaking contest Monday evening in Memorial Hall. This contest, sponsored by the Women's Institute, drew 13 contestants form three schools, Lakefield public school, Ray's school, and SS 14, Douro.

In second place was Margaret Richardson of Lakefield, who spoke on "Music and Musicians," and the third prize was won by Marilyn Peacock of Ray's school, who spoke on "Philip, Duke of Edinburgh."

In giving the adjudicator's report, Miss Helen Spannis of the Lakefield District High School staff, congratulated the pupils on their excellent speeches, but noted that they were inclined to rely too much on their memory. She suggested that brief notes should be at hand, in case they were needed. The material used, with a few exceptions, was well within the scope of the contestants' understanding. Miss Spannis was assisted in judging by Miss J Evans, also of the High school staff.

Other contestants were Fred Doyle, Janice Kennedy, Heather Travis, Roger Abbott, Brenda Hollingshead, June Spinkle, Athabelle Hendren, Arlene Dunbar, Clark Wilson and Pauline Head.

Prizes were presented to the successful contestants by Mrs. Clarence Foster, who also acted as chairman. During the evening music was supplied by Donna Farrow on the violin and Faye Harding at the piano.

Winner of this contest will again compete in the semi-finals Friday evening in the High school, with the finals being held in Brighton.

Offers Defence Changes Mind Pleads Guilty

After submitting defence evidence to support his plea of not guilty on a charge of driving without a licence, Joseph Hill, RR 3, Havelock, changed his plea to guilty before Magistrate R. I. Moore Tuesday and was fined $25 and $7.50 costs.

Two police officers, OPP Constable Archie Eady and Havelock Chief Robert Hall, swore they saw Hill driving a car November 2 near Havelock. Following him, they saw the driver switch seats with another passenger.

When the car was stopped, they found Mrs. Marie Morrison, RR 3, Havelock, driving.

NOT DRIVING

Both Mrs. Morrison and a passenger, Lloyd Dafoe, supported Hill's evidence he had not been driving.

Prior to their evidence, however, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, QC, pointed out that false evidence in court on a material point is "much more serious than theft."

Magistrate Moore agreed and commented he was "shocked at the number of people who make false statements" in court. He also pointed qut to the witnesses that perjury is "much more serious than the offence the accused is charged with."

The crown asked for a recess following the defence evidence and after the recess, Hill said he would change his plea to guilty.

The veterans were addressed by their padre, the Rev. L. R. Pocock who spoke from the text "I am now ready to be offered up, and the time of my departure is a hand."

Last post and reveille was sounded by Donald Kent.

Betty Grable To Play Chicago Theatre

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Betty Grable is hitting the road to face audiences for the first time in 13 years.

The beauteous blonde and her trumpet-playing husband, Harry James, open at a Chicago theatre late this month. They'll play for one week only at fabulous terms —70 per cent of the gross.

Mrs. James, who proclaims her own tendency to laziness, is hard at work these days in dance rehearsals for the act. She confesses a fear of facing an audience.

"Yipes, I'm scared!"

The Chicago date will be a baptism of fire for her.

"I'm not going to slough it off," she explained. "I've seen too many stars go out on the road and give the old 'I'm glad to be here' routine and that's all. I think you're cheating the public when you do that. They want entertainment and I'm going to give it to them.

WILL SHOW LEGS

"For the first number, I'll come out in a real show-type costume so they can see my legs. After all, that's what they expect to see, and I'm not going to disappoint them. I've got two other outfits, and I'll do nine numbers in the 50-minute show."

The Jameses plan to do six or seven shows a day, and I mentioned to Betty that would amount to 63 numbers daily. "I'm sure glad I didn't go to school," she replied. "I would have been able to figure that out, and it would have scared the dickens out of me."

Speaking of nerves, James has some of his own to conquer for the Chicago engagement. He hasn't played a movie theatre in 10 years.

HARRY WAS RIGHT

"The last time was in 1943 at the New York Paramount," he recalled. "I had three days to go on a six-week engagement and had been doing eight shows a day, the first at 8:10 in the morning. The bandstand is on an elevator and it would rock so I couldn't stand up without leaning against something.

"That morning I was trying to play, but I couldn't. I told the band they would have to carry on without me. The theatre got all up in arms and sent a psychiatrist to see me. The guy spent a whole hour asking me questions. He finally went out and told them: 'You know something—he's right.' "

Merchant Fleet Cut By Transfer Of Ships

VANCOUVER (CCP) — Canada's dwindling merchant fleet has been further reduced with the transfer of three deep-sea ships to foreign registry.

The fleet now is 30 ships. A Vancouver-owned ship, SS Lake Pennask, inbound from Japan, will be turned over to a Greek firm when she docks next month and registered in Panama.

The two other ships switching registry are the 7,131-ton Montrealer, sold to Worldwide Steamship Co. of Liberia and the La Fleche, the same size, sold to Compania Atlantica of Panama. both vessels were owned by P. and T. Steamship Co. of Montreal.

A P. and T. spokesman said Tuesday the ships were sold because the company couldn't compete with low wages and subsidies on foreign ships.

FIREMEN PROMOTED

Fire Chief William Sorrie has announced that the following have completed their six months probationary period and have qualified as fourth class firemen: John Eggleton, Clifford Perry, Ray Fitzgerald, Sherman Irwin, William Clark, Eldon Bannon, Frank Fitzgerald, Barry Kilborn and Allan Burdett.

Bold Bear

More evidence of the invasion of the southern part of the province by bears this year was given today by Fid Mitchell, his brother Bill and Ross Jamieson who shot one weighing an estimated 300 pounds in the swamp west of Cavan. Old-timers say this is the first bear reported in the district for at least 75 years.

Labor Candidates Not Yes Men Say Unionists

Because an aldermanic candidate is sponsored by a labor group it doesn't mean that he's a yesman for his sponsors, the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL) have declared.

At the November meeting Monday night William Gunn of Local 293, UPWA (CIO-CCL) and several other delegates took exception to a press statement by Jack Smith, aldermanic candidate who is asking for the support of Peterborough workers but doesn't want to be tied to any labor group.

Mr. Smith, a 40-year-old armature winder at CGE, is quoted as saying:

"If a candidate goes into office as the representative of a labor council he is under an obligation to them and cannot speak his mind freely. He's not a free agent, and that's what I intend to be at all times."

Said Mr. Gunn, brandishing the press clippings: "Any time we have supported a candidate for city council I don't think we have ever told him he must comply with our wishes—Mr. Smith has been misled or he is mistaken. Certainly we didn't dictate to Bill Beggs when he went into council.

"I take exception to Mr. Smith's remarks," concluded Mr. Gunn.

TWO CANDIDATES

(The Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL) and the rival Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC) are jointly supporting two candidates for city council: William Triggs of Local 293, UPWA (CIO-CCL), and Glenn Price of Local 248, ITU (AFL-TLC).)

"There are no strings attached," said Edmund S. Humphrey of Local 434, UPWA (CIO-CCL).

"Right from the first when the labor council went into municipal politics it was understood that the candidates would be responsible to Peterborough as a whole and there would be no strings attached by the council," said Alfred Barber of Local 210, UPWA (CIO-CCL), the newly-elected president of the council.

"I've no doubt that there isn't a candidate running who isn't sponsored by somebody," said Mr. Barber.

"We sponsor these candidates not only in the hope they will support labor's interests but also for the betterment of Peterborough," said John Beggs of Local 293, UPWA (CIO-CCL), himself a former candidate for city council. "If a man runs for office, and we think he's good enough to support, we leave it up to his conscience to make decisions."

9 Plays Prepared For Presentation At Festival

Nine plays are to be performed at the drama festival of Peterborough and district taking place Thursday to Saturday evening of next week at the Queen Mary auditorium.

The order of performance was established Tuesday by the selection committee, and R. J. Bolton, president of the Festival Association, today announced play names, dates and order.

Two of the plays are by Peterborough men. Robertson Davies' "Eros At Breakfast" will be given its first local performance by the Peterborough Little Theatre, directed by J. D. Londerville and Miss Jean Leach. This "psychosomatic interlude" was first produced in Ottawa in 1949 and has since been played in Toronto and other centres. John Campbell has written a comedy set in the 15th century called "The Two Minute Egg". This will be played by the new Peterborough Community Theatre, and produced by the author.

Seven Local Groups

Seven local play groups and one from Belleville have entered the festival, at which adjudicator Arnold Edinborough of Queen's University will select finalists for the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival.

On Thursday evening St. John's Parish Players, directed by Archdeacon Robertson, will perform a domestic comedy called "Mr. Sampson" by Charles Fee. This will be followed by All Saints' Drama Club (Group A) presenting a bed-sitting room play called "The Purple Door Knob", produced by W. A. Brown and stage managed by Eleanor Carroll. Final play Thursday evening will be "The Flattering Word" by George Kelly. It is being performed by Knox Theatre Group (A) directed by Peter McCombe and stage managed by Ray Gillies.

Friday evening's three plays, in their order of performance, are: "The Two Minute Egg," by the Peterborough Community Theatre; "The Bathroom Door" by Gertrude Jennings, a comedy which takes place in the corridor of a hotel; and "Five To Five-Thirty", a summer afternoon's diversion in a living room, by Philip Johnson. "The Bathroom Door" is being done by the second group of All Saints', and "Five To Five- Thirty" by a second Knox Group.

BELLEVILLE'S COWARD

Belleville Theatre Guild leads off Saturday evening's schedule, with "An Unpleasant Comedy in Two Scenes", as the author Noel Coward terms his "Fumed Oak". This play is from the famous sequence "Tonight at 8:30" by Noel Coward, and it is being produced by John D. Ryan and staged by Cameron Tanner. Time and occasion permitting, the middle play Saturday evening will be a repetition of one selected from the six performed Thursday and Friday. The final play of the evening is Robertson Davies' "Eros At Breakfast".

Following the final curtain each evening Professor Edinborough will give a public adjudication from the stage of the Queen Mary auditorium. On Saturday evening he will announce the Festival winners, who may go on then to compete in the Eastern Ontario festival.

Season tickets for all three evenings are available. Single seat tickets for separate evenings may be got at the door.

Business manager of the Festival is Harry Cherney, and the stage management committee is under Ray Gillies.

3 Hunters Get Lost On Preserve

One Man Missing 48 Hours, Turns Up Suffering Shock

Three Newcastle hunters Friday became lost on the Peterborough Crown Game Preserve, and, police believe, because they knew they were poaching on illegal land, the story didn't come out until Sunday after one of them had been missing 48 hours.

Hugh and Keith Aiken, Jr., brothers, found their way back to Highway 28 in the snow storm Saturday morning. But their companion, Jack Grey, wandered for 48 hours before finding the highway at Haultain. He reeled into the home of Oscar Church at 10 p.m. Sunday suffering from shock and exposure.

TAKEN TO TORONTO

Grey was admitted to the Red Cross Outpost Hospital and taken back to his home late Monday by provincial police after he had received treatment.

The men had separated when they began to still hunt in the thick bush hoping for a quick shot at unsuspecting deer.

The Aiken brothers made no attempt on Saturday morning when they arrived at Apsley to notify anyone that their companion was still wandering in the preserve. Instead, they drove to Newcastle and told some friends who accompanied them back to Apsley late Saturday night. Still, they notified no one.

Because the two hunters that had come out of the forest knew they were on forbidden ground, and that their companion was still there is the only reason police and game wardens believe, they were not notified.

BACKTRACKED

Grey later reported to the game wardens that he had lost his gun in the preserve but they would never find it because he couldn't recall where he might have dropped it.

They searched nevertheless and found that Grey in his wanderings through Saturday's snowstorm had waded across a wide beaver pond up to his neck in icy water. When he arrived at Haultain, Mr. Church said that his clothing, which included a heavy station wagon coat, was "frozen as stiff as a board."

Conservation officers may lay trespassing charges against the Aiken brothers but said they thought Grey had enough punishment.

Peterborough TV Application Hearing Dec. 3

OTTAWA (CP)—Applications to operate a television station in Peterborough and for a power increase at Station CKSO-TV, Sudbury, will be considered by the CBC board of governors Dec. 3-5.

The Peterborough applicant is the Brookland Company Ltd., a group which includes Senator W. Rupert Davies and publisher Roy Thomson. Its appeal was deferred from a previous meeting.

The Sudbury station seeks to increase its power from 1,250 to 1,740 watts video and from 625 to 870 watts audio.

The board also will consider an application from the recently-licensed Kitchener television station for a change in facilities to beam a stronger signal north, to prevent interference with stations at London and Hamilton and a change in pattern of its directional antena.

Radio station CFOR at Orillia will seek to increase its power from 1,000 to 5,000 watts.

Four Cars, Truck Damaged In 2 Crashes

Minor damage was done to four cars and a truck in three accidents Tuesday. Nobody was injured.

A soft drink truck, driven by Francis Moloney, 28, 148 Park St. N., backed into a car parked on Water St., just north of Hilliard St., damaging the rear slightly. Owner of the car is Ivan T. Lillico, 53, 515 Hunter Street.

Moloney drove away from the scene. He told police he didn't realize he had hit the car. An eyewitness gave the truck's license number to police. Constable W. A. Scott investigated.

Cecil Succee, 27, 181 River Rd. N., was driving west on Townsend St. when a car driven by Joe Bertrand, 32, 551 O'Connel Road, pulled out from the north curb, hiting Succee's car on the right fender and side. Constable Eldon McDonald investigated.

A hit-and-run accident Tuesday did slight damage to the car of Walter A. Griffin, 32, 746 Chesterfield Ave., which was parked on the east curb of Reid St., near Parkhill Rd. Constable W. A. Scott investigated.

Exhibition May Be Forced To Open In August To Get Desired Midway

Negotiations for a midway contract with Frank Conklin for the 1954 Peterborough Exhibition, which may have to be moved up into August again, were left to a special committee by the directors Tuesday night. Members of the committee are: Manson Cathcart, chairman, N. W. McConkey, John Kitney, Don Milburn, Harold Millen and Don McGillis. Mr. Cathcart reported to the board in its monthly meeting that Mr. Conklin discussed the prospect of the return of his midway show with members of the committee Tuesday afternoon.

Tentative dates open in the Conklin schedule for next summer and fall are August 10 to 14. If they were accepted, Peterborough Exhibition would be lifted to the earliest spot in the eastern Ontario circut, even ahead of Belleville.

50-MILE RADIUS

From the report it transpired that Lindsay has a contract with Conklins restricting their midway to a radius of 50 miles. That would continue to exclude Peterborough. However, it appears that Lindsay has kindly consented to permit the Conklin people to move into Peterborough next year if satisfactory arrangements can be agreed upon.

Appropriate to Remembrance Day may be the observation that during the war years Peterborough's fair grounds were occupied by the Canadian Army, while Lindsay carried on and waxed strong.

Twenty-two members of the Exhibition Board were present Tuesday night, with John Kitney, vice-president, chairman. President McConkey arrived a little late, but requested that Mr. Kitney carry on in the chair.

TWO OPPOSED

One of the first questions on which Mr. Kitney called for an indication of decision was the change to August dates. Mr. McConkey and Melville H. Johnston were the only members who stood for negative attitude.

"We have to keep in mind that our Exhibition is basically an agricultural affair, and that the grants we receive from the Ontario and federal governments are made to encourage agriculture," Mr. McConkey said. "From long experience we know that the weather around the middle of August can get pretty hot, and I'm wondering whether our livestock exhibitors would bring in their cattle and other stock in that heat.

"If they were not with us in a change of dates, we would be defeating the very purpose of the exhibition by moving back again to August."

There was no record of that division of the board, because the first motion by Mr. Cathcart and Mr. McGillis was withdrawn. It proposed the change of dates and further interview with Mr. Conklin.

WILL NEGOTIATE

Further discussion ended with a motion by Harold Millen and Reeve Dick Stewart that the Cathcart committee be authorized to negotiate further with Mr. Conklin for definite terms, and if possible, more favorable terms.

Lindsay Board Dictates Date Of Fair

LINDSAY (ENS)—Directors of the Lindsay Central Exhibition Tuesday had a meeting with Frank Conklin of the Conklin Shows, and decided to allow the Peterborough Exhibition to use a Conklin Midway Show at the 1954 Fair, providing the exhibition operates at least two to three weeks before the Lindsay Exhibition.

OPPOSED IDEA

At a meeting last week, directors voted to keep the Conklin midway in Lindsay but that further consideration would be given to Conklin's request to be allowed to go to the Peterborough Fair. The directors also asked Conklin to appear before the board to discuss the matter.

The question arose when Richard Butler, honorary director, notified the board that Conklin had contacted him, stating that the directors of the Peterborough Exhibition had approached him concerning his appearance at the Peterborough Exhibition in 1954. A good midway was deemed the only answer to the large deficits suffered by the Peterborough show this year.

The Lindsay board, however, has a contract with the Conklin Co., Bazaars Ltd., that no carnivals or other shows operated by the company will appear within a 50 mile radius of the town. The contract was signed earlier this year, and runs until 1965. Conklin asked for a quick answer.

Several members of the board asked for extra time to consider the problem, with a view to rewriting the contract, so that Conklin Shows might appear at Peterborough, but during a stipulated period of time, not too close to the Lindsay Exhibition week.

Other members were of the opinion that giving the company the right to show at Peterborough would make the rest of the contract null and void. Finally a vote was taken and the motion to prevent the shows from going to Peterborough Exhibition was carried in a closed vote. The board revised this decision Tuesday.

October Fires Cost City $22,800 Loss

Property valued at $22,800 was lost through fires in Peterborough during October. Of this total, $13,450 comprised buildings and $9,350 contents.

The three fires accounting for the loss were at the Lawrence Salvage Co., the Orange Hall, across from the Brock St. Arena, and one at the home of Leslie Rendell, 107 Aylmer St. on October 31.

The figures were given by Fire Chief William Sorrie in his monthly report to city council.

The department responded to 73 alarms during the month, 59 by telephone, one from a box and 11 sprinkler alarms. Of these alarms, 39 were answered during the day and 34 at night.

Equipment used consisted of 3,250 feet of 2½-inch hose, 800 feet of 1½-inch hose, 1,200 feet of ¾-inch hose, 14 booster tanks, 27 hand pumps, 188 square feet of tarpaulin, two gas masks and one Emerson inhalator. A total distance of 182.8 miles was travelled.

Drills and lectures were limited due to renovations at the central station. A drill was carried out by the central and substation October 18, on procedures of relaying water over long distances. The drill lasted three hours. Chiefs Sorrie and Longhurst attended. Two pumpers, nine volunteers and three regular firemen took part, using 2,500 feet of 2½-inch hose and 300 feet of 1½-inch hose.

There were 582 inspections during the month, 28 by Chief Sorrie and 554 by inspectors, including 10 re-inspections. The total includes the following during fire prevention week: schools—24; factories—33; Stores—31; hospitals and institutions—5; hotels—8; dwellings—3.

Pacific Paradise

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Yachtsmen returning from a cruise to remote Palmerston island in the South Pacific report the English spoken there is the same idiom as 100 years ago. An Englishman, William Masters, settled there in 1852, but the islanders have had practically no contact with the outside world since then.

Two Safes Broken Open At Omemee, Dale; $153 In Cash Taken

Police Checking To Determine If Both Jobs Done By Same Thieves
CNR Station, BA Depot Victims

Safe crackers were busy in this district after dark Tuesday night and early today. They broke into the office of the British-American Oil Co. Ltd. at Dale, blew the door off the safe, and escaped with $130 in cash. They also broke into the CNR station at Omemee and walked off with the safe containing $23 in cash and some cheques and money orders. OPP District Inspector Stringer said that police are checking on whether it was the same safe crackers who did both jobs.

The safe from the CNR station was found early today on Lot 3 of the 5th Concession of Emily township, three miles north of the station. Cash amounting to $23 and a few cents were missing; so were two cheques, totalling about $30.

ROLLED INTO DITCH

All the other cheques and money orders were found lying about the roadway and ditch where the safecrackers had broken open the steel box, two feet square, with a sledgehammer and pry bars. After the safe was broken open on the road it was rolled into the east ditch where it was found by a passerby early today.

The break-in was discovered after 7:30 a.m. when the section foreman arrived at the Omemee station. He notified Chief Constable Walter Stevens of Omemee who took charge of the investigation.

The gang broke open a window of the building, which is two blocks north of Highway 7, to get inside. Then they opened a door and carried out the safe. It was rolled down a nearby bank to the Omemee athletic field where a car was waiting.

Tire marks were noticeable in the mud of the field, and the ground was torn up where the safe was rolled down the bank toward it.

There was nobody at the railway station from the time Stationmaster Harold Bradley left Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. until 7:30 a.m. today.

Provincial Police from Peterborough and Lindsay assisted Chief Stevens in the investigation.

HAD THREE HOURS

At Dale the safecrackers had only a three-nour interval to do their job. The last man left the B-A gasoline depot, on Highway 7 just north of Port Hope, at 3 a.m. And the employees found the blown safe when tney came into the office at 6 a.m.

Here the safecrackers pried open a window to get in, then put explosives at strategic points in the safe door and blew it. They took only the $130 in cash and left some $3,000 in cheques.

For some reason they also took the door of the safe away with them. They escaped through a second window, this one out of sight of anybody on the highway.

They broke into the B-A yard by forcing a lock on the high wire fence at the north end of the property. Provincial police noticed some tire marks in the mud near the rear entrance.

Ald. Syd Black To Run For Second Term

Ald. Syd Black, chairman of the legal and reception committee of the 1953 council, today became the first of the five sitting aldermen whose terms expire this year to announce his intention to seek re-election in December.

Of the other four, Aldermen Pat Anglesey and John A. Dewart have not yet decided whether to run or not, while Aldermen H. S. Longhurst and T. D. Miller have told The Examiner that they would not make final decisions until the night of official nominations, November 27.

Ald. Black's announcement brings to five the number of those who have stated publicly that they intend to seek council membership. With five seats at stake, at least one more candidate is required to ensure an aldermanic contest. Mayor Hugh Waddell and ex-Ald. Norman Graham have both announced they intend to seek election to the mayoralty chair.

FOUR OTHERS

The four other candidates in the running so far are George W. Carphin, 51-year-old public accountant; Fred T. Tuggey, 72, a building contractor and ex-alderman; Jack C. Smith, 40-year-old armature winder at the CGE; William Triggs, 39, president of the United Packinghouse Workers at the Quaker Oats Co. and Glenn Price, 28-year-old linotype operator and president of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC).

ALD. SYD BLACK

Messrs. Price and Triggs have both been promised the support of the Trades and Labor Council, central body of the city's AFL unions, and of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL), central body of the CIO unions. Mr. Triggs is secretary of the Labor Council.

Born in Bermuda, Ald. Black, who is 62, moved to Toronto at the age of 17. He received his early education in Bermuda and attended technical school in Toronto.

He entered the typewriter business in 1912 and moved to Peterborough as a representative of the Remington typewriter company in 1923.

He formed his own agency in 1931 and later expanded his business into a full line of office equipment.

Mr. Black's success in business in Peterborough was one of the main reasons he entered municipal politics in 1951, when he was elected to a two-year term as alderman.

OWED SERVICE

"Peterborough has been good to me and I felt I owed some sort of service to the city in return," he told The Examiner today. "A lot of prominent businessmen urged me to run two years ago and they have urged me to run again."

Ald. Black said he had enjoyed his two years on council. The only thing he didn't like about it was the abuse heaped on council members by outsiders who were unwilling to take the responsibility of public office themselves.

"However, I guess that's part of the game," he commented.

During his first year on council, Ald. Black was president of the Peterborough Rotary club and was a member of council's parks and fire, water and light committees. This year he was named chairman of the legal and reception committee and is a member of every other committee except welfare and sanitation.

He is a member of the congregation of St. John's Anglican church and is a senior steward of the W. J. Dunlop lodge, AF. and AM. He is married to the former Gladys Graham of Peterborough.

Two other possible candidates for city council are Stanley McBride, a service station operator, and Gordon Powell, store manager. Both have been approached by friends asking them to run. Mr. Powell was an unsuccessful candidate in last year's election.

Has Document Smuggled From Russia

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Le Droit says a document smuggled out of Russia and possibly written by Stalin predicts the "disintegration of the capitalist bloc" and "inevitable conquest of the whole world" by the Soviet Union. It says the document estimates the possibility of a "sincere alliance" between Russia and the western world as "nil."

Le Droit said in a front-page story Tuesday it got the 800-word document handwritten in Russian from a man who abandoned his diplomatic post after his country elected a Communist regime. The man now lives in Canada and is an active anti-Communist.

Le Droit says it was told the document was smuggled out of Russia by an employee of Lavrenti Beria, former head of the secret police who recently disappeared and was accused by the Russian government of "plotting against the state." The employee supposedly reached Paris and circulated the document in the anti-Red underground in France and England.

The paper adds it has reason to believe the document is of "prime importance, coming from a high Red authoritative person, and possibly from Stalin himself."

Le Droit quotes the document as describing Mao Tse Tung, Chinese Communist leader, as the "outstanding Marxist of our time" and advising Russia to maintain "closest relationship" with him.

Subject Of Teeth Taboo Among Family Of Dentists

MONTREAL (CP)—With a family of dentists, one subject that's taboo at the dinner table is teeth. At least that is the rule at Mrs. Frank Mendel's home, and she dares not relax it for fear that the dinner would sound like a dental convention.

Her husband, Frank, is a dentist, and her three children, Anita, Jon and Berl all follow in their father's footsteps. This leaves Mrs. Mendel feeling slightly outnumbered.

Anita, the eldest of the Mendel children, is an orthodontist. She straightens irregular teeth or jaws, and is the only woman orthodontist in Montreal and one of few in Canada.

PUT HER FOOT DOWN

Referring to her mother's ruling about shop talk, Anita explains: "She tolerated it while I was a dental student. But when my brothers became dentists too, she thought it was time to put her foot down. Now we're apt to discuss a wide range of subjects. . . but seldom, seldom, teeth."

The two Mendel brothers share an office, and Anita and her father do likewise. She recalls, "I have a pet aunt who encouraged me to believe that a woman should make her own way in the world. I tried to follow her advice."

First, Anita considered a few other professions, then, with some encouragement from a close friend and her father, she decided to enrol in the McGill faculty of dentistry.

GRANDSON WORRIED

Her father suggested orthodontics, believing it would leave a woman more time to spend with her family.

In 1940 Anita married a Montrealer, Paul Billick, who was taking a course in aeronautical engineering. Today the Billicks have two small sons and a home in Rosemere, and travel back and forth to work together.

One of Anita's sons, worried about his grandmother's situation, once remarked: "Can't understand why granny isn't a dentist too. Everyone else is."

Say Unregulated Traffic Big Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — Unregulated highway traffic across provincial borders is a major problem of Canada's trucking industry, the Canadian Automotive Transportation Association was told Tuesday.

Concern over the inroads of unlicensed operators in this business was expressed in provincial associations' reports to the parent body of the country's organized truckers.

Much of the anxiety, reports indicated, stemmed from a "vacuum" in trans-border regulation resulting from a 1951 Supreme Court of Canada decision that this is a federal matter. The issue now is before the judicial committee of the Privy Council in London for final settlement.

The federal government has not yet said whether it plans to step into interprovincial and international control if it gets a go-ahead from the Privy Council, though it is expected to. The provincial truck associations expressed no opinions on this issue, but some of them suggested there should be trans-border regulation from some authority.

Republican Wins In California

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Republican Glenard P. Lipscomb, who carried the blessing of his party in Tuesday's four-way special election, won the vacant post of United States congressman.

His victory, conceded by Democrat George Arnold, bolsters the Republican majority in the House of Representatives, where the Republicans now hold 219 seats and the Democrats 215. An independent has the remaining seat.

The election was held to fill the one vacancy in the House. Republican Norris Poulson relinquished the seat when he was elected mayor of Los Angeles.

Arnold had his party's endorsement, but also in the race were another Democrat, Irving Markheim, and another Republican, John L. E. Collier.

NO DISCRIMINATION IN BALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Al Rosen, Cleveland Indians third baseman, said Tuesday that color and religion mean nothing in baseball. The only question baseball asks, Rosen said, is "can you produce?"

Speaking at the annual meeting of the National Conference of Caristians and Jews, Rosen noted that the Cleveland roster includes Roman Catholics, Protestants and Jews as well as Negroes, Cubans and Mexicans.

"We have no segregation," Rosen said. "There never are any questions about who rooms with whom. And you'll never find any discrimination among any of the players."

MCGREGOR QUITS TOUR

NEW YORK (CP)—Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles, national tennis champion in 1949, will replace Ken McGregor of Australia in the 1953-54 professional tour.

Others certain to make the tour, which opens in New York Jan. 3-4, are Frank Sedgman of Australia, and Pancho Segura of Ecuador and Forest Hills, N.Y.

✦ ✦ ✦

BASEBALL UNDER FIRE

LONDON (AP)—Emanuel Celler, New York Democratic congressman who investigated baseball in 1950, demanded Tuesday that baseball "clean house" or face repressive legislation.

Celler laid down a program for the major leagues to follow after hearing of the U. S. Supreme Court decision declaring professional baseball exempt from federal anti-trust laws because it is a sport.

In London en route to India to study refugee problems, he said: "First, the reserve clause must be softened. Binding a player for his entire baseball life, even against his will, is peonage. No contract should be for more than five years without mutual consent."

BELGIUM WINS FENCING

LONDON (AP)—Belgium won the fencing event of the six-country Brittania Shield sports competitive Tuesday with a total of 17 points in the sabre, foils and epee bouts.

Holland came in second with 15 points, Norway third with 12 and the RAF fourth with 10. The United States scored five points and the RCAF four.

The Brittania Shield competition is a sports meeting of European-based servicemen whose countries fought in the Battle of Britain during the Second World War.

RETURNS TO BALL

CHEPACHET, R.I. (AP) — Phil Paine, 23-year-old righthander who had a 2-0 record with Boston Braves in 1951, is out of the army and ready to resume his baseball career.

He said he planned to notify club officials in Milwaukee, to which the Braves transferred last year, of his status.

Military Adviser

BERLIN (AP)—The Northwest German radio said Tuesday night that former field marshal Fredrich Paulus has been named military adviser to the East Zone Communist government. Paulus, captured by the Russians when his 6th army surrendered at Stalingrad in February, 1953, returned to the Soviet zone of Germany two weeks ago after 10 years captivity.

Want Name

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—The Pakistan government publicly appealed Tuesday for suggestions for a proper name for the world's second highest mountain, the 28,250-foot K-2 in northern Kashmir. The mountain, which has never been scaled, has become internationally known as Godwin Austin, after an Indian government survey officer. However, this name has never been accepted officially.

New Railway Opened With Whoopee

LYNN LAKE, Man. (CP)—Even the weather trampling on the timetable couldn't subdue the nickel-plated whoopee surrounding the opening of the $15,000,000 Lynn Lake railway.

The cheers rang loud and clear as the town, new itself, turned out after a couple of false alarms to see the last spike driven on the Canadian National Railways line which starts at Sherridon, Man., and knifes north for 144 miles to the Lynn Lake townsite and copper and nickel mine.

Snow was sifting down as CNR president Donald Gordon drove in the last spike, forged from the first nickel to come from the new Sherritt-Gordon mine.

Eleven thumps later the spike was driven and the first passenger train rumbled over the track.

The ceremony took place Monday in a whirlwind three hours. It was scheduled for Saturday and the official party was going to fly in. But, when the ceiling came down and flying was out, it was postponed until Sunday. Still no flying, so the CNR assembled a special train. Actual construction was finished ahead of schedule.

Attempted Holdup Costs Gunman 5 Cents

TORONTO (CP)—An attempted holdup of a restaurant Tuesday night cost a gunman five cents.

After downing a $1.95 meal, the would-be robber tendered a $2 bill to the cashier. Then he pulled a pistol from his pocket and levelled it at her.

"This is it, sister," he said.

The cashier screamed.

The gunman lost his nerve and, without waiting to pick up his change, ran out of the restaurant.

Belleville Asks Deep Water Port

BELLEVILLE — Mayor A. McLean Haigh, in a letter to the local Chamber of Commerce, recommended the development of Belleville as a deep water port.

At present, Belleville and Trenton are served by boats drawing 14 feet or less.

Mayor Haigh poitned out that this shallow draught has resulted in higher freight rates for commodities delivered by ship to this city. The coal freight rate to Belleville is $1.30 a top, compared with 70 cents a ton for Kingston.

The mayor, a coal dealer, urged the removal of shoals in the Bay of Quinte so Belleville and Trenton might be put on a competitive basis with deep water ports.

Cotton Feet Suggested On Stockings

TORONTO (CP)—Women could avoid many foot troubles by choosing nylon stockings that have cotton feet, a foot expert says.

Dr. Norman Foote of Toronto, executive secretary of the Canadian Association of Chiropodists, said Monday at the association's convention:

"Nylon is an inert substance that is neither animal nor vegetable. Consequently, perspiration must lie on the surface of the foot without being absorbed when nylons are worn."

He said men should keep away from brightly colored socks.

"Colored socks can lead to fungus infections or athlete's foot. Impregnated with normal perspiration, deep dyes account for many of the foot infections found today.

"Active men, particularly, should stick to white, gray or fawn shades and avoid the brighter varieties."

DIANE CHILDERHOSE, born in Peterborough, is the ballerina at left front in this scene from Giselle by the National Ballet Company of Canada which will be performed here next Monday evening. For the first time in Peterborough the company will present two different and popular programs at St. Peter's auditorium next week.

Diane Childerhose Dancer In Ballet Appearing Here

A leading ballerina in the National Ballet Company, when it makes its first appearance in Peterborough next week, will be Peterborough-born Diane Childerhose.

Now in her third season with the company, Miss Childerhose dances practically every ballet in their fine repertoire of classics, modern classics and contemporary Canadian works, and she has appeared in virtually every performance the company has given, often dancing in every ballet on the program.

Born here in 1935, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hedley Childerhose she was attending Central School when the family moved to Montreal in '42. After the war they went to Toronto and she began studying ballet with Boris Volkoff and Janet Baldwin. In 1951 she left high school to join the National Ballet Company, then being formed, at the invitation of Celia Franca, artistic director.

It had always been Diane's idea to carve a career in showbusiness, and she had tried her hand at acting and musical comedy, as well as writing. She had studied dancing, not with any firm idea to become a dancer, but because she enjoyed it, and when she saw the opportunity to combine pleasure and business as a member of Canada's first fully professional ballet company, she accepted eagerly.

Miss Childerhose soon proved herself to be an exceptionally quick "study", and this talent has made her an understudy for many roles in addition to those she already dances.

Prior to joining the ballet company, her stage experience had included pantomimes, Promenade Symphony Concerts, the Dominion Ballet Festivals and films for the National Film Board, as well as local tours with the Volkoff group.

When she appears on the St. Peter's auditorium stage Monday and Tuesday evenings next, there will be in the audience aunts, uncles and cousins, and her grandmothers, Mrs. Hazel Herron and Mrs. M. E. Childerhose, all of whom live in Peterborough. Her mother will also be present.

MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Millbrook Home and School Association met Monday evening. In the absence of the president, Mrs. B. B. Dawson, who is ill in hospital, the meeting was conducted by Alex. Gilbert, past president. In opening, a minute silence was observed in memory of the war dead.

Mrs. Lyle Nattress, health convener, had planned the program which was announced by Mrs. Ed Nattress, Miss Elsie Raikes, local health office nurse introduced Dr. Charlotte Horner, medical officer of health for Durham and Northumberland counties. Dr. Horner told of the United Counties health unit. It serves 24 municipalities with their 63,000 inhabitants of which 8,000 are children. There are 6 health offices, the head one in Cobourg and one in Bowmanville, Port Hope, Brighton, Millbrook and Campbellford. Durham and Northumberland health unit was one of the first ones formed after the passing of the public health act in 1945. 50 per cent of funds comes from the counties and 50 per cent from the province. In 1952 the per capital cost was 64 cents.

Dr. Horner stressed the continued need for inoculations. Whooping cough disabled more children than polio and was a disease about which something could be done. Diphtheria and smallpox were now practically unhead of as o result of immunization. Tuberculosis was being brought under control as work with X-rays made it possible to recognize it earlier.

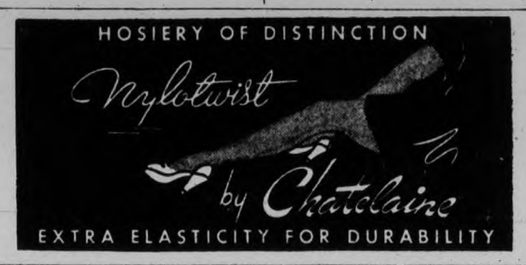
Among the health services received from the unit as well as classroom inspections, visits to homes, immunization programs were inspection of restaurants, milk control, advice given in installation of septic tanks, test of water supply, tests to see lighting in schools, adequate, and that toilet facilities were good.

In summing up Dr. Horner stressed five essentials to good health for children—a good breakfast, plenty of rest, early discovery and correction of defects, immunization kept up to date and regular dental care. A film on the life of Dr. Jenner was shown.

Before the second speaker, John James, federal member for Durham was announced, numbers were sung by Miss Yvonne Richards, accompanied by Miss Mabel Clarry, and by the members of the Bailieboro male quartet.

Mr. James told of his recent visit to United Nations headquarters in New York. He described Vishinsky as the best equipped most skilful debater, who was never at a loss for a retort. However much the American audience might disagree with his views, they were impressed by his skill. Madame Pandit was one of the few who did not wear western clothes, but her native Indian dress. Mr. James told of the colorful, ultra-modern buildings which housed the United Nations, and of the earphones with which by switching the dial you could hear the speech in any one of five different languages.

The speaker thought the people in the United States were much more war threat conscious than were Canadians. They had air raid drills and air raid shelters on the other side, and were perhaps more jittery than necessary. Canadians were better informed but perhaps a bit complacent. He felt each might learn something from the other.



Dr. Horner was thanked by Harry Williams and Mr. James by Mrs. W. W. Kennedy.

New comfortable metal chairs that nest together when not in use, given the school by Durham Area high school board, were used by the Association for the first time.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Wilfred Elson, social convener assisted by Mrs. Stewart Snelgrove, Mrs. Vincent Sanders, Mrs. D. R. Fowler, Mrs. Hector White, Mrs. Vincent Crough, Mrs. Alex Gilbert, Miss Diann Hogaboam, Mrs. Hugh Abbott, Mrs. Clifford Northey.

Foster Parents Seek News Of Korean Wards

About 50 Canadian families have added a small citizen of Korea to the family circle through the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children. The appeal for help for Korean child sufferers from the long and devastating war is meeting with encouraging response from Canadians.

Few of the families who are supporting Korean children have heard directly from their foster children yet. The unusual delay has caused some anxiety on the part of the foster parents. All parents have received a detailed case history and a snapshot of each child, but in most cases personal contact has not yet been established.

The reason for this is the extremely chaotic conditions of daily life in Korea where normal routines have not been re-established and life is geared to a state of emergency. Organizational problems are fast being solved, however, and it is sexpected that letters from the children in the original and in translation will shortly be dropping into Canadian mail boxes from coast to coast.

Now working under United Nations sponsorship in Korea, the Foster Parents Plan undertakes individual child-by-child care rather than mass relief. Each foster parent pays a monthly support fee of $15, which insures food, clothing, shelter, medical care, and schooling to the child under care.

General information about Korean children has also been sent along by field workers on duty in Pusan. Clothing is measured by age, rather than by size, and Korean children are larger than Japansese, and not much smaller than Canadians. Generally speaking, a size ten garment fits the average nine-year-old Korean.

One of the most important contributions foster parents' help will make is allowing the children to go to school. Theoretically, elementary school is free in Korea, but teachers' salaries are so low that parents must supplement them by paying a kind of extra cost-of-living bonus. The monthly cash grants coming from Canada will meet this expense, and many children will go to school for the first time as a result.

Scott-Lovelace

ROSENEATH (ENS) — Fall chrysanthemum interspersed with chrysanthemums interspread with ferns, formed a lovely setting Saturday in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville for a double ring marrage ceremony uniting Olive Marion Lovelace of Belleville daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. J. N. Lovelace. Roseneath, and Raymond Maxwell Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Scott of Frankford.

The ceremony was performed by the bride's father assisted by the Rev. S. E. Larman pastor of the church.

Mr. Clifford Templer, organist, rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Gerald Cherry, who sang preceding the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register "Because."

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Lloyd Bagshaw of Sunderland, the bride was charming in her gown of white silk velvet fashioned with fitted bodice pointed at the back and having a Queen Anne collar and full length tight fitting sleeves pointed at the wrists. The floor length full skirt in bustle effect ended in a chapel train.

Her full-length veil of tulle illusion bordered with silk braid was held in place by a matching Juliet cap accented by seed pearls and white feather tufts. She carried a cascade bouquet of white feathered mums and yellow roses.

Miss Bertha Lovelace, of Toronto, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was gowned in autumn rust silk velvet fashioned with full skirt and fitted halter top bodice and matching bolero, having a collar trimmed with seed pearls.

Miss Bernice Ashbury of Toronto, as bridesmaid, was in forest green silk velvet made on similar lines. Both wore matching mittens and hats with tufts of feathers, on the same style as the bride's. They carried bouquets of yellow and bronze mums with background of autumn leaves.

Mr. Bruce Parcels of Norwood, cousin of the groom, was groomsman. Harold Fralick of Napanee, and Robert Acker, cousins of the bride and groom, were ushers.

The reception for 70 guests was held in the church parlors.

The bride's mother received, gowned in a taupe crepe with brown accessories and pink rose corsage. She was assisted by the groom's mother, wearing navy cessories and corsage of pink sheer with white and navy acroses. Guests were from Kemptville, Lindsay, Roseneath, Frankford, Toronto, Springbrook, Napanee, Back, Trenton, Norwood, Sunderland and Roseneath.

For the wedding trip to the Adirondacks, New York City, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, the bride chose an English grey flannel suit with matching stole light brown accessories and yellow rose corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Scott will live in Belleville on return.

Princess Irene Dies In German Town

DARMSTADT, Germany (AP) — Princess Irene of Prussia, 87, sister of Ernst Ludwig, last grand duke of Hesse, died at Hemmelmark near Kiel today.

Her husband, Prince Albert Wilhelm Henry, who died in 1945, was a brother of Kaiser Wilhelm II.

Eliz. Parker Aux. Studies Facts On Illiteracy

That two-thirds of the world is still illiterate, was the startling fact brought out in a skit "Much Ado About Literacy" given Monday evening in Trinity Church parlor by a group at the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary meeting.

Miss Olive Marshall represented Mrs. Stone, the missionary in Japan, and Miss Jean Armstrong represented Mrs. Collins, the missionary in Angola, chatting with Miss Bailey, a WMS member represented by Miss Catherine Hodgens.

Miss Bailey related the story of Dr. Frank Laubach, a missionary in the Philippine Islands who, when he learned that two-thirds of the world was still illiterate, felt that there was no excuse for such illiteracy, and set out to help teach the world to read, and by using a short-cut method of his own, he proved that he could teach a thousand a month.

Mrs. Stone pointed out the fact that the art of knowing how to read is lost if there is nothing to read, and explained that suitable reading material is a very real problem. She told of Christian leaders in Japan writing, translating and printing Christ-centred literature.

Mrs. Collins also told of how all hands were being kept busy helping Dondi press in Afriea to roll out more books and papers for hundreds of excited new literates.

The worship service under the theme "The Church—The Body of Christ" was shared by Mrs. W. A. Davidson and Mrs. H. Frost.

The brief business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. F. W. Horton, and she also gave a brief report of the WMS sectional rally at Keene, which she attended. Mrs. Charles Taylor submitted the report of the nominating committee.

A delicious lunch was served by the committee in charge, under the leadership of Mrs. Frost and Mrs. Davidson.

Predict Comeback Of The Wool Bathing Suit In '54

By JAMES BACON

LOS ANGELES (AP)—That relic of the Charleston era—the bloomer girl in a wool swim suit—may make her comeback on the beach next year.

Though swim suit makers now preach a trend away from nudity at the seashore, they'll never make the Bikini unpopular. That was demonstrated Monday at a preview of the 1954 California suits which showed more bloomers than a 1925 YWCA volleyball tournament.

The occasion was opening day of the third annual Press Week of the California fashion creators. Some 50 leading woman fashion editors attended.

The lone Bikini model stopped the show for the lone males—one reporter and two photographers. But an unheard-of rebellion in this citadel of cheesecake prevented any picture-taking of the Bikini.

Shirley Tegge, the blonde model who displayed the brief attire, said:

"I have a husband and a job. It's more important that I keep the husband."

The manufacturer's spokesman merely said:

"We don't expect this suit to sell in Boston, but we have plenty of orders from France."

WOOL WILL BE RAGE

Gantner of California predicted that the wool suit will make the big beachwear news of 1954.

This mild sensation came after a day's showing of many don't-go-near-the-water suits in brocades, chiffons, velvets and laces.

Rosemary Reid also came up with a version of the bloomer in doubloon panties that looked like something out of an Errol Flynn costume picture. And with jewels yet.

Wife Be Glad To See Mate Hopes Army Changed Him

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm the 26-year-old wife of a soldier who has been in Korea for 17 months, and is due home soon. Before he went away I knew I didn't love him, but thought the separation would change my feelings. It hasn't! He's a dependent person, has always shunned responsibility, and puts off any suggestion that we have children. Now that he's coming home, I know I'll be glad to see him, but I can't convert this gladness into love. There's no one else as far as I, at least, am concerned.

Millicent L.

GIVE MATE A CHANCE

ANSWER: There's always the chance that the Army may have endowed your man with the sense of responsibility he lacked. If he returns with the same ideas he carried away with him, and you still feel that your marriage won't work out, a separation would be better than continued living under strained circumstances. But do give him a chance, first. Seventeen months is a long time, and life in the service can effect great changes.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 13, and I guess I'm boy crazy. The only way I can go out with boys, though, is when I am accompanied by my 15-year-old sister and her beau. I've only been out with one boy, but I did flirt once with a boy at a church supper. Do you think it's wrong to flirt under those circumstances? What about sitting in cars with boys?

A. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Practically every female adolescent goes through a boy-crazy stage; with you it came a bit early. There's absolutely nothing wrong about a healthy interest in the opposite sex; the things to remember are your parents' rules about dating, which must be observed at all costs—going with the right kind of boys, and not being too obvious in your pursuit of them. If you are so anxious to keep a good name, stay out of parked cars; in fact, at your age it's a good idea to stay out of cars! Ask your sister or mother for more dating lore, and if they aren't too sure themselves, write me for a list of booklets which will guide you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Is a discussion among teen-agers last night, one boy said he didn't believe in love at first sight. Do you believe in it?

B. S.

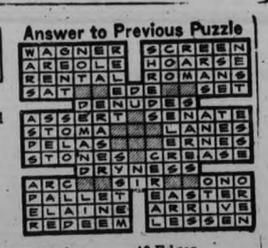
✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Only a confirmed cynic would deny the existence of love at first sight. It can happen, it does happen, every day. The trouble is, however, that not all emotion diagnosed as love at first sight really turns out to be the real article. Infatuation, physical attraction, passing interest, all masquerade under the guise of love at first sight. It takes time to tell whether it is real.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Our 20-year-old daughter is working, but she spends every penny she earns on clothes and entertainment. I told her she ought to save some money so that she can have a nice wedding. She says it's up to the parents to give her a big wedding. We have six other children. Am I wrong in expecting her to save money, or are we supposed to pay everything

MRS. T.



✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: In your financial position it certainly is up to your daughter to save some of her earnings for her wedding. In fact, she should be contributing something each week toward the household expenses. That's a responsibility you should have enforced from the beginning. Then you could have saved some of this money for the Big Occasion. Let her know, beyond all shadow of doubt, that all you can handle is a small affair.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Irish Stew With Dumplings On Special-Purpose Menu

Irish Stew with Dumplings
Celery Hearts
Pumpkin Chiffon Pie Coffee.

At various places in Canada, meat-price-wars are raging. My butcher — he is peaceful — so I'm paying same old too-high prices. That's the why of this stew. I could have had stewing beef for 35 cents per pound; or veal breast for 33 cents; or mutton shoulder ("yearling lamb") for 49 cents per pound. I wanted a genuine Irish stew, so I bought the mutton, which turned out to be very young mutton.

I am going into the details of making this stew because there are too few cooks—particularly our young ones—who know how to make a high-class stew. Your stew should and can be choice enough to be served with pride to your guests.

IRISH STEW WITH DUMPLINGS

(Serves 8 generously.)

Buy 3 lbs. stewing mutton, preferably shoulder (or stewing beef or veal may be used). Cut it into 1-inch cubes. Roll in flour to which you have added salt and pepper and brown it in 3 tablespoons hot fat in heavy kettle, such as a Dutch oven or pressure cooker. When pieces of meat are browned on all sides, cover meat with boiling water, put on lid and simmer about 1½ to 2½ hours. If meat is nearly tender in 1½ hours, add these vegetables: One cup each cut up carrots, turnips or celery, 1 cup whole tiny peeled onions or cut up onions, 3 or 4 cups cubed potatoes, ¼ teaspoon marjoram, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, ¼ teaspoon thyme. Simmer 30 minutes. This needs no thickening when you add.

DUMPLINGS (Double these quantities if you are terrifically fond of dumplings). Sift together 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt. Quickly stir in ¾ cup milk. Drop by spoonfuls onto meat pieces in simmering stew—making dumplings of a size so that there is one for each person to be served. Cover and cook about 12 to 15 minutes without peeking. Carefully lift dumplings out and arrange around outside edge of platter. Arrange stew and vegetables attractively in centre. Garnish between meat and dumplings with celery leaves or parsley.

For a variation and to give the stew a darker hue, add 2 teaspoons soy sauce. Or for richer flavor add 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate.

PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE

I ate this made with a ginger cookie crust. You should try it: Mix ½ cup butter or margarine melted into 1¼ cups finely rolled gingersnap crumbs. Pat and press these into sides and bottom of 9-inch pie plate evenly. Bake 10 minutes at 325 deg. Fahr. and cool.

For filling, soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in ¼ cup cold water for five minutes. Mix together ¾ cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger and allspice (allspice may be omitted if you do not like dark strong spicing), 1⅓ cups canned pumpkin, 3 large egg yolks, ½ cup milk, and when they are well blended cook over low heat stirring until it boils. Remove from heat and stir in soaked gelatin. Cool. When this is partially set beat until smooth. Make a meringue of 3 large egg whites and ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar by beating until stiff then gradually beating in 6 tablespoons sugar until very stiff. Carefull fold the pumpkin mixture into this meringue and pile in cooled ginger cookie crust. Chill until firmly set. Different garnished with unsweetened whipped cream and little shred of candied ginger.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber (Mother of 5)

Baby able to sit up and take notice? Starting to creep . . . trying to stand? If so, here are a couple of golden "growing up" rules to follow:

1. Let baby amuse himself more. When he's in his play pen, go to him only when he needs a change or cries legitimately.
2. Schedule certain periods of the day when he can join the family circle. Let him know he can definitely share in group activity.

• • •

Accepted with pleasure. There will be mighty few rejections on baby's part when you serve Gerber's Strained Fruits. Smiles just naturally come to the surface at the first spoonful. Because Gerber's Strained Fruits have such tempting true colors, such true-fruit flavors. Alone or as a topping for baby's cereal they'll hit the spot for many a tot. Your choice of 8 varieties.

• • •

Just desserts. For you and dad: Gerber's Fruits make a swell sauce for ice cream. (If you're watching your waistline, that means far less calories than fudge sauce.)

• • •

"Good Neighbor" Policy. If you have a friend or neighbor with young children why not arrange to be sitters for each other? You'll increase your free time (for free) and also increase your knowledge of child care by minding tots other than your own.

• • •

New Babies usually have Vitamin C added as soon as they're happily established on milk or formula. Important facts to remember about Gerber's new strained Orange Juice: it has a guaranteed Vitamin C value . . . is easily digested . . . extra-finely strained for bottle-feeding. Important to baby —Gerber's Orange Juice has a natural fresh-fruit flavor.

6—In Memoriam

LASHBROOK—In loving memory of a dear husband and dad, Albert Lashbrook, who passed away suddenly, November 11, 1948.
There's a road they call remembrance
Where thoughts and wishes meet
We take that road in thought today
To one we cannot greet.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by wife, Jean and family.

SWAN—In loving memory of Mrs. Nicholas J. Swan, who passed away November 11, 1930.
We do not forget her, we love her too dearly
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream,
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
—Always remember by daughters, Rose and Pearl.

SANDERSON—In loving memory of Ellen Sanderson, who passed away Nov. 11, 1947.
"Thy will be done" seems hard to say,
When one we loved has passed away,
Some day perhaps we'll understand,
When we meet again in that better land.
—Sadly missed by son Arnold, Margaret and Arline.

SANDERSON—In loving memory, Mrs. Wellie Sanderson, who passed away six years ago today.
May the wind of heaven blow gently
On that quiet and hallowed spot,
Where the ones we loved is sleeping,
And will never be forgot.
—Ever remembered by daughter Florence and family.

7—Card of Thanks

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to nurses and staff of Civic Hospital, attending doctor, all kind friends and relatives who sent cards, flowers, loaned cars and helped in any way during our sudden bereavement.—Mrs. Rosebush and family.

Exhibition May

A suspicion pervaded the board that the Lindsay agreement is still a factor in the proposed midway deal. That they exercise the gimmick. Some of the members are inclined to believe that Lindsay apparently can even dictate the dates of the Peterborough Exhibition, at least that they can hold Conklins to showing in Peterborough at least three weeks ahead of Lindsay.

The humiliating position more or less identified in the assumptions and rumors about the Lindsay dictation and dependence on Conklins was reflected in a comment by Mr. McGillis.

LACKED ONLY MIDWAY

"I was fully satisfied that we had one of the finest exhibitions anywhere this year," Mr. McGillis recalled . . . He ticked off the number and quality of the cattle, horses, sheep, swine, the horse races, attractions, the commercial exhibits and so on. "But we didn't have the kind of midway the crowd evidently wanted. We had everything else, so it must be the midway we were lacking."

Reeve Dick Stewart said that Conklins had so advertised their carnival show that even if it were not so good as some competitor's, the crowd would prefer Conklin.

Bernard and Barry, another carnival show outfit that have had several years' engagements here, wrote for interview and dates, but nothing much was said about their enquiry.

Fianciers on the board were saying that Lindsay directors have no check on the Conklin "take" according to some reported statement from one of the members.

CONTROL CONCESSIONS

One of the Conklin terms, offered to the local committee Tuesday, was control of all the outdoor concessions. The directors would also have to pay the electric bill. The midway people would make their levy for power on any of the concessionaires outside their own family.

Those are a few of the details of the proposed deal. As to the midyaw receipts some one said that was carnival show practice generally, and you take it or leave it.

Conklins are reported to have admitted that they took more money out of Peterborough than they ever got in Lindsay, that they would like to come in with the Exhibition again, but they have contracted booking with various places including Belleville and Lindsay.

Don Milburn said he did not like the idea of advancing the Exhibition into the second week of August. Some of the factories were still on holidays, farm work was not complete and there was the factor of midsummer heat.

Reeve Stewart remarked that mid-September has its weather hazards, associated with the equinoctial storms.

The boards conversations Tuesday night stressed their difficulties of securing dates, largely caused by the upset in their affairs during the war years when the show was cancelled.

CARS POPULAR

Frank Savigny, a veteran director, said bluntly that "we had the biggest crowds and made the most money when we were selling tickets for a draw on cars.'

Even with the dates the directors had chosen in the pre-war period with Conklin midway, top grandstand show, and all the rest, Mr. Savigny recalled from his long experience during the Tom Brown and Rollie Denne presidencies that the cars were the best drawing cards.

CUTTING THE CAKE that decided whether or not Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler (above) would celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. The cake was the gift of a friend, James Dutton Jr. More than 120 guests were received by the couple Tuesday afternoon, including their son, the Rev. G. W. B. Wheeler and his wife, of Toronto.

Couple 50 Years Married Cake Received As Gift

An unexpected gift of a golden wedding anniversary cake, decided the issue as to whether Mr. and Mrs. William Wheeler would officially celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Wheeler, who has been in poor health for some time, was asked by his former employer, James Dutton of Wonder Break Bakeries, if he was celebrating the event. He didn't think that his wife and he would, but when a large cake arrived at their home, 675 Stewart St., there was nothing left but to go ahead.

And as it turned out, it was a a wise choice. More than 120 friends called on the couple and many gifts were left in token of their friendship.

The couple, both natives of Peterborough, were married in All Saints' Anglican church, November 10, 1903. The church at that time was a small mission building and the minister was the Rev. L. Armitage.

Mrs. Wheeler was the daughter of Earnest McCabe and Mary Shields. Her father had been foreman of the Examiner press room for some 20 years. She was one of five children and the only girl. Two of her brothers served in The First World War, one dying in action and the other some time later as a result of wounds received in France.

Mr. Wheeler, was the son of George Wheeler and Jane Byers. He was employed at the Wonder Bread Bakeries unil his retirement.

Their only son, the Rev. G. W. B. Wheeler visited the couple on Tuesday. He resides in Toronto where he is rector of St. Simon's Anglican Church. He is also a padre at Sunnybrook Hospital and at the RCAF officer's quarters. His wife, a former English war bride, was also present for the celebration.

Dome is the third largest mine in the area.

Meanwhile, progress was reported in union talks with officials of Hollinger Consolidated gold mine held here Tuesday.

Duke Enjoys Some Shooting

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen left Buckingham Palace today by car to join the Duke of Edinburgh at their country home at Sandringham, Norfolk.

The duke went there Tuesday, hoping for some shooting before they leave for Australia and New Zealand 12 days from now.

Prince Charles and Princess Anne remained in London, where it was announced today that Miss Catherine Peebles, a brown-haired Scotswoman in her 30s, has been chosen to give the prince his first instruction in the three Rs.

Charles will be five next Saturday. His lessons are expected to begin in the next two weeks.

For the last five years Miss Peebles has been attached to the household of the Duchess of Kent, the Queen's aunt by marriage. She was governess to the young Duke of Kent, now undergoing army training, and last year acted as companion to his sister, Princess Alexandra.

Strong Minded Women Bow To Dictates Male Milliner

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Many a wife today knows more about baseball, politics and the stock market than her husband.

But she has to tip her hat to him in one field, he is likely to be a better judge of women's fashions.

This view is firmly held by Mr. John P. John, the noted milliner whose clan for four generations has been telling the world's beauties what kind of clothing they look best in.

"Men have basically sounder fashion tastes than women, because they are more interested in the women themselves than the things they put on their backs or atop their heads," he said. "They know when a style looks right on the woman they love, and when it doesn't."

That is why "Mr. John" likes wives to bring their husbands along on shopping safaris t his gilded white-and-gold hat palace on New York's east side.

"Men like women to wear a hat with a clean, simple, uncluttered line," said John, who hates gadget hats himself. The bane of his life is a lady customer who yearns for what he calls "memory or headache hats."

"Maybe when she first met her husband she was wearing an ornate baby blue hat with baby blue tulle, and she wants another just like it," John said, shuddering.

"I can't tell her she's too old for that kind of monstrosity. I just tell her I'm 20 years too old to design one. It's wrong to go around wearing fashion memories."

John bosses his feminine clientele with an imperious air that amazes and rather awes their husbands who aren't accustomed to seeing strong-minded women bow meekly to any male decision.

The 45-year-old designer has 200 employees, grosses better than $2,000,000 a year, but designs every hat himself, working always from a living model. He designs every day, can turn out a new one in five minutes.

"I've designed between 15,000 and 20,000 good hats in the last 20 years," he said modestly. Somehow you don't ask, "and how many bad ones?"

John's dark hair is plastered down as if he had just come in out of the rain. He combs it that way because it adds to his striking resemblance to Napoleon, his hero.

"Napoleon personally designed the hats for some of his troops," he said. "They were quite good. Very dashing—quite bravado."

John is a custom milliner who lives in a penthouse, mixes socially with his elite clientele, and is sorry housewives and stenographers can't afford his hats. They range from $65 to $500.

Family Reunion Near Tragedy

REDBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — A sawed-off rifle in the hands of five-year-old Robin Chester turned a family reunion into near tragedy Tuesday.

Liberal Prime Minister Sat To Right Of Throne In 13 Out Of 22 Openings

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberals start their 19th consecutive year of control in the House of Commons when Governor-General Massey opens the 22nd Parliament Thursday.

At 13 of these opening ceremonies a Liberal prime minister has sat to the right of the throne. The Conservative party has controlled the Commons at eight openings in the 86 years since Confederation, the last in 1930. The 13th Parliament was opened under Sir Robert Borden's Unionist administration during the First World War.

The Conservatives won the first general election in Canada in 1867 and repeated in 1872, 1878, 1887, 1891, 1911 and 1930. The Liberals were winners in 1874, 1896, 1900, 1904, 1908, 1921, 1925, 1926, 1935, 1940, 1945, 1949 and 1953.

BIG MAJORITY

The new session starts with the Liberals holding 170 of the 265 seats. The Progressive Conservatives have 50 CCF 23, Social Credit 15, and there are three Independents, two Independent Liberals, and one Liberal-Labor member. Only vacancy in the House is Peel, because of the death of Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative. A by-election may be held early next year.

The new Parliament starts with Prime Minister St. Laurent leading the Liberal party. Observers say they do not believe the 71-year-old Quebec lawyer will stay in office for the life of Parliament, and that a leadership convention expected to be four or five years, will be called before the next election.

Mr. St.. Laurent is the fourth Liberal prime minister. He was appointed Nov. 15, 1948, succeeding Mackenzie King. Mr. St. Laurent led his party to victory in the 1949 general election and again this year.

The other Liberals were Alexander Mackenzie, from Nov. 7, 1873, to Oct. 16, 1878, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, from July 11, 1896, to Oct. 6, 1911.

TORY GOVERNMENTS

The Conservatives have had eight prime ministers since Confederation: Sir John A. Macdonald, 1867, 1873 and 1878-1891; Sir John Abbott, 1891, 1892; Sir John Thompson, 1892, 1894; Sir Mackenzie Bowell, 1894-1895; Sir Charles Tupper, 1897-1896; Sir Robert Borden, 1911- 1917; Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, 1926, and R. B. (later Viscount) Bennett, 1930-1935.

Sir Robert Borden also headed the Unionist government from Oct. 12, 1917, to July 10, 1920, and Mr. Meighen the same type of government from July 10, 1920 to Dec. 29, 1921.

Mr. Meighen is the only living former prime minister of Canada.

The success of Mr. King and Mr. St. Laurent at the polls is the main reason for the small number of Liberal prime ministers.

Mr. King was prime minister from Dec. 29, 1921, to June 28, 1926; from Sept. 25, 1926, to Aug. 7, 1930; and from Oct. 23, 1935, to Nov. 15, 1948.

Since Confederation 25 parties or splinter groups have been represented in Parliament. However, the bulk of members in every Parliament has been Liberal or Conservative.

Until 1896 only the Liberals and Conservatives were represented in the Commons. In that year seven Independents were elected.

All Provinces Observing 35th Remembrance Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The blood-red poppies, the crosses, the flags, the cenotaphs with the names of men who fought and died, the two minutes' silence, the Last Post, the hymns and the prayers—all will be part of the observance today as Canadians once again mark Remembrance Day, the 35th since the guns fell silent at the end of the First World War.

The nation's remembrance will include the fallen of the First and Second World Wars and of the Korean conflict.

Remembrance Day church parades were held last Sunday in most provinces, a Canadian Press survey showed. Ceremonies are scheduled in nearly every community today, with religious, military and government leaders taking part.

In Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, Nov. 11 is a statutory holiday.

Banks, schools and government offices, stock exchanges and livestock markets are closed in most other provinces.

Traditional observances in Ottawa centre at the national war memorial. Governor-General Vincent Massey, Prime Minister St. Laurent and Dr. C. B. Lumsden of Wolfville, N.S., president of the Canadian Legion, will be among those to place wreaths.

Veterans, active and reserve units of three services and cadets will parade to the war memorial.

In Newfoundland Nov. 11 is a general holiday with services in small communities conducted at simple crosses of remembrance in local cemeteries.

At some border points in New Brunswick and the state of Maine residents of both countries will join observances.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

Business will go on as usual in Quebec City. A large parade, including cadets of the new College Militaire Royal de St. Jean, Que., was held last Sunday when Lieutenant-Governor Fauteux took the salute.

In Montreal 2,000 veterans, permanent and reserve forces will gather at the cenotaph in Dominion Square. In addition to the armed services and service organizations some 200 individuals are expected to place wreaths at the cenotaph. Banks will be closed in Montreal but most stores will remain open.

Services by various regiments and organizations started at Toronto's cenotaph on Nov. 6.

SERVICES, PARADES

Winnipeg will hold church services and parades in the morning. In the afternoon the Western Canada football final between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Edmonton Eskimos will be played.

In Regina emphasis has been placed on raising funds for veterans. Three public services will be held: A church parade at Holy Rosary Cathedral, a wreath-placing service at the cenotaph and a special Remembrance Day service in the Regina Armory.

Lieutenant-Governor J. J. Bowlen of Alberta is scheduled to take the salute at Edmonton's cenotaph.

In addition to Vancouver's cenotaph service members of the Vancouver Yacht Club will remember their dead comrades by sailing to sea to place wreaths on the water. "Tobin's Tigers," headed by Col. H. S. Tobin, DSO, will take part in ceremonies. All veterans of the First World War, they were recruited in Vancouver.

Services in Victoria will be held at the legislative building.

Artillery Officer Awarded DFC

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian artillery officer who braved enemy fire in a light plane to direct artillery bombardments in Korea has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The award to Capt. Peter Joseph Angwyn Tees, 30, of Vancouver, was announced in London.

Defence headquarters here said he is believed to be the first Canadian Army officer to receive the DFC—traditionally an air force decoration for gallantry—since the First World War. In those days army personnel were attached to the Royal Flying Corps.

Capt. Tees, a Royal Canadian Artillery pilot, was attached to the RAF with the 1st Commonwealth Division in Korea.

Piloting Auster aircraft, he directed gun fire for divisional and corps artillery in 453 shoots against enemy troop concentrations, bunkers, vehicles and gun emplacements. He flew a total of 364 hours in 185 sorties.

NO LET-UP IN DEFENCE MASSEY SAYS

Jet Fighters Guard North

TORONTO—(CP)—Jet Fighters will soon guard strategic points in Canada's northland as part of an air defence system designed to stop any air attack, Air Marshal C. R. Slemon said Wednesday. The air marshal, chief of air staff, said the defence system will go into operation in the next few months. Planes whose courses were unknown to defence stations would be picked up on radar and run the risk of jet interception. "Radar stations and fighter squadrons are located, so far as we can best determine, to counter the best avenues of attack on the North American continent," he said in a talk to the Electric Club of Toronto.

He indicated he favors creation of a Canadian bomber force.

The primary agent of air power — a bomber force — is missing from the RCAF peacetime organization. Canadian peacetime economy has so far necessitated this, with the result that our more powerful partners, the RAF and the USAF, are providing this vital element of our combined power.

"It remains to be seen whether and to what extent the RCAF too will participate in the bomber force."

Announced defence department policy so far has made no provision for a bomber force.

Air Marshal Slemon served in Britain during the Second World War as senior air staff officer of the all-Canadian No. 6 bomber group. Toward the end of the war he was named to lead a projected RCAF bomber offensive in the Pacific.

RADAR PROTECTION

The air marshal also said Canada air defence network of radar stations and ground control centres will go into full operation within the next few months. Improperly identified planes blundering into the radar web will run the risk of jet attack.

Eisenhower Plans To Make Good Neighbor Ottawa Trip

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Eisenhower leaves late today on a "good neighbor" trip to Ottawa for discussion of mutual problems—such as continental defence—with top Canadian officials. Trade problems also are expected to be high on the list. The president will be accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower, Ambassador and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge and a small staff of White House aides. Lodge is chief of the United States' mission to the United Nations.

The president told his press conference Wednesday that he is going to Canada to pay his respects to the Canadian people. His address to Parliament Saturday would deal with matters of common interest to the U.S. and Canada.

SOCIAL SIDE

Eisenhower will be the guest of Governor - General Massey and Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The calendar of Eisenhower's activities in Ottawa Friday and Saturday is mainly on the social side, but aides said the president also plans to review Canadian-American relations in private talks.

Although Lodge is accompanying the president, these aides said UN matters and other global problems probably would take second place to discussion of North American affairs.

In that category is continental defence, including the radar screen along the northern edges of the

Truman Declines Honor Supboena

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former president Truman has declined to honor a subpoena to appear before the House of Representatives un-American activities committee, a highly placed congressional source said today.

This word came immediately after Chairman Harold Velde (Rep. Ill.) had announced the indefinite postponement of Friday's scheduled appearance of Truman before the committee in its projected inquiry into the Harry Dexter White case.

The source reporting Truman's refusal to obey the subpoena issued by Velde said the former president based it on the doctrine of the separation of powers in government — that the legislative branch has no authority over the executive branch.

Velde's announcement of a postponement removed the immediate possibility of a showdown on the issue of whether the ex-president had to comply with the subpoena to tell of his actions in the White case seven years ago.

Have Potential Buyer For Father's Eyes

HAMILTON (CP)—Bruce Martin 36-year-old Toronto janitor who offered to sell his eyes for $10,000 to raise money for a house, has a potential buyer in Hamilton.

John Dumont, an operator of a furnace business, said Wednesday night he needs the cornea of an eye to improve his failing sight.

"It is a nerve condition," he said. "Doctors told me if someone would donate the cornea of an eye, an operation might prove successful."

Dumont said he doesn't know how much an eye would cost but thinks he could raise enough money to buy one.

Martin is the father of six children now living in a garage. He has been ordered to move out by Saturday.

100 Nights Of Torture

Fellow Convicts Burn, Beat Young Prisoner, 17

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP)—A 17-year-old youth was taken Wednesday from a cell block at the Niagara county jail where, he said, other prisoners had been beating and burning him regularly for 100 nights.

Theodore Lear said the other prisoners thought he was a "stool pigeon." He said he had tried to prove by his silence that he was not.

Lear was put in the cell Aug. 2 after his arrest on a burglary charge.

Sheriff Henry E. Becker said a physician found deep cigarette burns, some almost healed, on the youth's chest, legs, arms and soles of his feet.

ALSO BRUISED

William H. Earl, assistant district attorney, said Lear also was bruised on the legs, thighs and upper arms.

"In addition, other indignities too gruesome to mention were perpetrated on this boy," Earl said.

Earl said the boy apparently never screamed loud enough for jailers to hear.

"The jailer makes a complete check every morning and asks the men about complaints of any type," Earl added. "Lear never made any mention of the treatment he was undergoing."

Will Continue Colombo Aid House Told

Throne Speech Says Housing Program Likely Expanded

OTTAWA (CP)—Continuation of Canada's defence buildup at its present level was forecast today in the speech from the throne opening the 22nd Parliament.

The speech, read by Governor-General Vincent Massey, gave a general outline of government policy and intended legislation for the coming session.

On defence, the speech said: "Much remains to be done before there can be a permanent and durable peace in the world. My ministers therefore consider it would be unwise for the free nations to slacken our efforts to build up and maintain the necessary strength to deter aggression and they intend to continue to work to that end."

Canada's defence budget last year was $2,000,000,000, roughly half of entire government expenditures.

FAVOR AID TO OTHERS

On international affairs, the speech said Parliament will be asked to approve further assistance for relief and rehabilitation, for technical assistance to underdeveloped countries and for continued participation in the Colombo Plan to assist development in south and southeast Asia.

The government previously had indicated in the United Nations its willingness to increase technical assistance from $800,000 this year to $1,500,000 in 1954. Canada has put $75,000,000 into the Colombo Plan in the last three years.

HOPE PEACE STAYS

On Korea the speech said: "We have every reason for satisfaction that through the use for the first time of collective police action the objective of the United Nations in Korea has been substantially achieved. The aggressors have been driven back, the fighting has ceased and an armistice has been concluded. My government earnestly hopes that a political conference will umtimately succeed in restoring peace in Korea."

On NATO: "The Alliance of the North Atlantic nations has been

Hoping No Delay In Start Of Seaway

OTTAWA (CP)—Hope that a start on the St. Lawrence seaway will not be delayed by opponents' lawsuits in the United States was expressed today in the speech from the throne read at the opening of Parliament.

The speech, read by Governor-General Vincent Massey, noted that the New York state power authority has been given a licence to share with Ontario in development of the power part of the project.

"It is hoped that litigation in the United States will not have the effect of delaying the construction of the project," the speech added.

Three U. S. groups have filed court appeals against the New York licence. The U. S. administration has asked the courts to complete the hearings as quickly as possible.

Has Solution Halt Tornadoes

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A guided missile may some day be fired into the roaring heart of a tornado and save a city like Waco, Tex., from such damage and death as were left there last spring.

Dr. Fritz O. Rossmann, a German physicist and meteorologist brought to the United States by the air force six months ago, has opened the door to tornado destruction through a new theory that contradicts a 50-year-old idea about tornado behavior.

Col. Rollins H. Mayer, electronic scientist at the air force missile test centre in Florida, where Rossmann is working, says the theory makes possible a national tornado-damage "prevention net" capable of saving millions of dollars and thousands of lives.

Rossmann claims there is a terrifically-powerful down-draft in the funnel of a tornado—not an updraft as has long been believed.

His plan is to pinch off this funnel from the cloud that is feeding it its destructive, whirling, down-draft power. He thinks a guided missile exploded in the air mass overhanging the funnel will do the job.

Concedes Win In Election To Magsaysay

MANILA (AP)—A blacksmith's son who only ten years ago was an unknown guerrilla captain battling Japanese invaders of the Philippines has become this island republic's third president.

Ramon Magsaysay, to millions of Filipinos, is a knight whose shining armor is a bright sport shirt and his charger a bouncing jeep.

Magsaysay is not a seasoned politician. As national defence secretary in the Quirino government he mercillessly slashed through red tape to get immediate action.

WAS FIELD LEADER

In fighting Communist-led Huk peasant bandits he spent as much time in the field as in his office. He split with Quirino eight months ago after trying vainly to speed up action against the Huk bands.

The tired, ailing 62-year-old Quirino early today conceded victory to the 46-year-old Magsaysay, who takes office Jan. 1 for a four-year term. Quirino steps out after six years in office.

With about 60 per cent of Tuesday's vote tabulated, the unofficial count was Magsaysay, 1,815,188; Quirino, 798,022.

Canada Names Two To Board

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier and R. A. C. Henry of Montreal, head of the special projects branch of the transport department, have been appointed the Canadian members of the St. Lawrence river joint board of engineers, the external affairs department announced today.

Purpose of the four-man board is to review, co-ordinate and approve detailed plans for the power project portion of the St. Lawrence seaway and the construction program for power works in the International rapids section of the river.

The board is also to ensure that construction of the power project, estimated to cost $450,000,000 is in accordance with requirements already approved by both the Canadian and United States governments and the international joint commission.

Agreement for establishment of the board is contained in an exchange of notes signed at Washington today by Gen. Bedell Smith, undersecretary of state, and Canadian ambassador A. D. P. Heeney.

Appointment of the two U. S. members of the board was announced previously. They are the secretary of the army and the chairman of the federal power commission.

Beaudoin Chosen Speaker Of House

OTTAWA (CP)—Rene Beaudoin, 41, Liberal member of the Commons for Vaudreuil-Soulanges, today was chosen Speaker of the House.

In a brief sitting preliminary to the later formal opening of Parliament, the Commons unanimously designated Mr. Beaudoin as its presiding officer.

The Quebec member, deputy speaker in the last Parliament, succeeds Hon. W. Ross Macdonald, who has become government leader in the Senate.

Mr. Beaudoin's election as speaker was moved by Prime Minister St. Laurent and seconded by Hon. George Drew, Opposition leader, following tradition in this respect. Leaders of the CCF and Social Credit groups endorsed the choice.

Canada-U.S. Sign Agreement To Establish Joint Committee To Aid Trade

OTTAWA—(CP)—Canada and the United States today established a joint committee on trade and economic affairs in an attempt to forestall future friction and promote greater trade between the two countries. The unprecedented step to promote a "healthy" flow of trade across the Canada-U.S. border was completed in a signing ceremony at Washington at 10:30 a.m. EST today. Ambassador A. D. P. Heeney signed for Canada; State Secretary John Foster Dulles for the U.S. On the committee, which will consider all matters "affecting the harmonious economic relations between the two countries," will be External Affairs Minister Pearson, Trade Minister Howe, Finance Minister Abbott, and either Agriculture Minister Gardiner or Fisheries Minister Sinclair.

American members will include Mr. Dulles, Treasury Secretary Humphrey, Agriculture Secretary Benson and Commerce Secretary Weeks.

Other cabinet members from both countries may be designated to act on the committee from time to time, especially for special problems.

PREVENT FRICTION

Major reason for the committee, first proposed during Prime Minister St. Laurent's visit to President Eisenhower in Washington last May, is to prevent embarrassing trade friction on either side.

For example, U. S. import curbs on dairy products brought a rash of protests from Canada and other countries selling these products in the U. S. There was talk of Canada retaliating against American goods, but no action has been taken.

Now there are demands in the U. S. that imports of certain fish products, oats and lead and zinc be restricted on the ground they are harming American producers. These demands caused concern to Canadian officials.

Officials here said that once the new committee starts functioning, far-reaching economic policies may be hammered out. These policies, though not legally binding on either country, likely would seep down through administrative ranks, bringing the two countries closer together in outlook on multilateral trade and elimination of tariff impediments.

TOP-LEVEL EXCHANGE

The committee's functions under the agreement are:

1. To consider matters affecting harmonious economic relations between the two countries.

2. To exchange information and views on matters which might adversely affect trade.

3. To report to the respective governments so that consideration may be given to measures to improve economic relations and encourage trade.

This top-level committee will meet "once a year or more often," the agreement said. Meetings will alternate between Ottawa and Washington.

Time and place of the first meeting have not been announced, but it is understood that they may be discussed when President Eisenhower arrives here Friday for a two-day state visit.

The agreement has no set terminating date, but can be terminated by either government.

Canada has a trade-committee link both with Britain and France, but they are on the civil service rather than the cabinet minister level.

Canada and the U. S. are each other's best customers.

Speech Highlights

OTTAWA (CP)— Highlights of the speech from the throne read at the opening of parliament:

Much remains to be done before there can be permanent and durable peace in the world.

Canada's military buildup will be continued because it would be unwise for free nations to slacken efforts to deter aggression.

If peace is maintained there is every reason to look forward to continued development of Canada.

The government hopes that peace will be restored in Korea at a political conference.

Parliament will be asked to approve further assistance to under-developed countries and continued participation in the Colombo plan.

The government continues to regard the North Atlantic treaty as one of the foundation stones of Canada's external policy.

Canada's foreign trade has reached record levels but dollar shortages in many countries continue to prevent some sales abroad.

The government will continue efforts to reduce trade restrictions among countries.

Canada continues to enjoy general prosperity although some sectors of the economy, including agriculture, face difficulties.

The National Housing Act and the Bank Act will be amended to enable more Canadians with moderate incomes to own homes.

A bill will be introduced to pay compensation to Ontario farmers who lost hogs in the recent cholera epidemic.

The government is concentrating on the development of markets for Canadian fish and improvement of Atlantic coast fisheries.

Legislation will be introduced to define the government's responsibilities in the development of Canada's strategic north country.

Parliament will be asked to give the board of transport commissioners jurisdiction over all companies authorized to build or operate inter-provincial or international oil or gas pipe lines.

The government hopes American litigation will not delay construction of the St. Lawrence seaway.

A bill will be introduced to establish a federal-provincial assistance program for totally disabled Canadians.

Last session's bill to revise the Canadian Criminal Code will be reintroduced.

The Municipal Grants Act will be amended.

10 Per Cent Down Payment On New House

OTTAWA (CP)— A 10-per-cent down payment on the first $8,000 of the lending value of a new house likely will be a feature of the government's proposed housing legislation to be introduced early in the current session of parliament.

The speech from the throne today gave an inkling of the government's intentions, stating that legislation will be introduced "to increase and broaden the supply of mortgage money so that more people with moderate incomes will be able to find facilities to assist them to build their own homes."

"While more houses are being built this year than ever before, the growing population of Canada requires a continued expansion of housing," the speech said.

BANKS ENTER FIELD

Prime Minister St. Laurent some time ago outlined briefly the government's plan to allow banks to enter the mortgage-lending field for the first time. This will be done through a mortgage-insurance scheme to be handled by the publicly-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The prime minister also said the government was considering reductions in down payments and lengthening of time-to-pay on mortgage loans.

ANTICIPATED PROVISIONS

For weeks officials have been grappling with measures for cutting down payments and the new legislation likely will set out:

1. The down payment on the first $8,000 of the lending value of a housing will be cut to 10 per cent from 20.

Hydro Plan Cost $400,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro commission, said Wednesday night the commission hopes its frequency - conversion program in southern Ontario will cost no more than $400,000,000. The original estimate in 1947 was $191,000,000.

In a broadcast over a group of Ontario stations, he said nearly $150,700,000 has already been paid out since the program was launched in 1948 to standardize the province's power circuits at 60 cycles.

Previously, Toronto and certain other areas were "islands" of 25-cycle power users which required special equipment. Most of North America uses 60-cycle current.

The commission decided to start the program in 1949 so that several hydro-electric and steam - power plants built since then could be designed to produce 60-cycle power. In connection with these plants alone, the commission saved $77,000,000 and since then has devised other economies to cut over-all cost of the conversion program which will continue until 1960, Mr. Saunders said.

BULLETIN

TORONTO (CP)—Russell Benstead of Winnipeg and Alfred Pidgeon of Tillsonburg were each sentenced today to 17 years in prison for their part in a running gun battle with police in which a companion was killed and two officers injured.

Royal Meddler

Scottish Paper Lashes Philip 'For Interference'

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — The Scottish Socialist weekly, Forward, today called the Duke of Edinburgh "the Royal meddler" and attacked him for "an intolerable intrusion into political affairs."

In an article, "Royal Meddler" it was referring to a speech on education the duke made last week while being installed as chancellor of Edinburgh University. He spoke of draft service in the armed forces as "a very important character-building experience."

Forward countered: "The question of national service is one of the many issues on which Labor will fight the government in the new session of Parliament—yet a member of the Royal Family has chosen this moment to make a speech favoring the indefinite retention of conscription.

"The Duke of Edinburgh said he considered national service was right in itself. This was a remarkable statement—for not even the present government has dared to use this argument.

"The duke repeated the quite fatuous statements that conscription was 'character-building,' that it was 'the final stage of a student's education' and that it 'knocked the rough edges off people.'

"The first statement is accurate, although the public's interpretation is likely to be rather different from the duke's. The second indicates that the duke has a rather unusual definition of the term 'education,' while the latter only demonstrates his passionate militaristic desire for uniformity.

"It would be kind to describe the duke's intervention as unhelpful—in fact far too kind. It was an intolerable intrusion into political affairs."

Hitch-Hike On Ocean Flies Plague Beaches

LONDON (AP)—Eight English seaside resorts appealed today for government aid against a plague of blackflies which hitch-hiked across the Atlantic on floating seaweed.

Millions of the insects have appeared on the beaches of Brighton, Worthing, Hove, Littlehampton, Bognor Regis, Shanklin, Lyme Regis and Ventnor.

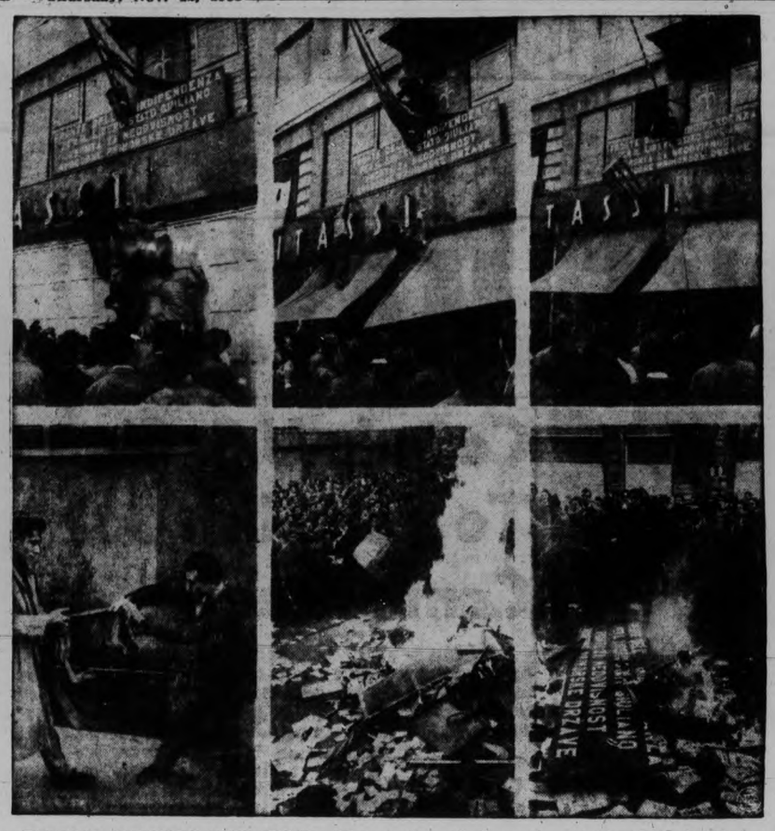
Bug experts say the flies are a type common along the eastern coast of North America. They are believed to have made the crossing on seaweed carried by the Gulf stream.

The flies lay their eggs in the beach shingle and the grubs mature deep in the sand. At Brighton, attacks by flame thrower and helicopter-sprayed insecticide have failed to budge the pests.

The resorts fear the flies will drive away vacationers or be wiped out before next spring.

Britain Plans Atom Station In Scotland

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's first atomic generating station will send electricity into the homes and plants of the industrial north from barren, under-developed Caithness, in the northeast tip of Scotland.



Reliable sources said Wednesday the government has been looking for a site in Scotland for its first industrial atomic power station, and Caithness, a county of fishermen, is favored. The final decision is yet to be made. It will be the eighth atomic energy establishment in the United Kingdom.

Full government priority will be given to construction of the plant, expected to run neck-and-neck with a similar project in the United States. The Atomic Energy Commission in Washington has said the first industrial atomic plant in the U.S. is expected to be completed by 1957.

CORPORATION TAKES OVER

The British plant, to be staffed by about 1,200 scientists and technicians, will be supervised by the Atomic Energy Corporation now being established. The government announced Tuesday the corporation will develop atomic energy with the aid of private enterprise.

Rapid development of atomic energy in Britain will reinforce Prime Minister Churchill's request to President Eisenhower for a freer exchange of information on atomic energy between the United States and Britain. Reliable sources say Churchill will raise this subject at the Big Three meeting in Bermuda next month.

TRIESTE RIOTERS RUN WILD—This series of pictures shows the progress of rioters as tension reaches a feverish point in Trieste. In this case the rioters chose the offices of the Inedependentist Party. First they climb up the outside of the building to tear down the flag, and then toss furniture and other equipment out of the window. What can't be torn apart or broken is burned, including the sign that had been on the headquarters building.

Won't Subsidize Merchant Fleet

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet has decided against subsidizing Canada's deep-sea shipping fleet to keep it operating under the Canadian flag.

However, a government source said Wednesday, operators hard-pressed by ocean competition will be allowed to dispose of ships built in this country during the war and bought under a "covenant" after hostilities.

An announcement on the turn-down of representations from the Canadian Shipowners Association may be made today by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

While information was lacking on just what the government will do for the 33-ship ocean fleet, sources said the easing of the covenant means either:

1. Owners will be allowed to sell war-built ships to other countries, or

2. They will be allowed to transfer them to British registry, under which cheap operating costs will enable them to make a profit.

Work Out Plans To Screen Chinese

PANMUNJOM (AP) — The Indian command worked today on detailed plans for screening Chinese and Korean war prisoners if the Communists abandon efforts to woo them home.

Red interviews with the prisoners who have refused repatriation were cancelled for the eighth straight day when the Communists repeated their demand to see 356 PoWs who were skipped by stalling persuaders last Thursday.

Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the neutral nations repatriation commission, has told the Reds to interview entire compounds of 500 men each in a day or skip those who are not interviewed.

The car had been driving north on Monaghan Rd. when it struck the right front corner of the locomotive as it crossed the street.

Mahoney lost a tooth and received a cut chin in the accident while Mrs. Killaby sustained a broken finger, lacerations and abrasions.

The cylinder casing on the locomotive was slightly damaged. Conductor J. Leddy, of Toronto, told police the train had been crossing at about eight miles an hour. The signal bells and blinker lights, besides the locomotive's bell, were all working at the time.

"You can use your imagination as to what I mean. You can make a gentle three-point landing and step out safely. Or you can land vertically—with your wings shot off."

Radar stations and fighter squadrons are located, as far as planners could best determine, to counter the best avenues of attack on North America.

Procedures to be followed in investigating unidentified aircraft over or approaching Canadian territory will make it impossible for a disguised aircraft to pose long as friendly.

WILL BE PREPARED

"The system makes provision for the possibility of a sneak attack by aircraft carrying false Canadian or American markings. The interceptor pilot is not permitted to trust solely to his eyesight. He must esatblish positive identification by other means before an aircraft is definitely classified as friendly."

He said the system has already proved its efficiency on many occasions when planes off course or off schedule were promptly challenged by RCAF interceptors.

Secretary Returns

BERLIN (Reuters)—Walter Ulbright, first secretary of the East German Communist party and deputy premier, has returned from a visit to Russia. Gore's Landing Pastor Dies Suddenly

GORE'S LANDING (ENS) — Taken ill after returning from a memorial service Wednesday in Cobourg, the Rev. A. Y. Robertson, pastor of the Gore's Landing-Harwood - Plainville charge of the United Church, died at 10 a.m. today in Cobourg hospital.

Mr. Robertson, who was in his early sixties, had been in poor health since last January. He returned from the Cobourg service on Wednesday and said he was tired. At 3 a.m. today he took a turn for the worse and died later in hospital.

Mr. Robertson came to this charge two years ago from the Ottawa district. Though living in Gore's Landing, he conducted weekly services in the other two points of his charge—Harwood and Plainville.

He succeeded the Rev. A. E. Larke, now of Springville.

SCOTTISH BORN

Mr. Robertson and his widow were both Scottish born. They have two daughters, Margaret, who earlier this year was a nurse at Civic Hospital but has since moved to London, Ont., and Mrs. Almack (Rhoda), of Toronto.

Before going to the Ottawa district, Mr. Robertson had a charge in Western Canada.

Last January Mr. Robertson became seriously ill and was in Civic Hospital, Peterborough, for four months. He returned to conduct the service on the Sunday before the Coronation. From June until August he was able to conduct only one service each Sunday, alternating among the three villages. Since August he had been conducting three services a day.

Acquaintances noticed that the heavy Sunday schedule was taxing his strength; but he continued his program of three services a Sunday.

effective thus far in preventing aggression in Europe. My government continues to regard the treaty as one of the foundation stones of Canada's external policy. The formation of the air division of the Royal Canadian Air Force in Europe is now completed. The brigade group of the Canadian Army is performing its role effectively in the integrated force. Canadian naval strength is increasing."

WOULD ENCOURAGE TRADE

On international trade, the speech said the government is convinced that countries can best achieve economic strength and security through more liberal trade and overseas investment policies. It was continuing efforts to bring about progressive reduction of trade restrictions.

On the home front, the speech forecast an expanded housing program. This would be undertaken by increasing the supply of mortgage money so that more persons with moderate incomes could build their own homes.

Several weeks ago, Prime Minister St. Laurent said the new housing scheme also would provide for smaller down payments and longer time in which to repay loans.

The speech said a bill providing for compensation for farmers who have lost hogs by cholera will be introduced.

WATCHING MARKETS

The government was giving particular attention to development of fish markets, the speech said, as well as to encouragement of more modern production methods in the Atlantic provinces.

The speech predicted an overhaul of the resources department and definition of government responsibilities in affairs of the Yukon and Northwest Territories, including the welfare of Canada's 8,600 Eskimos.

The Commons would be asked to amend the Pipe Lines Act to give the board of transport commissioners jurisdiction over all companies authorized to construct or operate interprovincial or international oil or gas lines.

A bill providing for establishment of a country-wide federal-provincial assistance program for totally disabled persons also would be introduced. The speech said plans for rehabilitation of such persons now are being worked out with the provinces.

A bill for complete revision of the Canadian Criminal Code will be submitted, the speech said. A Commons committee completed study of the code at the last session but there was not time for its recommendationst o be placed before the House. A committee of penal experts has been appointed to examine and report on methods of parole and remission of sentences.

The Commons also would be required to consider a complete revision of the Bank Act. This act must be reviewed every 10 years. The revision would tie in with the new housing scheme, enabling chartered banks to enter the mortgage field.

Other measures to be placed before legislators, the speech said, deal with the Canadian armed forces, United Kingdom financial agreement, Ontario-Manitoba boundary, and extension for another year of emergency gold mining assistance. The speech gave no explanation of these bills.

Also to come before the House are amendments to the Bank of Canada Act, Municipal Grants Act, Explosives Act, Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, Customs Act, Excise Act, Excise Tax Act, Atomic Energy Control Act and certain veterans legislation. The amendments were not explained in the speech.

Senator Makes A Confession

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator W. M. Aseltine, deputy Opposition leader in the Senate, today enlivened the formality of introduction of new senators with a confession.

The 67-year-old Progressive Conservative from Saskatchewan confessed that for some time he has had his eye on the job of Senate Speaker, a post filled by an appointee of the government in power.

In an obvious reference to the re-election of the Liberals last August, Senator Aseltine said things just hadn't worked out in such a way that his hopes could be fulfilled.

Senator Wishard Robertson, 64, appointed following the election as Senate Speaker, replied that Senator Aseltine still is a young man so there is hope for him yet.

The friendly exchange took place after Senator W. Ross Macdonald, new government leader in the Senate, congratulated Senator Robertson on his appointment and pledged him the support of all senators.

3. Interest rates will be increased to 5½ per cent from 5¼.

4. Mortgages running to 25 and 30 years will become normal. Currently mortgage men are reluctant to lend money on anything beyond 20-year mortgages.

The amendments to the National Housing Act will benefit Canadians who can build a house for $8,000—which is far below average costs—but there will be some benefits even for higher-priced homes.

MORE DEPTH

There has been talk of a radar "net" in northern Canada, but what actually is up there now is something less than a solid "net." One thing apparently needed is more depth of the radar system with additional stations to the south to track incoming planes after the outer net has picked them up.

The controversial St. Lawrence seaway proposal also appears certain to be discussed by Eisenhower and the Canadians.

Mossadegh's Supporters Riot In Tehran

TEHRAN (AP) — Two demonstrators were killed today by police gunfire as thousands of supporters of ex-premier Mohammed Mossadegh took their ousted leader's case into the streets.

Gangs shouting "Long Live Mossadegh" roamed main thoroughfares despite heavy police and troop guards at main squares and intersections throughout the city. By noon at least 20 demonstrators had been arrested. Several had been severely clubbed by police under orders to take "drastic action" in maintaining order.

The city's main bazaar, which houses hundreds of tiny stores and booths, was about half shut down. Soldiers with fixed bayonets patrolled the labyrinth of covered passageways throughout the huge shopping area, long a centre of Mossadegh strength.

Despite the widespread street agitation, many of the city's activities continued normally.

At the university of Tehran, classes settled down after a jittery start when isolated students shouted pro-Mossadegh slogans and then ducked out of sight.

The strike call had been noised about for more than a week by Communists and pro-Mossadegh leaders as a demonstration of support for the 73-year-old Nationalist leader now facing any army court-martial on treason charges.

Industrials Show Slight Market Gain

In golds, seniors and holding companies were lower. Campbell led the juniors down with a 25-cent loss.

Western oils continued to slip. A few small gains were registered.

Base metals were down with Consolidated Smelters showing a little strength.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals showed a few more gains than losses. New Norzone, New Delhi and New Larder U. showed penny losses.

Housing In Peterborough, Cobourg and California

Wherever you go in Peterborough and its outskirts, you see new houses. Even central city lots that have been vacant since the beginning of time are being built on. The completely new housing areas are both many and extensive. Owing to Federal, Provincial and municipal assistance, and to a great amount of purely private building, the number of dwellings in and about Peterborough has caught up with the post-war demand for them caused by the increase in population and the lack of building in the decade before 1945. The number of houses daily advertised for sale in the columns of this newspaper shows that supply is meeting demand.

* * *

Few of the new houses that have been built are for rent. This is because Peterborough people prefer to own their own homes, and assume heavy mortgages in order to do so; and also because the high cost of building has made economically risky, even foolish, the building of houses for rent. New apartment buildings have gone up, and many old houses have been converted into duplexes or several apartments. These have, to some extent, taken care of the demand for rented accommodation, but not entirely. New apartments, built at present costs, rent for monthly sums ranging between $80 and $125. Apartments carved out of old houses also come high, in comparison with 1940 or even 1945. These rents have gone up in line with the rents of new apartments, and also because the costs of alteration to provide the new units has been high.

The real shortage of rented accommodation is in low-rent houses and apartments, especially in rental units big enough to accommodate a family of two or three children. This shortage is likely to exist always, because there is no longer any such thing as cheap rental for a house or apartment, cheap as some people hope. It is impossible these days for an owner to rent a place for $30 or $35 a month; both taxes and upkeep prohibit it, as do the costs of building, repair and alteration.

* * *

An example of the cheapest that can be done, and that with special government loans and for the government, is the project to build rental houses in Cobourg. Ottawa has lent a million dollars at low interest to a company to build, on behalf of the Department of National Defence, 142 new houses in Cobourg, primarily to houses employees of the big new ordnance depot going up there. Yet the rents for these houses will be $54, $57 and $60 a month, we have been informed. These are low rents by today's standards, but high enough for a town of Cobourg's size. They go to show that even most favourable financial provisions for building will not provide new houses at rents low enough to meet the expectations of people wanting to rent at $30 or $40. It is in this category, in cities throughout the province, that there is a scarcity of dwellings. No form of equitable rent controls will make up for this scarcity; to provide adequate dwellings for families at such low rates is a form of public charity. Whether such charity—subsidies—should be necessary in a period of high employment and high wages is questionable.

* * *

The province is doing away with its rent controls at the end of February, and we think that if ever controls are to be abandoned, that is as good a time as any. The shortage of houses is pretty well ended, although, as we have said, there remains a scarcity of houses for rent. The law of supply and demand works wonders. In Cobourg the demand has increased because of new industrial activity there and the new Department of National Defence ordnance depot, now being built. So Cobourg owners of houses and renters of apartments are taking advantage of the situation. For apartments of modest size and undistinguished condition Cobourg people are asking $75 a month—as high as the rents in quite large cities where taxes are twice as high. (Similar apartments in Cobourg rented not long ago for half the price.) It is to meet this artificial scarcity and quick profiteering of Cobourg renters, that the new million-dollar housing project for ordnance depot workers has come about.

* * *

An opposite situation has developed in southern California, San Bernadino, for instance. Owing to the depression in Hollywood, over-building, and the fact that among some of the swanky residential hills television reception is poor, many houses and apartments are vacant. Five, six and seven-room houses and apartments of new design and completely equipped are being profusely advertised at rents ranging from $45 to $65 a month. Too bad that magic is not enough to transfer southern California's supply to Cobourg's need.

Exhaustion In Australia?

Several newspapers are warning the people of Australia that they should not exhaust the Queen when she visits that Commonwealth. They point out that when Her Majesty was last in Canada, as Princess Elizabeth, we showed little consideration for the limits of ordinary human strength, and asked her to carry out a program which was too heavy for her.

This advice is doubtless well-meant, but we think that the Queen's advisors are capable of judging what she may safely undertake. The Queen understands, as her parents and grandparents did before her, that no country wants to wear her out with a succession of public appearances, but that everybody is anxious to see her, and that disappointment is severe when she cannot be seen. The duties of a monarch are many, and one of the most taxing of them is being perpetually stared at by noisy admiring crowds. Nevertheless, we do not think that there is a monarch living today who is not heartily glad that this is so.

Public appearances are very tiring. Everybody who has given even one good-sized party knows that. Talking to strangers or people whom you know slightly, being pleasant to everybody, being tactful in every situation—these things make demands on nervous energy. Added to this, in the case of the Queen, there is the task of putting people of every kind at ease, for many of them are certain to be in awe of her. It is hard work.

Yet we think that the Queen is the best judge of how much of this kind of thing she can stand, and if she is too hard on herself she has people near her who can give her good advice. For Canadian newspapers to offer officious counsel to the people of Australia is, we feel, a lapse in tact.

"Policy Not Changed"

Thirty-six years ago the most significant event of the twentieth century took place: the Bolshevik Revolution. At a celebration in honour of it last Friday in Moscow, President Voroshilov said in the presence of other leaders of the Soviet Union—including Malenkov and Molotov and the shade of Stalin—some words which would be alarming if they were not so well-rubbed. Such phrases as this: "The imperialist camp headed by the U.S.A. is conducting a policy of preparing for war." "The imperialists" are "intensifying the dirty slandering attacks on the Soviet Union and other people's democracies." He accused the U.S. of intending in Korea to "drown the Asian peoples in blood." On the other hand: "The Soviet Union has repeatedly approached other countries to solve the German problem . . . but the Western Powers have hypocritically . . ." And so on.

How frightful the mind of a Russian must be. What hope for peace is there when the leaders of a country talk as they do? What change of heart or mind has there been on which to base peace? The most distressing remark in the speech, (insofar as we have read in the passages available to us in English translation) was Voroshilov's statement that "Our foreign policy has not changed." This is terribly apparent. Neither have Soviet views of other people changed, it is bitterly obvious.

Rougher Railway Crossing

The resurfacing of Highway 7 from Reaboro to Fowler's Corners is now almost completed. After the pavers had crossed the C.N.R. track, a C.N.R. work gang came along to adjust the crossing. Whether they raised the tracks several inches or whatever they did with their gravel and cement, the result of their work was to make the track crossing rougher than it was before—a hazardous bump. Why should taxpayers and the Department of Highways spend tens of thousands of dollars making a road smooth only to have the C.N.R. botch it? The new bump is damaging to cars, and even dangerous. We hope that the company will promptly see to it that their end of the job is done properly. The least one should expect from a railway crossing level with the highway is that it be level.

Menace To Moose

The deer hunting season has been flourishing with a vengeance in these parts. Since it opened, three moose have been shot and killed, together with a considerable quantity of deer. Deer are legal bag, moose are not. Every hunter licensed to shoot a deer knows he has no license to shoot a moose. We do not know the reason why the hunters—we do not call them sportsmen—killed the moose. They may have been incompetent hunters; they may have been careless; they may have been trigger-happy, just wanting a carcass and taking the risk of accidentally shooting a moose. Whatever the reasons for the slaughter, the fact remains that it was illegal. Our news account noted that the minimum fine for shooting a bull moose is $100, for shooting a cow moose $200. We note with surprise that the maximum fines are only $300 and $500 for first offences.

How U.S. Views The Cold War

By ROBERT STEPHENS

THE UNITED STATES administration, acutely conscious of the strong pressure in Western Europe for some new initiative to seek an end of the cold war is keeping an eager eye open for any firm evidence of the real intentions of the Soviet Union and China in this respect

✧ ✧ ✧

THE TWO most immediate indicators of Communist intentions are considered here to be the Korean pre-conference talk now in progress at Panmunjom and Moscow's reply to the Western Powers proposal for a conference of Big Four Foreign Ministers to discuss Germany and Austria and other causes of international tension.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHEN America's Mr. Arthur Dean was sent to Korea to discuss with the Chinese and North Koreans a solution of the deadlock over the composition of the political conference—which was supposed to follow within ninety days of the Korean armistice—the U.S. State Department believed that the Communists really wanted such a conference to take place. On that assumption, and in line with past experience of negotiating with Communists, the department was prepared for Mr. Dean to spend a fair length of time and patience in seeking an agreement at Panmunjom. It is believed that the Communists would, as on previous occasions, try to extract the utmost advantage from United Nations disunity before finally coming to terms. The results of Mr. Dean's talks have not been very promising so far, and although the State Department is still prepared to regard the time spent so far as usual skirmishing delay, there is no doubt that the longer the Panmunjom talks drag on, the more doubts will grow here as to whether the Communists wish a conference to be held at all.

✧ ✧ ✧

UNITED STATES OFFICIALS here are aware that if these doubts crystallise into conviction, and the Panmunjom talks fail, Western policy will enter a new period of danger and uncertainty. First of all the ability of the United States to prevent a renewal of the Korean war by President Syngman Rhee of South Korea—a move which the Americans have so far checked by stop-gap diplomacy on an almost day-to-day basis—would be weakened. Secondly, tension between the United States and her allies over Far Eastern policy might increase.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIRD and perhaps most important, the whole basis on which the U.S. Secretary of State, Mr. John Foster Dulles, is still trying, in his cautious and devious way, to construct a rational long-term Far Eastern policy for the United States, would be undermined.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR UNDERNEATH all the tactical questions of how to handle the Russians and the Chinese, those questions which sometimes divide the United States and her friends, and even Americans themselves, are fundamental strategic problems: do the Chinese or the Russians really want a settlement of the cold war, or are they merely manoeuvring to obtain advantages, such as the weakening of Western unity, a slackening of Western military effort and an economic and military breathing-space for themselves, which they will later exploit as soon as they are able?

✧ ✧ ✧

ON THE TRUTH about these matters depends the formulation of long-term United States policy. Those American policy-makers who believe that neither Russia nor China wants a genuine settlement, but only a temporary respite, argue that any sign of internal difficulties in the Soviet Union or China should be fully exploited to weaken the position of those regimes. They argue that if any softening of Communist pressure is now evident, it is merely the result of effective Western counter-measures; and that if the West relaxes its counter-pressure now, it will merely enable the Communists to renew the offensive, from a stronger position, later on.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS VIEW has influential advocates in Washington, but is not the official policy of the United States; although it may influence the tactics by which that policy is pursued. There is good reason to believe that the long-term policy of Mr. Dulles is based on the assumption that a settlement has at some time been achieved with the existing regimes in the Soviet Union and China, and that the ability to achieve and maintain such a settlement depends not on a Communist change of heart, but on ensuring that the Russians and the Chinese understand that such a bargain is in their own calculated interests. Where Mr. Dulles and Britain's Premier, Sir Winston Churchill, appear to part company in their views on talks with the Russians is their appreciation on the manner in which Soviet foreign policy is formed.

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR WINSTON seems from the United States, to attach much importance to the human factors of imagination and emotion which may mould the world picture as seen from the Kremlin by the new Soviet leaders, and which personal contact might modify. Mr. Dulles, on the other hand, appears to see Soviet foreign policy as still based on cold assessments of interest; and as being to a large extent in the hands of Prime Minister Malenkov, but Molotov—a fully experienced expert on foreign affairs on whose advice Malenkov, as yet inexperienced in foreign affairs, might be expected to rely.

✧ ✧ ✧

AS A RESULT the State Department view is that if Russia really wants a conference and a settlement she will be just as willing to negotiate through Molotov at a Foreign Ministers' meeting as through a Big Four conference. And so the renewed Western proposal for a Foreign Minister's meeting was regarded by the United States Administration as a genuine and adequate opportunity for Russia to show her real intentions.

One-Way Business

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

The amount of wheat shipped from the port of Churchill during the season just closed toalled more than 10,000,000 bushels, about 2,000,000 more than the record set last year.

However, incoming freight was nothing to write home about. The Winnipeg Tribune points out that of the 31 vessels that docked at Churchill to take out wheat, 28 arrived with empty holds. Only three unloaded freight totalling 2,902 tons.

The port of Churchill can serve a useful purpose in relieving congestion at lakehead ports. But the Tribune doubts if shipowners can be persuaded to route their vessels via the bay indefinitely if they are unable to carry incoming freight.

MARSHAL VON PAULUS' RETURN TO THE WORLD STAGE

The Isolationists Of Canada

(VICTORIA TIMES)

MR. Orvis Kennedy, M.P., the national organizer of the Social Credit party, undoubtedly expresses the party's philosophy in foreign affairs when he attacks the United Nations.

Social Credit is, among other things, the only real isolationist party in Parliament and its isolationism has seldom been disguised by its leader, Mr. Solon Low. It is no surprise, therefore, when Mr. Kennedy denounces the Government for joining the United Nations and thus giving away, as he argues, our "sovereignty" and our right to control our own foreign policy.

Mr. Kennedy goes farther and announces—quite wrongly—that Canada no longer has the right to declare war on its own behalf, having delegated that right to the United Nations. He also attacks the Government because though fully supported in Parliament, it did not ask the will of the Canadian people when it entered the Korean war. According to Social Credit, the Government apparently must call a general election and engage in two months of public debate while the enemy is marching before it can embark on war—a new version of Mr. Meighen's famous Hamilton speech, the worst and most regretted mistake of his distinguished career.

Social Credit, as explained by Mr. Kennedy, is ready to remain in the United Nations, provided it is composed of self-governing nations which would not lose their autonomy in joining it. We are asked to believe that this autonomy already has been lost by our present membership in the United Nations, when, of course, an excessive use of so-called autonomy is the great obstable in the United Nations and the largest danger to peace.

Mr. Kennedy seems to think we are still living in the Victorian or the pre-Victorian age when every nation could exercise unlimited, unilateral sovereignty careless of its neighbors and friends. If the last war proved anything it was that no nation, not even the most powerful, could even defend itself, that collective security in some form was the only chance of security left in an inter-dependent world.

The only agency of such security now available is the United Nations. It is an imperfect agency, to be sure, but where do its imperfections lie? They lie in the unwillingness of great states to pool their sovereignty sufficiently in a large collective sovereignty which alone can keep the peace.

It is just as well, however, that Social Credit should make its own position clear. Social Credit is the only significant enemy of the United Nations within the politics of Canada. But not a very significant enemy, since it is fortunately a small splinter in a Parliament which, regardless of party division, knows that Canada can never be safe except as a member of a community of nations determined to stand together in defence of peace.

St. Lawrence Power

(NEW YORK TIMES)

TWENTY-two years ago the power authority of New York State was authorized when it obtained federal approval, to proceed with the American portion of the construction of a great Hydroelectric installation in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence River. It has finally received a license from the Federal Power Commission to go ahead with the work. Yet even now three private organizations are prepared to institute court fights to delay the project.

Meanwhile the need and demand for more power on both sides of the border have grown to clamorous proportions. Ontario Province is just about desperate for new sources of power. Even with the extra 1,100,000 horsepower that the St. Lawrence plan will develop the need for power here in Canada will not be satisfied.

One may well wonder why a proposal that will mean so much and be so valuable to the United States and to Canada should be so long delayed and meet such powerful obstacles. The answer is that private organizations are fighting for their own interests. They are entirely within their rights in so doing. But in our opinion they are mistaking their own long-range interests and they certainly are delaying something that is for the public and national good.

Now that the F.P.C. has at last granted a license to the New York State Power Authority, the way is clear to get started on final plans and studies. By the time the authority is ready the suits being brought by private interests should be disposed of. John E. Burton, chairman of the Authority, asserted last September that the coal mine owners "openly boast that every day they can delay us is worth $10,000 to them." Whatever it may be worth to them to prevent the St. Lawrence hydroelectric project, it is worth far more to consumers in New York and New England to see the plan carried out.

ROUGH TIME

They were just returning from their first day's shooting. Since none had ever handled guns before, there were several casualties. First came the father with his hand in a sling; next one son limping; then the daughter with her head bandaged. An old ghillie met them and inquired if they had had a good day. The father replied that it had been terrible.

"But the bag, sir," the ghillie said, pointing to the second son who had just arrived with a sack on his back.

"That," bellowed the father, "is the dog!"

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation. Selah. He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death. (Ps. 68:19, 20.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile . . . Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous: and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart. (Ps. 32:2, 11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And Enoch walked with God after he begat Methuselah three hundred years, and begat sons and daughters. And all the days of Enoch were three hundred sixty and five years: and Enoch walked with God: and he was not; for God took him. (Gen. 5:22-24.)

✧ ✧ ✧

By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God. (Heb. 11:5.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Man that is born of a woman is of few days, and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down: he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not. (Job 14:1, 2.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Hear my prayer, Lord, and let my cry come unto thee . . . My days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass. But thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever; and they remembrance unto all generations. (Ps. 102:1, 11, 12.)

Letter To The Editor

BOTH PROTESTANT AND CATHOLIC

SIR: I feel I must answer the letter in Tuesday night's paper written by one who signs the name as just "Protestant". If you are an Anglican, don't be ashamed to sign your name as such, be proud of your great heritage which has come down to us through the centuries.

The Anglican church is both Protestant and Catholic. It is the true universal church in the world today. The one church which can contribute most to church union. You may be a very high Anglican or a very low one and be at home in the one church whether high or low.

But why all this about whether the Anglican church is Protestant or Catholic? The main thing is go to your church and be loyal to it every Sunday and never mind finding fault with it. Go and ask your rector, he will enlighten you more about our beloved church.

Yours,
A TRUE ANGLICAN.

The Anonymous Islands

(Strix in The London Spectator)

We were talking about security measures and the comedies to which they sometimes give rise. General Bob Laycock remembered the occasion during the last war when it seemed to the Chiefs of Staff possible that in certain circumstances we might have to carry out landings in the Azores. As the commander of a Commando Brigade, he was summoned, with one staff officer, to the presence of Sir Roger Keyes, who was Chief of Combined Operations at the time. In an atmosphere thick with secrecy they were shown the chart of an archipelago on which all the proper names had been blacked out. "I am not going to tell you where these islands are," began Keyes. "You don't have to sir," said Laycock, for the security people had forgotten to black out the longitudes and latitudes. "They're the Azores." "The Azores?" said his staff officer in a pleased voice. "I say, how splendid! I've always wanted to go to the Mediterranean."

Israel Ready Heap Blame On Palestine

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Israel was reported ready today to heap full blame for recent Palestine violence on military and economic pressures by her Arab neighbors.

Sources close to Israeli chief delegate Abba Eban said he would review the whole field of Arab-Jewish relations before the United Nations Security Council this afternoon in Israel's most important statement of policy since an uneasy armistice ended the 1948 Palestine war.

The Israeli sources said Eban's review would include Jewish charges of Arab aggressions across the frontiers, economic boycotts against Israel by Arab nations, and Arab opposition to such Israeli development projects as diversion of the Jordan river waters. Syria has brought the latter subject before the council in a separate complaint.

CALCULATED ATTACK

The council meeting was called today to debate further the charges—back up by the report of UN military observers in Palestine—that armed Israeli forces on Oct. 14 broke the Palestine armistice with a "calculated" attack on the Jordan border village of Kibya. Fifty-three Arabs were killed in the attack.

With Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb as chief spokesman, the Western Big Three Monday condemned Israel for the attack, but thus far have not presented the council with a resolution of censure.

Israel already has contended that the Kibya attack was made not by her regular army but by village militia inflamed by a Jordan attack two days before in which a woman and two children were slain in the Israeli town of Yahude. UN military observers have reported, however, that the attackers on Kibya carried weapons but usually given to local defence forces.

Discuss Problem Of Diabetic Food

TORONTO (CP)—How a diabetic person can follow his diet when travelling or when eating in restaurants was discussed Wednesday night during a food demonstration sponsored by the Diabetic Association of Ontario.

A knack for estimated quantities and a knowledge of what foods to avoid are essential, diabetics were told.

The usual diabetic diet consists of foods generally available in restaurants, such as eggs, bacon, meat, fish, cereals, milk, cream, butter, vegetables and fruits, it was said. Foods to avoid are those with a high or uncertain content of carbohydrates, such as fancy desserts.

U.S. Air Force Reports New Jet Engine

WASHINGTON (AP)—The air force today said the United States has its first jet engine "with an official rating in the 10,000-pound thrust class."

It is the Pratt and Whitney J-57, which powers the air force's eight-engined heavy bomber, the Boeing B-52, and its new supersonic fighters, the North American F-100 Super Sabre and the Convair F-102.

At East Hartford, Conn., William P. Gwinn, general manager of Pratt and Whitney aircraft division of United Aircraft Corp., said in a statement that the J-57 is "at least two years in advance of any other engine we know of in the turbo-jet field," including British ones.

EXACT RATING SECRET

The air force declined for security reasons to give the exact power rating of the J-57.

Pounds of thrust, the power measurement for jet engines, cannot be readily interpreted in terms of horsepower. At 20,000 feet of altitude and 735 miles an hour, a pound of thrust is roughly equal to one horsepower, but at 40,000 feet and 600 miles an hour, a pound of thrust is the equivalent of two horsepower.

Edmonton Bows To Bombers In 21-17 Loss

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG (CP)—Injuries may play a big part in deciding the Western Interprovincial Football championship as the best-of-three final goes down to the wire Saturday night in Edmonton.

Darrell Royal's Eskimos not only came out on the short end of a 21-17 score in the second game Wednesday against Winnipeg Blue Bombers, but may have lost three top-flight players.

Esks, who won the opener last Saturday 25-7 in their own Clarke Stadium, may go into the deciding battle without halves Billy Vessels and Don Simon and end Frank Anderson.

Vessels aggravated a back injury, suffered in the final game of the regular schedule. It kept him out of the first playoff game. Simon hurt his left knee and ankle when cut down on a terrific block thrown by Jack Jacobs in the third quarter.

WENT LIMIT

Anderson, hard-rushing all-star defensive end, pulled up with a knee injury.

Loss of any of the three would deal a serious blow to Edmonton's chances of retaining the western title, won last year over the same Bombers in a final series which also went the limit.

Bombers, who came out of the second game with reports of only minor bruises, took their victory calmly.

"There's still the big one next Saturday," was the general comment.

Much of the credit for the Bomber victory went to their hard-charging defensive line, led by tackles Dick Huffman and Buddy Tinsley and ends Tommy Lumsden and Normie Hill. All four played havoc with the Edmonton attack.

TERRIFIC LINE PLAY

Terrific line play also was responsible for holding off the Esks' last-half drive which almost wiped out Bombers' 19-5 first-half lead, and which had most of the record 17,434 pro-Winnipeg customers on edge until the final whistle.

The weather played a big part in the game. Strong down-draft winds kept the kickers and punt-receivers guessing as the ball twisted and turned, slowed down and speeded up in 35-mile-an-hour gusts. The temperature ranged from 35 to 40.

Import fullback Ralph McAllister was top point-maker for Winnipeg with two touchdowns. Veteran Tom Casey, now a non-import, added another. Flying wing Buddy Korchak, winner of the Dave Dryburgh Memorial Trophy as the league's leading scorer, kicked two converts and a single. Gerry James returned a punt for a single. The other two points came on a safety touch when Rod Pantages was caught behind his own goal line.

GETS MAJOR

Vessels, leading American college player last year and one of the WIFU's top scorers this season plunged over for one Eskimo major. All-star teammate, Rollie Miles took a 25-yard pass from quarterback Claude Arnold and ran the remaining 45 yards for another touchdown. Big tackle Bill Snyder converted both majors and booted a field goal. Pantages added the other two points on singles.

Eskimos took a 5-0 lead in the first quarter on Snyder's field goal and Pantages' two singles with the wind behind them. In their best offensive spurt of the day, Bombers tallied 19 points in the second quarter and held Esks scoreless. Quarterback Joe Zaleski passed to Casey for one touchdown. McAllister scored two, one on a pass from Casey; the other on a plunge. Korchak and James added the other four points.

CUT LEAD

Edmonton tallied the only points in the third quarter, with Vessels crossing the line and Snyder converting, leaving the score at 19-11 for Bombers.

Winnipeg's safety touch gave them a 21-11 margin, but Arnold's long pass for a major to Miles, and the convert, cut the lead to four points.

Penalties and fumbles gave the Eskimos a chance to pull the game out of the fire in the last minutes of play, but they bogged down on a third-down buck by Normie Kwong, all-star fullback who missed the opener due to an injury. Time ran out before they could threaten again.

Lakefield Bows To Orono In Keen Game

Orono Orphans staged a spirited third-period drive to defeat Lakefield Indians 5-3, Wednesday night at Civic Arena, in an action-packed intermediate OHA Lakeshore hockey fixture before some 250 fans.

Led by the West brothers, Dean and Junior, erstwhile Peterborough stars of junior and senior ranks respectively; and husky defence stalwart, Eric Johnson; Orphans scored three sizzling markers in the final frame after trailing 3-2 at the end of two lightning periods of play, to hand Cam Wasson's red-and-white lads their second setback of the young season. Dean Found's boys dropped their opener to Lindsay and hold a .500 average in a seemingly well-matched grouping.

PENALTIES A PLENTY

Referee Doug Calhoun meted out 19 penalties in a very rugged, hard-fought but not bitter struggle from bell to bell, including three majors and a misconduct; he called indiscriminately as 10 miscues went to Indians though several came for trifles to either team.

Johnson scored two and helped on one for Oronos as junior had a goal and an assist. Dean West and Shetler each got a goal, Robinson aiding on one. For the Indians, Caravaggie, McCracken and Lonsberry tallied, an assist apiece going to Quigley, Wilson and Birch. Teams:

Orono — Goal, Hooper; defence, Johnson J. West; centre, D. West; wings, Shetler, Armstrong; alternates, Phillips, Lunn, Robinson Mercer K. West Schell, Rombough Gutgah.

The annual Neill Trophy bonspeil gets under way on Wednesday, November 25, and it means that the games committee, (Norm Hamley, chairman), is now receiving entries. All local rinks must be of schedule calibre.

Notices for the first open bonspiel will soon be out and its not to early to get up a rink. Wednesday, December 21, is the date. All the prizes are turkeys; mixed rinks, with the ladies playing lead and vice, and the men second and skip.

The first tie game in the men's section was turned in last night. H. Rutherord and R. Pakenham were appossing skips.

We overheard this the other day: "Its always a good idea to keep your words soft and sweet, because you never know when you will have to eat them."

CHAMPION RETAINS TITLE — New York's Jimmy Carter (right) took less than five rounds in Montreal last night to kayo Armand Savoie, Montreal lightweight, in a titular fight. The world's champion got sweet revenge in this scrap for a non-title decision he dropped in the same city to Savoie last February, a fight which brought about this rematch.

An item from the Port Hope paper: "A release from Royal Canadian Navy at Halifax reveals that HMCS Stadacona, an entry in the Nova Scotia senior football league, has five wins in as many starts. Two of Coach Don Loney's Stadacona players are Peterborough boys. They are Ordinary Seaman Johnny Johnson, a six-two, 212 pounds, centre and line backer on defence, who also takes a turn at centre as an offensive lineman; and Petty Officer Don Laplante, at middle on offence, who stands five-eleven and weighs 192. Both have been important cogs in the undefeated season. The Stadacona team is making a definite contribution to the quality of Canadian football in Nova Scotia".

Orfuns pull out tomorrow aft by car for Port Hope to take the train to Montreal and the Eastern Canada intermediate grid final on Saturday aft. They'll be home early Sunday eve. A chap in Montreal dropped us a line to mention some of the better players on the Lakeshore Flyers' roster. Two good quarterbacks in veteran Ron Farrington and young Ronnie Lamb, both okay passers to receivers like Gibby Loiseau, Bob Iredale, Al Gellately and Andy Delabarre. Coach Bill Davies has some strong offensive players in Wilf O'Hagan, Jerry Hecklinger, Don McDonald, Charlie Baillie, Ken Dixon, Kevin O'Neil, Sandy Spence, Harry Shrugrue, Jim Bermingham and big Joe Stracina. Latter is also their best kicker and is rated a dependable punter.

In COSSA Final Again

Football fans here who won't be making the trip to Montreal can view an important fray Saturday aft at two in Riverside Park. It's between Welland and PCVS for the COSSA senior "A" championship. Yes, a sudden-deather. Collegiate won the lakeshore and Bay of Quinte area to qualify for the final, while Welland won the Niagara district and then swamped Barrie of the Georgian Bay zone in the semi-final. While the Welland squad must be tough, don't sell Bev Goulding's good PCI-ers short. They've come a long way the past month and will give it the old school try in an effort to hang another COSSA pennant on the heavily-laden Garnet and Gray gridiron belt.

Licking their wounds and threatening dire things to all and sundry in the way of OHA senior "B" competitors, the TPT Petes are set to go against Kingston Goodyears here Friday p.m. While the Redmond dudes delighted their followers by pulling a 5-4 win over Goodies in the Limestone City last week, they had a letdown in Bella Villa the other eve and the Memos rolled to victory. Petes promise it won't happen again, but we wouldn't bet on that. Looks to us like a lot of so-called upsets will occur in the tight group race ere playoff spots are clinched, as there appear to be no weak sisters this season. The trailing Orillia Pontiacs tied us here and Belleville (in second last place) trimmed us last start. Oshawa leads, with Petes next and K's in third position.

Red Still Doing Well

Comes an American Hockey League bulletin and we note that the Ashburnham redhead, George Sullivan, is still fourth top sniper with 19 points. Three Buffalo Bisons have 22 points, another one has 21 and Danny Lewicki (the "C" form kid) of Pittsburgh has 20, one more than Red at Hershey. Latter scored seven and aided on 12 in 14 frays, but surprisingly enough his minutes in penalties have climbed to 18. Must be getting real aggressive as he awaits a Boston NHL call-up. Don Ashbee has seen action so far in just five Cleveland games, scoring one and aiding on two. Nip O'Hearn has been loaned out by Syracuse to Springfield and we hear he's been going good in goal there.

If there are any printed rules governing professional wrestling, the mean Mills brothers haven't read them. Al and Tiny are loaded with illegal mat tactics and they demonstrated this again here last night in gaining a doubtful main event draw with Timothy Geohagen and Oyama Kato couldn't roll an "r" to save his life and Tim knows Dunlop kept looking the other way. Most discouraging for the good guys. They teamed up well together, though Kato. While a pugnacious but absent-minded referee Bunny naught of the Japanese lingo. Pat Flanagan flew to a semi-final victory over Firpo Zybsko—and the genial half-bald Pat remarked afterward: 'That's the first time in a ring I looked to have lots of hair." Firpo's head is like a billiard ball. Johnny Harmon and Al Costello drew in the prelim.

Irisher And Jap Get Draw With Mills' Brothers In Main Pro Grapple Bout

The villainous Mills brothers, Al and Tiny, were held to a draw in the main pro mat bout at the Brock Arena last night by Irish Tim Goehagen and Japanese Oyama Kato. In fact, the latter pair should have won the deciding fall but for more ring skullduggery by the terrible westerners. Tim had his paralyzing "Irish sleeper" grip on Al and ready to put him away for the count when Tiny tore into the ring and knocked Geohagen loose. Angry fans swarmed around the ring as the time-limit gong sounded, and once more the Mills brothers required a police escort through the crowd to their dressing-room.

Geohagen weighed 233 and Kato 225 against 255 for Al Mills and 274 for big brother Tiny. It was a tag team bout but more than once four grapplers were in the ring at one time tangling furiously.

TINY GOT KATO

Tiny downed Kato in 22 minutes for the first fall after throwing him hard into the turnbuckles twice and slamming him. He and Al had softened the game Jap up plenty by putting the boots to him in turn, punching, yanking hair, using chokes and every other illegal trick they knew. A wicked slash with the sides of his hands proved a potent weapon in the Jap's attack, but he couldn't beat both Mills brothers together. Tim Geohagen bore the brunt of their combined effort and gave a real account of himself with his strength, but he had little help from Referee Bunny Dunlop who missed much of the Mills' villainy.

Kato evened it up 12 minutes later with his Oriental version of the "Irish sleeper"—an unconscious hold with arm pressure applied to the sides of the neck. He got it on Tiny, following some savage slashes, with Geohagen first softening up the big bruiser by throwing him out of the ring and then cuffing him about hard with punches and elbow smashes. The Irishman and Jap worked together better as a team this time and didn't let Villains Inc. get organized in their corner. Once, Tim and Kato got in together and rammed the Mills' heads together like battering rams as an amazed ref looked on.

WORKED TOGETHER

Tim took pulte a beating in the "Boston crab" hold next round in the westerns' corner, as Al applied the grip and Tiny used illegal leverage to keep the strong Irisher from throwing Al clear. It was a prolonged and painful ordeal and every time Kato tried to rush in and protest, Dunlop shoved him back out and lectured the Jap while the pair worked their racket. It was finally broken up and Tim looked to have Al ready for the kill when Tiny jumped in and broke that up just as the gong sounded to end t in a draw.

Popular Pat Flanagan, at 232, took bald Firpo Zybsko, scaling 241, in 21 minutes of the semi-final with a smart reverse leg nelson and shoulder slam. He tricked Firpo into it when the latter was ramming him in a corner, Pat jumping high to clear the other's head and apply the hold fast. It was a lively scrap with the Pole strong and rough, but Pat faster and smarter on the mat. He had his rival out of the ring different times, and he and the ref used Firpo's handle-bar moustache for a handy grip upon occasion.

COSTELLO MEAN

Johnny Harmon, going 224, and the 236-pound Al Costello, drew in the 30-minute prelim. They showed a lot of scientific stuff for a space but mixed it in rugged style later with Costello always rough and getting in wrong with the pugnacious Bunny Dunlop, an old heavyweight pro grappler himself. Costello had many mean tricks to offset the smart, speedy work shown by the popular Harmon in this tussle, the latter rallying strongly toward the end.

Leafs Trample Canadiens 4-1; Rangers Win 3-2

By WALTER GRAY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Frank Boucher asked only for a piece of victory cake. Wednesday night he got the frosting and a candle on top as well. The cake was a 3-2 win for his New York Rangers over Chicago Black Hawks, the first New York home victory over the Hawks since Nov. 12, 1952. The frosting was rookie defenceman Bob Chrystal's first National Hockey League goal which gave the Broadway Blues the win. The candle was Ivan (The Terrible) Irwin, who made his debut in New York by scoring an assist.

Irwin was brought in to replace former captain Allan Stanley who was jeered off the ice last month and sent to Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

ONE POINT AHEAD

The largest crowd of the season in Toronto—14,120 fans—saw the Maple Leafs defeat league-leading Montreal Canadiens 4-1. The win vaulted the Leafs into second place two points behind the Canadiens and one point ahead of Detroit Red Wings who fought to a 2-2 deadlock with fourth-place Boston Bruins in Boston.

Rangers, still coasting in fifth place, five points up on the Hawks, scented victory early in the first period when Max Bentley scored, assisted by Irwin and rookie Ike Hildebrand. The Hawks moved into the lead in the second period on goals by Gus Mortson and Larry Wilson, but Wally Hergesheimer tied it up in the last minute.

Victory came at 16:17 when the Winnipeg-born Chrystal, on assists from Leo Reise and Nick Mickoski, snapped a 15-footer past Al Rollins.

In Toronto sophomore right-winger George Armstrong scored two goals for the Leafs. Linemates Harry Watson and Sid Smith counted the others. Dollard St. Laurent netted Canadiens' goal in the last seven minutes of play.

Gordie Howe, who has keyed Detroit Red Wings' scoring attacks since 1946, brought about the tie with Boston with only 25 seconds remaining. The goal, plus an earlier assist, left him on top of the scoring list with 18 points.

Teammates Ted Lindsay and rookie Earl Reibel remained only one point behind Howe with their scoring efforts. The 23-year-old Reibel scored a goal and assist and Lindsay contributed two assists.

The Red Wings, scoring their fourth tie in six road games, were scoreless for 45 minutes while all-star centre Fleming Mackell and Leo Labine scored the Bruins in the second period. Then Reibel scored on assists by Lindsay and Howe at 5:22 of the third. Howe's tying goal came at 19:35, with assists by Lindsay and Reibel.

Chicago visits Montreal in tonight's only game.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Mickey Mantle took his first extended walk on crutches Wednesday and afterward said he felt as if he'd played a ball game.

Carter Flattens Savoie With Hard Blow In 5th

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL—(CP)—One short, devastating right that travelled less than a foot was all champion Jimmy Carter needed Wednesday night to flatten Armand Savoie and explode the Montreal boy's dream of the world lightweight championship. The little pile of points Savoie had courageously put together for a lead disappeared with the knockout blow at 59 seconds of the fifth round. Savoie had taken the first round by a tiny margin, the second and third handily with sharp left hooks and jabs and left-right combinations. The champion began opening up in the fourth with solid belts that won him the round. Both fighters came out of it with cuts over the eye but neither showed the slightest sign of distress.

Savoie came bouncing off his corner for the fifth. There were light exchanges and Savoie moved in as he flicked a left. The little Negro champion saw an opening. His right fist snapped out and Savoie went down on his back.

COULDN'T MAKE IT

As referee Tommy Sullivan took up the count, Savoie suddenly raised his head, shook it and appeared to realize he had to move fast if he were to beat the fatal 10. But he was still scrambling on hands and knees when Sullivan tolled it off.

The fight drew a crowd of 9,136 to the Montreal Forum. The gross gate was $53,719 and the net gate $45,855.

Carter received $25,000. Savoie's share was 12½ per cent of the gate.

The same judges who scored a decision for Savoie over Carter in a non-title fight here last February were assigned again to Wednesday night's fight. Judge Leon Germain gave the first three rounds to Savoie, the fourth to Carter. Judge Rene Ouimet scored the first even, the next two for Savoie and the fourth for Carter. Judge Johnny Gow gave Carter the first and fourth, Savoie the second and third. The Canadian Press and Associated Press cards coincided with Germain's scoring.

TERRIFIC PUNCH

"He was coming in and seemed to drop his hands," said Carter. "I had been looking for an opening and I let go. I wasn't surprised when he didn't get up. I knew I had caught him with a really terrific punch."

Savoie said "I saw the right coming but couldn't get out of the way. I heard the count but couldn't do nothing. Champion, my eye. I can beat him, I know."

Savoie and his manager, Cliff Sowery, said they will campaign among the 10 ranking lightweights and try to get a return shot at the title.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs defeated Queen's 13-8 to win the intercollegiate senior rugby title 14 years ago today. In that last season of intercollegiate football before the suspension for the war years, the London collegians were the only Canadian senior team to finish unbeaten and untied.

Dykes Named To Manage Orioles Team

BALTIMORE (AP)—Genial Jim Dykes, who lost his job as manager of Philadelphia Athletics a week ago, is back in baseball business at a new stand, working for his old boss.

He became the third manager on the rising payroll of Baltimore Orioles after Marty Marion was fired late Wednesday with a year still to go on his $30,000-a-year contract. Marion joined the other former St. Louis Browns manager, Rogers Hornsby, on the inactive pay list.

The Orioles will pay nearly $100,000 for three managers and get work out of only one of them. Both of the surplus contracts expire after next season, as well as that of Dykes which was bought from Philadelphia. Hornsby is believed to draw around $40,000 and Dykes $30,000.

MARION "DEFEATIST"

Dykes was picked by general manager Art Ehlers, his recent boss at Philadelphia, as the proper field pilot to guide Baltimore in its return to major-league baseball.

Ehlers said he fired Marion because of his "defeatist attitude" toward instilling new life in the last-place Browns now that they've moved into a new environment. He called Dykes "forceful and energetic."

Jimmy said he was "tickled to death" to be back at work as a manager again, and especially pleased to be "back with Art Ehlers."

He envisioned his new team playing in front of crowds of 26,000 rather than "the 1,500 or 1,600 fans" they customarily played for in St. Louis.

Lowly Reds Topple Cleveland Barons 4-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons, once the top team in the American Hockey League, were pushed down a little further Wednesday night as Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears skated into a second-place tie.

The lowly Providence Reds—Norm Desaulniers, a 17-year-old relief goalie guarding their nets—helped topple the Barons as they handed them a 4-2 defeat.

At Hershey, the Bears rallied in the last period to beat league-leading Buffalo 3-2, while Pittsburgh thumped Syracuse Warriors 4-1 relegating them to the cellar.
